1. Lord Elphinstone's scheme for the conversion of ináms already declared continuable for one or more lives into permanent partial alienations upon the holders agreeing to purchase this commutation by the payment of a certain portion of the assessment, was approved in Sir Charles Wood's despatch No. 89, dated 24th December 1864. The terms of the settlement, which is called the "Terminable Inám Settlement," were as follows:—

1. Holders of ináms continuable for one life to pay two-thirds of the revenues.
2. Holders of ináms continuable for two lives to pay half the assessment.
3. Holders of ináms adjudicated to be continuable for three lives to pay one-third the assessment.

In the case of life-holdings it was further ruled that, in the event of any holder dying before the expiration of 10 years from the date of his accepting the settlement, succession would only be allowed on the amount due to Government for the unexpired period being paid as nazar. (G. Rs. Nos. 2115, dated 6th June 1864, and 530, dated 9th February 1865, and despatch to the Secretary of State, No. 43, dated 13th December 1875.)

2. No lapsed holding was revived under the Terminable Inám Settlement, and the terms of commutation were only offered in instances in which an individual during whose life a holding would not lapse to the State, was alive. Grants by the British Government were also treated under the settlement.

The terms of commutation were based upon the state of the holding at the time of the settlement and not upon its condition at the date of decision by the Inám Commision or grant. This principle being decided upon, all distinction between the treatment of life-holdings, whether originally adjudicated to be continuable for life or which by circumstances had become life holdings, was abolished. In the event of the holders of life ináms not surviving ten years from the date of acceptance of terms, the balance of revenue for the unexpired period was ordered to be paid up before succession could be allowed, and it was directed that no nazrána should be levied on succession to or transfer of these holdings.

An inám entitled to continuance for one generation further than that in which it was on 6th June 1864, but the holder of which had no sons, was treated as in its last generation but one.

The offer of the terms of commutation took the form of a simple question by the local executive officer to the recognized holder or his representative; and if he agreed in writing, the settlement was carried out, and if he refused, the holding remained for escheat to the State in due course, according to the terms of the original decision or grant.

The 6th June 1864 was fixed as the date on which an inám must have been in existence to be included in the Terminable Inám Settlement.

(G. Rs. Nos. 2900, dated 1st August 1864; 3165, dated 20th August 1864, 4506, dated 14th November 1864, and 916, dated 2nd March* 1865.)

3. In the case of the widow of a last proprietor of an hereditarily adjudicated inám, the Terminable Settlement should be applied. But this order is not to have retrospective effect. (G. Rs. Nos. 3139, dated 24th July 1865, and 3939, dated 19th September 1865.)

4. The name of the individual in whose favour a life decision on an inám has been passed, and who has agreed to the "Terminable Inám Settlement," is not to be removed from the lists, and that of the person to whom it is intended to assign the holding should not be substituted. (G. R. No. 3135, dated 24th July 1865.)

5. The following questions having been raised with regard to the mode in which the Terminable Inám Settlement should be carried out, answers

* The holder of an inám in the last generation but one on 6th June 1864, died on 1st August following before he could be asked whether or not he agreed to be assessed half. He had no sons, and so his nephew became the heir. The question was raised whether the latter should be required to pay down a sum (20 years' half assessment), the interest of which at 5 per cent. would equal the revenue relinquished. In this case it was held that the inám should be treated as though the settlement had been accepted, and continued to the nephew on payment of half assessment, provided he consented to pay the arrears due from 6th June 1864, and that no lump sum was recoverable from him. (G. R. No. 4912, dated 6th December 1865, and G. M. No. 5103, dated 23rd idem.)

INÁMS AND JA'GHIRS.]

were recorded by Government as shown opposite each question:—

Question.Answer.

1st.—If the last generation consists of several brothers, and the eldest dies within the prescribed ten years, are the survivors to pay up the balance, and, if so, who is to do so, i.e., the eldest surviving brother, or the heir of the deceased?

2nd.—On the death of all the brothers who is to pay up the balance, i.e., the heir of the elder, the heir of the younger, or the heir of the last survivor?

3rd.—In the event of a disagreement as to the acceptance of the terms, whose wishes are to be acted on?

4th.—How are cases to be disposed of where the judi equals the amount of assessment?

5th.—How are the cases to be disposed of when the judi is in excess of the assessment?

1st.—Nothing is due during the existence of the generation, i.e., during the lifetime of all the brothers.

2nd.—Cases of this kind must be decided on their merits. If there is a disagreement, payment should be demanded from the party actually in possession; and if this point cannot be ascertained, from the heir of the eldest brother.

3rd.—Vide the preceding answer.

4th.—The practice adopted in Belgaum should be carried out elsewhere, and summary settlement sanads issued gratuitously.

5th.—The Alienation Settlement Officer, S. D., recommends that sanads should be granted gratuitously in the case of unadjudicated ináms; but that in the case of ináms adjudged to be terminable, no sanads should be issued, but that the ináms should be allowed to lapse according to decision. Sanads should be granted gratuitously in both instances.

(G. R. No. 1365, dated 6th April 1867.)

6. In the case of ináms coming under the Terminable Settlement the entry of new names may be made on transfer by sale, &c., provided the balance of the lump sum payment of judi settled on the ináms is paid up in advance. (G. R. No. 3545, dated 10th July 1874.)

III.—DUMA'LA VILLAGES.

1. Dumáldárs are not entitled to fees on copies of the records of their villages. Every person in-interested in the accounts of a village is entitled to take copies of the accounts free of charge.

It is impossible to lay down a hard and fast line to regulate the conduct of Pátels and Kulkarnis towards the Dumáldárs of their villages. The custom of the country should be adhered to as far as possible.

It would not be practicable to direct that whenever a village officer's presence is required, he should be summoned through the Dumáldár, who may be away, nor are the Dumáldárs entitled to demand that this be done. The village officer's replies to Government references must also be sent direct. If any information is required from the Dumáldárs they will be addressed, and not the village officers.

(G. R. No. 1725, dated 1st April 1874.)

2. The practice of receiving nazarbhets from Pátils of dumála villages and of making presents of turbans to them in return at the time of the jamábandi should be discontinued. (G. R. No. 5007, dated 18th July 1890.)

IV.—JA' GHIRS, &C., IN SIND.

1. The terms of Sir C. Wood's despatch ordering that pátidári grants should be continued on the existing terms to the present holders and their descendants in lineal succession, does not mean that, in case of failure of heirs to the holder at the time of the settlement, the grant should lapse, even if there be a descendant of the original holder alive. One of the principles of the jághir settlement was that while grants made by the Tálpurs during the period immediately preceding British rule were to be resumed after a certain period of enjoyment, grants made at an earlier time, much more those which dated from a time previous to the Tálpur conquest in 1783, should be continued hereditarily. The pátidári grants (which only involve a revenue of Rs. 8,600) are all traceable to the time of the Afghan Rulers of Sind and are supported by title deeds. Their antiquity is unquestionable. Sir B. Ellis, therefore, recommended that they should be left intact as long as a lineal descendant of the original grantee survived. The Government of Bombay supported this recommendation and the Government of India sanctioned it. The Secretary of State, Sir C. Wood, in reviewing the proceedings, remarked that the "amount of alienations could not under the circumstances be considered too liberal" and that he "must rely on the assurance of Government that it was sufficiently so." It is clear, therefore, that, had the Secretary of State intended to disallow any recommendation on behalf of the pátidárs, the same would have been specifically mentioned, and, in the absence of this, Government have no hesitation in authorizing the Commissioner in Sind to continue the pátidári grants to lineal male descendants of the original grantees. (G. R. No. 1840, dated 10th April 1878.)

2. Apart from the Government rental on the land, the Zamindárs in Sind have certain haks under the name of zamindári, láfa, deh kharch; which vary in almost every village and district.

INA'MS AND JA'GHIRS.]

The Sind Survey Settlement Officer should, in making his settlement, define what are the rights of the Zamindárs in each village, or class of tenures, and should either consider them in the lump sum to be paid by the Zamindárs to Government, or where the occupants hold direct from Government, fix the amount or the share of the produce the Zamindár is entitled to, and having included it in the jamábandi, pay him the amount from the treasury annually out of the collections. (G. R. No. 5329, dated the 18th October 1878).

3. Although the Jághirdárs (Beluch Chiefs) of the Upper Sind Frontier District have no legal claim to exemption from payment of the hakába and local cess, and Government would be acting strictly within their power in enforcing the payment, there is sufficient reason why Government should refrain from exercising their right. The amount payable is comparatively trifling, but the Jághirdárs are not men in affluent circumstances, they have rendered and are rendering efficient service of the nature demanded from them, and on account of which they hold their lands, and valid political reasons exist to induce Government not to require them now to pay these rates. The Jághirdárs should, however, be told that the concession is a pure matter of favour and is revocable at the pleasure of Government, and that their lands are strictly service grants held in consideration of services to be rendered and of the exertions of the holders to preserve peace and order on the frontier; that the collection of hakába is foregone only so long as the cost thereby incurred by Government without return is moderate, that is to say, if a Jághirdár takes advantage of the indulgence to farm out his jághir and bring large areas under cultivation with great profit to himself and much increased consumption of Government water, such terms will be imposed as may be necessary to secure the public interests. If it should appear unnecessary to make the concession in perpetuity, the hakába and local cess should be imposed on the first succession to a jághir after the date of the issue of these orders. All large land-holders may reasonably be expected to contribute to the local cess as a fund for the execution of works of local benefit, but if the Jághirdárs cannot be prevailed upon to pay it voluntarily at once, the payment should be exacted on the occasion of the first succession, at any rate on the cultivated area. Formal sanads clearly embodying these conditions may be issued to these Jághirdárs. It should be distinctly expressed in the sanads that the levy of hakába and the local cess is postponed as a matter of favour and during good behaviour and for so long only as may seem proper to Government in regard to the circumstances of the district and the particular estate. (G. Rs. Nos. 1171, dated 25th July 1881, and 9406, dated 21st December 1883.)

4. The nature of a jághir as an essentially resumable estate should not be overlooked. This character of a jághir is expressly insisted on in

1863.

Bombay Regulation XVII of 1827, Section 38,* and it has generally been held in the Courts that even when a jāghir has by good will or sufferance or neglect been continued for generations, any alienation carved out of it by an individual Jāghirdār would not subsist beyond his life. In such estates there is a reversionary right retained by the overlord, which cannot be impaired by grants out of the limited estate either of corporeal or incorporeal rights. Were it otherwise, the purpose of the grant would generally be defeated. (G. R. No. 89, dated 10th January 1888.)

V.—INA'MS GENERALLY.

1. A grant in inām does not convey an hereditary title unless the hereditary tenure be specified. (G. R. No. 1366, dated 11th April 1860.)

2. A grant "to a man, his children and grandchildren" or to "his descendants in lineal succession for generation after generation in perpetuity and for ever," when unburdened with condition as to prospective service, and free from religious and charitable trust, confers an absolute estate and is, therefore, alienable. (L. R. No. 439, dated 22nd April 1893; vide G. R. No. 3541, dated 15th May 1893.)

3. Whenever a separate survey number can be formed from the excesses in inām lands discovered by the Survey Department, it is better to form it than to distribute the assessment of the excess over the whole alienated land. When no separate number represents the amount of excess, the holder may pay, as judi on the whole, the assessment on the excess so far as it cannot be contained in a separate survey number, and if the holder do not wish this, the Superintendent must direct the demarcation of the portion in excess.

With regard to the village servants, there is no objection to their being allowed to retain land found in excess of the authorized holding whenever the whole, including the excess, is not more than is required for their remuneration for the performance of service. (G. R. No. 2877, dated 17th August 1860)

4. Itlak inām allowances in the Ratnāgiri Collectorate, which are cash assignments in lieu of lands, should be settled on the principle of the summary settlement. (G. R. No. 3348, dated 1st October 1863.)

5. The following proposals of the Revenue Commissioner, S. D., relative to the treatment of inām lands in the Khāndesh Collectorate, a large proportion of which may be waste, were approved by Government :—

"I would propose that in Khāndesh, the circumstances of which Collectorate as regards want of cultivation are altogether exceptional, any. Inámdár, a large proportion of whose holding may be waste, be relieved of the payment of chaúthái in cash on his giving up to Government uncultivated land assessed at an amount exceeding the proper cash chaúthái by one-third, that is, at one-third (instead of one-fourth) of the assessment of the entire holding, the remaining two-thirds being held subject only to the annual nazrána of one anna for each rupee of their assessment. A person holding an inám of rupees one hundred and twenty and therefore liable to pay rupees thirty in cash as chaúthái, might thus, if a large proportion of his holding be uncultivated, get rid of the cash payment, by giving up waste land assessed at rupees forty,* the remaining eighty rupees worth of land (including all that is cultivated) being held by him subject only to an annual nazrána of eighty annas or five rupees. To cover the most extreme cases, the Collector might be allowed to remit the nazrána by his special order in any year when he might be satisfied that its payment would press heavily on the Inámdár as bearing a high proportion to the value of the land under cultivation, and actually yielding rent to the Inámdár. As for instance if only five or six rupees worth of the inám of one hundred and twenty rupees assessment mentioned as my last illustration were under cultivation and paying rent.

“ On the same principle the judi † due to Government on account of a partially assessed inám might, if a considerable portion of the inám were waste, be relinquished on the holder giving up waste land assessed at a third more. Thus if rupees thirty be due as judi on an inám valued at Rs. 100, of which one-half is waste, the Inámdár might be for ever exempted from the payment of the judi Rs. (30) on his giving up waste land valued at rupees forty ‡, the remaining (Rs. 60)

worth of land being treated as surv inám subject under the summary settlement to rupees 15 as chaúthái and rupees three and annas twelve as annual nazrána. Should the sixty rupees worth of land also include a large proportion of waste, the Inámdár might further have the option of giving up in lieu of the chaúthái payment of rupees fifteen, waste land assessed

Rs. 15 plus a third more Rs. 5.

at rupees twenty, the remaining forty rupees worth of land being held subject only to the annual nazrána of forty annas, which, if found to press heavily in consequence of want of cultivation, might be remitted from year to year so long as requisite, under the special orders of the Collector. This provision is proposed only to meet the case of ináms of which such a large proportion may be waste and would probably for years continue to be so, as to render even the payment of the regular annual nazrána a hardship.”

(G. R. No. 99, dated 9th January 1862.)

6. In the Northern Division the practice of allowing relinquishments of portions of inám lands in lieu of the settlement judi payable on the entire holding has obtained only in the Panch Maháls, in the Southern Division only one isolated case occurred in Kaládgi so far back as 1864, and in the Central Division the practice has only prevailed in Khándesh and in the talukas of Násik transferred to that district from Khándesh. In Khándesh the custom has been to allow the land of the value of 8 annas in the rupee to be relinquished in lieu of the settlement of 6 annas in the rupee. In other words, Government require a margin of one-third of the amount of settlement as compensation. The same system of calculation should be followed in the Panch Máhals as is observed in Násik and Khándesh. (G. R. No. 2798, dated 1st January 1880.)

7. When an Inámdár dies without heirs, his inám land should at once be made khalsat, and dealt with as the Collector thinks proper, subject to any order which may be made by the Civil Court under Section 10 of Regulation VIII of 1827. Should in any case, after land has been made khalsat, heirs of the deceased Inámdár appear, the matter should be referred for the orders of Government, who will issue suitable orders.

The right of occupancy in lands thus made khalsat is not to be sold in such manner as to disturb actual possession. (The right of occupancy as superior holder in inám land vests in the Inámdár, and not in his tenant. The Inámdár's right will be sold, subject to the tenant's actual possession.)

These orders are not intended to interfere in any way with the provisions of Acts II and VII of 1863.

(G. Rs. Nos. 1983, dated 25th April 1872, 2935, dated 19th June 1872, 3605, dated 25th July 1872, and 4100, dated 19th August 1872.)

8. The holder of an inám cannot convey to another person any right over the inám lands greater than his own. If the lands in his possession were liable to resumption on the happening of a certain contingency (such as the death of the holder) they are equally so liable in the possession of the holder's mortgagee. The contingency in question having happened, and the lands having been resumed, the claim of the late holder's mortgagee thereto ceases to exist, whatever claim he may have against the heirs, if any, of the deceased. On the reversion of the land to the original grantor, all subordinate rights therein created by the grantee necessarily lapse also.

But 'resumption' does not mean ousting of possession. It is always taken to mean the continuance of the land in the hands of the actual occupants thereof so long as they do not fail to pay the full assessment leviable in respect of it. (L. R. No. 1003, dated 27th July 1883; vide G. R. No. 5953, dated 11th August 1883.)

9. Land wholly or partially exempt from the payment of Government land revenue is liable on the death of the last holder intestate and without known heirs to be dealt with under Section 10 of Regulation VIII of 1827, and the High Court may direct either (a) that it should continue under the management of an administrator appointed by the District Judge, or (b) that it be sold under the authority of the Court, and that the proceeds be deposited in the public treasury for the eventual benefit of all concerned.

If the latter course be taken, the exemption being a heritable transferable property, the land must necessarily be sold free from liability to assessment, as otherwise the person entitled to the proceeds would lose part of the value of the estate.

But if this sale takes place, Government must necessarily lose what, if there are no heirs or assignees of the intestate, Government would otherwise gain, viz., the right to the full assessment which might be levied on the extinction of all rights to exemption.

Government modified Resolution No. 1983 of 25th April 1872 by Government Resolution No. 2935, dated 19th June 1872, by directing that the Collector should deal with such lands subject to any order that may be made by the Civil Court under Regulation VIII of 1827, Section 10. But the Resolution thus modified directs the Collector to declare the lands khálsa at once, and leaves any heirs that may subsequently appear to be referred to Government.

It has been pointed out that an order declaring the land khálsa may be practically set aside by an order of the District Judge appointing an administrator, and that no executive order could operate to make the land khálsa. This difficulty is one that could only arise when the High Court has directed the sale of land wholly or partially exempt for the eventual benefit of all concerned.

But this procedure would only be followed in cases in which no person had appeared and established a right.

Before such procedure can be taken, Section 10, clause 1, requires a proclamation to issue calling upon the heir of the deceased or any person entitled to receive charge of the property to attend and prefer his claim, and under clause 3 of the same section, if any person appears and satisfies the Judge of his right to the possession of the property or any part of it as heir, executor, administrator or otherwise, it shall be delivered up to him.

If no such person appear or establish such right, there are two alternatives open to the High Court :

(a) to direct the property to continue under the management of an administrator for a further period, or

(b) to direct a sale.

But if there be no heir, assign or other person claiming through the deceased intestate, the property lapses to the Crown by escheat.

The property vests in Her Majesty not by virtue of Regulation VIII of 1827,
 1 Beng. L. R., O. C., 87. but by virtue of the territorial law of British India.

On failure of heirs, the Collector would be as much 'entitled to receive charge of the property' on behalf of Her Majesty, as any other person to whom rights accrued on the death of the deceased.

If any heir subsequently appear, the result would be the same as if the estate had been claimed by a private person whose right was afterwards found to be excluded by a better title.

In such case, Government would be responsible to such heir.

But there is no necessity for a sale by the Court, nor could the property be sold, if the Collector claimed that he was entitled to receive charge of the property on behalf of Her Majesty.

In order, however, to avoid the risk of litigation in such cases as to claims that might afterwards be brought forward, the High Court might be moved to direct under Section 10, clause 4, that such property should continue under the management of an administrator, until such period had elapsed as would render the chance of any claim being preferred infinitesimally small, and Government might then through the Collector put in their claim to the property as having passed to Her Majesty by escheat. The land could then be dealt with as proposed in Government Resolutions Nos. 1983 and 2935 of 1872.

The declaration that the land had become khālśa would no doubt be inoperative, as against any person purchasing the property as the estate of the deceased under the order of the Court. But such an order could not be passed if the land were claimed by the Crown. For sale can only be directed when no one appears and establishes a right to receive charge of the property. Government appear to have as good a right to put in their claims and protest against such sale as any other claimant to the estate of an intestate, and if it appear that there are no heirs, &c., the Courts would be bound to recognize the right of the Crown, and to direct delivery to its officers, on such claim being preferred, instead of directing a sale.

The point has, so far as can be ascertained, never been decided, but there are several cases on record in which Government have claimed the right to specific property by escheat and there is no law which requires that instead of taking the specific property, Government would be entitled only to the proceeds realised by its sale. Legislation seems, therefore, unnecessary.

The question involved might perhaps be raised in a test case if desired, and if the High Court hold that intestate property must in all cases be sold whether the right of the Crown is put forward or no, steps might then be taken to modify the law as to the procedure to be taken in such cases. But the rights of the Crown do not depend on Regulation VIII of 1827, and Section 10, clause 4, only prescribes the procedure when no claim whatever is preferred to the property.

10. The benefit of the summary settlement accrues to each successive holder or transferee, and it is immaterial under both of the Summary Settlement Acts (vide Section 3 of Bombay Act II of 1863 and Section 7 of Bombay Act VII of 1863) whether the adjustment is made with a de facto or a de jure holder.

INAMS AND JÁGHIRS.]

Apparently the only way in which Government can take advantage of an escheat of alienated land or the decease of a holder intestate and without heirs, is by claiming it on behalf of the Crown and declaring it to be khálsa instead of allowing it to be sold under Regulation VIII of 1827 as the property of the deceased.

11. The following are the rules for the settlement of the land and cash alienations (other than those to District Hereditary Officers) in the Panch Maháls :—

Settlement of Land Alienations.

(1) All lands held in trust for religious or charitable institutions, the estimated value of which has been allowed for in the exchange of territory with His Highness Scindia, shall be continued in perpetuity as endowment property, provided that the proceeds are still devoted to the support of the institutions for which they were originally granted.

(2) All lands held by individuals as personal ináms without the condition of service, the estimated value of which has been allowed for in the exchange of territory with His Highness Scindia, shall be continued hereditarily to lineal male heirs in male descent of persons who were in possession at the time of the cession of the Panch Maháls, or of those whose names are found entered in the accounts or in any authentic documents of His Highness Scindia; or in perpetuity as heritable and transferable property on the payment of the two-anna quit-rent levied in Gujarát under Act VII of 1863.

Note.—Inám lands which were allowed for in the exchange accounts, but which are now found to be held by the widows' daughters and daughters' sons of those whose names appear in Major Buckle's Book may be allowed to be held as heritable and transferable property on payment of a quit-rent of two annas in the rupee. If the holders decline to accept these terms, their inám lands should, at their death, be resumed. (G. R. No. 1428, dated 9th March 1881.)

(3) All lands held in trust for religious or charitable institutions, the value of which was not allowed for in the exchange of territory, but proved by entries in the village accounts or otherwise to have been wholly or partially free of assessment for a period of 12 years antecedent to 1860-61 (the date of the cession of the Panch Maháls to the British Government), or to have been recognized as wholly or partially rent-free by British officers during the period (1852-53 to 1859-60) the Panch Maháls were under the political superintendency of the British Government on behalf of Scindia, shall be continued in perpetuity as endowment property, provided that the proceeds are still devoted to the support of the institutions to which they were originally granted.

(4) All lands held by individuals as personal ináms without the condition of service and circumstances as stated in Rule 3 which may have been registered under the notification of the 22nd December 1865, published with the sanction of the Revenue Commissioner, shall be continued in perpetuity as heritable and transferable property subject to the payment of the two-anna quit-rent levied in Gujarát under Act VII of 1863.

(5) All lands not fulfilling the conditions laid down in Rules 1 to 4, but claims to which may have been registered under the notification of the 22nd December 1865, may, unless the claims appear to the Settling Officer to be so entirely unfounded as to warrant resumption, (in which case an appeal will lie as hereinafter provided), be continued, subject to the payment of a quit-rent of from one-fourth to one-half of the survey assessment, in perpetuity as endowment property in the case of those held in trust for religious or charitable institutions, and as heritable and transferable property in the case of those held as personal ináms. Provided that lands claimed by hereditary district and village officers on any other than service tenure shall be considered as held on that tenure, unless they are proved to be held on some other tenure to the satisfaction of the Settling Officer.

Note.—The intention of this rule is that the quit-rent of these lands should be fixed in accordance with the revenue settlements as made from time to time; in other words, that the proportion to be paid by the watandárs should be fixed in perpetuity, and the actual amount payable by them would vary with the settlements of land revenue made from time to time. (G. R. No. 6636, dated 24th December 1878.)

(6) The non-entry in the village and survey accounts of any lands claims to hold which wholly or partially rent-free have been registered shall not be considered conclusive evidence of the non-existence of the exemption claimed, and vice versa.

(7) In the case of the disallowance of a registered claim under the 5th Rule, an appeal may be made within a month of the date of decision to the Revenue Commissioner, N. D., whose order in the case shall be final.

(8) Claims of Pátels or other hereditary village officers or village servants to hold on condition of service shall be disposed of under the rules sanctioned by Government for the settlement of the emoluments of village officers. Provided that "Jivái," or maintenance land, shall not be considered to be held for the performance of Pátel's service merely on the ground of its being held by a Pátel, and shall not be appropriated or set apart as the official remuneration of a Pátel, except under special arrangement on the general settlement of pátelships in the district.

(9) Lands claimed by several parties, but not in the actual possession of any of them, shall be fully assessed provided that if within a year from the date of the Settling Officer's order a decree from a Civil Court be produced declaring the right of any particular party, and it be shown either that the officer in revenue charge of the district has been made a party to the suit and the claim has been allowed notwithstanding his opposition, or that that officer admits the claim to exemption, only the quit-rent that would ordinarily have been imposed on the land under these rules shall thenceforward be levied.

(10) All proceedings under these rules shall be summary, and no appeal shall lie from the decision of the Settling Officer except in the cases provided for in them.

(11) Any person not attending before the Settling Officer to support his claim within one month of his being summoned to do so shall be liable to have full assessment imposed on his land, and no appeal shall lie against such decision.

(12) The word "lands" in these rules includes villages and shares of villages.

Rules for Cash Allowances.

(1) Allowances held on behalf of temples, mosques, or other religious institutions and allowed for in the accounts of the exchange of territory between the British Government and His Highness Scindia to be continued permanently as devasthán grants.

(2) Allowances held as above, but not allowed for in the exchange accounts, to be subjected to a deduction of one-half whenever enjoyment for twelve years previously to the introduction of British rule in 1860 cannot be established, and of one-fourth when such enjoyment can be proved, and continued permanently as devasthán grants.

(3) Allowances going below one rupee by the process of deduction to be bought up at twenty times the reduced amounts and struck off the accounts.

(4) Allowances paid from different villages or talukas on account of the same institution to be amalgamated and disbursed in one sum from the treasury of the district in which the institution is situated.

(5) Allowances of Rs. 5 per annum and under to be paid through the Pátel of the villages in which the devastháns are situated. All above this amount to be paid direct from the taluka treasuries.

(6) All dharmáda allowances held by individuals in their own behalf and allowed for in the exchange accounts to be continued hereditarily to the lineal male descendants in male descent of the persons who were in authorized possession at the time of the cession or of those whose names are found entered in the accounts, though deceased, and also of those whose names are entered in any authentic document issued by the Government of His Highness Scindia.

(7) Dharmáda allowances held by individuals on their own behalf, but not allowed for in the exchange accounts to be subjected to a deduction of one-half whenever any enjoyment for twelve years previously to the introduction of British rule in 1860 cannot be established; the deduction to be one-fourth when such enjoyment can be proved. Such allowances to be continued hereditarily or, at the option of the holders, bought up at ten times their amounts. All items, however, of Rs. 5 and under to be bought up irrespectively of the consent of the holders.

(8) Allowances held by village hereditary officers and village servants to be disposed of under the rules laid down by Government for the settlement of this description of holdings.

(9) Payments of the nature of Malvera to be discontinued and appropriated towards giving Chowra Kharch allowances to Pátels.

(10) Special cases to be disposed of on their merits.

(11) Practions attaching to allowances, whether in their original or reduced amounts, to be got rid of under the usual rules.

(G. Rs. Nos. 4656, dated 19th September 1872, and 2537, dated 3rd May 1875.)

12. When isolated inám lands placed under attachment can be managed by the Taláti or Kulkarni of the village in which they lie, and do not exceed in value Rs. 100 a year, no deduction should be made, but when they have to be managed in any other than a directly managed khálsa village, the usual percentage for management should be charged, however small the annual value of the land under attachment may be. (G. R. No. 5753, dated 22nd November 1872.)

13. Their Lordships of the Privy Council in the case of Forbes v. Mir

* The case is also reported at 5 B. L. R. 529, and at 14 W. R. 28 P. C. Mahomed Taki (*13 Moore's I. A. 463) reviewed the decided cases, and stated that "the conclusion they would draw from them, as well as from the reason of the thing, is that in every case the right to resume must depend in a great measure upon the nature of the particular tenure, or the terms of the particular grant." And they further agreed with the observation of Mr. Justice Jackson in Báboo Koolodeepsing v. Máhadeosing (VI. W. R. 199) "that there is a clear distinction between the grant of an estate burdened with a certain service, and the grant of an office the performance of whose duties is remunerated by the use of certain lands." Their Lordships further held that "where the continued performance of certain service is, upon the true construction of the grant, the condition on which the lands are to be held" the tenure is liable to resumption, and they seem to have approved the decision of the Sadar Diwání Adálat allowing land to be resumed in the case of Máharája Shreeschunder Bál v. Madub Mochee on the ground that "the tenant whose services had been dispensed with or had otherwise ceased, was clearly the mere private servant of the Máharája. He was the person bound to perform all the leather work required in the family.

These are the principles which must now be recognized by the Courts of India in deciding questions relating to the resumption of service lands.

14. The Collector of Dhárwár having asked for instructions as to the course to be adopted in the case noted in the subjoined letter:—

“The village of Agadi is held in inám. It is entered in the revenue accounts as held by Hanmantgauda Bahádúr Desái, but there are four equal sharers in it, namely:—

- (1) the said Hanmantgauda,
- (2) Basangauda bin Chikangauda,
- (3) Bishtangauda bin Lingangauda, and
- (4) Bayábái kom Putlingangauda.

“Bayábái is a minor and her estate came under the management of the Collector three years ago and is still under my management.

“The two sharers Nos. 1 and 2 mortgaged their shares of the village to the Jághirdár of Javur. When Bayábái's estate came under the management of the Collector, an order was given that the revenue of the village should be collected through the village officers (Section 85 of the Land Revenue Code) and not directly by the parties. The minor's share has in this way been realized each year.

“The mortgagee then sued Hanmantgauda and Basangauda to obtain a declaration of his right to collect the revenues of the village appertaining to the defendants' eight-annas share therein, and on 19th January last, obtained a declaratory order to that effect. On 27th February, he sent me a copy of the decree and prayed for an order to the village officers to pay to him the defendants' share of the revenue. The defendants still disputed the mortgagee's right and I refused to interfere unless the Civil Court sent me an order to comply with the decree. The share of the revenue for last year was therefore paid as formerly by the village officers to the two inámdárs.

“I beg to enquire whether in future the share of the revenue belonging to Hanmantgauda and Basangauda should be paid to the mortgagee under the authority of the Court's declaratory order or not. Hanmantgauda has recently died and his heir's name has not yet been entered in the accounts.”

he was directed to act in accordance with the course suggested in the following report of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, No. 592, dated 23rd January 1883, copies of which were also forwarded to the Commissioners of Divisions and all Collectors:—

“The Remembrancer of Legal Affairs has the honour to state that as the decree obtained by the mortgagees is a declaratory one merely, the Civil Court will not take any step for its execution. A decree capable of being executed could not have been obtained by them unless they had made the Collector, or at any rate the village officers, parties to the suit—a course which it is not desirable to compel people to take needlessly. The decree which has been procured by the mortgagees is, as between the parties thereto, a binding declaration of their right to receive the two defendants' share of the village revenue, and the village officers should, I think, be instructed to act in conformity with it."

(G. R. No. 592, dated 23rd January 1883.)

15. The following opinion of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs No. 110, dated 23rd January 1884, deals with the question whether the heirs of a first husband can inherit inám property belonging to the second husband of a Hindu woman :—

"It is the settled Hindu law of this Presidency that a widow takes only a life-interest in the immoveable property of her husband dying without male issue, and that on her death the property passes to the next of her husband. (Jamiatram v. Bai Jamna, 2 Bombay High Court Report, 10, and Bhaskar Trimbak Acharya v. Mahaleo Ranji, 6 Bombay High Court Report, I. O. C. J.) The inám property which Bai Heta inherited from her second husband belongs, therefore, since her death to those persons who would have been his heir if he had died at the time when his widow died. Moti, the son of Bai Heta's son by her first husband, has no right to succeed to any property of her second husband to whom he was an entire stranger.

"But assuming that the inám in question has been brought under the Summary Settlement Act, Government would only have a right to discontinue it in the absence of all heirs, even the most distant, to Bai Heta's second husband, Jessa Bhika. Moti is not entitled to the property as a reversionary heir on the death of his grand-mother, but the person prima facie entitled to dispute his right to hold it is the nearest heir of the man Jessa Bhika, and if the nearest heir has recognized or acquiesced in Moti's enjoyment of the property, that is sufficient, as against Government, to give Moti a good title, for the property is transferable as well as heritable in perpetuity.

"I am of opinion, therefore, that Government are only entitled to intervene if Jessa Bhika has left absolutely no heirs."

(G. R. No. 1285, dated 11th February 1884.)

16. Questions regarding saranjams will be disposed of exclusively in the Political Department, reference being previously made to the Revenue Department whenever the interests of Government in that Department appear to be affected. (G. M., P. D., No. 4400, dated 8th July 1887.)

17. Registers of abstracts of decisions passed by the Inám Commissioner under Act XI of 1852 should be prepared for all the districts concerned, and 14 copies of the register for each taluka when completed should be supplied to Government. (G. R. No. 2914, dated 16th April 1886, and G. M. No. 4712, dated 11th July 1891.)

18. For the purpose of calculating the revenue of the current year payable to the family of the deceased holder of a personal inám continuable for life or of a saranjam, the revenue year (i. e. from 1st August) should be adopted. (G. R. No. 3635, dated 25th April 1892.)

VI.—SANADS.

1. Sanads for inám lands or for cash allowances which have become worn out and useless may be renewed on payment of a fine at the rate of one anna

INA'MS AND JA'GHIRS.]

on each rupee of the Inám or cash allowance with a minimum limit of one rupee and a maximum of Rs. 50. (G. Rs. Nos. 6012, dated 25th October 1875, and 6537, dated 6th December 1879.)

2. The fine should be recovered in cash, and the new sanad should be an exact copy of the original one. If the two agree, the printed standard form can be used. The renewed sanad should be endorsed thus :—"Fine Rs.            levied and a fresh copy delivered on this the            day of            18   ."
(G. R. No. 670, dated 29th January 1876.)

3. If one or more survey numbers recorded in a sanad are relinquished by transfer to other private individuals, a new sanad should not issue. The party to whom the transfer is made can arrange to obtain copy of the original sanad in the usual manner. (G. R. No. 2724, dated 5th May 1876.)

4. When one out of several survey numbers included in the same sanad is relinquished to Government, there will be no occasion to take a separate rázináma or formal deed of relinquishment in addition to that endorsed on the sanad itself, which should of course be signed by the holder. This order refers only to cases in which a sanad-holder wishes for his own sake or on behalf of his transferee that the relinquishment or transfer should be noted on his sanad. Government do not wish it to be considered obligatory on the holder of a sanad to offer it for endorsement, should he give up to Government or any private person a portion of the land for which it was issued. When all the numbers included in a sanad are relinquished to Government, the sanad should be recalled and cancelled. (G. Rs. Nos. 3669, dated 23rd June 1876, and 5102, dated 6th September 1876.)

5. Alteration in the entries of inám lands, such as transferring personal inám to the head of devasthan, cannot be allowed without the sanction of Government, as no authority but that of Government is sufficient to sanction a change of tenure. (G. R. No. 6279, dated 2nd November 1876.)

6. When waste land is given to an Inámdár in exchange for his inám land taken up by Government, no fresh sanad need be issued to replace the one already existing. It will be sufficient in such cases if the existing sanad is altered, care being taken that the Inámdár's assent to the exchange is endorsed on the sanad, while the alteration in the deed should be certified by the Collector's signature. (G. R. No. 7851, dated 23rd December 1881.)

7. Neither Section 213 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code, nor Section 91 of the Registration Act applies to copies of sanads. Sanads being documents which Government give into the hands of the persons whose titles they evidence, they do not form part of the records of any Government office. The only record kept of them is a register. Hence the law provides for extracts being given from these registers when applied for but not for the grant of

8. In cases in which it is found necessary to make out a sanad in the names of several sharers of watans, a copy may be given gratis to each, but each of such copies should be signed and executed by the same officer and treated as an original document. In no other case can a copy of a sanad be granted, but an extract from the register of sanads may be given on payment of the fees prescribed in the rules under Section 213 of the Land Revenue Code and Section 91 of the Registration Act. (G. R. No. 4180, dated 2nd June 1883.)

9. When issuing revised sanads to holders of summary settlement sanads new conditions of tenure cannot be imposed. No terms should be inserted other than those prescribed by Bombay Act VII of 1863. It is inconsistent to head a sanad as issued under Act III of 1863 and then to insert in it conditions which are not warranted by the Act. (L. R. No. 104, dated 24th January 1888; vide G. R. No. 2074, dated 4th April 1888.)

10. In cases of mere clerical mistakes in sanads, Commissioners are authorized to sanction their cancellation and the issue of fresh ones in their stead without reference to Government, except in matters beyond the scope of the Commissioner's proper authority. (G. R. No. 5589, dated 8th July 1892.)

11. Sanads once issued are the property of the holders thereof, and it was never contemplated that they should be renewed or altered otherwise than with the consent or at the instance of the holders themselves, except in the following cases:—

(1) When they refer to land which had not been surveyed and assessed when they were granted, and contain entries of areas, salāmi, &c., expressly declared to be provisional only and liable to revision when the land is surveyed.

(2) When they are vitiated by some clerical error in making them out.

(3) When the land to which they relate has been entirely surrendered to or resumed by Government, in which case they should be re-called and cancelled if possible.

In other cases Government are not concerned in the renewal of sanads, though, when any changes occur which are likely to obscure the identity of land, the holders of them should be encouraged to present their sanads for endorsement or renewal if they prefer it, and are willing to pay the renewal fee. For Government purposes it is sufficient that all such changes should be duly recorded in Village Form IX, so that the identity of the land, for which the sanad was originally granted, can be readily traced through all subsequent changes of number, area, or assessment.

(G. R. No. 6003, dated 16th July 1894).

KHOTS AND KHOTI VILLAGES.

I.—GENERAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO KHOTS AND THEIR INTERIOR HOLDERS.

1. It is established beyond question—

(1) that Government has a right on occasion of a general survey to review and alter revenue payable by the Khots;

(2) that Khots have the right of settling with Government, in the gross, and of deriving a profit by sub-letting the land to others;

(3) that the rayat has a right to protection from over-exaction on the part of the Khots.

(G. R. No. 1832, dated 18th May 1860.)*

2. Under the survey lease, a Khot is liable for the full assessment of his village, and is, therefore, bound to pay the assessment due on a relinquished dhárekari's holding, though he cannot be compelled to cultivate the land so relinquished if he declines to do so. (G. R. No. 4265, dated 6th September 1870.)

3. Occupied wáwa or boundary dispute lands may be regarded as dhára lands held by the cultivators in possession without payment of any premium for the right of occupancy, unless they have been clearly held on terms of mere annual tenancy pending settlement of the boundary disputes. In the latter case only the cultivators should be required to pay five years' assessment for the occupancy right conceded to them. The usual percentage should be paid to the Khot of the village in which the lands have been included.

With regard to unoccupied lands, they should be assessed, having regard to their value as jungle, and then handed over unconditionally to the Khots.

(G. R. No. 2514, dated 19th April 1877.)

4. By the term "dhára lands" in the above order nothing was meant beyond survey occupancy. It appears that at the time of the survey settlement the right of occupancy of these wáwa lands was, as a rule, granted to the persons found actually in culti-

* "The rights and privileges of Khots in Kolába are governed by Sections 37 and 38 of Bombay Act I of 1865. These sections were based on the Government Resolution No. 1832 of 18th May 1860. At the second reading of the Survey and Settlement Bill the late Sir Barrow Ellis said:—

'If this Resolution were published with the report of the present proceedings, there would be no ground for saying that sufficient information had not been given to the public in regard to the nature of the settlements in khoti villages which it was proposed to legalise.'

"(Vide page 170 of the Survey and Settlement Manual.)

"This Resolution may thus be said to be the charter of both the Khots and their rayats in the khoti villages in Kolába."
(Extract from memorandum from the Commissioner, S. D., No. 4426, dated 5th October 1893; vide page 146 of Government Selection No. CCXCI, New Series.)

vation of the lands, and the lands were entered in the names of persons—so in possession. No change should be made as regards the entry of this wāwa lands and no premium should be charged for the right of their occupancy except in cases where the tenancy can be shown to be yearly and not of a permanent nature. (G. R. No. 1854, dated 29th February 1884.)

5. The following opinion (No. 268, dated 28th February 1882) of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs was concurred in by Government :—

"It appears from the very few details given in the Collector's report that the village of P. in the Ratnágiri District is a dhārekari village, and that one of the gaonkars is responsible to Government for the collection of revenue, one of their member being appointed by rotation to be the kabulāyatdār for each year.

"2. The petitioner's turn is stated to have come in the year 1877-78, but the kabulāyatdār of the previous years having refused his consent, the Revenue authorities would not accept the petitioner's kabulāyat. There is a fixed cash allowance payable from the Government treasury as remuneration of the kabulāyatdār for damages, that is, I suppose, for loss of the payment of the allowance during the year he would have served as kabulāyatdār but for the withholding of consent.

"3. The petitioner applies for a certificate under Section 6 of the Pensions Act. The Collector is of opinion that under the authority of the ruling of the High Court, which he quotes from Indian Law Reports, 1 Bombay, page 75, a certificate is necessary; and under Rule 2 of the Rules* under the Pensions Act he refers the matter for the orders of Government recommending the grant of a certificate.

of the Com-

"4. Whether the nature of the petitioner's intended suit has been properly described or not, I am unable to say; but if it is intended to bring a suit for damages, no certificate is required. The ruling relied on by the Collector does not seem applicable, as the suit in that instance was to have a right declared to a certain share of a cash allowance and for payment of arrears. In the case under report, there is no dispute that the petitioner is a co-sharer and entitled to the payment when his turn of service comes. He appears to state that the late kabulāyatdār misled the Revenue authorities, and that he thereby lost his turn of management and the emoluments for the year. A suit for damages, that is, to recover from the defendant this loss, is not a suit relating to the grant of money.

"5. Even if petitioner intended to sue to have his right to be declared kabulāyatdār in his turn, his suit would not be prohibited by the Pensions Act, and a certificate under Section 6 thereof would not be necessary (see the subsequent ruling at page 531 of the same volume in which the former case is distinguished).

"6. Again, if the Khoti Settlement Act is applicable to the present case, that Act declares that it shall be lawful for any of the co-sharers at any time to sue for a decree inter se to declare which of them is entitled to the management.

"7. Lastly, it is not at all clear what Rule No. 2 of the Rules made under the Pensions Act has to do with the present case, and why, if it had been necessary to grant a certificate under Section 6 of the Act, a reference should be made under that rule for the orders of Government."

(G. R. No. 1842, dated 18th March 1882.)

KHOTS AND KHOTI VILLAGES.]

6. Section 10 of the Khoti Settlement Act (Bombay Act I of 1880) provides that when any 'privileged occupant's' land is resigned or forfeited or lapses, it shall be at the disposal of the Khot. 'Privileged occupant' is defined in Section 3, clause (5), of the Act to mean a dhárekari or a quasi-dhárekari or an occupancy tenant. It is, therefore, clearly within the contemplation of the Legislature that there may be land-holders of any of these denominations in villages to which the Act applies. There may be in any such village land-holders of two or of all three of these denominations, or the land-holders may be all dhárekaris or all quasi-dhárekaris or all occupancy tenants. The provisions of the Act, inclusive of Section 10, apply equally whatever denomination the land-holders belong to. This seems to be quite reasonable, for if it be admitted that Section 10 is properly applicable to the holding of a dhárekari whose land is situated in a village in which the bulk of the land is khoti land, there is no difference, in principle, between his case and that of a neighbouring dhárekari who happens to hold in a village in which all the land-holders are dhárekaris. This result of the Act is in accordance both with former practice and with the intention of Government when framing the Act.

It has been questioned whether the Act applies at all to pure dhárekari villages, inasmuch as it extends only to villages 'held by Khots.' If, however, there is a Khot of any such village, it is he to whom the dhárekaris have to pay rent (Section 33 of the Act), and the Khot pays his land revenue or jama in the lump to Government (Section 4 of the Act). Looking to these provisions and to the fact that if any dhárekari's holding is resigned or forfeited or lapses it is at the disposal of the Khot, it is quite correct to say that the village is held by the Khot, because, by Section 3, clause (10), of the Land Revenue Code (which Section 3, clause 12, of the Khoti Settlement Act makes applicable), 'to hold land' means 'to be legally invested with a right to the possession and enjoyment or disposal of such land, either immediately or at the termination of tenancies legally subsisting

(J. R. No. 19, dated 5th January 1885: vide G. R. No. 658, dated 23rd idem.)

7. Every effort should be made to put a stop to the practice of the Khots depriving the tenants of their old receipt books in order to destroy the proof of their maktas. (G. R. No. 10088, dated 16th December 1885.)

8. The answer to the question whether a Khot, in a village where there is a Kulkarni, is bound to write up the credit side of the rayat's receipt book, is that the Khot is bound "to keep, or cause to be kept, such accounts as may from time to time be required by the Collector under the orders of Government" (Section 15, Bombay Act I of 1880).

[KHOTS AND KHOTI VILLAGES.]

pp. 573—593
of the Compilation of
General Rules.

Rule VI of the Rules* under Section 40 (c) of the Khoti Act provides "The Khot shall keep under Section 15 the following three accounts :—

- (1) The Appraisement Ledger.
- (2) The Ledger.
- (3) The Rayat's Receipt Book."

The fact that Government employ an agent whom Government, if they chose, may legally † require to keep such accounts, does not entitle the Khot to insist on being relieved of the duties imposed on him by law. No doubt the Khot cannot be called on to perform the duties imposed by law on the Kulkarni alone, under paragraph 2 of Section 17 of the Land Revenue Code.

But it is entirely at the discretion of Government to require any accounts to be kept by the Khot, and he cannot complain or demand that Government should transfer those duties to one of their paid servants.

It is only for certain purposes that the position and duties of the Khot are analogous to those of a Pátel. That partial analogy cannot relieve him from duties imposed by law, which duties, in villages where no Kulkarni is employed, must necessarily be performed by the Khot. The Kulkarni is not the Khot's official subordinate. The Khot's connection with Government is contractual, and no power over Government employés or officials has ever been conferred on him. If Government confer such powers, or relieve him of his duties, that is an act of grace, and not a right which he could claim.

The decision whether the Khot should be required to keep (or at his own expense cause to be kept) the accounts in question, is entirely at the discretion of Government, and if Government consider it desirable from an administrative point of view, the Khot has no right to object.

9. If any person holding the office of Khot without a sanad in any village to which the Khoti Settlement Act does not extend or has not been extended, refuses to execute the customary yearly kabuláyat, the Collector of the District shall issue a notification calling upon all persons claiming a right to execute such kabuláyat to submit such claim in writing to the Collector within six months of the date of such notification.

Such notification shall state that if no such claim is so submitted within such period, the office of the khotship with all the rights, perquisites and remuneration attached thereto, will be permanently forfeited to Government, and that Government will not thereafter recognize the claim of any person to reinstatement therein.

KHOTS AND KHOTI VILLAGES.]

A copy of every such notification shall be affixed in each of the following places, viz., the office of the Collector of the district, the office of the Mámlatdár or Mahálkari of the táluka or mahál in which the village is situate, and the chavdi or some other public building of the village to which it relates.

The Collector may also cause such notification to be published in any other manner that he may deem fit.

If no claim to execute a kabuláyat is submitted within the period required by such notification, the forfeiture of the khotship shall be enforced.

(G. R. No. 3861, dated 27th May 1889.)

II.—SURVEY AND SETTLEMENT.

1. The following report of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs was circulated to the Commissioner, S. D., and the Collector of Ratnágiri in connection with a suggestion that the High Court be induced to issue a circular instructing the Subordinate Judges in the Ratnágiri District not to proclaim khoti lands for sale unless it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the judgment-debtor has been declared by the Settlement Officer to have a transferable interest in the property :—

“I do not think the High Court would deem that it has the power to issue such an order to the Subordinate Judge as the Collector recommends. I do not myself think that it would be competent to that Court to do so.

“2. Moreover, the determination of the Survey Officer, and the entry he makes in the Settlement Record as to whether an occupancy-tenant's interest is transferable otherwise than by inheritance or not, is subject to reversal or modification by the Civil Courts (Bombay Act I of 1880, Sections 21 and 22), and it might be that the very proceedings, in which the Collector suggests that the Subordinate Judges should not take action unless the Survey Officer has declared the tenant's right to be transferable, would be the cause of the Courts being set in motion to determine authoritatively whether that declaration is right or not.

“3. Remedies intended to protect persons ignorant of the law and of their own rights under it from being victimized may be provided in some cases by the Legislature, but Civil Courts are, I think, not justified in taking any measures of their own motion which will favour or protect one class of suitors more than other. It is doubtful, therefore, whether the High Court would consent to issue any such order as that suggested, even if it deemed that it had the power to do so.

“4. The most suitable means of preventing the hardships to which the Collector has called attention would appear to be (1) that the Collector should take measures for making the legal effect of the non-transferability of tenants' rights more generally known and (2) that a test-case in each táluka or group of villages be contested in the Courts whenever opportunity occurs, legal and pecuniary assistance being given by Government, if necessary, to the tenant whose interest is involved.

“5. With reference to what the Collector describes as the disadvantage of a declaration under the Khoti Settlement Act that a tenant's right is not transferable, I think he overlooks the fact that the Survey Officer does not by such declaration create a new right or liability. He merely ascertains and records an existing right or liability, giving certainty (subject to the power of the Civil Courts to reverse or modify his declaration) to that which before could not be definitely ascertained otherwise than by litigation. The primary object of the provision was to settle the relative rights of the litigation. The primary object of the provision was to settle the relative rights of the occupancy-tenant and the Khot, and in the imaginary case which the Collector suggests, the result would, in my opinion, be what the Legislature intended, viz., that the occupancy-tenant would be prevented from transferring his land, which, when the occupancy-tenant's family became extinct, would revert to the Khot. To the best of my knowledge, the provision in question was not enacted with any idea of saving the tenant's land from his creditors, but it, no doubt, has this advantageous effect also, if the tenants can only be taught the value of it."

2. The decisions of the Khoti Settlement Officer under Section 21 of Bombay Act I of 1880 are not appealable to any higher executive authority. (G. R. No. 6292, dated 16th September 1887.)

III.—ADMINISTRATION OF SURVEY SETTLEMENTS MADE UNDER THE KHOTI SETTLEMENT ACT, 1880.

1. According to paragraph 1 of Section 23 of the Khoti Settlement Act, Section 36 of that Act does not apply to a khoti village until such time as a survey settlement or a revised survey settlement is first introduced therein after the passing of the Act.

Under paragraph 2 of Section 23 the rights and responsibilities of all persons in a khoti village in respect of the payment of Local Fund Cess until such time, are to continue to be such as they would be if Section 36 had not been enacted.

There is no doubt that lands held by Khots are liable under Section 6 of Bombay Act III of 1869 to the Local Fund cess. There is little doubt either that they, as well as Inámdárs, are entitled under the latter part of Section 8 of the Act to recover this cess from their tenants. But they, as well as Inámdárs, can only recover from their tenants what they themselves actually pay to Government, and each individual tenant is only liable for the proportion which the assessment or rental of his land bears to the total assessment or rental of the entire village. Neither a Khot nor an Inámdár is at liberty to make use of the provisions of the Act as a means of profit to himself by levying from his tenants in the name of Local Fund cess a larger amount than he himself has to pay to Government on that account. This was so held by the Bombay High Court in Special Appeal No. 303 of 1873 (High Court's Printed Judgments for 1874, page 29). The Court said:—

"The plaintiff's claim to recover as local cess one anna on every rupee of his own rent is clearly inadmissible. He has not given evidence * * * to prove what would be the proper proportional amount of the Government assessment on the field in dispute, as deduced from the total assessment of the village; and, therefore, (assuming that the cess is recoverable from the defendant) there are no materials for determining the amount."

KHOTI AND KHOTI VILLAGES.]

Where every holding in a village has been surveyed and assessed, there is no difficulty in determining what is the amount of each individual tenant's liability; but where this is not the case, the burden is on the superior holder to establish that the amount which he seeks to recover from any inferior holder is the proportion of the aggregate amount of cess payable for the village fairly due by that inferior holder. (L. R. No. 551, dated 29th April 1887; vide G. R. No. 4180, dated 7th July 1887.)

2. It will be seen from Sections 26 to 31 of the Khoti Settlement Act, I of 1880, that a managing Khot can only be appointed where the village is held by two or more co-sharers jointly. In that case one of their number must be nominated either (1) annually, or (2) in accordance with prearranged rotation, or (3) on the Collector's appointment, and such nominee is to receive the inferior holders' rents, to pay the Government dues and generally to perform all acts required by the Act to be performed by the Khot. Such nominee must under Section 29 be furnished with a certificate which is conclusive as to his right to manage for that year the village to which it relates. And such nominee alone is entitled to assistance in recovery of rents under the Land Revenue Code, Sections 87 and 89.

But when the Khots have divided, there can be no such thing as a managing Khot at all (Section 32).

In that case all the provisions of the Act apply to each Khot as if he were an independent holder of an entire khotki.

That is to say the share allotted to each Khot becomes on division a separate khotki, and each Khot is bound by all the duties, and entitled to all the rights and privileges which apply to a managing Khot in an undivided village. If the village is undivided, there must be a managing Khot. If the village is divided, there cannot be a managing Khot. This is clear also from a comparison of Sections 18 and 19. If a village be undivided, Section 18 requires the provisions as to the nomination of the managing Khot to be entered in the records. If partition has been effected, then the provisions as to a managing Khot apply not to the village but to each individual share. But if the village is divided, then it is the duty of the Collector (the words of Section 32 being imperative) to determine the amount of the jama payable in respect of each separate share, and the holders thus become severally liable (Section 32), instead of jointly and severally liable as when undivided under Section 26.

Under Section 15 of the Act certain duties have to be performed by the Khot. He must keep accounts and he must give written receipts. A receipt by any one else than the Khot would be obviously invalid.

But the Khot means in an undivided village the managing Khot, in a divided village each sharer.

[KHOTS AND KHOTI VILLAGES.]

Until, therefore, the shares are defined and until the sharers have been constituted independent holders of entire khotkis (Section 32), it is impossible for a tenant to obtain a valid receipt from any person who does not hold a certificate under Section 29.

If there be a managing Khot, he alone can grant a valid receipt, and I do not think he can delegate his right of collection, as he cannot transfer the correlative powers and duties (vide Quebec and Richmond Railway Company v. Quin, 12 Moore P. C., 232) as long as he holds the certificate. No one else can give a valid receipt and he has, therefore, no right to divest himself of that duty by transferring the collection to another person to whom, moreover, he cannot transfer his right to obtain official assistance.

If a tenant in such a village refused to pay a sharer other than the Kabuláyatdár Khot, he would be well within his rights. The sharer could not obtain official assistance, and as he could not grant a valid receipt and has divested himself of his rights under the Act by assenting to the nomination of a kabuláyatdár manager, he could not recover in the Civil Courts.

In Ratnágiri, such contentions very frequently occur in the Civil Courts. One faction of the co-parcenary assents to a complete partition, and specifies the allotment of tenants. The other faction denies any permanent system of partition and contends that a partition by tenants is impossible where tenancies are constantly changing in number and area. It appears that it was expressly to guard against such dispute that the provisions of Sections 26 to 32 were enacted. If the village is undivided, there can be no doubt the Kabuláyatdár Khot has the right to collect and no one else has, for no one else can grant a valid receipt. If the village is divided, then the only proper course is for the Collector to ascertain the shares, and for the system of nominating managing Khots to cease at once.

The responsibilities of each sharer and of each tenant are then ascertained, and there can be no further dispute.

3. No holder can be allowed to collect "thul", or to obtain aid in so doing, unless he is

(a) a Kabuláyatdár Khot, or

(b) a separated Khot with defined responsibilities and duties, and as such bound to give a valid discharge to the servants, and capable of doing so.

Individual sharers cannot collect or obtain aid unless they are divided, and then their responsibilities must be defined under Section 32 of the Khoti Act.

If no such division has taken place, then the Kabuláyatdár Khot alone can collect the "thul,"

KHOTS AND KHOTI VILLAGES.]

grant receipts and obtain assistance. (L. R. No. 1562, dated 14th December 1889; vide G. R. No. 657, dated 25th January 1890.)

IV.—ATTACHMENT OF KHOTI VILLAGES.

1. A Khot is liable to be assessed for khoti profits during the time that the khoti village is under attachment by Government—VII Bom. H. C. R., 41 A. C. J. (L. R. No. 464, dated 9th May 1876; vide G. R. No. 3111, dated 25th idem.)

2. In the case of khoti, khoti khichdi and dhāra villages under attachment, the cost of management should be held to be the first charge on the collections and then the Government demand should be satisfied. If it can only be satisfied in parts, the amount of land revenue not paid should be held as balance unrealized in the revenue accounts. The income and expenditure of the attached villages should by rule be recorded in the Public Accounts under 'Personal Deposits.' The cost of management of the villages and the collections from them are not, in the first instance, Government receipts and payments; and cannot, therefore, be estimated for as such. (G. R. No. 7178, dated 26th September 1883.)

3. There are certain villages originally under gaonkari tenure which have been for long periods under direct Government management. These villages are described as being under "attachment," but the term "attachment" is probably used in a sense in which it is apparently understood in Ratnāgiri merely to indicate the direct management of land which at some time or other had been under a middleman. As the villages are in no sense whatever the property or "holding" of the gaonkar and as the provisions of the Land Revenue Code, Sections 159-163, dealing with "attachment" for arrears of land revenue do not apply, it will be better that the word "attachment" should not be used in relation to such cases.

(G. R. No. 2260, dated 13th April 1888.)

4. The rule of limitation introduced by the Khoti Settlement Act (Section 39, clause e) was not intended to operate retrospectively, so as to receive rights already extinguished.

New rules of limitation are never given such retrospective effect.

The operation of a new rule of limitation on a cause of action not already barred when it comes into force, is to stop the operation of the repealed law.

The Khoti Act operated only on causes of action not already barred. Claims which had already become barred under the law as it stood before, were unaffected by the new law.

[KHOTS AND KHOTI VILLAGES.]

Before Bombay I. of 1880, came into force, khoti villages were not held on the same tenure, and were not all governed by the same principles of law.

Some were the estates of the Khots, secured to them by sanads, &c., with superadded conditions of service connected with the collection of the revenue.

These estates were not all in full proprietary right, but were yet distinguishable from a mere farm or office, as they were not held solely as remuneration for services to be performed.

Other khoti villages were held altogether without sanad by Khots who were mere farmers of the revenue, and whose rights were conditioned on the performance of service.

The khoti village in the case at 3, Bombay High Court Reports; 132, is an instance of this last mentioned class. And that case is a full authority for saying that on the failure of such non-sanadi Khot to fulfil the conditions on which he held his office, he was liable to be turned out of it, and would thereupon forfeit the rights which were merely remuneration for his services.

3 B. H. C. R., 132. He could not, as a matter of right, claim them again at all.

But it was different with regard to sanadi Khots. They were not mere servants or farmers. They had estates. The estates were burdened with service, but were not conditioned on the performance of service. Those estates, if they made default, were no doubt liable to attachment, but were not absolutely forfeited by such default. If, therefore, they were dispossessed, they had a right to claim them again, on payment of due compensation, provided they made their claim within the period allowed by law for the recovery of immoveable property.

At the time of the introduction of the Khoti Act, Limitation Act (XV of 1877) was operating on all claims not then already barred, and the twelve years' rule, therefore, applied to all sanadi Khots whose claims were not already barred. That is to say, sanadi Khots could have obtained possession on payment of dues, if they had sued within twelve years of the date when they were first dispossessed by Government.

But Revenue Officers had long treated sanadi and non-sanadi Khots as if they were on the same footing, and partly for convenience sake, partly from uncertainty as to the law, had allowed both classes reinstatement, if they applied within "a reasonable time:" vide G. R. No. 3939, of 5th October 1859.

The Khoti Act does away prospectively altogether in the places to which it extends, or to which it has been extended, with the distinction (which the Civil Courts always recognized) between sanadi Khots and non-sanadi Khots, and renders Khots of both classes superior holders. And as superior holders, both non-sanadi and sanadi Khots whose rights were not already extinguished, became entitled, on the Act coming into force, to claim restoration under Section 162, Bombay Land Revenue Code, within twelve years of the 1st August after the Act came into force.

That is to say, even non-sanadi Khots were treated as if they had an interest in the immovable property itself, instead of only a conditional right to be remunerated out of it.

But in placing these two classes on exactly the same footing a difficulty arose.

An attachment by Government might either mean that Government no longer recognized the rights of the Khot as still subsisting, or that Government had placed the property under attachment, not denying the Khot's right to it, but merely holding it liable as his property to satisfy his debts.

In the former case the possession of Government would be adverse from the first. In the latter it would only become adverse when Government refused to restore the property on tender of the payment due.

When the Khoti Act rendered Section 162, Bombay Land Revenue Code, applicable to all Khots, as superior holders, every attachment, then pending, at once began to operate as dispossession, within twelve years of which the claim to restoration must be made.

In order to prevent that section operating to the prejudice of the sanadi Khot retrospectively on attachments which might have commenced on another understanding, Section 39 (e) of the Khoti Act treated all attachments then actually pending as if they had only just commenced, and gave twelve years from the date of the Act coming into force, within which restoration might be claimed.

But if there was no attachment actually pending, and dispossession had undoubtedly become complete before the Act came into force, then the rights of the dispossessed Khot were not revived or affected at all.

That is to say, a Khot, whose village at the time when the Act came into force, was entirely out of his possession, and not merely under attachment, could not within twelve years of the Act coming into force claim under Section 39 (e) to be restored on payment of the sums due by him.

If he was a non-sanadi Khot who had been dispossessed for non-performance of the duties of his office, he could not prior to Act I of 1880 claim, as of right, to be restored at all.

If he was a sanadi Khot who had been dispossessed, then he might have brought a suit (as in the case at 3 B. H. C. R., 132.) within twelve years of his dispossession (not within twelve years of the Khoti Act coming into force) for a restoration of his estate, and if his tenure was not conditioned solely on the performance of service, it would probably be held that his restoration was not a mere matter of grace or to suit the convenience of Government, but a matter on payment of all dues he might claim as of right, if he made his claim within twelve years of dispossession. But his rights would not be extended by any thing in the Bombay Land Revenue Code or the Khoti Act.

It seems, therefore, that Section 162, Bombay Land Revenue Code, applied only to Khots whose villages were under attachment when the Khoti Act came into force, or which might thereafter come under attachment, but had no application to Khots whose dispossession had become complete before that date. Such last mentioned Khots only had such rights, as they might be able to prove against Government under the law, as it stood, before the Khoti Act, and in the case of non-sanadi and other Khots who were merely farmers of land revenue, restoration could not be claimed as of right at all, and in the case of others who laid claim under sanads or on other grounds to an estate in the lands, and alleged illegal dispossession, the Legislature apparently intended that they should assert any right of suit they might have, within twelve years of dispossession, and should not be admitted without contest to possession by the executive officers of Government.

A suit, if not brought within twelve years of dispossession, became time-barred.

The Legislature imposed no duty on Revenue or other executive officers to restore without suit those whom Government had already decided finally to dispossess.

If such a duty had been imposed, such officers would have had to decide whether the dispossessed Khots held solely on condition of service, or could claim a right to the lands under a sanad or any other title.

As far as Government are concerned, the dispossession is in itself a decision that in the opinion of Government no right to restoration existed.

Neither the Bombay Land Revenue Code nor the Khoti Act implies that any executive officers are bound or empowered to revise such a decision.

(G. R. No. 1621, dated 24th December 1889; vide G. R. No. 675, dated 25th January 1890.)

V—TREES AND MANAGEMENT OF FORESTS IN KHOTI VILLAGES.

1. There should be no interference on the part of Government with teak and blackwood or any other trees growing on dhāra land in the Ratnāgiri and Kolāba Districts in which the conditions of Mr. Dunlop's Proclamation of 1824 have been in force.

KHOTS AND KHOTI VILLAGES.]

Cases of shares of forest property in teak and blackwood enjoyed by dhárekaries under the provisions of a kabuláyat made either with the Forest Department or with the Survey Department under the Settlement lease, should be considered exceptions to the general rule, and treated according to the terms of such agreements.

These orders are not applicable to any part of the Northern Konkan, where the sootedar stands in the place of the dhárekari, except, however, with the important distinction that he has never enjoyed any property in the teak and blackwood growing in his holding.

(G. Rs. Nos. 1240, dated 28th March 1868, and 2095, dated 27th May 1868.)

2. Government are not prepared to abandon their right to all royalty trees in the Ratnágiri District growing beyond the limits of reserved or protected forests, but they are pleased to concede to occupants of khoti lands the right to all kinds of reserved trees planted by them or which they might hereafter plant in their khoti land, provided they assented to the following conditions :—

- (1) that an officer of the Forest Department be permitted to count the number of trees planted and see if it correspond with the numbers given out as such, and
- (2) that the occupants agree in writing that before cutting any they should inform the forest office, and should any be cut without intimation to that officer they will lose all right to the timber cut and it should be the property of Government.

(G. Rs. Nos. 3363, dated 1st May 1883, and 3846, dated 5th June 1891.)

3. The right to the after growth of trees in khoti nisbat lands should be conceded to the Khots in the Kolába District, on the express condition that the concession is in no way intended to operate as admitting the status of a Khot in Kolába to be that of an occupant. (G. R. No. 836, dated 30th January 1893.)

4. It has been ruled* by the High Court that unless a Khot is proprietor of his land, Dunlop's Proclamation does not confer on, or confirm to him, any rights in timber trees. (G. R. No. 4285, dated 15th June 1886.)

5. In regard to villages or portions of villages in the Ratnágiri District in which the original survey settlement has been completed since the passing of Bombay Act V of 1879, Government can before the completion of the survey settlement of the district reserve by notification its rights to such trees in unalienated lands as it is desired to reserve. Such notification if in the form given in paragraph 4 of Appendix J of the Rules under the Land Revenue Code will not purport to affect the holders.

[KHOTS AND KHOTI VILLAGES.]

of dhāra lands who under Dunlop's Proclamation are the proprietors of trees growing thereon. (L. R. No. 767, dated 7th June 1889; vide G. R. No. 4720, dated 21st July 1887.)

Note.—By Government Resolution No. 4720, dated 21st July 1887, the Collector of Ratnāgiri was authorized to issue, in respect of all the surveyed tālukas before the completion of the survey settlement of the district, notifications reserving teak and blackwood trees in all lands, and ain and nāna in varkas lands.

6. The management of forests in khoti villages should in all cases be vested in the Khot. In cases, therefore, where a minor may succeed to the khotship of a village, his guardian or the member of the family of the deceased appointed to the general management of the latter's estate should also be entrusted with the management of the forest belonging to his property. (G. R. No. 4475, dated 30th October 1865.)

7. The engagements of Dr. Gibson with the Khots, by which the latter are allowed one-third of the proceeds of all teak and blackwood cuttings and sales, should be faithfully and strictly adhered to. (G. R. No. 2290, dated 30th May 1865.)

Permission to cut teak and blackwood should not be given to the Khots, but on timber of this description being cut by the Forest Department they should be allowed one-third of the net proceeds. No restriction is to be placed on any other kind of wood growing in their lands or villages, unless reserved by Government under special agreement. (G. R. No. 2588, dated 20th June 1865.) Government Resolution No. 2588, dated 20th June 1865, is not to be interpreted as conferring any new privilege to the Khots of Ratnāgiri, but as merely authorizing the continuance of past practice in that Collectorate.

In the case of the Khots in the settled districts in Thāna who hold their forests under special agreement, they should be allowed one-third of the proceeds of all firewood cut in their villages, if it was intended at the time of the agreement that this right was to be conceded to them.

(G. R. No. 2936, dated 10th July 1865.)

The rule in Government Resolution No. 2588, dated 20th June 1865, is applicable to all Khots, whether resident or non-resident, who have entered into agreements to preserve the forests of their villages and not confined to the resident class only. Any Khot convicted of misconduct in regard to the conservancy or the disposal of the forest property of his village is barred the enjoyment of the share of profits conceded by the order in question under the conditions of the agreement made in the Settlement lease. (G. R. No. 114, dated 10th January 1866.)

8. The Forest authorities, before the introduction of the survey, entered into agreements with individual Khots for the preservation of certain valuable description of trees. Subsequently the survey officers were authorized by Government to make these agreements generally with all Khots and allow them a share in all forest produce. Nor was the agreement to be restricted to resident Khots. But whether resident or non-resident, the Khot was to be held answerable for the protection of the forests on pain of losing his share in the proceeds. It follows that the agreements entered into by the Survey Department merely confirmed and amplified the concessions previously made. If a Khot has parted with his rights to a third party, the obligation to conserve the forests must be fulfilled by the purchaser, or else the rights will be withheld. (G. R. No. 2531, dated 28th May 1870.)

9. If the Khots in the Kolaba District who have accepted survey leases stipulating that they should on condition of preserving the forests get one-third of the produce fail to act up to the conditions they must lose the benefit of the agreement. It is no doubt difficult to determine to what extent they can reasonably be expected to preserve the forests, but if, as appears to be often the case, they take no steps whatever to protect the forests, but on the contrary assist in destroying them, Government is not bound to pay for a service which is not rendered. Payment should, therefore, be withheld in case of any proved neglect on the part of a Khot to carry out the condition on which the payment was promised, the claim of the Khot to payment of his share of forest produce being decided by the Collector. It will be for the Forest Department to prove in any case the negligence on the part of the Khot. (G. M. No. 6388, dated 28th August 1883, and G. R. No. 110, dated 7th January 1885.)

10. The managing Khot is the representative for the time being of the general body of Khots and their agent for all acts in which the Government are concerned. He is therefore the person to whom the payments under Government Resolution No. 2936, dated 10th July 1865, on account of one-third of the proceeds of the forest fellings in their village should be made, and he will be responsible for distributing the money to the co-sharers according to their several rights. But the person who was the managing Khot in the year in which the money became due is not the one who should receive payment. His year being past and over, he is functus officio. The person who is actually the managing Khot at the time the payment is made is the only person with whom Government are justified in having any dealings, and the payments should be made to him only. The fact should, however, be clearly made known that the payments are made to the managing Khot for the time being as the agent and representative before Government of the co-parcenary, and the payment should be only made to him on his passing a receipt to the effect that he receives the money for and on behalf of the various co-sharers respectively entitled to a share thereof. (L. R. No. 534, dated 14th April 1884; vide G. R. No. 3377, dated 25th idem.)

11. When wood is cut in one village in order to supply a free grant to rayats of another village, the

Khot of the former village is incontestably entitled to one-third of the net value of the cutting.

When the cutting is in the same village in which the grant is to be made, it might possibly be established that the Government has a right to make such free grants without reference to the Khot, and that a felling made for such a purpose is not a felling within the meaning of the Khot's agreement. But to avoid litigation the Khot's assent should always in such cases be previously obtained to the cutting being made without entitling him to a share of the value of the wood cut.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

1. Survey Settlement.—On the introduction of a new survey settlement into any village under Section 38 of the Khoti Settlement Act, 1880, precisely the same procedure must be followed as on the introduction of a survey settlement, whether original or revised, into any other khoti village. (L. R. No. 1244, dated 2nd October 1880; vide G. R. No. 5379, dated 12th idem.)

2. Conversion of Khoti nishat into Dhára land.—The conversion of khoti nishat into dhára land should in no circumstances be permitted. (G. R. No. 1117, dated 11th February 1886.)

[PART I.]

LAND ACQUISITION.*PART I.—GENERAL PRINCIPLES AND PROCEDURE.

1. Whenever land is required to be taken for any public purpose, the Resolution to that effect should be communicated to the Revenue Department, for the issue of the necessary notification and subsidiary orders to the Collectors. (G. R. No. 4042, dated 17th September 1861.)

2. All orders to the Collectors for acquiring land should be issued from the Revenue Department. (G. R. No. 162, dated 13th January 1872.)

3. In order that the revenue interests of Government should not suffer, the Department of Government which exists for the supervision of all revenue matters should issue whatever orders were necessary for the acquisition of land. (G. R. No. 439, dated 31st January 1872.)

4. Applications to take up land under the Land Acquisition Act should invariably be forwarded to Government by Collectors in the Presidency proper through the Commissioners. (G. L. No. 2394, dated 7th June 1865.)

5. The Collector of Bombay should invariably report, in all cases in which he applies for payment of compensation for lands acquired for public purposes, whether he made any attempt to purchase the land by private contract, and if so, give briefly an account of his negotiations, stating what he may have offered, and the reasons why the negotiation failed. (G. R. No. 1536, dated 22nd April 1864.)

6. Even when a specific portion of land must be had for public purposes, the compulsory process under the Land Acquisition Act should not, unless under peculiar circumstances, be resorted to until efforts have been made to obtain the land by private purchase. (G. R. No. 957, dated 11th March 1868.)

7. The Commissioners in submitting draft notifications regarding lands required for public purposes should give a detailed description of the land proposed to be acquired, and should also state whether the land cannot be obtained by private contract, the probable area that will be resumed under the notification and the probable amount of the purchase money; and also from what funds the cost of the land will be defrayed and whether the required budget provision has been made. (G. R. No. 2302, dated 19th June 1867.)

8. When land is to be taken up under the Land Acquisition Act, the Collectors will, in submitting draft notifications for publication in the Government Gazette, in all possible cases mention the survey numbers of lands of which the whole or any portion is required. (G. L. No. 72, dated 6th January 1872.)

[LAND ACQUISITION.

9. When land has to be taken up for public purposes either by private arrangements or under the Land Acquisition Act, the Collector or other officer or department requiring it should invariably report the probable amount of compensation which will have to be paid for it, and the source from which it is proposed to meet the charge, and that the draft notification to be published under the Act should be prepared in strict accordance, as far as possible, with the form of declaration given in Appendix B to the rules prescribed under the Act. (G. R. No. 615, dated 24th January 1883.)

10. There is no question that the notification under Section 4 of the Land Acquisition Act may describe the locality in which land is likely to be needed in the most general terms, but if it is to be described by enumeration of villages, it seems advisable that the list of villages should be complete in order that difficulty may not arise in case of a prosecution under Section 52* or even on action being taken under Section 4, because, if certain villages are named, it will be inferred by the Courts that the notification does not extend to others which are not named. (G. R. No. 8880, dated 11th November 1884.)

11. Representations have been frequently made regarding the great enhancement of the price charged for land as soon as it is known to be required for railways or other public works. It is, therefore, suggested that in certain cases arrangements should be made between the officers of the Public Works or Railway Departments and the local Civil authorities to determine, without divulging the intentions of the Railway Companies or of the Government, what land to take up, so as to admit of a private bargain being made, before any enhancement of prices has occurred. For the future, it will be desirable to avoid alienating or granting long leases of land owned by Government near railway stations, or at other places where it is likely to become valuable, or to be required for the purposes of the State. (G. I., P. W. D., No. 113, dated 16th December 1867; vide G. R. No. 140, dated 14th January 1888.)

12. (1) There are only two courses open to officers of the Public Works Department in respect to the taking up of land. Either the consent of the proprietor must be obtained by negotiation, or the assistance of the Collector secured in accordance with the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act.

(2). Any officer of the Public Works Department who unauthorizedly occupies land will do so at his own risk.

(3). In regard to land required for furnishing material for the repairs of existing roads, it is desirable that the Executive Engineers in the several districts point out to the Collectors the precise localities at which they propose to obtain the material; and the Collectors will then endeavour either to purchase the land or to rent it in perpetuity. Executive Engineers can, of course, if they prefer to do so, make their own arrangements with the proprietors.

(G. R. No. 2388, dated 18th May 1871.)

13. (1) If promptitude were exhibited in settling for lands required for public purposes, before the normal position of the local market becomes disturbed by the commencement of the work, large sums might be saved to the State; and it has been suggested that district officers, as soon as the general line of a work is fixed, and before ground is broken, should be authorized in rural districts to settle then and there with the proprietors of all villages whose lands will be traversed by the work, the rate of compensation per acre, both cash and remission of revenue, to be paid for each locally well-established class of soil, for any lands that may, when the work is taken in hand, be appropriated for its purposes. Special compensation for trees, wells, or houses would still remain for careful adjustment subsequently, but even in that case the greatest promptitude should be exercised in settling all claims before the people acquire an exaggerated notion of the value of their property.

(2). To enable district officers to deal at once with the compensation for land, it may be possible for the Local Government to lay down some rules, enabling them to settle the matter satisfactorily and at once without further reference to higher authority; at any rate, steps should be taken to facilitate the speedy settlement of claims, and to secure Government against the heavy charges for compensation which are sometimes to be met even without resort to the provisions of the Act.

(G. I., R., A. & C., No. 1-624, dated 30th July 1874; vide G. R. No. 4339, dated 13th August 1874.)

14. Officers of the Public Works Department should not enter on and use lands until they have been formally made over by the Revenue Department. (G. R. No. 1056, dated 22nd February 1873; and G. R., P. W. D., No. 79A-487, dated 4th March 1873.)

15. Officers of the Irrigation Department should exercise great care in estimating for land required to be taken up for canals or other irrigation works. In all such cases the district authorities should be consulted before estimates are framed, and the statements of those officers as to the value of the land should invariably accompany the estimates when submitted for sanction. (G. I., P. W. D., No. 4, dated 6th January 1872; vide G. R. No. 440, dated 31st idem.)

16. In every case in which the Land Acquisition Act may have to be put in force, the utmost consideration, consistent with fairness to both sides, should be shown to the wishes and feelings of people who have to suffer for the public good. (G. R., G. D.,

No. 2610, dated 2nd July 1872; vide G. M. No. 3525, dated 20th idem.)

17. When it is contemplated to undertake an extensive work, the best plan will be to depute an officer of the grade of an Assistant or Deputy Collector specially to settle the compensation to be paid for the land required to be taken up. (G. R. No. 4339, dated 13th August 1874.)

18. (1) When Deputy Collectors already in the service of Government are specially engaged for a prolonged period in the acquisition of land required by the Public Works Department for a large project, their pay and establishment charges may, if considered desirable by the Civil Department of the Local Government, be treated as a portion of the cost of acquiring the land, and as an item of expenditure on the project for which the land has been acquired. But to admit of a proper and careful control being exercised over the charges, as well as to limit the period of the employment of the establishment, when the estimates for a project are submitted for the sanction of the Government of India it may invariably be noted in the estimate for land what the actual cost of the land will amount to, distinct from the establishment and other charges attendant on the acquisition of the land, and debitable to that head.

(2). With the estimate a separate schedule should be submitted, showing the establishment required for taking up land and the probable cost of such establishment. The amount of this schedule should be the limit for the guidance of the Controller in his audit of charges for establishment for land, any excess being dealt with under the rules relating to excess outlay.

(3). It should be understood that these rules apply only to the case of establishments specially employed for, and sanctioned as chargeable to the Public Works Department, and not to ordinary cases of civil establishment employed in taking up land as a portion of their regular duties, in which case the cost of the establishment is adjusted as a charge of the Civil Department.

(G. I., P. W. D., No. 67, dated 11th November 1873; vide G. R., P. W. D., No. 44A-I-93, dated 25th February 1874, and G. M. No. 1391, dated 17th March 1874.)

19. If the Public Works Department cannot obtain land for stone or murum by private negotiation, the assistance of the Collector should always be applied for. (G. R. No. 709, dated 2nd February 1881, and G. R., P. W. D., No. 100 C. W.-321, dated 15th March 1881.)

20. Redemption of land tax by private individuals is not permissible. Where land is taken up under the Land Acquisition Act for a Municipality or a Company, such Municipality or Company should be held liable for the revenue, but might be allowed to compound for it. (G. I., R., A. & C., No. 896, dated 9th December 1876, and G. I., H., R. & A., No. 446, dated 12th September 1879; vide G. Rs. Nos. 7432, dated 18th December 1876, 6650, dated 12th December 1879, 1860, dated 29th February 1884, 4390, dated 2nd June 1884, and 2958, dated 19th April 1886.)

21. In all cases of purchases of immoveable property on behalf of Government, a deed of sale should be executed by the vendor. In all ordinary cases this deed may be a very simple one, and the following form is approved :—

This deed of sale made the       day of 18       between A. B. of       and the Secretary of State for India in Council.

In consideration of       Rupees paid to
A. B. by the Collector of       on behalf of the said Secretary of State for India in Council, the receipt whereof the said A. B. hereby acknowledges, the said A. B. hereby grants unto the Secretary of State for India in Council the property herein below described (namely):
(here describe the property as provided in the Indian Registration Act, Section 21.)

In witness whereof the said A. B. has signed this deed.

(Signed) A. B.

in the presence of

(G. Rs. Nos. 1481, dated 22nd March, and 2535, dated 17th May 1878.)

22. In cases of lands taken up by Government by private negotiation without money payment, the Collector merely remitting the amount of assessment placed on the land, no formal deed of relinquishment is necessary. The old form of rājīnāma hitherto in use would be quite sufficient. The rājīnāma and the consequent entries in the survey papers would be sufficient evidence. (G. R. No. 2535, dated 17th May 1878.)

23. (1) There is reason to fear that the adoption of an invariable rule that all payments of awards in land acquisition cases should be made by means of cheques, might in some instances be productive of inconvenience. When the property taken up by Government is near a treasury, the system of payment by cheques may be as convenient as payments in cash by the Land Acquisition Officer. But where the property is situated at a distance from a treasury, and when the Land Acquisition Officer pays the compensation at or near the village in which the owners reside, a course which is enjoined in paragraph 9 of the Resolution of the Government of India, No. 1580, dated 29th June 1886, the making of payments by means of cheques would probably be inconvenient to the payees, and the advantage of making final payments on the spot would be lost. The Governor General in Council is therefore not prepared to direct that all payments shall be made by cheque. There is, however, no objection to a Local Government directing any particular Land Acquisition Officer to make all his payments by cheque if it appears that this practice will not cause inconvenience of the kind above referred to.

(2). The following rules proposed by the Government of Bengal in order to safe-guard the use of cheques are approved:—

- (i) Every cheque-book should contain a certain number of cheques, with consecutive printed numbers, and each book should contain its own serial number.
- (ii) The serial number of the cheque-book, and the number of cheques it contains, should be reported to the Treasury Officer before the book is brought into use.
- (iii) The cheque-book should be kept under lock and key by the Land Acquisition Officer himself.
- (iv) The cheques should be filled up by the Land Acquisition Officer, with his own hand, in words as well as figures, and cheques should be enfaced under Rs.
- (v) A periodical examination of pass-books from the treasury with the counterfoils of the cheque-book should be made by the Land Acquisition Officer himself.

These rules should be observed by all officers paying compensation for land who draw money from the treasury by cheque, whether in lump sums to be distributed to the payees in cash by the officer, or in detail, each cheque being payable to one of the persons to whom compensation is due.

(G. I., F. & C., No. 2506, dated 14th August 1886; vide G. R. No. 6596, dated 17th September 1886.)

24. Rules 5 and 6 of the rules prescribed by the Government of India in their Resolution No. 1580,* dated 29th June 1886 (Government Resolution No. 5518, dated 4th August 1886), regulating the procedure to be observed in bringing to account payments of compensation for land taken up under the Land Acquisition Act, may be observed in the cases of lands acquired by private negotiations outside the Act. (G. R. No. 8762, dated 13th December 1886.)

*Superseded by the Resolution of the Government of India, No. 2209A, dated 10th May 1895. (G. R. No. 4320, dated 10th June 1895.)

25. (1) As regards the question of the debit of cost of temporary subordinate establishment specially engaged in connection with land acquisition, to work under officers of the Revenue Department, not placed at the disposal of the Public Works Department, the Government of India have ruled that in the cases provided for in the Civil Account Code, Rule 5, Chapter VI, i.e., when the Civil Officer is made a Public Works disburser, there is no objection to any special establishment entertained by him (under orders of Government) being charged to the works concerned. But if he is not a Public Works disburser, then the charges should be brought to account in the Civil Department and should not be debited to the Public Works Department.

(2). The duty of taking up land for Government purposes is a duty which rests upon the Revenue Department, and this duty and the cost of temporary establishments connected with it is borne as part of the cost of the Collector's establishments. In special cases when the operations are enough to keep a Deputy Collector and his establishment in full occupation, it is permissible to place this officer at the disposal of the Public Works Department and to deal with him as a Public Works disburser. In this case the expenditure incurred is audited, controlled and charged under Public Works rules. The assignment made under the Provincial Contract includes consideration of all charges for Collector's establishments, and therefore includes all charges which, by the rules of account, have to be taken against that head. General branches of the Public Service are not permitted to charge each other for services rendered, and the Revenue Department may not charge the Public Works Department in respect of its services in taking up land for Public Works.

(G. I., P. W. D., Nos. 207-I, dated 29th November 1887, and 190-I, dated 24th October 1888; vide G. R. No. 2508, dated 30th March 1889.)

26. (1) No land whether

(i) within cantonment limits,

(ii) forming part of a military encamping ground, or

(iii) otherwise held for military purposes, shall be entered upon or occupied for constructing a railway, erecting railway or other buildings, or for any other purpose whatever, either by contractors or any other persons (official or non-official) acting under the orders of any Civil Department of the State, until the sanction of the Government of India in the Military Department to the occupation or use of the land has first been obtained and communicated to the General Officer commanding the district by the Quarter-Master General in India, or by the Quarter-Master General of the Madras or Bombay Army, as the case may be.

(2) This Resolution does not, however, in any way affect the powers at present exercised by the General Officers commanding districts in the Bengal and Bombay Presidencies, and by the Commander-in-Chief in the Madras Presidency, in sanctioning the grant of sites for ordinary building or other private purposes in cantonments, in accordance with the procedure laid down in Army Regulations, India, Vol. II, Part II. (G. I., M. D., No. 2407-M.W., dated 22nd August 1892; vide G. R. No. 1978, dated 16th March 1893.)*

* Vide also Rule 37 of the Rules accompanying Government of India Circular No. VI, dated 7th July 1892; G. R. No. 8379, dated 25th October 1892.

27. As regards officers or other officials serving under the orders of the Government of India, the above rules should be regarded as applicable to fixed encamping grounds selected for troops on the march within the limits of Native States, as shown in the routes published in the Quarter Master General's Department, but it depends upon the conditions under which a site was originally occupied and on the terms on which it is held, whether the rules can or cannot be regarded as applicable against Darbárs and Darbár officials. (G. I., M. D., No. 3104-M.W., dated 19th September 1893; vide G. Rs. Nos. 7788, dated 24th October 1893, and 6582, dated 17th September 1893.)

28. (1) The Land Acquisition Act X of 1870, having been repealed by Act I of 1894, which came into force from 1st March 1894, His Excellency the Governor in Council desires to invite the attention of officers who may be concerned in the acquisition of land for public purposes to the necessity for care in conforming their procedure to the terms and requirements of the new Act, more particularly in regard to the points noted below :—

(i) Claims to easements on, as well as to interests in the property to be acquired must now be considered.
Section 3, Clause (b).

(ii) Land may now be taken up when required for village sites subject to the condition that it is the custom of the district for Government to provide land for the purpose. Proposals to take up land under this provision should be accompanied by a report showing that the condition is fulfilled, with a view to the issue of the necessary notification.
Section 3, Clause (f).

(iii) Claims to represent minors and other persons unable to act for themselves must now be scrutinized with reference to the proviso to the definition of "Persons entitled to act."
Section 3, Clause (g).

(iv) In this section the words "or other Chief Revenue Officer of the district" have been added to indicate that disputes as to damages on entry are to be decided by the Collector of the district, not by any officer specially appointed to perform the functions of the Collector under the Act.
Section 5.

(v) The addition of the words "wholly or partly" before the words "out of public revenues" makes it permissible to apply the Act to the acquisition of land for suitable objects at the joint cost of public revenues or the funds of local authorities and of private benefactors, as well as when the whole cost is to be defrayed from public revenues or the funds of local authorities.
Section 6 (proviso).

[LAND ACQUISITION.]

(vi) The correctness of the measurements made under Section 8, and the apportionment of the compensation among the persons interested, are now added to the matters to be dealt with in the Collector's award. His enquiry is no longer to be summary, and authority is given to require statements of claims to be made in writing. Except as is noted further on, his award is now made final, and immediate notice of it must be given to any claimant not present when it is made. Having regard to the greater formality of the enquiry and the possible finality of the award it will probably be found advisable to require statements of claims to be made in or reduced to writing in all cases in future.

(vii) Certain conditions are laid down which must be carefully attended to when service of notices by post may be necessary.

(viii) Not less than 15 days' notice must now be allowed when any person is called upon to furnish a statement of other persons interested in the land to be acquired.

(ix) Provision is made for immediate appropriation of land acquired for Railway purposes in certain emergencies, without waiting for the expiration of 15 days from publication of the notice mentioned in Section 9, Sub-section (1), subject, however, to reasonable notice to occupants of buildings who may be required to vacate, and compensation must be offered in all cases in which possession is taken in anticipation of the award, for damages arising from sudden dispossession and not excluded by Section 24, as well as for standing crops and trees.

(x) No reference to the Civil Court need now be made except on written application, made within the time laid down, from a person who has not accepted the award, failing which the award becomes final. It is, however, open to the Collector to refer disputes as to apportionment to the Court for settlement.

(xi) When a reference is made, care must be taken to comply with the provisions of Section 19, as to the information to be supplied, among which attention may be drawn to those mentioned in Clause (2) as to particulars of all notices served upon and statements in writing made or delivered by the parties.

(xii) The phrase "market value" remains undefined, but may be taken to mean the price which the owner might be expected to obtain for his property with full opportunities of time and occasion, such as might be held to be reasonable under all the circumstances of the case. The new Act differs from the old in that it requires the compensation to be fixed with reference to the market value of the land, at the date of the declaration, instead of at the date of the award, and consequently the consideration of a new item, to wit, (sixthly) the damage (if any) bond fide arising from any diminution in the profits of occupation during the period between the declaration and the Collector's entry into possession. Item "secondly" under Section 23 must apparently be read subject to the condition that compensation for standing crops and trees has not already been paid separately under Section 17 (3).

PART I.]

(xiii) In item (seventhly) a provision excluding from consideration any outlay on, or improvement or disposal of, the land without the sanction of the Collector after publication of the declaration under Section 6, is substituted for the somewhat vague provision in the former Act, excluding outlay or improvements commenced or effected with the intention of enhancing the compensation.

(xiv) The Court has now a discretion in awarding costs which may be used as a check on extravagant or speculative claims or negligence in making or stating them. On the other hand the effect of Section 28 must be borne in mind. By making unduly low awards, the Collector may now render himself liable to pay interest on any excess amount awarded by the Court, as well as the costs of the reference.

(xv) To save accrual of claims for interest the amount of the Collector's award must now be deposited in Court when for any reason there is no person able and willing to receive it; and provision is made for receipt by any person interested of the sum awarded, without prejudice, if it be received under protest as to its amount, to the right of the recipient to demand a reference or to the right of other persons interested to recover from him, and for investment of the amount in certain cases when it has been deposited in Court. A discretionary power, subject to the sanction of Government, of settling otherwise than by a money payment with persons having a limited interest in the land even when it is taken up under the Act, is also reserved.

(xvi) The new Act makes it clear that land taken up for Railway Companies for which under contract with the Secretary of State Government is expressly bound to provide land, is to be treated as taken up on behalf of Government, and not under the provisions relating to the acquisition of land for Companies.

(xvii) The taking of possession is now the stage of the proceedings up to which it remains open to Government to withdraw from the acquisition instead of the making of an award or reference as under the old Act.

Section 48.

(xviii) In cases of severance, it is now open to the owner of any building, &c., who may have expressed a desire that the whole should be taken up, to withdraw or modify his demand at any time before an award has been made, and to Government to acquire the whole, in cases in which extravagant claims to compensation for severance are set up.

Section 49.

(xix) Local authorities of Companies at whose cost any land may be taken up under the Act are now entitled to be heard and to adduce evidence for the purpose of determining the amount of compensation, but cannot demand a reference.

Section 50.

(2). It is necessary also to bear in mind that the rules and instructions under the Land Acquisition Act of 1870 printed in the compilation of rules in force in the Revenue Department have not and never had the force of law, and are not therefore saved by Section 2, clause (2). They may still be used as a general guide, but care must be taken to follow them no further than may be strictly consistent with the provisions of the new Act, and instructions should be applied for in regard to any new questions that may arise.

(G. R. No. 6188, dated 23rd July 1894.)

29. (1) In schedules appended to notifications under Section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, * columns such as "Tenure," "Name of Khatedār and Claimant" and "Boundaries" need not be inserted, as they are not required by law, and errata are likely to occur.

* I of 1894.

(2) A declaration under Section 6 need show nothing beyond

- (a) the district or other territorial division in which the land is situate;
- (b) the purpose for which it is needed;
- (c) its approximate area, and
- (d) when a plan shall have been made of the land, the place where such plan may be inspected.

30. In Bombay the "boundaries" may be stated in the notification, but it seems undesirable to state the tenure. In Bombay, where there are so many different classes of tenures, mistakes are more likely to occur than elsewhere, and as any scrap of evidence of title is eagerly seized on, unfounded claims might be based on such mistakes. The chance of such mistakes should be avoided where there is no need to incur it. (G. R. No. 5731, dated 29th July 1895.)

31. (1). On the Land Acquisition Act, X of 1870, having been amended as Act I of 1894, the following rules regarding the payment of compensation for land taken up for public purposes under the Act, were substituted for those previously published.

(2). After all preliminaries in respect to estimate, &c., that may be required under departmental rules in force for the time being have been duly carried out, the land will be taken up under the Act either by the Collector or by some special officer who is placed at the disposal of the Public Works Department, and invested with the powers of a Collector under the Act; the procedure differs in the two cases.

Procedure of Special Officers appointed under the Act.

(3). Officers who are specially employed for this work; being invested with the powers of a Collector under the Act and placed at the disposal of the Public Works Department, are regarded as Public Works disbursers, and are supplied with funds in the manner prescribed in Article 467 of the Civil Account Code. The following procedure shall be observed by such officers.

(4). When an award is made under Section 11 of the Act, the officer shall have a statement prepared in the appended form (marked* A) showing the amounts payable to each person under the award, and shall, on the day the award is made, forward a copy of the statement, signed by himself, to the Examiner of Public Works Accounts with whom he is in account. Before signing the copy, the officer should carefully satisfy himself that it correctly shows the amounts due under the award, and should himself enter the total of column 6 of the statement in words both in the original and copy. A subsidiary statement in Form* AA giving particulars regarding the acceptance, by the persons concerned, of the amounts entered in column 6 of the award statement should also be furnished to the Examiner as soon as possible. If the subsidiary statement is not complete on the day that the award is made, the necessary entries in column 7 of statement A will be made in the Examiner's office on receipt of the statement in Form AA.

(5). In cases where an award has been made by a Court under Section 26 of the Act, a second award statement should be prepared in the accompanying form (marked *B) by the Land Acquisition Officer as soon as the decision of the Court is ascertained, and a copy thereof forwarded to the Examiner of Public Works Accounts. On receipt of this statement, the Examiner will proceed to check the entries in columns 1 to 4 with the original award by the officer.

(6). Any change in the apportionment of the officer's award made by a Court under Section 30 of the Act, should also similarly be communicated to the Examiner for the necessary corrections in the award statement. And if under Section 31 (3) of the Act, it has been arranged to grant a compensation otherwise than in cash, the nature of such compensation should be clearly specified in the column of remarks in the award statement.

(7). In giving notice of the award under Section 12 (2) and tendering payment under Section 31 (1) to such of the persons interested as were not present personally or by their representatives when the award was made, the officer shall require them to appear personally or by representatives by a certain date, to receive payment of the compensation awarded to them, intimating also that no interest will be allowed to them if they fail to appear. If they do not appear, and do not apply for a reference to the Civil Court under Section 18, the officer shall, after any further endeavour to secure their attendance that may seem desirable, cause the amounts due to be paid into the Treasury as revenue deposits payable to the persons to whom they are respectively due, and vouched for in the accompanying Form (marked *E). The officer shall also give notice to the payees of such deposits, specifying the Treasury in which the deposits have been made. When the payees ultimately claim payment of sums placed on deposit, the amount will be paid to them in the same manner as ordinary revenue deposits. The officer should, as far as possible, arrange to make the payments due in or near the village to which the payees belong, in order that the number of undisbursed sums to be placed in deposit on account of non-attendance may be reduced to a minimum. Whenever payment is claimed through a representative, whether before or after deposit of the amount awarded, such representative must show legal authority for receiving the compensation on behalf of his principal.

(8). In making direct payments to the persons interested under the award, the officer shall take the receipt of each person to whom money is paid on a separate voucher in the accompanying form (marked *C), containing a reference to the item showing the amount due to that person in the statement prescribed in paragraph 4. In cases where payments are made to a number of persons under a single award, an acquittance roll in Form CC* may be substituted for separate receipts in Form C. The officer shall forward the separate receipts of the payees or the acquittance roll, as the case may be, to the Examiner of Public Works Accounts with whom he is in account, when forwarding to him the account of the month in which the payments are made.

(9). All payments into Court for deposit under the Act should be made by means of cheques in favour of the presiding officer of the Court, payable by order of the Court to credit of Civil Court Deposits. The cheques should be accompanied with receipts, in triplicate, in Form* D duly filled up, of which one will be retained by the Court for record, and the other two returned duly signed to the Collector, who will keep one copy and forward the other to the Examiner of Public Works Accounts with the accounts of the month in which the payments are made. Payments of the amounts deposited shall be made under the rules for the payment of Civil Court Deposits.

(10). When a Court has awarded any compensation in excess of the officer's award, the further payment due, as entered in column 6 of the award statement in Form B, should be made into the Court by means of a cheque, and the procedure described in the preceding paragraph should be followed, Form D being used with the necessary changes to give full particulars of the order of the Court.

(11). A Local Government may authorize any particular Land Acquisition Officer to make all or any of his payments by cheques, provided no inconvenience is caused thereby to the payees in consequence of the property being situated at a distance from the Treasury. The use of cheques should be safe-guarded by a strict observance of the following rules:—

(i) Every cheque-book should contain a certain number of cheques, with consecutive printed numbers, and each book should contain its own serial number.

(ii) The serial number of the cheque-book, and the number of cheques it contains, should be reported to the Treasury Officer before the book is brought into use.

(iii) The cheque-book should be kept under lock and key by the Land Acquisition Officer himself.

(12). In any case in which a reference is made to the Civil Court; and the award of the Court is not made till after the special officer has been relieved of his special duties, the further payments due under the award shall be made by the Collector, who will observe the same procedure as if the reference to the Civil Court had been made by himself, as prescribed in paragraphs 9 and 10 above.

Procedure of Collector or other Civil Officer not specially employed for Land Acquisition.

(13). When the land is taken up by the Collector or other Civil officer not specially employed for the work, such Collector or Civil officer is not a Public Works disburser, but draws money for payment due under his award from the Civil Treasury. Such Collector or Civil officer shall, as soon as he makes the award, or as soon as he ascertains that an award has been made by the Civil Court, prepare a statement in Form A or B or in both, as the case may be, showing the amounts due, and forward a copy thereof to the Examiner of Public Works Accounts concerned in the manner prescribed in paragraphs 4 and 5. Additions and alterations in the award statement should also be communicated to the Examiner as prescribed in paragraph 6, and a subsidiary statement in Form AA should, if necessary, be furnished as laid down in paragraph 4. The procedure laid down in paragraph 7 should also be observed by such Collector or Civil officer.

(14). In making the payments due under the award, the Collector shall take from each person to whom payment is made a receipt in Form C, containing a reference to the particular entry in the award showing the amount due to the payee. In the case of payments to a number of persons under a single award, an acquittance roll may be substituted for separate receipts as laid down in paragraph 8. These receipts will be the Treasury Officer's vouchers for the payments, and shall be forwarded by him with the accounts of the month to the Accountant General of the Province, who will in ordinary course forward them to the Examiner of Public Works Accounts. For payments into Civil Courts the procedure laid down in paragraphs 9 and 10 should be observed.

(15). The Treasury Officer has no concern with the award or with the award statement; he makes the payments on the authority of the Collector, or other officer assessing compensation. The Collector may either draw the amount to be disbursed to each payee separately, in which case he should countersign the receipt in Form C, and make it payable at the Treasury to the payee, altering the words "Paid in my presence <sup>in cash</sup> <sub>by cheque</sub>" to "Pay"; or he may draw the total amount to be disbursed by him under the award on his own receipt as an advance, and after making the payments forward the receipts of the payees to the Treasury Officer in adjustment of the advance. In the former case, an advice list of the forms passed for payment should be sent to the Treasury Officer, who in turn should send weekly an advice of orders paid.

Audit by Account Officers.

(16). Whether the payment is made by a special officer or by the Collector (or other Civil officer), the audit of the Examiner of Public Works Accounts shall consist in seeing that every payment is supported by a receipt in Form C or D, and that the amount paid on such receipt is the amount payable under the award, as shown in the statement of which he will have received copies under the preceding orders. The Examiner will also note in the last column of Form A the date on which possession is taken, as reported to him by the Executive Engineer or other officer.

(17). The Examiner will, as he receives the vouchers, fill in the entries in the appropriate columns of the award statements (Forms A and B); and as he receives the reports of possession, he will fill in the entries in column 10 of the statement in Form A: when all the vouchers showing either payment to the payee or payment into the Court on deposit and the reports of possession have been received, he will forward a copy of the completed statements in Forms A, AA, and B to the Chief Revenue Authority. This will complete the audit of the Examiner; any other or further returns or reports from the officers who assess or pay compensation will be disposed of by the Chief Revenue Authority without reference to the Examiner.

(18). When the land is acquired for and the cost is debitable to the Military Works Department, the procedure above laid down will be observed, the Examiner of Military Works Accounts being substituted for the Examiner of Public Works Accounts.

(19). When the land is acquired for and the cost is debitable to any other Department than the Public Works Department or Military Works Department, the procedure will also be the same, the Account officer who will audit the payments being substituted for the Examiner of Public Works Accounts.

Procedure when no money compensation is paid.

(20). In cases in which compensation is granted in the shape of other land in exchange, or remission of revenue, as provided in Section 31 (3) of the Act, and the land is acquired for Government purposes, no adjustment of the value of land given in exchange will be required, unless it is separately purchased by Government. If, however, the land is acquired for a body financially independent of Government, the value of the Government land given in exchange, and the capitalized value of the abatement of Land Revenue should be charged against advances of funds (paragraph 22) made by that body.

Investment of Compensation money deposited in Court.

(21). Investments under Sections 32 and 33 of the Act of money deposited in Court should be arranged for, in the case of purchase of Government securities, in communication between the Court and the Civil Accountant General concerned, and purchases of land should be effected under the Court's orders through the Collector or other Revenue authority of the Province. The Accountant General will inform the Court what sum should be remitted to enable him to make the investment, and this amount will be paid from the deposits in Court.

Audit adjustment and recovery of payments on behalf of bodies financially independent of Government.

(22). In any case in which land is acquired for a Municipality or other body financially independent of Government, the Local Government may direct that the payments, instead of being made and audited in the same manner as the ordinary payments of such body, shall be made and audited as if the land were being acquired for Government. If the Local Government issues such an order, the Collector or other officer who makes payments on account of the land acquired shall draw funds from the Treasury and make payments in the manner laid down in these rules, using the forms prescribed, and shall render his accounts to the Civil Accountant General. The Municipality or other body will pay the estimated cost of the compensation to the credit of Government in advance on such dates and in such instalments as the Local Government may direct, further payment to Government being required as soon as the Accountant General reports that the payments made exceed the amount received in advance. The Accountant General will deal with the accounts and payments as prescribed in these rules, debiting the payments against the advances received from the Municipality or other body.

that the districts noted in the margin are districts in which it is customary for Government to make such provision for village sites as is referred to in Section 3 (f) of the Land Acquisition Act I of 1894. (G. Rs. and G. Ns. No. 4008, dated 19th May 1896, and No. 700, dated 27th January 1897.)

33. In submitting to Government proposals for the acquisition under Act I of 1894 of land required by the Public Works Department for public purposes the procedure to be adopted should be for the Executive Engineer to send original application,

&c., to the Collector through the Superintending Engineer. The Collector should then forward it to the Commissioner, who should send it on to Government in the Revenue Department through the Public Works Department. (G. R. No. 3862, dated 21st May 1897.)

34. It will generally be expedient to restore service inām land which has been acquired under the Land Acquisition Act and is no longer needed, but the arrangement will be tantamount to a regrant of service land, and the sanction of Government is necessary. (G. R. No. 5372, dated 7th August 1897.)

35. It is not considered expedient to direct that notification under the Land Acquisition Act should invariably be issued with regard to land required for a public purpose, but the Act should be applied in all cases in which there is any probability of a question about title being raised. (G. R. No. 1571-Fam., dated 17th August 1897.)

36. Orders sanctioning the acquisition of land required for any Department of Government should be considered to be a sufficient authority for the payment of all ordinary charges incurred in connection with the acquisition. (G. R. No. 1800, dated 12th March 1898.)

PART II.—DUTIES, POWERS AND RESPONSIBILITIES OF OFFICERS.

1. Matters relating to the acquisition of land for public purposes should be disposed of by the Assistant in charge of the taluka, and not through the intermediate agency of Native officials. Personal examination of the ground and a prompt tender of a fair and liberal compensation would often effect a satisfactory settlement. (G. R. No. 158, dated 14th January 1867.)

2. It is the duty of the Collector and Magistrate, who is armed with ample power, to see that lands are not unauthorizedly entered upon by railway officials or any one else. (G. R. No. 1449, dated 28th March 1872.)

3. Under Section 2 of Act V of 1868, the Commissioner in Sind is vested with the powers of a Local Government under Act X* of 1870 (The Land Acquisition Act.) (G. I. No. 196, dated 25th April 1871); vide (G. R. No. 2187, dated 10th May 1871; vide also G. N. dated 3rd August 1874.)

*Repealed by Act 1 of 1892.

4. Government do not consider it desirable to fetter the hands of Revenue Officers, who may be deputed to take up lands for public purposes, by making it a rule that the Department requiring the land should be represented on the arbitration appointed to settle its value. The responsibility of preventing loss to Government must rest with Revenue Officers, who should, however, give the Department which has to pay for the land an opportunity of stating their opinion regarding its value. (G. R. No. 5052, dated 4th September 1875.)

5. Revenue Officers should be very careful that land is not taken up against the will of the owners except in conformity with the law. (G. R. No. 1976, dated 25th April 1872.)

6. Lands are not to be taken up by public officers except with the consent of the owners, otherwise than in accordance with law. Should this rule be neglected, it will be for Government to decide whether the costs of legal proceedings which may result from any illegal occupation of lands should be borne by Government or the officer by whose order the land was taken. (G. R. No. 1789, dated 24th March 1875.)

7. (1) It is assumed that, when an application for taking up land under the Land Acquisition Act is submitted by a Municipality or other local body, the necessity of the acquisition has been fully considered, the cost estimated, and due provision made for payment of the award. The officer deputed to acquire the land has a distinct duty to perform in accordance with the procedure prescribed in the Act. It is not open to him to proceed or not according to his discretion, or to delay or drop the matter according to the convenience of the local body, at whose cost the land is to be acquired.

PART II.]

[LAND ACQUISITION.

If for any good and sufficient reason the necessity for the acquisition of the land should disappear after the issue of the notification, it is for Government alone to decide whether the acquisition should be completed or not.

(2). The Commissioners should see that notifications are not submitted hastily on behalf of local bodies, i.e., not until they are satisfied

(a) that prior negotiations to purchase the land had failed, or that owing to difficulties as to title the application of the Act was necessary; and

(b) that the project, in connection with which the land was required, was sufficiently matured to justify the land being acquired, so that the project should be proceeded with without avoidable loss of time.

(G. R. No. 5835, dated 9th July 1894.)

8. Delays in the payment of compensation in respect of lands taken up for public purposes under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act give rise to claims for interest on the amount of compensation payable under the award made by the officer acquiring the land from the date of taking possession of the land until the amount is actually paid, and swell the cost of the work in connection with which the land is taken up. This result is principally due to failure to comply with the provisions of Section 31 of the Land Acquisition Act. The attention of Collectors is therefore called to these provisions, and they should be requested to take measures to secure compliance with them in future. (G. R. No. 6677, dated 7th September 1897.)

PART III.—ACQUISITION OF LANDS FOR THE MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

1. When land is required by the Military Department, application should invariably be made through the Collector, who should submit for the orders of Government a report upon the nature of the land required, and the tenure on which it is held. (G. R. No. 3726, dated 17th October 1866.)

2. (1) The Civil authorities should give every assistance in their power in obtaining for the Military authorities the preliminary necessary information as to probable cost, exact situation, &c., &c., of any land required by them for military purposes. A notice should then be prepared, signed and issued under the provisions of *Act VI of 1857; and the lands should be acquired for a public purpose in strict accordance with the terms of that Act. As a matter of course, the land should not be taken possession of until the Civil authorities declared that the provisions of the Act had been fulfilled. They should then formally hand it over to the authorities at whose requisition Government had ordered it to be taken up.

(2). All land taken up under the Act must be acquired through the agency of the Civil Department.

(G. Rs. Nos. 1129, dated 26th February 1870, and 1289, dated 7th March 1870.)

PART IV.—ACQUISITION OF LANDS FOR MUNICIPALITIES.

1. The following form of agreement should be adopted whenever land is to be taken on behalf of Municipalities under the Land Acquisition Act. As the agreement is one made under Act X of 1870* within the meaning of Section 57† of that Act, it is not chargeable with stamp duty :—

†Vide Section 51 of Act I of 1894.

Agreement made this            day of            18 between the Municipality of            of the one part and the Secretary of State for India in Council of the other part.

Whereas the said Municipality is desirous of acquiring all that land situate in the village of            in the Registration Sub-District of            in the district of            known by the name of            (or being part of the            known by the name of            as the case may be) containing by superficial measurement            more or less, which said land is now in the occupation of            and is delineated in the Survey (or Government) map of            as (part of) the field (or estate, or plot, &c., as the case may be) No.           , and bounded on the north by            on the south by            on the east by            and on the west by together with the trees, houses, and all other things whatsoever standing on the same, or attached to the same or permanently fastened to anything attached to the same, and has applied to Government to acquire the said land on its behalf under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act,‡ 1870; and whereas Government have consented to acquire the said land under the said Act on behalf of the said Municipality on the said Municipality's agreeing in manner hereinafter appearing.

‡Now I of 1894.

These presents witness that the said Municipality doth hereby bind itself to pay to Government the cost of the acquisition of the said land and all such charges as may be incurred by Government, or by any officer of Government, in respect of the said acquisition at such time or times as the Collector of            shall require, on the amount of the said cost or charges being certified by the said Collector, and doth agree that in the event of its making default in any such payment it shall be lawful for the Governor of Bombay in Council to recover the same as if it were money due to Government by the said Municipality under Section ninety-one of the Bombay District Municipal Act.

And the said Secretary of State for India in Council doth hereby agree with the said Municipality that so soon as all costs and charges of the said acquisition shall be paid by it, or recovered from it as aforesaid, the said land together with the trees, houses, and other things standing thereon, or attached thereto, or permanently fastened to anything attached thereto, shall vest in the said Municipality and be thenceforth held by it for the purposes of the Bombay District Municipal Act like any other property vested in the said Municipality under section seventeen of the said Act, free of all claim or charge whatsoever on the part of Government.

In witness whereof A. B., * Esquire of the said Municipality hath hereto set his hand and the seal of the Municipality of and *C. (G. R. No. 6707, dated 9th November 1877.)

2. It is neither usual nor necessary that agreements with Municipalities for the payment of the cost of acquisition of lands under the Act should be signed by a Secretary to Government. (G. R. No. 9487, dated 24th December 1883.)

3. In a case in which land is acquired under the Act for the Bombay Municipality by Government, the Solicitor to Government and not the Solicitors to the Municipality should represent Government and conduct the case. (G. R. No. 6575, dated 18th September 1890.)

4. (1) The following procedure adopted in municipal land cases in Bombay should be adopted mutatis mutandis by all Collectors in the Presidency proper and in Sind in land acquisition cases arising in their respective jurisdictions.

When the Collector has to acquire land for municipal purposes, the Municipality is asked to send a representative. In minor cases a departmental officer attends. All important cases are entrusted to the Municipal Solicitors. On the day for hearing the Municipal Solicitor attends, and in important cases the land-owner is represented by a lawyer. The Municipal Solicitor states the rate the Municipality is willing to pay and every opportunity is given him to support the sufficiency of the municipal rate by sales and other evidence. The land-owners name their figure and bring evidence in its support. In all important acquisitions, repeated adjournments are granted, and every opportunity is given to both parties to produce all available evidence. The evidence produced both by the Municipality and by the land-owner is of necessity one-sided: each party confines itself to details which tend in its own favour. In the bulk of cases the most helpful evidence is that of sales and awards from the Collector's records.

(2). As regards proceedings before the Court, there is no advantage in the Municipal Solicitors attending to uphold the Collector's award in preference to the Government Solicitor appearing for that purpose. But in a case where a Municipality is interested, the Solicitor to Government should confer with the Municipal Solicitors, in order to place the municipal case against an increase before the Court.

(G. R. No. 6503, dated 22nd September 1891.)

PART V.—ACQUISITION OF LANDS FOR RAILWAYS.

1. Whenever Collectors have occasion to submit requisitions for lands required for railway purposes they should forward the schedule and plans sent to them by the Railway Department. (G. L. No. 1615, dated 19th April 1865.)

2. Lands required for the re-construction of a railway or for repairs fall under the same rules as those required during the original construction of the line. (G. R. No. 2650, dated 9th May 1873.)

3. The rent for class C lands required for railway purposes should be calculated on the capitalized value of the land instead of according to the assessment arbitrarily placed on such land. The following form should be adopted in preferring bills for the rent of such lands in the possession of Railway Companies; and the bills should be forwarded direct to the agent of the Railway Company concerned for payment :—

(G. Rs. Nos. 4957, dated 30th August 1876, and 6315, dated 4th August 1892.)

4. When forest lands have to be given free of the rent for railway purposes, the claim of the Forest Department to compensation is inadmissible, but when rent has been paid for forest lands made over to Railways, the Forest Department should be credited with the amount so realized. (G. R. No. 6586, dated 24th September 1891.)

5. The practice of exchanging receipts between the Revenue and the Railway authorities when land is made over to the latter should be continued. (G. R. No. 6702, dated 20th August 1892.)

6. (1) In supersession of all previous orders on the subject, the subjoined rules should be strictly observed in future on all railways in India, whether constructed by the State, or by companies (guaranteed, assisted or private), for which land is acquired under the orders of Government.

(2). It will be incumbent on Consulting Engineers to endeavour to avoid the emplacement of the railway line upon land, the acquisition of which will entail either unnecessary expenditure on Government, or annoyance to the owners, if the object sought can be equally well attained by a slight alteration of the alignment, or in some other manner. The Consulting Engineers and the local revenue officers are responsible that, in taking up land, the fullest consideration is given both to the convenience of the proprietors and to the interests of Government.

Rules relating to Land.

Classification of Railway Land—

I.—Railways constructed by Government.

(1). On Railways constructed by Government land is divided into two classes, viz. :—

I.—Permanent Land.

II.—Temporary Land.

(2). Permanent Land.—Land which will be required permanently after the Railway is open for traffic and the work of construction is complete. Under this head will be included all land to be occupied by the formation of the permanent line of Railway, with side-slopes of banks and cuttings, and the berms connected therewith; the entrances to tunnels and shafts belonging to the same; the sites of bridges and protection or training works; station-yards; landing places for Railway ferries; ground to be occupied by works belonging to the Railway, such as gas-works, arrangements for water supply, &c.; ground for the storage, manufacture, or acquisition of materials; land for cemeteries, plantations, gardens, and recreation grounds; sites for permanent stations, offices, workshops, dwelling-houses and other buildings required for the purposes of the Railway, or the accommodation of the staff with the grounds, yards, roads, &c., appertaining thereto.

Under this head will also be classed land which will be permanently occupied by the diversion of roads or rivers, or for other works undertaken for public purposes incidental to the construction of the Railway, although such land will cease to be held by the Railway authorities on the completion of the works.

(3). Temporary Land.—All land which is required for temporary purposes only, and which is relinquished after the work of construction is complete.

II.—Railways constructed by Companies.*

(4). On Railways constructed by Companies land is divided into four classes, viz. :—

I.—‘Class A’ land.

II.—‘Class B’ land.

III.—‘Class C’ land.

IV.—‘Class D’ land.

(5). ‘Class A’ Land.—Land which the Company receives for permanent occupation free of charge under its contract or other arrangement with Government. Under this head is included all land required for the permanent works of the Railway, including the formation of the line with its side-slopes, berms, bridges, &c., and for all stations, workshops, permanent store-houses, and the like, necessary for the line when opened, and which, under the contract or other arrangement, is to be provided by Government free of cost to the Railway Company. The occupation of this land by the Company will be so far permanent that it will cease only when the contract is terminated or surrendered and the whole lapses to Government.

(6). ‘Class B’ Land.—Land which the Railway Company receives for temporary occupation free of charge under its contract or other arrangement with Government. Under this head is included all land essential for the execution of the permanent works of the Railway, but not required after the completion of the line in part or whole. Such is land for spoil-banks, for extra excavation to make banks and for the storage of material held in stock by the Railway Company pending the construction of the line or their despatch to the works.

(7). ‘Class C’ Land.—Land which the Railway Company has to provide at its own cost. Under this head is included land which is required for the provision or preparation of materials, for purposes contingent on the actual execution of the works on the line, or for other miscellaneous objects, which the Government recognises as falling legitimately within the scope of the Railway Company's operations, though not giving the Company a claim to the provision of land free of charge. 'Class C' land will be taken up by Government and handed over to the Railway Company for occupation at a fixed rental.

*The classification given here would apply fully only in the case of a Railway for which land was taken up on terms similar to those adopted for the old Guaranteed Companies. The conditions under which land is occupied by other Railway Companies in India vary according to the terms of their respective contracts (or other arrangements) and are in some cases practically the same as specified above for Railways constructed by Government. For the exact text of the rules laid down for the old Guaranteed Companies, see reprint of Government of India, P. W. Department, Circular No. 55, dated 29th June 1861, given as Appendix C.

(8). 'Class D' Land.—Land which, being required in consequence of the works of a Railway, still does not come directly into the occupation of the Railway Company at all. Under this head is classed land required outside the Company's boundary, for the diversion of road or rivers, and for the construction of roads, which are made for public purposes and which will not afterwards be maintained by the Company. 'Class D' land will be provided by Government free of charge.

Amount of land required—

(9). In estimating for the amount of land to be taken up for a Railway, care should be taken to make provision not only for the land which will be required permanently for the purposes of the open line (such as those indicated on page 917 under 'Permanent Land'), but also for such land as will be required during construction only, for spoil-banks, side-cuttings, quarries, stacking and preparation of material, temporary offices, workshops and quarters, and for temporary purposes generally, to be relinquished after the work is complete.

(10). Land is everywhere (except under the special sanction of the Government of India previously obtained) to be provided of a width sufficient to allow of the line being doubled. For this purpose the minimum width required for the 'Permanent land' (in the case of a Railway constructed by Government) or 'Class A land' (in the case of a Railway constructed by a Company) under ordinary circumstances is as follows* both for the 5 ft. 6 in. and for the metre gauge:—

|------------|-----|---------------------|
| Embankment | ... | 70 feet + 2 slopes. |
| Cutting    | ... | 70 feet + 2 slopes. |

(11). It is to be remembered that the width here specified is, in each case, the minimum, and that it may frequently be necessary to arrange for extra land, which will be required after the line is open,

* For details see sections showing widths of land to be taken up, Appendix A (not printed). The ditch shown on these sections need not be dug, unless required; but whether the ditch is required or not, a width of not less than 24 feet must in every case be preserved from toe of slope to edge of side-cutting, or from edge of cutting to foot of spoil-bank.

Land for a Railway on the metre gauge should ordinarily be taken up of the full width required for the 5 ft. 6 in. gauge, as specified above. In special cases, however, where it may be considered as practically certain that the Railway will, at no future time, be converted to the 5 ft. 6 in. gauge, the width given in the diagram for metre gauge may be worked to.

for repairs to embankments, for stacking material, or for other purposes. Land so provided would be additional to the minimum permanent land shown on the diagram, and during the construction of the line should be reserved and kept free from excavation or spoil.

(12). At station-yards the cutting or filling for the formation of the main line and sidings may sometimes be arranged for in the general levelling and improvement of the plot of ground to be permanently acquired. Where this cannot be done, provision should be made outside the proposed boundary of the station-yard for such additional land as may be required for side-cuttings or spoil-banks.

(13). Where a piece of ground is to be reserved for a plantation or other similar purpose, care should be taken that proper arrangements are made for sufficient land, outside and distinct from such piece of ground, for the side-cuttings or spoil-banks which may have to be provided for.

(14). In making provision for land for side-cuttings, the width will, under ordinary circumstances, depend upon the nature of the soil, height of bank, facilities for getting earth, and other local conditions. Under special circumstances, as, for example, in the neighbourhood of large towns or where land is unusually expensive, it may be advisable to equalize the quantities for cutting and filling, and take the material for banks from the adjacent cuttings.

General arrangement, side-widths, &c.—

(15). For the line between stations, the general arrangements shown on the sections,—Appendix A (not printed)—is to be followed, and the side-widths set out accordingly.

(16). Where practicable, for low banks or shallow cuttings, the land taken up for side-cuttings or spoil-banks should be on one side of the line only.

(17). In setting out land for side-cuttings arrangements should be made for berms at suitable intervals to allow convenient access to the line during construction, and to prevent the side-cuttings ultimately developing into water-courses alongside the embankment. A width of 40 feet in a length of 200 feet is generally suitable for this purpose; that is to say, each excavation would be 160 feet long, and separated from the next excavation by an interval of 40 feet of undisturbed earth.

(18). In setting out land for spoil-banks, care should be taken to leave sufficient space for arrangements for drainage and for catch-water drains, where required, to prevent surface water from the adjacent land running down the slopes of the cutting.

the distance allowed to the nearest part of the excavation or spoil must be such as to preserve the specified width of strip of clear unbroken ground after this sloping has been carried out.

(20). In arranging the side-widths, the line for the fencing and for the inner edge of side-cutting or spoil should be continued straight in portions as long as practicable. That is to say, these lines should follow the average variation in height of bank or depth of cutting over considerable lengths, not to be made to zig-zag to suit the local variation at each chain peg. Where the variation in side-widths would be comparatively unimportant, it will often be advisable to neglect such local variations entirely, and take up the land in a parallel strip for some distance.

Plans to be made—

(21). To enable the Civil authorities to take action for the acquisition of land required for Railway purposes, it is necessary* that proper plans should be made for reference by all concerned.

(22). The scale for these Land Plans should, under ordinary circumstances, be 400 feet to 1 inch; but where this would not admit of sufficient detail being shown with clearness, the scale should be 100 feet to 1 inch.

(23). The data for the preparation of the Land Plans should generally be obtained during the progress of the survey for the location of the line, and the general instructions for the preparation of plans to accompany a project for a Railway, when submitted to the Government of India, are to be held to apply also to plans required for the acquisition of the land necessary for the construction of the Railway.†

(24). The following additional information is to be supplied on the Land Plans:—

(a) In the case of a Railway constructed by Government, or by a Company under the terms of whose contract land is divided into two classes, 'permanent' and 'temporary,' the plans made out for the first acquisition of the land will show the outer boundary line; and all land, for whatever purpose it may be required, will be taken up as for permanent occupation. This land will be distinguished on the Land Plans by being coloured pink.

N. B.—This rule applies only to the copies of the plans made for the Civil authorities for use on the acquisition of the land, and is not intended to prevent Engineers from marking on their office copies the intended disposition of the land as 'permanent' and 'temporary,' or any other information which may be found convenient for use during construction or for the purpose of the estimate.

As early as practicable, after the line is opened, and it is known definitely what land can conveniently be relinquished, the original plans will be corrected (or fresh plans made), showing the boundaries of the land required for permanent occupation ('Permanent Land'), and also those of the land to be relinquished ('Temporary Land'). On these latter Land Plans, the two classes of land are to be distinguished by colour as follows:—

Permanent Land—Pink.

Temporary Land—Yellow.

- (b) In the case of a Railway constructed by a Company, by the terms of whose contract (or other arrangement with Government) land has to be taken up under special classes A, B, C and D, as defined on page 918 of these rules, or under other conditions of a like nature, the plans made out for the first acquisition of the land will show clearly the boundaries of the land to be taken up under each of these classes.

As early as practicable, after the line is opened, the original plans will be corrected (or fresh plans made), showing the disposition of the land as determined after the work of construction is completed.

On these Land Plans, the four classes of land are to be distinguished by colour as follows:—

Class A Land—Pink.

Class D Land—Green.

- (c) Detached portions of land should be referred to some fixed point on one of the main sheets with distances and compass or other bearings, or such reference to the published maps of the neighbourhood as will ensure a ready identification of the land. A corresponding entry should in each case be made on the nearest main sheet to draw attention to the detached plot.

- (d) On all Land Plans, whether made out under clause (a) or under clause (b), the position of the boundary of each class of land is to be determined by dimensions written on the plan; these dimensions to be sufficiently complete to enable such boundaries to be, at any time, readily ascertained or verified.

- (e) The names of villages to which the land belongs are, in each case, to be written on the plan alongside of the line indicating the village boundary. If the boundary line crosses the Railway line, the names are to be repeated on the other side of the Railway line, and the chainage of the crossing point noted.

- (f) When boundary marks have been erected for the demarcation of the land occupied by the Railway, the position and corresponding number of each detached boundary mark is to be shown on the Land Plans.

(25). The Land Plans are to be made up in sets for continuous portions of land, each set being complete for a revenue district or charge of a Collector or Deputy Commissioner (or length of Native State). On each end sheet (first and last) of every set of Land Plans, a sufficient portion of the continuation sheet of the next set should be repeated, to enable the two sheets to be connected or traced together, if required. For each set of Land Plans the sheets are to be numbered consecutively throughout, and the name of the Civil district (or Native State) to which the set belongs, is to be marked conspicuously on each sheet.

(26). For a Railway constructed by Government, the minimum number of sets of Land Plans required is two, viz., one for the Civil authorities and one for the Railway. For a Railway constructed by a Company, the minimum number of sets of Land Plans required is three, viz., one for the Civil authorities, one for the Railway, and one for the Consulting Engineer.

(27). Each set of Land Plans is to be signed by the officer immediately responsible for its preparation, and by the Chief Engineer of the Railway. In the case of land required for a line already opened, the Manager will also countersign the plans before sending them on.

(28). Land Plans are to be kept up to date either by adding to the existing plans or substituting new sheets as may be necessary. Each such addition or alteration is to be carefully checked by the officer in immediate charge of that portion of the Railway, and attested by his signature. It is to be understood that the Land Plans at any date must show a clear and accurate record of the land occupied by the Railway on that date.

(29). A complete series of Land Plans for the whole line is to be kept in the office of the Chief Engineer of the Railway.

Acquisition of Land—

(30). All arrangements for the acquisition of land required for the construction of Railway will be made by the local Civil officers.*

(31). To this end each Civil officer in charge of a district, in which land is required for Railway purposes, is to be furnished with particulars of such land, as follows:—

(a) A complete set of Land Plans prepared in accordance with the instructions given above.

(b) A complete set of Schedules prepared in the form given as Appendix B.

* This rule is not intended to prevent preliminary enquiries regarding the probable cost of land being made by the Railway officers direct from the owners.

I of (32). On receipt of sanction for the construction of the Railway, a statement containing the following information should at once be sent to the Secretary to the Local Government or Administration, with a request that the notification required under Section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act of 1870* may be inserted in the local official Gazette, and that the district Civil officers concerned may be instructed to arrange for the transfer of the land required :—

(a) The name of the Railway.

(b) A copy of the order of Government sanctioning the construction of the Railway.

(c) A brief general description of the route to be followed by the Railway, with the names of the more important villages or towns through or near which it is intended that the Railway shall pass.

(d) A list of the Civil districts in which land will be required for the purposes of the Railway, with the approximate area in acres of the land required in each.

(e) For each Civil district the name or description of the place or places at which the Land Plans for that district will be available for inspection by the public.

(33). With the statement above specified should also be sent, for the information of the Local Government or Administration, a general index plan to a scale of 1 mile to 1 inch, showing the route to be followed by the Railway.†

(34). On receipt of the information specified above, the Local Government or Administration will publish in the local official Gazette the notification required under the provisions of Section 6 of the Land Acquisition Act of 1870,† together with such statements as may be considered advisable under Section 3, clause 1, of the Land Acquisition (Mines) Act of 1885, and will instruct the local Civil officers to arrange for the acquisition of the land required, and its transfer to the Railway.

(35). When orders are received for the construction of the Railway, the land required should be properly marked out, unless this has already been done.

(36). Except so far as may be necessary for the proper survey or marking out of the land required, work must not be commenced or damage done, materials deposited, or any excavation or demolition put in hand until the land has been formally made over, or unless approval in writing has been obtained from the local Civil authorities.

(37). Where land required for Railway purposes forms part of a cantonment or camping ground, the Military authorities in the Quarter-Master General's Department should be consulted before steps are taken for the acquisition of such land. *

* Vide also G. R. No. 1978, dated 16th March 1893, entry 26, Part I.

(38). In the case of a Railway to be constructed by a Company, all arrangements with the Civil authorities (or with the Political officer for Native States) for the acquisition of the land required will be made through the Consulting Engineer, who will be responsible that the proper procedure is followed, and that the Land Plans and Schedules are drawn up in accordance with these rules. All such Land Plans and Schedules will be furnished by the Company to the Consulting Engineer in triplicate. The Consulting Engineer will countersign all three copies, and will then return one set to the Company and forward a second set to the Civil authorities, retaining the third set for record in his office.

Valuation and Payment —

(39). The valuation of the land and assessment of all claims and payment for the same will be made by the Civil authorities.†

(40). All land for Railway purposes, whether required temporarily or permanently, will be taken up in the first instance as for permanent occupation, and valued accordingly. It is to be understood that the distinction between 'Permanent' and 'Temporary' land or 'Class A' and 'Class B' land, is merely of the nature of a forecast showing what the disposition of the land will probably be on completion of the work.

(41). In the case of a Railway constructed by Government, or by a Company under the terms of whose contract land is divided into two classes 'Permanent' and 'Temporary,' the Railway will, in the first instance, be debited with the full cost of all land which may be acquired, and will afterwards be credited with the amount realised by the sale of such land as may be relinquished.

(42). In the case of a Railway constructed by a Company, by the terms of whose contract (or other arrangement with Government) land has to be taken up under special Classes A, B, C and D, as defined on pages 918—919, or under other conditions of a like nature, 'Class C' land will be acquired by Government and leased to the Company, the rent being fixed at 5 per cent. on the cost of the land, plus any Government revenue with which the land may be chargeable. An annual settlement of accounts connected with the re-sale of 'Class C' lands will be made between Government and the Company; the Company bearing any loss owing to diminished value and being credited with any gain arising from enhanced value.* Houses, trees, tanks, or other property, on land which is not provided free of charge, and for which special payment or compensation is necessary, will be paid for at once by the Railway Company. In the case of land provided free of charge, the materials, etc., derived from the 'clearance' of the surface (which then will be at the expense of Government), will be disposed of by the Revenue officers to the best advantage.

Land Relinquished—

(43). Land having been occupied for the purposes of a Railway, should, when no longer required, be made over to the local Civil authorities, who will arrange for its disposal.

Dealings with Native States—

(44). For land required in Native States the procedure laid down in these rules is to be adopted as far as applicable in every respect, the arrangements being made through the Political Officer.—(See also Appendix F.)

Demarcation of Land—

(45). The following rules for the demarcation of land have been laid down by the Government of India under Section 13 (a) of the Indian Railways Act of 1890†:—

(a). All land permanently occupied for the purposes of a Railway shall have its boundaries defined on the ground in such a manner as to enable such boundaries to be readily ascertained and identified.

(b). For this purpose the boundary of the Railway land may be defined by a continuous wall, fence, or ditch, or by detached marks, posts, or pillars.

(c). Where the boundary mark is continuous, the boundary of the Railway land is to be on the outer edge of the wall, fence, or ditch; that is to say, the wall, fence, or ditch will be situated wholly on Railway land.

(d). Where detached marks, such as isolated posts or pillars, are used, the boundary of the Railway land will pass through the centres of such marks. Between the marks the boundary will in each case be taken in a straight line from the centre of one mark to the centre of the next mark.

* This rule came into force in 1877, and does not apply to land for which, under the previous rules, an enhanced rent had been paid to allow for deterioration (see Govt. of India, P. W. Dept., Resolution No. 3755—60 R., dated 16th October 1877.)

LAND ACQUISITION.]

[PART V.]

(e) Detached marks are in no case to be at a greater distance apart (centre to centre) than one-eighth of a mile (660 feet). They are to be of a substantial character, not easily destroyed or moved by accident or mischief, and are to be of such size and form as to be readily found and recognized.

(f) Each detached boundary mark is to bear a number, and the position and corresponding number of each detached boundary mark is to be shown on the land plan.

(g) Where a fence, wall, or ditch is for convenience situated at some distance within the boundary, and does not mark the actual limit of the Railway land, it will be necessary that, in addition to such fence, wall, or ditch, the actual boundary of the Railway land shall be properly marked and defined in accordance with these rules.

(46). In the case of a Railway constructed by a Company, the expression 'land permanently occupied' is intended to include not only 'Class A' land, but also such 'Class B' and 'Class C' land as may be required for a considerable period. In the event of any 'Class B' or 'Class C' land enclosed by the boundary being afterwards relinquished, the boundary is to be shifted to mark the new limit

Appendix C.

RULES LAID DOWN IN 1861 FOR THE ACQUISITION OF LAND REQUIRED FOR RAILWAY PURPOSES BY THE OLD GUARANTEED COMPANIES:

See Government of India, Public Works Department,
Circular No. 55, dated 29th June 1861.

1. Land required for Railway purposes may be divided into four classes, A, B, C and D. First, Class A, land which a Railway Company receives free of charge, under the contract with the Government, for permanent occupation. Second, Class B, land also provided free of cost, but only for temporary occupation. Third, Class C, land which the Railway Company has to provide at its own cost. Fourth, Class D, land which does not come directly into the possession of the Railway Company at all.

2. Class A will comprise the land required for the permanent works of a Railway, including the road with its bridges, &c., and all stations, workshops, permanent store-houses and the like, necessary for the line when opened, and which under the contract is to be provided by Government free of cost to the Railway Companies. The occupation of this land by a Railway Company will be so far permanent that it will only cease when their contract is terminated or surrendered and the whole lapses to Government. It is all provided free of charge.

3. Class B will contain land essential for the execution of the permanent works of a Railway, but not required after the completion of the line in part or in whole. It also is provided free of charge; such is land for spoil-banks, for extra excavation to make banks, for river diversion, and for the storage of Railway material held in stock by the Railway Company, pending the construction of the line, or their despatch to the works.* The occupation of this class of land will be temporary. On its restoration to the Government—the proper time for which will be settled in each case between the Railway officers and the Consulting Engineer—it will be for the Revenue officers to dispose of it to the best advantage of Government.

4. Class C will contain the land which a Railway Company has to provide at its own cost. This is land which is required for the provision or preparation of materials; for purposes contingent on the actual execution of works on the line, or for other miscellaneous objects which the Government recognizes as falling legitimately within the scope of the Railway Company's operations, though not giving the Company a claim to the provision of land free of charge. As a Railway Company is bound to pay for the construction of all works out of the capital, receiving only from Government, without charge, the land on which the works stand, the provision of all materials, and the means of facilitating the execution of all works, are to be at the cost of the Railway Company<sup>(a)</sup>. It is proper to bear in mind, in fixing the rent, that this land will in part deteriorate by the use to which it is put, and in part will not so deteriorate. In all cases, however, it will be most convenient to deal with the land, in the first instance, in the same manner. It will be taken possession of by Government, and handed over to the Railway Company for occupation at a fair rental. When the necessity for occupation ceases, the land will be given up again to Government by the Railway Company, the proper time for this being determined, as under Class B, by the Railway officers and Consulting Engineers.

5. Class D will contain that land which, being required in consequence of the works of a Railway, still does not come directly into the occupation of the Railway Company; it will be provided free of charge. It will be exclusively land for roads; either new roads leading to railway stations, or to permanent store-yards or workshops detached from the main works, or diversions or changes of old roads made necessary by railway works.

6. Inconvenience is likely to arise if Railway Companies are permitted to hold land, on their own account, or otherwise than is above explained. By causing them to rent from the Government all land to which they are not entitled free, in the manner above explained, simplicity in the tenure of

(a) The following words were also in the original rules:—

"In this class, therefore, will fall all land for brick-making, for quarrying ballast, for houses for persons employed on the work, &c. So also land for houses for engine-drivers, and the like, on the line when opened, and for other similar purposes, will come under Class C."

But Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India thought that any particularization in the rule might raise questions as to the power of Government to alter or vary the terms of the contract (a power which the Government has no intention of claiming). It has therefore been thought best to give these words in a note simply for the guidance of the officers of Government and parties interested, as to the construction which Government puts on the contract in regard to certain points of frequent practical application.

<sup>1</sup> In the original rules the words "for roads to works in progress" here found place. They have now been struck out as calculated to mislead. It is clear a road may be required from a site used temporarily for storage of materials itself in Class B. This would carry the road itself into the same class. A road from a brick-field or quarry would be in the same category as the brick-field or quarry, viz., Class C. Whereas a road from a detached but permanent store-yard, although leading "to works in progress," would not the less come under Class D, should such road still be necessary after the completion of those particular works. Thus, generally, the circumstances of the tenure of land at the end of the road furthest from the Railway will decide the class into which the road itself shall be placed.

their property will be secured, which will be a matter of importance at a future time when the Railway may be transferred to Government. The determination of the value to be paid by the Government for any land not included in Class A, which might be held by a Railway Company, would certainly be, in such event, a great embarrassment.

7. Houses, trees, tanks, or other property on land, which is not provided free of charge, and for which special payment or compensation is necessary, will be paid for at once by the Railway Company. In the cases of land provided free of charge, the materials, &c., derived from the "clearance" of the surface, which then will be at the expense of Government, will be disposed of by the Revenue officers to the best advantage.

8. All land required for a line of Railway will be applied for in continuous portions: the plans will be drawn to a scale of 150 feet to the inch, and the measurements and areas will be recorded in accordance with the fiscal divisions of village estates or mouzahs, parganas, and zillahs, in a schedule, of which a form is annexed, showing in detail the several classes to which the land belongs.

9. The several classes of land will be coloured pink, yellow, purple, and green, respectively, in the plans, and the exact purpose to which each parcel of land is to be devoted will be noticed in the schedule.

10. Detached portions of land should be referred to some fixed point on one of the main sheets, with such distances and compass or other bearings as will enable the land to be identified at once. A corresponding entry should also be made on the main sheet to draw attention to the detached portion.

11. The general correctness of the plans and schedules of the Railway Engineers being attested by the Consulting Engineers to Government, the applications will be forwarded to and dealt with, as may be necessary, by the Revenue authorities under the orders of the Local Government. The Revenue officers are to be held strictly responsible for the regular adjustment by Railway Companies of all charges on account of land, to be determined in the manner above explained.

12. A complete set of Land Plans should be recorded in the Chief Engineer's Office of each Railway, and a copy forwarded to the Consulting Engineer to Government, by whom a duplicate will be given to the Revenue Board, which, in turn, will supply Collectors of districts with transcripts of parts included in their respective zillahs. When it may be found expedient, in order to expedite the making over of the land, to employ a special Land Commissioner for this duty, the Railway Engineers should supply an additional copy of the Land Plan for the use of the Land Commissioner.

13. The Consulting Engineer to Government and the local Revenue authorities will, respectively, be held responsible for the punctual fulfilment of the foregoing orders in their several departments, and for the careful record of plans in their respective offices.

14. All contemplated changes in the land in possession of a Railway Company should be promptly reported by the Railway Agent to the Consulting Engineer to Government, who will notify the same to the Local Government. It will be for the latter to see that the necessary steps are taken by the Revenue authorities for entering such changes in their records, and for carrying out all further proceedings that are requisite on such an occurrence.

15. It will be necessary for the Local Government to see that a correct register and record of title of all Railway lands is maintained; for the whole of such lands will one day revert to the Crown: also that all rents or payment for clearances, &c., chargeable in behalf of Government against the Railway Company, are duly realized.

16. It is essential that there should be for each Railway one set of plans, in a regular sequence, to show all the land; and that the plans of each Railway Company's estate, after they have once been prepared, should constantly be corrected and always be maintained complete.

AMENDMENT OF RULES RELATING TO ADJUSTMENT OF ACCOUNTS CONNECTED WITH "C CLASS" LANDS.*

SEE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA, PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT RESOLUTION NOS. 3755—60 R., DATED 16TH OCTOBER 1877.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letters Nos. 4645 and 4646, dated the 22nd December 1871, on the subject of the adjustment of the rent and sale-proceeds of Railway class C lands, and to say that the Governor General in Council concurs in the proposals contained in your letter to the Board of Revenue, No. 3976, dated 14th October 1871, viz., that an annual settlement should be made with Railway Companies of all accounts connected with the re-sale of C lands, the net loss being charged against the Companies, on condition that this rule shall apply to the case of all lands re-sold whenever they may have been taken up, unless (under paragraph 5 of the Public Works Department Circular No. 55 of 1861) a specially high rent has been charged to meet the probable loss by deterioration. The rent of C lands will in future be in all cases fixed at the rate of 5 per cent. on the capital expended, plus any Government revenue with which the land may be chargeable.

Appendix D.

LAND REQUIRED FOR DWELLING-HOUSES FOR EMPLOYE'S OF, A RAILWAY COMPANY TO BE PAID FOR AS UNDER 'CLASS C.'

Government of India, Public Works Department, Circular No. 16, dated 6th April 1861.

The following extract of orders, passed by the Governor General in Council on a reference from Madras, is circulated for guidance in cases where application may be made by Railway officers for land to build dwelling-houses on, or where the Railway officers propose to build such dwelling-houses on land provided at the cost of the State. It will be seen that, whatever may have been admitted in some such cases hitherto, no claim should in future be recognized for the provision of land for such dwelling-houses at the cost of the State.

Extract from letter to Secretary to Government of Madras.

"I am directed to state in reply that the Government of India cannot admit that dwelling-houses for Engine Drivers or Station Masters, and still less for general workmen, are 'conveniences' under terms of the contract. This sort of accommodation being given or refused is merely a question of wages."

* This amends paragraph 4 of Public Works Department Circular No. 5 dated 29th June 1861, above.

Appendix E.

SPECIAL RULES ISSUED AFTER CONSIDERATION OF THE CONTRACT OF JANUARY 1880, ENTERED INTO BETWEEN THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL AND THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY COMPANY.

See Government of India, Public Works Department No. 534 R. C., dated 9th June 1885.

All distinctions as to classes of land in the possession of the East Indian Railway Company, that existed prior to the 1st of January 1880, shall cease from that date.

2. From and after the 1st January 1880, the East Indian Railway Company, when taking up land, shall pay the value of land, including cost of clearances and compensation, to owners and occupiers, plus the capitalised value of the abatement of land revenue and the expenditure necessary in the different processes required in the taking up of the land.

3. The capitalised value of the abatement of land revenue is the amount which, invested in 4 per cent. Government securities, at the market rate of the day, will produce interest equal to the abatement.

4. If the land required for the East Indian Railway Company be the property of the State, its value shall be the value as appraised by the Revenue authorities at the time of its transfer to the undertaking, inclusive of incidental expenditure.

5. All lands required under these rules shall be taken up through the principal Revenue officer of the district within which such lands are situated. If the land be the property of private individuals, payments shall be made for it to its owners in the manner described in Rules 4 and 5 of Chapter 6 of the Civil Account Code. If the land be the property of the State, the principal Revenue officer of the district aforesaid shall complete his valuation and award, and shall communicate the same to the Provincial Accountant General or Comptroller, as the case may be, for recovery from the East Indian Railway Company.

6. The amounts declared recoverable from the East Indian Railway Company in respect of lands taken up under these rules, shall be adjusted according to Rule 6, Chapter 62, of the Civil Account Code.

PROCEDURE TO BE FOLLOWED IN THE ACQUISITION OF LAND IN NATIVE STATES REQUIRED FOR QUARRYING FOR THE PURPOSES OF A RAILWAY.

Government of India, Public Works Department, Circular No. XXVIII Railway, dated 7th November 1882.

It having been brought to the notice of His Excellency the Governor General in Council that it not unfrequently happens that local Railway officers obtain access to land in Native States for quarrying and other purposes of the like nature, without reference to the Native States concerned, and that the procedure often gives rise to misunderstandings as to the terms on which such land is to be held and used by the Railway, His Excellency in Council is pleased to direct that in future no quarry is to be opened outside the limits of the land made over to the Railway in any Native State, until the permission of the Native State or Darbár concerned shall have been obtained by local Railway Officers through the Political officer attached to the State. In short, the procedure followed in connection with the acquisition of land in British territory should be observed, except that, instead of the land being acquired under the Land Acquisition Act. (Act X of 1870), it will have to be obtained through the Political officer on such terms as may be agreed upon with the Darbár after the submission of the necessary land plans.

(G. I., P. W. D., No. VI (Railway), dated 7th July 1892; vide G. R. No. 8379, dated 25th October 1892.)

7. (1) The scales for land plans laid down in paragraph 22 of the revised rules relating to the acquisition of land prescribed in Government of India Circular No. VI (Railway), dated 7th July 1892, are intended to apply only to new branches or lines of Railway, and not to existing lines on which a different scale has been in force.

(2). Under the procedure laid down in paragraphs 30 to 38 of the revised rules referred to, all land should be acquired through the Civil authorities, with whom it rests to decide whether any land shall be acquired by negotiation, or whether the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act should be resorted to.

(3). All land plans should be countersigned by the Consulting Engineer after he has approved of the proposals for acquiring the land and before their transmission to the Civil authorities, vide paragraph 11 of Appendix C to the revised rules above quoted. All subsequent alterations in the plans that may have become necessary should also be duly authenticated in any convenient and sufficient way—vide paragraph 28 of the revised rules.

(4). The Government of Bombay have not considered it necessary hitherto to issue any notification under Section 4 of the Land Acquisition Act, to enable trial surveys to be undertaken, but the district Civil and Political officers have always been instructed to render any assistance in their power. Cases which have arisen in other parts of India have shown the expediency of conforming to the law, and of issuing notifications under Section 4 of the Act before entering upon lands for the purpose of surveys, &c., and without such notifications officers employed upon surveys or reconnaissances are liable to be treated as trespassers. At the same time the Government of India have no wish to interfere with the discretion of Local Governments in the matter.

(G. I., P. W. D., No. 629-R. O., dated 17th June 1893; vide G. R. No. 5405, dated 27th July 1893.)

PART VI.—ACQUISITION OF LANDS IN NATIVE STATES.

1. (1) The following principles which are generally maintained by the Government of India in dealing with acquisitions of land from Native States, should be ordinarily followed in determining the form of compensation for lands acquired from such States:—

(2). If the work under construction is not only executed at the cost of British revenues, but is also directly beneficial to the Native State, as in the case of a Railway, the Government of India expect that the land will be given free of cost, together with full jurisdiction, both Civil and Criminal, over it. Where, however, the work will only benefit British subjects and where compensation must be paid for land acquired from a Native State it is a rule to pay for the value of the land in a lump sum, and not by exchange of other lands. In fixing the lump sum it is usual to calculate the value at twenty times the assessment which would be levied on similar lands in British territory. To this last rule there must necessarily be exceptions, but the principle of paying the value in a lump sum is one which it is desirable to maintain both for Financial and Political reasons.

(G. I., For. Dept., Nos. 1117-I., dated 9th April 1885, and 1289-T., dated 1st April 1888; vide G. Rs. Nos. 4149, dated 23rd May 1885, and 2402, dated 21st April 1888.)

2. Certain lands having been acquired in the jághir of a Native Chief for a public purpose, and the lump sum due by Government having been determined; the payment was commuted by the Local Government into a perpetual remission of a portion of the tribute payable by the Chief. In calculating the amount of remission, the annual value of the cash payment due by Government was estimated at 5 per cent. It was observed by the Government of India that in thus estimating the interest due by Government on the capital sum, and in commuting a lump payment into a perpetual charge on the Indian Revenues, the Local Government exercised an authority which required the sanction of the Government of India in the Financial Department. In addition to this it appeared to the Government of India that the proceedings of the Local Government involved also a modification of a Treaty payment which required a reference to the Foreign Department. (G. I., For. Dept., No. 1117-I., dated 9th April 1885; vide G. R. No. 4149, dated 23rd May 1885.)

PART VII.—COMPENSATION FOR INÁM AND MIRÁ'S LANDS, AND LANDS HELD UNDER SURVEY SETTLEMENT.

1. The principles upon which compensation should be offered for inám lands taken up for public purposes have been laid down in Government Resolution No. 4483*, dated 31st December 1858. It was not intended to give Inámdárs ten years' survey rental in addition to lands in exchange elsewhere; nor on the other hand would it have been just to treat the Inámdár occupant of his own land in the same manner as the Inámdár who has a right to the assessment only. (G. R. No. 1085, dated 17th March 1860.)

2. Holdings in inám are compensated by twenty years' purchase, including all rights. To give twenty years' compensation for mirás, which does not, like inám, convey the right to the assessment, seems unreasonable. On the other hand, to give holders in mirás twenty years' purchase, while holders of more than five years under the Survey Settlement receive only five years' purchase, is to raise the value of the former most unduly, and to depreciate the value of the latter most unfairly. The utmost that need be allowed to mirás holdings is fifteen years' purchase, and this should be the rule in future settlements. With regard to holders under the Survey Settlement it has been decided by the Resolution of 31st December 1858 that the offer should vary from 5 to 10 years, but on reconsideration the correctness of the principle on which the Resolution was passed is open to question, for, as the survey leases are renewable, a man's claim becomes greater the longer he occupies; and as improvements such as wells, &c., are compensated for separately, the length of occupancy should rather be taken as a test according to which the rate of compensation should be increased. Accordingly, in supersession of former orders, the following should be the ordinary rule, leaving the Collectors discretion to deal specially with special cases. All holders under the Survey Settlement for more than five years, but less than ten years, to receive five years' purchase. For more than ten, but less than fifteen years, to receive ten years' purchase. Holders for upwards of fifteen years to receive fifteen years' purchase, the same as will in future be offered to Mirásdárs. (G. R. No. 2280, dated 23rd June 1860.)

3. (1) As regards the reduction of the judi in cases in which inám lands other than service inám lands are taken up or acquired for a public purpose, the following principles should be adopted:—

(a) The Inámdár is owner of the entire profits of the land taken up, except the judi. If he receives compensation equal to the capitalized entire profits, he is entitled to no reduction of the judi thereon.

(b) If he receives compensation equal to the capitalized profits less the judi thereon, he is entitled to a reduction equal to the judi thereon.

PART VII.]

[LAND ACQUISITION.

(c) If he gives up the land without compensation he is no longer liable for the judi thereon, and is entitled to a reduction equal to the judi thereon.

(d) In the cases of (b) and (c), Government would have a claim to receive the judi on the land or its capitalized value from the party to whom the land is transferred.

(e) In any case, Government should clearly not be mulcted in the portion of the assessment which they did not receive and which belonged to the Inámdár.

(2). The case of service lands is different. There the assessment is what Government allowed to the holder in return for service, and it reverts to Government when he relinquishes the land. (G. R. No. 4547, dated 6th June 1885.)

PART VIII.—INTERPRETATIONS AND LEGAL OPINIONS.

1. The following opinion of the Advocate General, Calcutta, dated 11th December 1867, which was passed when Act VI of 1857 was in force, was forwarded to all Collectors and Commissioners for information :—

"It is quite settled with regard to the compulsory taking of land by Railway Companies at Home that the service of the notice constitutes a binding contract. It is equally clear that, under the Indian Act, Government cannot decline to take the land after the Collector has made an award or directed a reference; the reason being (as I take it) that as soon as the award is made, or reference directed, all voluntary agreement between the parties as to the terms of purchase is at an end. Whether the earlier date, i. e., that of the issue of the declaration under Section 2, is that at which Government must be considered to become conclusively bound, is a point on which, notwithstanding the English cases, I have long entertained great doubt.

"The conclusion, however, to which I have come is that the taking of the land becomes compulsory on the issue of the declaration. I do not think Section 5 could be construed to mean that after the Collector on the one side, and the owner on the other, had agreed to a price (an agreement by which the owner would certainly be bound) the Collector could rescind the agreement; at any rate, if he could, it would only be in order that the price should be settled by arbitration. And if Government are under the 5th Section bound to do one thing or the other, they must be so bound by something precedent, which can only be the issue of the declaration."

(G. I., H. D., No. 1571, dated 19th December 1867; vide G. R. No. 71, dated 8th January 1868.)

2. A perusal of Sections 8 and 9 of the Land Acquisition Act shows clearly that its provisions are intended to apply to land of which the persons entitled thereto are in possession. The Legislature did not contemplate that any Department of Government would enter upon land unauthorizedly and retain possession as a trespasser; and then afterwards seek to acquire a legal title thereto; and the Act, of course, makes no provision for such a case. Nevertheless there is no legal objection to measures being subsequently taken for acquiring such land under the Act. If it is possible, it would be expedient that possession should be restored to the rightful holders before such measures are set on foot, but this is not indispensable. In any case the acquisition will count only from the date on which the Collector lawfully takes possession under Section 16 or 17 of the Act. The Act does not empower the Collector or other officer when making an award of compensation under it to settle damages for trespass previous to the legal acquisition of the land. For this, unless the Collector and the parties can come to terms separately, an action will lie against Government. (L. R. No. 1018, dated 30th July 1883; vide G. Rs. Nos. 5879, dated 8th August 1883, and 441 dated 17th January 1884.)

Collectors for information with reference to the opinions of that officer (No. 1018 of 1883) given above:—

“From the 2nd paragraph of the Legal Remembrancer’s memorandum No. 1018 of the 30th July 1883, it appears that the Hon’ble Mr. Naylor held that under certain circumstances a good title could be secured to Government under the Land Acquisition Act notwithstanding the previous illegal occupation of land by Government.

“2. In the present case there is nothing to show that Government ever took possession illegally of the land in dispute at present occupied by the P...market. It seems merely to have assigned its interest, such as it might be, to the Municipality, and that body took possession and built on the ground without regard to the rights of T. M. Under these circumstances, as the land is not in the possession of Government at present, I can see no legal objection in the wording of the Land Acquisition Act to its acquisition for a public purpose notwithstanding that purpose may be its use by the Municipality as a market.

“3. Although the Municipality has heretofore been in occupation of the land as a trespasser, it seems to me competent to Government, if it thinks fit, now to remedy the defect of title by taking up the land for its use in the manner proposed, subject, of course, to the payment by it of such compensation as may be awarded to T. M. or any other claimant. Had Government itself been the trespasser, possibly the case might have been different, but this is a point on which I need express no opinion as it does not arise.”

4. The following opinion was recorded by the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs on the question whether a reference under the Land Acquisition Act can be made after possession has been taken:—

“(1) No definite ruling of any authority can be obtained on the subject without a judicial decision. Any opinion I might form on the subject would be unsafe as a guide for future action, and the only value of my remarks could have would be that of arguments which might be submitted to the consideration of the Courts.

“(2) It is unquestionably irregular and illegal to take possession, in the absence of an agreement, before reference to the Courts; unless a direction to do so has been given by Government under Section 17 of the Act. Possession so taken would be mere trespass, and Section 16 would not operate to vest the land so improperly taken, in Government.

“(3) But as the land does not vest in Government, and the title of the prior owner still subsists, it might still be argued that it is open to Government to acquire it, although by title thus subsequently acquired, Government could not validate the action previously taken or avoid liability for damages for the misfeasance or trespass up to the date of acquisition.

“(4) The possession previously taken is, it might be urged; a mere nullity so far as the rights of Government are concerned, and no acquisition has been made. The land is in the possession of the Collector, but has not vested in Government. It is therefore still open to Government to acquire it. The illegal act of the Collector or other officer does not deprive Government of this power, but only gives rise to a liability in respect of the previous illegal occupation.

“(5) As I have already observed, however, this is a matter for the Courts to decide, and all I can do is to suggest arguments and not to submit a course of action to be relied on as curing irregularities in procedure.

"(6) I think the opinions attached to Government Resolution No. 223 of 11th January 1888 and No. 441 of 17th January 1884, are not irreconcilable with the position I have suggested. Government cannot convert by subsequent acquisition the past illegal occupation of their officers into a legal holding. But not having acquired, I think it is still open to them to acquire under the Act. And as immediate possession in the instance under reference is necessary, I think an order under Section 17 directing the Collector to take such possession is advisable.

"(7) It is not stated in the papers whether any declaration has yet issued under Section 6. Apparently it has not. I think that might now be done, and the reference to the Court made in due form.

"(8) The liability for damages in respect of the previous illegal occupation would still subsist, but I think they would be assessed at a very inconsiderable sum, as no serious injury can be sustained by the occupation if the acquisition is legally completed."

5. Section 17* of Act X of 1870 authorizes the Collector, if so directed by Government, to take possession before reference or award of (1) waste or (2) arable land only. The attention of Collectors is drawn to this limitation which should not be overlooked. (G. R. No. 2902, dated 28th April 1890.)

* Cf. Section 17 (1) of Act I of 1894.

6. Section 17 of the Land Acquisition Act was intended to limit the power of Government to direct the taking of immediate possession to the cases of lands which were either wholly unoccupied (waste) or else capable of being used for cultivation only (arable). Expressio unius est exclusio alterius, and the Legislature evidently contemplated that no summary dispossession should be allowed when there were buildings used as dwellings or for the custody of property. It was clearly thought undesirable that people should be turned out of their houses or have their goods disturbed without notice sufficient to give them time to obtain other accommodation. (L. R. No. 646, dated 7th June 1890; vide G. R. No. 4112, dated 12th idem.)

7. It is not optional with Government or with the officer appointed to acquire land for a canal to proceed under the Irrigation Act, when the Land Acquisition Act is the enactment properly applicable. The Irrigation Act provides only for the award of compensation "in respect of any substantial damage caused by the exercise of any of the powers conferred by that Act" (vide Section 31); and Sections 38 and 39 apply to all such claims for compensation, excepting claims of the nature specially provided for in Sections 34 and 35. The acquisition of land for canal purposes is not made in the exercise of any power conferred by the Irrigation Act. (L. R. No. 590, dated 5th May 1883; vide G. R. No. 4105, dated 30th idem.)

8. The declaration required by the Land Acquisition Act cannot properly be made with reference to any lands which it is intended to reconvey to individual persons for the erection of buildings for private occupation, as this use does not come under the definition of a public purpose. The language of the Act is wide, but its provisions authorize only the taking up of lands which it is intended afterwards to set apart for the use of the public. (G. R. No. 2337, dated 12th June 1869.)*

9. The Land Acquisition Act cannot be used to acquire land for private residences. (G. Rs. Nos. 8202, dated 17th October 1884, and 5531, dated 8th July 1885.)*

Act I of 1894.

10. When the owner of property makes known his desire under Section 55† of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, there ought to be a fresh notification under Section 6 concerning the entire property, if Government determine to take up the whole. The words of Section 55 are "the provisions of this Act shall not be put in force for the purpose, &c.," and the issue of a notification under Section 6 is one of the provisions of the Act. (L. R. No. 478, dated 13th April 1886; vide G. R. No. 3508, dated 14th May 1886.)

11. A person who, when land is being acquired under the Land Acquisition Act, says that the land is his, but puts in no claim for compensation for it, surrenders any right he may have in the land and is no longer 'a person making a claim in respect thereof.' The Collector, without deciding upon the merits of such person's alleged title, should proceed with the enquiry as if that person had not appeared at all. (L. R. No. 1169, dated 7th September 1886; vide G. R. No. 6971, dated 30th idem.)

12. (1). All property is held subject to the general laws of the State, and a contract cannot set them aside. The power vested in the State of compulsory acquisition of land for public purposes, is part of the right known to American jurists as "Eminent Domain," which Wharton defines in his Law Lexicon as "the right which a Government retains over the estates of individuals to resume them for public use" (vide also Brice on Ultra Vires, passim). The Legislature does not exempt any tenure whatsoever from this liability to resumption on compensation given which is a liability necessarily incident to all tenures in all civilized societies.

13. (1). Payment of compensation for land taken up under the Land Acquisition Act is not consideration on account of the creation, declaration, assignment, limitation or extinction of a right, title or interest. The payee's right, title and interest are extinguished by the operation of the law, and the payment is not consideration for the extinction of title, but compensation fixed by an award for losses of various kinds sustained in consequence of the compulsory acquisition. The title is extinguished or assigned, not because of the payment received, but because of the exercise of statutory powers. A receipt on payment, if taken, would, without registration, be evidence admissible to prove the satisfaction of all claims between the parties, and the actual payment of money is a fact always susceptible of proof by oral evidence without production of a written or registered acknowledgment. No document or registration therefore is necessary.

(2). The award evidences the amount of compensation. The title is extinguished on the making of the award or reference to the Court (if all the preliminary conditions have been observed). The payment of the money not being the ground on which the title has vested in Government, no acknowledgment of its receipt requires registration.

14. Section* 56 of the Land Acquisition Act (X of 1870) puts Municipalities and Companies upon an equality in the matter of charges, and Municipalities can be fairly charged with the pay of surveyors employed in measuring lands acquired for municipal purposes under the Land Acquisition Act. (G. R. No. 9009, dated 17th December 1890.)

50 (1) of

15. (1). A distinction is to be drawn between lands acquired by amicable contract and lands taken by compulsory powers.

(2). The ownership of lands obtained by private contract for the general purposes of an undertaking depends entirely upon the contract entered into or the conveyance made so far, that is, as the grantor is concerned. But the Municipality hold all property of whatever nature or kind soever which may become vested in them as trustees for the purposes of the Act (Section 17, Bombay VI of 1873), and would be precluded from giving it away in such a manner as to deprive the interests committed to their charge of all benefit therefrom.

(3). The sanction of the Commissioner would be necessary to the validity of any alienation for a term exceeding seven years, made subsequent to the coming into force of Bombay Act II of 1884.

(4). But if the transfer by the Municipality took place before such sanction was necessary or after it was obtained, then the sale rent-free of the land so acquired, if it were surplus land not required for the special purposes of the Municipality, would not be open to objection. For corporations, though they can acquire lands only in such amounts as may reasonably be required for carrying out the object of their creation, may, if they have bonâ-fide acquired too much, utilize the surplus corporate interests, and

the proceedings of corporations for public purposes in this respect will be scanned much less strictly than in the case of corporations acquiring for their own special benefit.

(5). It does not necessarily follow that to capitalize rental in an out and out sale would be less advantageous to the Municipality than to reserve a uniform rent.

(6). The value of the exemption would in such case probably enter into the price realized.

(7). But with lands acquired by compulsory powers conferred by statute the case seems to be somewhat different. Brice says: "If lands be taken compulsorily, the rights as to ownership of the corporation and of the other parties will depend upon the conveyance and the Acts of Parliament giving the compulsory powers read together."

(8). The Land Acquisition Act contemplates the exercise of compulsory powers of acquisition for public purposes only. It is, therefore, ultra vires for a Municipality to devote to the private uses of individuals land acquired compulsorily for public purposes.

(9). In the case noted in the margin, Pollock, C.B., speaking of a Parliamentary corporation, said: "It is a corporation merely for the purposes for which it is established by Act of Parliament, and it has no existence for any other purpose. Whatever is done beyond that purpose is ultra vires and void," and Channell, B., said: "The corporation was called into existence for a particular purpose and had no capacity to take or make a grant for all purposes."

(10). But the Courts will put a reasonable and business-like construction upon the term "purposes" and therefore they will not interfere to restrain a corporation from dealing with its lands unless it is clearly shown to be inconsistent with the conditions for and upon which they were acquired.

(11). No corporation may use its compulsory powers for any purposes whatever other than those expressly set forth in its constituting instruments or necessarily deducible therefrom, but "a corporation

carefully and bonâ fide exercising its privileges is not liable for damage arising thereby.

(12). The constating instruments in the case of a Municipality acquiring land compulsorily are of course the Bombay District Municipal Acts (Bombay VI of 1873 and II of 1884) and the Land Acquisition Act, and under these Acts the powers are conferred for public purposes and more especially for the public health, convenience and safety of the residents in the municipal area. It would therefore, I submit, be improper and illegal for a Municipality to invest Municipal Funds in the purchase of house sites with a view to speculative profits on resale. But if a Municipality had by bond fide miscalculation acquired more land than it required for public or municipal purposes, there would be no objection to its disposing of the surplus with the proper sanction for the general benefit of the Municipal Funds. It seems that a wide and liberal construction will be put upon the powers vested in bodies such as Local Government Boards, Municipal Corporations, &c., whose duties are the accomplishment of public improvements. * * * In order to avoid taxing the public there may well be permission granted to a corporation to take more land than is actually necessary for the purpose of making certain specified improvements, and by a sale of the superfluous land rendered more valuable by the improvements themselves, to raise funds for the execution of a great public work. This may be admitted, but it only amounts to this, that bodies entrusted with powers for the public benefit will, like persons having analogous powers for their own advantage, under ordinary circumstances, be deemed the proper and only judges of the best method of utilizing such powers for the end designed.

(13). In Galloway v. Mayor and Commonalty of London (1 H. of L. 34) the Lord Chancellor Lord Cranworth said: "The principle is this, that when persons embarking in great undertakings, for the accomplishment of which those engaged in them have received authority from the Legislature to take compulsorily the lands of others, making to the latter proper compensation, the persons so authorized cannot be allowed to exercise the powers conferred on them for any collateral object, that is, for any purposes except those for which the Legislature has invested them with extraordinary powers." "The Courts should prevent them, when the Legislature has given them power to interfere with private property for one purpose, from using that power for another." But further on Lord Cranworth drew a distinction between the case of a corporation for profit, such as a Railway Company, "when the Legislature has no concern with the question as to how the persons embarking in the undertaking are to obtain funds to pay for the construction of the Railway," and the case of a Municipal Corporation undertaking improvements. As to the latter case he observed: "When they have made a new or widened an old street, they will necessarily have incurred a very great expense for which they can get no return. The new or improved street is dedicated to the public and, unlike the Railway, yields no profit to those by whom it has been made," and "to meet this difficulty" the words of the Legislature were liberally construed as impliedly authorizing the taking of more land than might be absolutely necessary to effect the desired improvements, and as enabling "corporations to reimburse themselves" by sale of the surplus property increased in value by the improvements made.

(14). The doctrine of ultra vires supposes that a corporation acquires property for its own use, neither more nor less than it needs, with the intention of utilizing the same by its own agents, and that it does not ab initio propose to transfer such property to others. But "a corporation may temporarily let off or transfer to third parties such part of its estates or assets as it is unable, from special circumstances, to make an immediate advantageous use of," and may sell such surplus property or utilize it otherwise for any purpose not outside its powers unless expressly restricted therefrom.

(15). A Municipality cannot sell land vested in it without sanction from the Commissioner (Section 15, Bombay II, 1884). If that sanction be accorded, there is no restriction in the Acts to prevent them from making the transfer rent-free.

(16). That in ordinary cases of land belonging to Government the sanction of the Government of India is necessary to a rent-free transfer in perpetuity, does not appear to me to affect the rights or powers of a Municipality to deal with their surplus lands in the way that is really most beneficial for the interests of the Municipality. That rule refers only to land which is at the disposal of Government and which is not the property of individuals or of aggregates of persons legally capable of holding property, and is not a restriction operating on the powers of such individuals or such aggregates over property vested in them.

(17). It is of course, however, the duty of the Municipality in such transactions to have due regard to the permanent interests of the Municipal Fund. But if they do not neglect that duty, and if by an out and out sale they can realize as much as by a lease reserving a yearly rent, it does not appear that anything beyond the necessary sanction of the Commissioner would be wanting to validate such transfer.

16. The following legal opinions were communicated by Government to all Collectors and Commissioners for information :—

"With reference to the acquisition proposed in the accompaniments to Government memorandum No. 9027 of 17th December 1890, I have the honour to submit my opinion as follows.

"(2). I think there is no objection to the acquisition by Government of land which has merely been assigned as a wage fund from which the performance of certain religious services may be remunerated, if other adequate provision is made for such remuneration.

"(3). The power of Government would no doubt be open to question to make such acquisition if the land itself had been dedicated to religious uses, as for instance, if it had become wakf by conversion into a graveyard, or as the site or precincts of a mosque, in respect of which as res religiosa, or res sacra, the right of the State to exercise its power of eminent domain might be held to be excluded.

"(4). But when land is held merely as a source from which services are to be compensated, the dedication to religious uses extends virtually to the marketable value of the property only, and if on the requisition of the State that is replaced in another form, so as to fulfil the purposes of the trust on which it was held, I do not think the principle which renders religious endowments inalienable would be infringed.

"(5). I am, however, unable to find any authorities on the point, and if Government consider it open to doubt and of sufficient importance, the opinion of the Advocate General might perhaps be taken.

"(6). The land in question has probably been held on a tenure of successive life estates and the corpus of the compensation, whatever form it may take, should, I think, be secured as the Collector suggests from alienation by incumbents for the time being.

"(7). If there is any objection to the permanent alienation of the land in question, I would submit that it might be acquired temporarily under Section 43 * of Act X of 1870. Bombay Act VI of 1873, Section 23, contemplates the temporary as well as permanent acquisition of land by Government on behalf of a municipality. There can be no doubt as to the power of the holder to alienate his own interest in the land which furnishes his remuneration, and the three years for which temporary acquisition may be made under Section 43 of Act X of 1870 is not likely to exceed the holder's life interest.

"(8). It might be advisable to insert in the notification after the words 'Abu Ahmed Mawlavi Yar Mahomed' some such words as the following 'as the source from which the religious services to be performed by him are remunerated'."

"With reference to memorandum No. 369 of 1891 of the Revenue Department, dated January 16th, 1891, and desiring my opinion as to the acquisition by Government under Act X of 1870 of land at Dhulja said to have been appropriated or assigned for the remuneration of certain Mahomedan religious services, I am of opinion as follows:—

"(2). I see no reason whatever to doubt the authority of Government to acquire this land under Act X of 1870, whether it has been merely appropriated or assigned for such remuneration, or has actually become wakf or religious property. I am unable to concur in the view expressed by the Acting Legal Remembrancer in his letter No. 1902 of 1890, paragraph 3, that the right of the State to acquire the latter class of land may be held to be excluded. I know of no exception to the authority of Government to acquire land under Act X of 1870 whether or not such land be alienable or inalienable as between private persons; nor do I see why the doctrine of 'eminent domain' (which it is not necessary to resort to) should not apply to property so inalienable; vide Vattel's Law of Nations (1834), page 111. Practically this doctrine has in modern times been superseded by Statutory enactments. In England churchyards have been not unfrequently acquired under the Land Clauses Act and similar statutes, vide Hilcoat v. the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, 10 C. B. 327, and Stebbing v. Metropolitan Board of Works, 6 L. R. Q. B., 37.

"(3). No doubt it will be incumbent on those charged with the acquisition of such land to take due care that the purchase money be duly applied for the purposes to which the land to be acquired was itself devoted."

LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.

PART I.—RECRUITMENT.

1. The Secretary of State has no objection to act in special cases in the spirit of the following proposals made by the Government of India in their Despatch No. 10, dated 1st September 1883; but he does not consider it advisable to lay down any such general rule as is contained in the beginning of clause 2, or to make provision other than with reference to the probable requirements of the Agricultural Departments. In other words, while refusing to assent to the suggestion as to the service generally, he is willing to grant facilities for the study of agriculture in individual cases, so as to provide a body of trained officers from whom, as occasion required, the staff of the Agricultural Departments might be recruited. The Local Governments should submit special recommendations whenever they deem it for the good of the service that any particular officer should avail himself of the proposed opportunities for agricultural study in Europe. Such recommendation should be made only with reference to the prospective demands of the Agricultural Department, and the Secretary of State will then deal with each case on its merits:—

- (1) That the rule, which restricts furlough to officers who have served at least eight years in India, be so far relaxed as to allow a Local Government to select, for the contemplated training, any officer of not less than five years' active service who is willing to avail himself of furlough. It seems desirable that the training should be given at an early period of an officer's career, in order that he may have fuller opportunities of turning it to practical advantage hereafter in India. If the selection be confined to officers of eight years' standing and over, the field of choice is reduced, and the selected officers may not improbably profit less from the training than they would have done had it been given at an earlier age.
  - (2) That each Local Government should be authorized to select one officer every two years and the minor administrations one every four or five years, within the prescribed limits of service. The officers so selected would be considered to be placed on furlough to England on ordinary furlough allowances and would be required to proceed to some suitable college in England, and there go through a complete course of study in agriculture. As the course at such institutions appears usually to last for two years, it would be necessary to grant furlough to this amount to every selected officer, even though it might not be wholly due to him under the ordinary rules, and even though the officer may not have rendered three years' continuous service according to the definition of the phrase "continuous service" in the Codes of the Financial Department. We propose that any officer who succeeds in obtaining a diploma or equivalent certificate of competence should be re-imbursed his college fees and be allowed to count one year of the course as service for pension. We would not grant these concessions to any officer who fails to acquit himself with credit at the institution to which he is deputed. The selection in India would of course be confined to officers who have already shown practical application for and interest in agriculture, and the training would naturally qualify them for employment in the Agricultural Department. But we would have it clearly understood that the attainment of a diploma or certificate would not give the holder any specific claim to employment of this description on his return to India, as it would be undesirable to fetter in this way the discretion of the Local Governments. Whether or not the officer be eventually employed as a Director or Assistant Director of Agriculture, the training would generally be useful to him in any executive capacity, and to the State it would be well worth the moderate inducements which we propose to offer.

(S. of S. Nos. 137 (Pub.), dated 13th December 1883, and 53 (Rev.), dated 10th July 1884, and G. I., R. & A., Nos. 38-A., dated 13th March 1884, and 100-A., dated 27th August 1884; vide G. Rs. Nos. 2778, dated 2nd April 1884, and 7425, dated 17th September 1884.)

2. Great care should be exercised in the selection of officers to undergo an agricultural training in England. No officer should be selected who is not considered to have a special aptitude for the duties required in the Agricultural Department.

The necessity for confining the number of recommendations within reasonable limits should also not be overlooked. The object of the training is to provide a body of trained officers from whom, as occasion may require, the staff of the Agricultural Department may be recruited.

No officer who does not complete the agricultural course and receive a diploma will be entitled to the privileges offered; and it is not contemplated that every officer after obtaining the diploma of Cirencester College should on his return to India be enabled to claim, as a right, an appointment in the Agricultural Department.

(S. of S. No. 53 (Rev.), dated 10th July 1884, and G. I., R. & A., No. 100-A., dated 27th August 1884; vide G. R. No. 7425, dated 17th September 1884.)

3. The diploma of the Downton College of Agriculture may be accepted as of equal value to that of the Royal Agricultural College at Cirencester for the purpose of Government patronage in regard to Indian agricultural students. (G. I., R. & A., No. 44A-91-2, dated 7th May 1888; vide G. R. No. 3802, dated 11th June 1888.)

LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.] [PART II.

PART II.—SALARY, FUNCTIONS AND DUTIES OF THE DIRECTOR.

1. The office of Director* of Agriculture is one of observation and experiment, and it is not expedient to begin by attempting to lay down exact rules and forms to regulate the duties. Everything bearing on agricultural prosperity and decadence is within his province, and subject-matter for his suggestions. But it is necessary to define the position of the Director relatively to other officers and departments and to state in general terms what duties Government expect him to perform.

The preparation of agricultural statistics will be an object of the Director's special care.

The Director should subject the reported results of crop experiments to careful analysis and criticism, himself conducting test experiments as far as he is able.

Another branch of duty which the Agricultural Department will undertake is connected with the revision of survey settlements, and consists in maintaining the statistical record which is placed before the authority entrusted with the revision of rates of assessment.

The general scope of the Director's duties is described as follows in the office note appended to Government Resolution No. 4576 of June 16th, 1883 :—

"The justification of an appointment of a Director of Agriculture is mainly to be deduced from the present rapid extension in India of railways and irrigational canals, working together as promoters of higher agriculture and trade in produce. It is to be feared that little good is to be done by the application of scientific agriculture to large parts of the uplands of India such as the plain of the Deccan. It can hardly be but that for at least a long time to come the cultivation of these poorer lands will give small and uncertain profits, and that those who till them will be poor and in debt. The improvable part of the public estate is the richer lands and especially those where a good soil can be made to produce valuable exportable commodities with certainty of a regular profit by the aid of perennial irrigation. These lands are, or soon will be, in the hands of a more substantial class of farmers, who are able to work them by the aid of some capital, and are capable of appreciating scientific methods of adding to their returns.

"Now it cannot be doubted that there is one side of public business which district officers are unable, from their other manifold duties, to carry on in a very thorough, sagacious and systematic way. This is the improvement of the State land rents by all those expedients which a liberal and judicious landlord adopts for the improvement of his own estates. The changes and transfers in appointments alone are sufficient to prevent district officers from applying thorough knowledge to the land. It seems quite possible that at some future time this branch of the administration may be entrusted to a distinct set of public officers. But this will be for a distant epoch of material development. Still there appears to be a good deal coming under this head on which even one officer giving his whole time and thought to it may be engaged with advantage.

"Such an officer should closely associate himself with the better class of farmers, and study their aspirations and needs. He will supply them with information and materials, direct them to improvements, help them to obtain easily such capital as they want, place them in communication with merchants at the ports and large towns, advertise the products which they have to offer for disposal and so on. He should specially take under his observation the better tracts which are under canals and accessible by railways and particularly the rich lands adjacent to large towns. He will utilise the experimental farms which it is part of the scheme to maintain and increase. He will also communicate with merchants and exporters and assist any enterprises in the way of farms and manufactories in the districts. He should also note the condition of the agriculturists in various tracts, the bearing of the laws and executive regulations upon them, any special causes of depression, peculiar customs or prejudices. He should study the nature of the produce exported from each district, where it finds a market, in what quantity and what difficulties it contends with from defective communications, exactions in Native States, &c.

"Such an officer should, if he uses his time well, soon gain the confidence of a class of enterprising farmers whose interests he would take care of, and teach them to make full use of the advantages which Government so liberally offers. He would recommend special cases for specially favourable terms.

"He would not clash with other officers and departments because his sphere would be quite distinct from those of the Collector or Irrigational Engineer, but he would assist them all and make use of their local knowledge and influence.

"All agricultural statistics would of course be his special affair. There is an excellent base of such statistics in the village forms in Bombay, but they are not fully utilised from want of time and attention. The yearly estimates of crops and returns of land under each are still imperfect.

"It is not necessary to amplify further in this note. But it will be essential that such an officer, if appointed, should have a set of definite instructions as to what he is expected to do. For this purpose he should be supplied with a list of heads on which Government will look to him for information and under each of which he would report annually what he has done. He might begin by putting together a statistical sketch from his own point of view of each district, mapping it out with tracts according to productive capacity, irrigational facilities, &c., and indicating the special tracts which he expects to be the objects of his particular attention. These sketches or outlines may be printed for the use of the special officer and of the Revenue Secretary, and subsequent detailed reports can refer to the sketch to which they belong.

"The detailed reports would be close studies of special tracts, their peculiarities and wants, and suggestions how to meet them.

"The general report might give the observations of the year under the following heads:—

1. Season and harvest.
2. Communications. Use of railways, roads for transport of produce; any new facilities in the year; routes principally followed; any obstructions met with; needs of additional railways and roads.
3. Canals. Use made of them; products raised; any complaints or petitions as to management and supply; feelings of the people for or against them; possible additions.
4. Wells and other means of irrigation.
5. Takavi; loans taken up; where they would be useful; difficulties felt by agriculturists.

LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.] [PART II.

Stock. Horse and cattle shows; sufficiency of plough-cattle in districts under observation; suggestions for improvements; experiments.

7. Trade in agricultural produce. Course taken; increase or decrease; means of encouragement.

8. Introduction of European capital and enterprise in manufacture or farming.

9. Notes on agricultural implements, seeds, manure, &c.

10. Model Farms.

11. Crop experiments.

12. Agricultural statistics. Area under cultivation with various crops.

"The report will be made on such date as to supply a section of the General Administration Report.

"This officer should also send to Government a monthly season report, from June onward, of the cultivation and prospects of the harvest.

"The report of the Model Farms would of course pass through his hands and he would be in constant communication with their superintendents.

"The agricultural returns for the Commissioner's revenue reports would be prepared under his care."

2. The Land Revenue Department proper is under Sections 17, 109, 110 of the Land Revenue Code responsible for the land record, and the district and divisional establishments sanctioned under the orders marginally noted are entirely subordinate to the Commissioners and Collectors. The position of the Superintendents of Land Records and Agriculture is that of Assistants to the Commissioners to whose orders they will be generally subject,* and at whose head-quarters they will reside. They are not Assistants to the Director of Land Records and Agriculture. They should be gazetted ex-officio Assistant to the Collectors in each district of the Division to which they are attached, and when working in those districts they will work as Assistants to the Collectors concerned. Their duties and the functions of the Director, so far as his connection with the land records and his subordination to the Divisional Commissioners are concerned, are summarised below.

observance of the rules laid down for their guidance : he should undertake the inspection and, where necessary, the revision of maps : frame rules subject to the approval of the Divisional Commissioners and final sanction of Government for the guidance of district establishments : he should examine the work of the district establishments, and report to the Collectors any defects, errors and shortcomings.

As regards his duties outside these, the following orders have been laid down :—

"Mr. Ozanne should be considered under the immediate orders of the Revenue Department and should correspond with the Secretary to Government in that Department. He should forward his letters to Government either through the Divisional Commissioner or the Survey Commissioner, as may be appropriate in each case. He is at liberty to correspond direct with Collectors, officers of Survey and others on matters relating to his province, keeping however in view the supervisory authority of the Commissioners when any change of practice is proposed."

Statistical returns of agriculture required by the Secretary of State annually are compiled by the Director from the information furnished by the Collectors and Commissioners and are submitted by him direct to Government under the orders noted in the margin : while the annual returns and reports of the rail and land-borne traffic are submitted by him direct to Government with his review thereof, under the authority quoted in the margin.

He further prepares periodical crop forecasts which are submitted by him direct to the Government of India, copies being furnished to this Government under the orders mentioned marginally.

Under the orders marginally quoted he has the entire control in account matters relating to experimental farms, and corresponds direct with Government about them. His annual reports on crop experiments are submitted through the Commissioners. As regards special agricultural experiments undertaken from time to time, he corresponds direct with Government.

The orders noted in the margin entrust the Director with the control of the executive branch of the Civil Veterinary Department which includes (a) the Horse-breeding Department, (b) District Veterinary establishments, Government of India Circular No. 25—1, dated 10th September 1891, and Bombay Government Resolution No. 7191, dated 19th October 1891.

The Government of India have laid down the following rules under this head in their Resolution noted in the margin:—

I.—If in any Province the system under which information supplied periodically in normal times regarding prices, rainfall, state of the crops and agricultural stocks, and other circumstances from which the approach of scarcity and agricultural distress can be detected is, or is considered, imperfect, it shall be the duty of the Director of the Department of Land Records and Agriculture to submit to the Local Government and Administration to which he is subordinate suggestions for the improvement of the system. Any suggestions submitted under this rule with the orders passed thereon shall be briefly noticed in the annual report of the Department.

II.—Whatever system be established for the normal supply of information of the character described in Rule I, it shall be the duty of the Director of the department and his assistants to ascertain by periodical inspection that the system is in normal times being efficiently and properly worked in each district, and to report to the district officer and any other authorities, whom the Local Government may direct, any defects in its working.

III.—It shall be the duty of the Director to compile and collate periodically in an intelligent form the facts and statistics which are derived from the system established for the provision of the information of the character above described. For this purpose he should have full access under such rules as may be laid down by the Local Government to any statistical and agricultural returns and reports which are submitted by district officers to the higher Revenue authorities.

IV.—It shall be his duty to prepare from time to time after an examination both of settlement reports and other similar sources of information which may be available, as well as of the information periodically collated in his own office, a statement of the agricultural circumstances of each tract of the Province and of the measures, if any, which are in his opinion required to improve the agricultural efficiency thereof as prescribed in paragraphs 8, 9 and 10 of the Government of India Resolution No. 6-340-50-G., dated 8th December 1881.

Paragraph 6 of the same Resolution as explaining and elucidating the object of the rule is entered here:—

"6. It will be observed that the duties thus laid down for observance by the special departments are, while in consonance with those prescribed in the Resolution under which these departments were constituted, in no respect affected by the occurrence of famine or scarcity. The duties are such as must be continuously performed in normal times; and the object of them is the establishment and maintenance of a system under which the responsible authorities will receive timely warning of the approach of famine or scarcity. In more than one of the replies received from Local Governments on this subject the Resolution of 19th December 1889 appears to have been read as implying that the Local Government was to look to the special departments and not to district officers for the indications of approaching scarcity. This is very far from the intention of the Government of India. In the 6th paragraph of that Resolution it was explained that the Resolution of 1881, under which these departments were created, required them 'to organize and maintain a system under which the responsible authorities should be kept continuously and automatically provided with prompt intelligence of agricultural circumstances.' No suggestion was made, either in the Resolution of 1881 or of 1889, that intelligence should be supplied by district subordinates otherwise than to district officers, or to the Local Governments otherwise than by district officers through the usual channels. The Government of India demand only that the special department should be utilised to examine and report on the efficiency of the working machinery, not that the department should itself work the machinery. This policy is clearly understood and carried out in many provinces in which it is now fully realized that inspection by the officers of an expert department is necessary for the efficient maintenance of maps and records, and that with few exceptions the reports and suggestions of the inspecting officers are of material service to those district officers to whom they are made, and secure as a general result that maps and records are kept up to a uniform standard throughout the province. More than this the Government of India do not require."

The concluding sentences of the above paragraph confirm the views expressed by this Government regarding the position and functions of the Director of Land Records and Agriculture in previous paragraphs.

The attention of the Director of Land Records and Agriculture should be called to what is at the present time the most important part of his work: the special inspection of the work of the Circle Inspectors, and the systematising of the arrangements for keeping up the land records, and for recording and supplying accurate and intelligible statistics regarding prices, wages, rainfall, state of the crops, and agricultural stock, &c., especially in the Southern Division where the newly sanctioned staff is now working. It is desirable that he should now devote increased attention to perfecting arrangements connected with the maintenance of the land record, and the collection of agricultural and economical statistics.

to the Collector on such subjects; the compilation under the supervision of the Divisional Commissioners of statistics received from the Collectors and the forwarding of these to the Director; aiding Assistant Collectors and Mámlatdárs in the inspection of all village records and returns except those connected with the collection of land revenue; preserving the uniformity in system of correcting survey records by constant and thorough examination; and hereafter when the Survey Department has done its work, testing classification where the District Inspector is not a classer; signing ákárbands; and preparing proposals for the revision of rates. They are further to assist the Director of Land Records and Agriculture in the inspection and test of village statistics and forms, supervise the compilation of statistics for revisions, and aid the Director of Land Records and Agriculture in his duty of making a detailed analysis of agricultural tracts specially liable to famine.

(4). In this connection the Governor in Council desires to repeat the directions passed from time to time regarding the duties of Collectors and Assistant Collectors as to the inspections to be made by them, so that they may understand that the establishment of the system of inspection by the Divisional and Circle Inspectors does not release them from their ordinary duties of examination and inspection. The earlier orders were passed when it was proposed and intended to place the Inspectors under the Director of Land Records and Agriculture, and it is evident that those officers being under later orders subordinate to the Land Revenue authorities, the directions issued have now even greater importance attached to them. The first of these is as follows:—

“6. Indeed, the question of the discipline and control of the new establishment requires very careful thought and organization. The intention is to entertain a body of selected men for certain duties connected with the land administration and under the control of the Director of Agriculture. These duties are a part of the local revenue business, though they are to be entrusted to special officials that they may be performed with particular skill and efficiency. These officials are placed under the orders of the Director because they are to deal with matters specially within his cognisance. The Director will therefore formulate their duties and supervise their performance of them. But on the considerations stated in the previous paragraph, it must not follow that the new establishment is withdrawn from all affinity to the local revenue offices, and that the Circle Inspectors are to acknowledge no official allegiance to the Mámlatdár. It is clear that if three or four Circle Inspectors are resident in a táluka with no personal supervision by higher authority expect a periodical visit from the Assistant District Inspector, they will virtually be under very little control, and are not likely to work with energy and precision. The Mámlatdár therefore and a fortiori the Assistant Collector, should carefully watch the performance of their duty by the Circle Inspectors, though of course they will not alter the instructions of the Director. Again, the Circle Inspectors will be an authority immediately over the village accountants and in this relation must bear due regard to the authority of the Mámlatdár, that the village officers may not be embarrassed by having two masters. Moreover it is not by any means intended that the Mámlatdárs and Assistant Collectors should be relieved of any part of the duty which they now perform in personally testing the preparation of statistical records in the villages and making inspections of crops and boundary marks. And the Collectors and their Assistants should on no account allow themselves to think that as certain operations have been placed under the control of a distinct department they are not any further concerned with them. All the matters which fall within the province of the Director of Agriculture should be matters of personal interest to the local Revenue officers. The Director and the Circle Inspectors are to supply them with improved means of knowing their districts."

PART II.] [LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.

It was repeated to the Government of India in reporting further on the subject that "the same Resolution which gave the first practical effect to the scheme also conveyed (paragraph 6) the decision of Government that the revised staff was not to be separated from the Revenue establishments, or removed from subordination to the Mámlatdár, nor was their creation and connection with the Director to absolve the Mámlatdár or Assistant Collector or Collector from any of the duties hitherto attached to their offices in connection with the statistical records, or any other matter which falls within the province of the Director of Agriculture ;"

and finally in reviewing the annual report of the Government Resolution No. 2825, dated 13th April 1889.

Director of Land Records and Agriculture for 1887-88, the following orders were passed emphasizing those previously issued :—

"The first part of this report, which contains a variety of interesting matter and reflects credit on the Acting Director, is as usual devoted to a detailed account of the work of the Circle Inspectors employed in Dhárwár and Bijápur. The Governor in Council is of opinion that their field-work—other than measurement—which as a check on village officers is specially important, was decidedly insufficient, and in this connection it is observed that Mr. Muir-Mackenzie admits the 'intense repugnance to field-work' exhibited by these officials. They evidently require close and systematic supervision, such discipline in fact as some of them were accustomed to while in the Survey Department, but the supervision actually exercised over their work by their immediate superiors appears to have been unsatisfactory in Bijápur and hardly sufficient in Dhárwár. Government have under consideration a scheme for the entire re-organization of this branch of the department, but until such re-organization is effected it is essential that sub-divisional officers in Dhárwár and Bijápur should carefully test the work of these inspectors ; and indeed their boundary-mark inspection might with advantage be confined to such a test, the results of which should be communicated from time to time to the Agricultural Department. The attention of the Collectors of these districts should be drawn to the fact that no such communications were made in the year under report."

(G. R. No. 528, dated 23rd January 1892.)

LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.] [PART II.

3. Circumstances having occurred during the last few years which indicate that in more than one Province the functions of the Department of Land Records and Agriculture as a Department of Land Records have not been fully understood, the Government of India desire that the following explanation of their views and intentions in connection with this subject should be communicated to all Local Governments and Administrations.

(2). The formation of the Departments was first required by the Resolution of the 8th December 1881, in which the general scheme under which effect was to be given to the recommendations of the Famine Commissioners was laid down. In the 7th paragraph it was advised that the new Departments should be in some form connected with settlement administration with the view of maintaining up to date the land records upon which settlements were made. But it was expressly stated that—

“It is neither necessary nor advisable that the new Department should either exercise independent authority or should interfere with the responsibility of the local officials who are at present charged with the duty of maintaining any system of agricultural records and observation. The Department may undoubtedly be utilized by the governing authorities in assisting them to control and maintain any organization required for the continuous supply of agricultural information, yet its chief duty will be to deduce from the facts and figures thus supplied those conclusions or suggestions which the Famine Commissioners have shown to be necessary to the administration of a Province.”

(3). The Government of India apprehend that, notwithstanding the clear injunction that no interfering authority was to be exercised by the new Department, yet that the use of the word ‘control’ may have led to a misapprehension on the subject. Their intention was that the Department should control the scheme under which land records are maintained but not the establishments or agency responsible for maintaining them. When, however, the Departments were first organized, the Directors were in some provinces allowed to assume considerable authority over the district establishments, and they have even been permitted by some recent Provincial rules to require the punishment or dismissal of officials on the land-record staff. In such cases it has become necessary for the Government of India to request the alteration of the rules with the object of securing to the district and divisional authorities the full executive control over the establishments with which it was not intended to interfere.

(4). The functions of the Director in connection with land-records may be classed under three heads—

I.—Organization.

II.—Inspection.

III.—Collation of results.

Under the first head it is his duty to bring before the superior revenue authorities proposals for the maintainance of maps and records in the most efficient and economical manner. The main objects with which land records, including maps, are required to be kept up to date are—

PART II.] [LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.

- (a) to simplify and cheapen periodical settlement operations ;
- (b) to provide a record-of-rights for the protection of all who hold interests in land ;
- (c) to reduce, simplify and cheapen litigation in the Revenue and Civil Courts ; and
- (d) to provide statistics necessary for sound administration in all matters connected with the land.

It is the duty of the Director both to advise the superior revenue authorities under what arrangements these objects can best be attained or in what manner the land records establishments should be organized, trained and tested so as to ensure the required results, and to point out from time to time any defects in the system which may have already been adopted.

(5). Under the second head, inspection, it is the duty of the director to inspect the land-records staff and their work in each district, and to bring to the notice of the district officer any irregularities in practice, or any shortcomings on the part of the officials whose work has been inspected. In some Provinces in which there is a Divisional as well as a District officer it has been found a convenient practice for the Director to submit his inspection notes to the latter officer, who forwards them to the Commissioner, with any orders which he, the District officer, may pass thereon. The Director himself is debarred from issuing any orders other than such verbal instructions and explanations on technical matters as he may communicate to the officials whose work he inspects.

Similar functions would be exercised by any Assistants to the Director. The Government of India, however, would prefer that functions of this kind should be assigned to those officials only who are of sufficient rank and status to be recognized as acting on behalf of the Director rather than as his subordinates, and that other Inspecting officers, if above the position of District inspectors, should be subordinate to the Commissioner or other controlling revenue authority rather than to the Director himself. It is apprehended that otherwise the authority of Divisional Officers may be weakened, and that proper relations between the Director and District officers may be disturbed.

(6). Under the third head little explanation of the duties of the Director is needed. The main objects, which the collection of agricultural statistics was intended by the Famine Commissioners to secure, must be prominently held in view. These are fully stated in the 8th, 9th and 10th paragraphs of the Resolution of 1881, and have in subsequent Resolutions and correspondence been summed up under the term 'district analysis.' In this as in other branches of their work no control can be exercised by the Director over the District and Divisional staff, beyond drawing the attention of the authorities to any errors or shortcomings in the statistics and returns supplied to his office in accordance with rules sanctioned by the Local Government or to any defects in agricultural circumstances and conditions which may appear to call for preventive or remedial action. His chief duty is to see that full effect is given to the instructions of Her Majesty's Secretary of State quoted in the 1st paragraph of the Resolution, viz. :—

"To secure the more complete systematic ascertaining and rendering available of the statistics of vital, agricultural, and economic facts for every part of India, in order that Government and its officers may always be in possession of an adequate knowledge of the actual condition of the country its population and resources."

(7). Nothing in this Resolution is intended to affect the duties or position of the Director of Land Records if in addition to the office of Directorship he is entrusted with the control of settlements in the separate capacity of Settlement Commissioner.

(G. I., R. & A., No. 15-342, dated the 26th October 1893; vide G. R. No. 9007, dated the 8th December 1893. *)

4. The Director of Agriculture should be furnished with copies of all the various Resolutions referred to below under heads I—V in the Revenue and General Departments :

AND AGRICULTURE AND DISTRICT AND CIRCLE INSPECTORS.

A separate compilation of rules and standing orders relating to the duties and supervision of Land Records and Agricultural establishments has been issued, and the rules and standing orders under this heading are omitted from this compilation.

PART IV.—REPORTS AND RETURNS.

1. The weekly reports on the state of the weather and crops should be telegraphed to the Revenue and Agricultural Department and not to the Home Department of the Government of India, the telegrams being despatched to the abbreviated address of "Revenue." (G. I., R. & A., No. 1-26., dated 14th July 1881.)

2. It should be impressed upon District officers that it is not sufficient to report correctly the state of the country in the immediate neighbourhood of head-quarter stations, but that a weather and crop telegram ought to indicate, as far as possible, the agricultural condition of a district as a whole. (G. I., H., R. & A., No. 11-503, dated 8th November 1880; vide G. R. No. 6196, dated 23rd idem.)

3. It is unnecessary to publish in the Gazette of India detailed information regarding the weather and agriculture of individual districts. Weekly reports on the season and prospects of the crops in each district of Madras, Bombay, Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the Punjab, the Central Provinces, Assam, Burma and Mysore are published in local Gazettes, and, being available in this form to the public and the Government of India, do not need repetition in the Gazette of India. In future, therefore, Local Governments and Administrations should cease to telegraph to the Government of India intelligence regarding separate districts, and should confine their telegraphic communications to a full and clear summary of those facts only which have an important bearing on the character of the season and the crops of each province as a whole. The summaries should present a sufficiently complete and accurate picture of the position in the week under report, to enable the Government of India to form a true opinion on the agricultural situation and prospects of each Province; and they should be so drawn up as to admit of their being published in the Gazette of India without revision or further reference to the Provincial authorities. They should indicate the general character of the rainfall of the week and the tracts in which the total rainfall of the season has been insufficient; the progress of agricultural operations; the state of the standing crops and the prospects and probable outturn of the harvests. They should contain also a brief account of any serious damage done to crops by insects, blights, hailstorms, floods or other natural calamities, and should notice the condition of agricultural stock, the failure of pasturage or fodder, and marked fluctuations in the prices of food-grains. In times of scarcity the areas affected, the number of people under relief and the state of food stocks should be regularly reported. The condition of the opium and other crops of commercial importance should be specially noticed. These instructions indicate generally the information which the Government of India call for in the weekly summaries, but do not preclude Local Governments from adding any further particulars of interest and importance which may be considered necessary. Intelligent compilation is especially demanded. Instances have occurred in which returns have been submitted from certain districts without regard to facts, and have been permitted to repeat stereotyped and inaccurate phrases week after week. It is, therefore, desired that, whether or not the weekly returns can be submitted through the Department of Land Records and Agriculture, the question should be considered of placing upon that Department the responsibility of seeing that an uniform and well-regulated system of recording the facts above indicated is maintained. His Excellency in Council also rules that the use of local vernacular terms should, as unsuited to reports intended for general information, be entirely avoided. District reports may continue to be published in local Gazettes. Their main object is to show, from week to week, in a brief and succinct form, the actual conditions and prospects of agriculture in each district. They are not intended, therefore, to contain a notice of any facts which have no connection with, or bearing on, agricultural circumstances and prospects. The Government of India are specially desirous that strict attention should be given to the remarks and instructions in this paragraph. Separate copies of all district reports, whether weekly, monthly or half-yearly, published in the Gazettes of Local Governments, should be posted regularly to the Revenue and Agricultural Department of the Government of India, for information and record. Outbreaks of fever or of even cattle-disease, unless of dimensions sufficiently large to threaten the progress of agricultural operations, as was the case for instance in many parts of India after the famine in 1878-79, need not be noticed, and it is for similar reasons unnecessary to report the occurrence of small-pox or cholera except in the very rare cases where the mortality and prostration caused by these diseases are likely to affect the agricultural population to a serious extent. (G. I., R. & A., Nos. 59-A-124-1, dated 5th October 1887, and 64-A-124-2, dated 11th October 1887; vide G. R. No. 7541, dated 5th November 1887.)

4. The information contained in the weekly season telegraphic reports submitted to the Government of India should be general in character and confined more nearly to a description of the state of the crops and agricultural condition of the Presidency. The circumstances of individual districts or talukas should be noticed as sparingly as possible, these details being reserved for publication in the Local Gazette. References to rainfall should also be curtailed, as the information of this description reaches the Government of India from other sources. (G. I., R. & A., No. 660-A-4-5, dated 4th October 1889; vide G. R. No. 7862, dated 18th idem.)

5. It is necessary in accordance with the orders of the Government of India that the weekly summary of weather and agricultural reports should be despatched to them not later than 6 P.M. every Wednesday. In order to do this the various district reports made up as far as possible to Tuesday evening in each week must be delivered at the Secretariat in Bombay by Wednesday afternoon at the latest. To ensure their timely delivery they must, during such part of the season as the Collector is absent from head-quarters, be prepared by the Huzúr Deputy Collector from the reports submitted to him by the Mámílatdárs and Mahálkaris. When the Collector is at head-quarters he must personally supervise the preparation and submit the weekly summary of the reports to Government.

The instructions of the Government of India do not appear to have been properly attended to, the consequence being that the greatest difficulty is found in preparing the weekly summary required by the Government of India. The attention of all Collectors is called to the orders issued on the subject. With a view to avoid misunderstanding as to what is required and what is not, the appended note giving definite particulars has been prepared. The various reports will be published in the Government Gazette. It will be understood that these reports relate purely to ordinary years and seasons, and that in times of scarcity or famine special reports as prescribed in the Famine Relief Code, Bombay Presidency, will have to be submitted.

The following particulars should be given in the Collector's weekly summary:—

Rainfall during week.—If none has fallen, no mention need be made. The character of the fall should be noticed, whether it was excessive, normal, or deficient, general in the district or partial. The fall (a) for the week, (b) for the season, during the monsoon should be given.

(2) The tracts, if any, in which the fall is insufficient should be specified.

Note.—In the weekly season reports submitted during the monsoon, Collectors should specify the weekly rainfall at the head-quarter station in addition to the maximum and minimum falls in the district and the totals for the season from the 1st of June for the head-quarter station and for the stations which have received the maximum and minimum falls up to date.

The total rainfall for the season is to be given in the weekly reports only during the monsoon and not during the fair season. (G. R. Nos. 1341-Famine, dated 19th June 1897, and 527-Famine, dated 31st August 1898.)

(3) Progress of agricultural operations and state of the standing crops, whether kharif or rabi.

(4) Probable outturn of harvest, whether kharif or rabi, each being separately noted. When the anna valuation has once been given, it need not be repeated unless marked changes are found. This information to be submitted in the first and third weeks of each month, special notice being made of crops of commercial importance such as cotton, wheat, linseed, and in Baroda of opium.

Note.—The “probable outturn” reports should be discontinued throughout the Presidency in the months of May and June. By the end of July a forecast of the crop, as probably a deficient one or the reverse, can generally, if not always, be formed. (G. R. No. 5073, dated 24th July 1891.)

(5) The condition of agricultural stock.

(6) Marked fluctuations in the price of food-grains.

Note.—Actual prices should be quoted only when the variation is considerable, say one Indian seer per rupee, and the price should usually be given only for the head-quarter town in seers per rupee and to the nearest seer. (G. R. No. 1341-Famine, dated 19th June 1897.)

(7) If serious damage has been done to any crop by unforeseen natural calamity, it should be reported.

(8) If fodder or pasturage prospects are bad, they should be reported; if normal they need not be noticed.

(9) Epidemic or epizootic disease should be reported only if of so severe a character that it interferes with the progress of agricultural operations.

(10) The standing instructions as to date of despatch to Government of these reports remain in force.

(11) The use of such phrases as “prospects unchanged,” “same as last week” and the like should be avoided. Local vernacular terms should not be used. (G. R. No. 794, dated 3rd February 1888.)

The report from the Thar and Parkar District should be submitted to reach the Secretariat before 12 noon on every Wednesday. It should comprise information up to Saturday of the previous week, with any later particulars that can be given up to Tuesday evening when it is transmitted. (G. R. No. 8088, dated 25th November 1881.)

The weekly reports on the condition of the season and crops from Thána and other districts situated as Thána is as regards facilities for postal communication with Bombay should be sent by post. The reports from other districts should ordinarily be transmitted by telegraph as ‘deferred’ messages. The telegrams should reach the Secretariat at the latest in the afternoon of every Wednesday. They should therefore, as a rule, be sent to the Telegraph office on Tuesday evening marked as ‘deferred’. Whenever this cannot be done owing to unavoidable circumstances, and the telegrams have to be sent on Wednesdays, they should be marked as ‘urgent’, but in any case they should continue to comprise information up to the evening of every Tuesday. (G. C. No. 249, dated 14th January 1882, and G. R., F. D., No. 1947, dated 7th July 1885.)

6. The form noted below should be adopted in the preparation of the weekly season reports for the Almedabad, Kaira, Broach, Surat, Thana, Násik, Khándesh, Poona and Sholápur Districts from which the reports are sent by post. The form is based on the instructions circulated with Gdvernment Resolution No. 794, dated 3rd February 1888, which should be strictly followed in the preparation of the reports for the districts named above as well as the other districts from which the reports are sent by telegram.

The Superintendent, Government Central Press, should keep copies of the form in stock to meet the requirements of the officers concerned.

No. OF 189 .

Forwarded to Government in the Revenue Department.

Collector.

(G. Rs. Nos. 6834, dated 27th September 1890, and 1493, dated 24th February 1891.)

7. In the weekly reports on the state of the season and prospects of the crops a concise description of the crops should be given in lieu of annual estimates which in consequence of doubts about the "standard" are found to be frequently misleading. (G. O. No. 1709, dated 6th March 1891.)

8. The appearance and movements of locusts should be noticed in the weekly weather and crop reports in such additional detail as may be convenient. It is not desired, however, that the weekly telegraphic reports which are submitted to the Government of India should contain more detail than at present.

PART IV.] [LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.

Copies of the weekly weather and crop reports, as published in the Provincial Gazettes, containing references to locusts, and of any special reports which are made by District officers and others to Local Governments, should be forwarded direct to the Trustees of the Indian Museum for transmission to the officer of the Indian Museum entrusted with the entomological work. (G. I., R. & A., No. 151-159-C., dated 18th January 1890; vide G. R. No. 1159, dated 12th February 1890.)

9. The order contained in the Revenue and Agricultural Department Circular No. 64-4-48 A., dated 28th September 1889, deprecating unnecessary allusion in the weekly weather and crop reports to sporadic cases of cattle disease, was not intended to exclude a report on the state of the fodder and water-supply and its effect on agricultural stock. Such information affords a most important illustration of agricultural prospects. Where this is not already done, information may be included in the weekly reports as to the condition of cattle and the supply of fodder and water. (G. I., R. & A., No. 18-1, dated 20th July 1891; vide G. R. No. 5579, dated 14th August 1891.)

10. The Superintendent, Government Central Press, should supply the Meteorological Reporter for Western India with a copy of the telegraphic weather and crop reports which are published weekly in the Bombay Government Gazette. The Meteorological Reporter should also be supplied with copies of reports of damage caused by heavy rains, floods, high winds or tides which may be received in the Revenue, General, Political, Marine and Public Works Departments. (G. R. No. 6504, dated 13th August 1884.)

11. Mámlatdárs and officers in charge of stations who send periodical postcards to the Director of Land Records and Agriculture under the orders contained in Government Resolution, General Department, No. 1788, dated 18th May 1886, should send him during the monsoon also special postcards after a break* of over seven days' duration whenever (1) a fall of over 50 cents takes place in one day or (2) a fall of one inch or more occurs in not more than three consecutive days. In either case if rain is falling when the special card is sent, the fact should be notified. No further intimation will be required up to the time of despatching the usual weekly message. In this manner the Director will know of the continuance of scarcity in any district or part of a district up to within four or at most five days before any given date for the most remote stations in the Presidency. (G. R. No. 6814, dated 12th October 1888.)

12. For the purposes of the weekly telegraphic report, Mámlatdárs should make reports similar to

* A break means a period on every day of which the rainfall is less than 50 cents, or in which the rainfall during any two consecutive days is less than one inch.

LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.] [PART IV.

those directed in the foregoing Resolution to the Collector by special card for all rainfall, of which the information will reach the Collector before Tuesday evening. This arrangement will enable Collectors to include the latest information available in their weekly telegraphic reports. (G. R. No. 5443, dated 10th August 1891.)

13. The Annual Report of the Agricultural Department should be divided into the following heads:—

I. Organization and maintenance of village records.

II. Analysis of districts with reference to security from famine.

III. System of collection of revenue and rental in precarious tracts.

IV. Measures of protection, including—

(1) Fodder reserves and arboriculture.

(2) Extension of communications.

(3) Irrigation.

V. Agricultural experiments, including farms.

VI. Cattle-breeding and veterinary establishments.

VII. Agricultural and fiscal statistics.

VIII. Trade and trade statistics.

The subject of communications would be primarily considered under Head II, and any remarks under Head IV (2) would ordinarily be confined to improvements effected, or likely to be effected, in the agricultural condition of a district by communications opened during the year under report.

In any case in which the subject for which a heading is provided is not one dealt with by the Agricultural Department, and also as regards any other questions which are dealt with in the Revenue Administration Report, it will be sufficient to treat them by reference in the Agricultural Department Report, noting where the information required will be found.

(G. I., R. & A., No. 54-A., dated 28th April 1884; vide G. R. No. 4333, dated 29th May 1884.)

14. It was intended when the skeleton heads of the report of the Department of Land Records and Agriculture were prescribed in Government of India Circular Resolution No. 54-A., dated 28th April 1884, that the report itself should not be more than an historical abstract of the main events and results of the twelve months' working of the department, and it was assumed that either questions admitting of discussion or details of experiments and agricultural investigations would be dealt with in separate departmental papers or reviews. The reporting work of a department of Land Records and Agriculture may, without conflicting with the views expressed in previous Circulars and Resolutions of the Government of India, be divided under three heads:—

PART IV.] [LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.

- (1) Reports of a technical character.
- (2) Reports on which the orders of the Local Government are required.
- (3) Historical abstract of the year's operations.

In the first class would be included reports from experimental farms with the orders of the Director thereon, or tabular statements showing results of experiments; accounts of trials with new implements and machines and the like. Reports of this kind would under the instructions conveyed in Government of India Circular Resolution No. 143½A-77-4 of the 28th December 1885 be communicated direct by the department, without delay, not only to the Government of India, but also to all Provincial Agricultural Departments for early information. It is for this reason that they should include no matter upon which the orders of the Bombay Government are required, and that any subject requiring the instructions of His Excellency the Governor in Council should be separately submitted to the Bombay Government. The Government of India themselves having already received the technical reports and statistical results of agricultural experiments does not require in the Annual Report more than an historical summary of the administrative action of the department under each part into which the report is divided and of any useful results of a positive character which may have been obtained in the field of agricultural experiment and to which, from the interest which may attach to them, it may be considered desirable to attract special notice in the annual report.

(G. I. R. & A., No. 407-41-3-A., dated 25th May 1887; vide G. R. No. 4079, dated 4th July 1887.)

15. The steps taken by the Agricultural Department under each Local Government for securing the more complete analysis of the rural economy and condition of the province, and the progress made towards its completion, should be reported in the periodical reports of that Department. (G. I. R. & A., No. 75-G., dated 2nd October 1883; vide G. R. No. 8107, dated 3rd November 1883.)

16. The Director of Land Records and Agriculture should enter in his annual reports a clear and concise resumé of all the reports on cattle disease received by him. (G. Rs. Nos. 5487, dated 18th August 1887, and 5220, dated 19th July 1893.)

17. The subject of the fertilization of the soil by the application of bone-manure should receive the serious attention of the Agricultural Department. The question of introducing cheap bone-crushers and other aids to the preparation of the manure is of primary importance in connection with the preservation of one of the valuable manu-

LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.] [PART IV.

rial resources of the country. Experiments as to the effect of bone-manure on various crops under different conditions are also essential to enable the Directors of Agricultural Departments to determine under what circumstances bones can be most usefully employed in India. Any action which it may be found possible to take to promote the utilization of bone-manure in India by experiment or otherwise should be specially noticed in the annual reports of the Agricultural Department. (G. I., R. & A., No. 12-96-1A., dated 11th June 1891; vide G. R. No. 4718, dated 11th July 1891.)

18. Collectors should forward Agricultural Statistics punctually to the Director of Land Records and Agriculture for inclusion in his Annual Administration Report and supply that officer with explanations regarding variations in statistics. (G. R. No. 2825, dated 13th April 1889.)

19. Requisitions for inquiry into insect pests may be sent to the Superintendent of the Indian Museum by the Director of the Agricultural Department of the province to whom reference should in the first place be made by the District or Divisional Officer who is desirous of having an enquiry instituted. The Director should include in his annual report a brief account of any proceedings taken in this direction during the year. (G. I., R. & A., No. 62-20-102-A., dated 20th September 1889; vide G. R. No. 7590, dated 9th October 1889.)

20. The Director should in future reports supply information showing what percentage of the crop, waste and boundary mark inspection done by the total number of Kulkarnis in each district has been tested, in the year, by the Circle Inspector Staff, and what percentage of the work of the latter has been tested by the supervising officers of the Agricultural Department and, if possible, also by those of the Revenue Department. Government desire merely to satisfy themselves generally that the tests have been sufficient in quantity to be of real use as a check on the perfunctory performance of uncongenial duties, and provided this information is furnished, the Director need not, unless there is any special reason for doing so, include in his report detailed statistics of the work which are of value only to the officers of the districts concerned. (G. R. No. 1474, dated 22nd February 1890.)

21. Collectors should communicate their remarks on the subject of the organization and maintenance of village records to the Director of Land Records and Agriculture for incorporation in his report. It should be understood, however, that the Collectors are to continue to enter the subject in their own annual administration reports, but the Commissioner's detailed review thereof will be found in submitting the Director's report. (G. R. No. 6123, dated 28th July 1892.)

PART IV.] [LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.

22. The record of the work of Superintendents which is directly connected with that of the agricultural staff, should be included in the annual report of the Agricultural Department. (G. R. No. 3169, dated 2nd May 1893.)

23. The Director of Land Records and Agriculture should furnish in his annual reports a statement giving under Head III.—Collection of Revenue and Rental in Precarious Tracts—a brief notice of the ordinary processes of revenue collection in tracts so classed, as well as of any special measures which it may have been necessary to take under the Famine Relief Code. (G. R. No. 10074, dated 23rd December 1892.)

24. With a view to the bringing under review at one time of the whole land administration of the Presidency exclusive of Sind, the annual report of the Department of Land Records and Agriculture will not in future be reviewed separately either by the Commissioners or by Government, but when it is circulated to the public, copies will be sent to the Commissioners, who should then draw up their jamábandi reports with the report of Collectors as well as the report of the Department of Land Records and Agriculture before them. The report of the Department of Land Records and Agriculture will then be printed with the jamábandi reports, being treated as an appendix thereto, and be reviewed by Government together with the jamábandi reports. This review, with the compilation, will then be submitted to the Government of India. (G. Rs. Nos. 7542, dated 14th October 1893, and 8791, dated 30th November 1893.)

25. The Collectors should furnish at the end of December of each year a memorandum containing information concerning weather and crops to the Director of Land Records and Agriculture in order to enable him to include an accurate and complete account of each district in his annual report. (G. R. No. 8255, dated 2nd December 1887.)

26. A special paragraph should be devoted to the subject of the maintenance of traverse survey marks in the annual report of the Department of Land Records. (G. I., R. & A., No. 510-19-71, dated 10th March 1892; vide G. R. No. 3327, dated 11th April 1892.)

27. The rule* laid down by the Government of India that “no official letters to Her Majesty’s Government or to the Government of India, and no Resolution or other official paper that would in ordinary course be reported to either of those authorities should be made public by Local Governments, until the interval has elapsed which is required for their transmission to the superior authorities” should be observed in the case of the Annual Report of the Director of Land Records and Agriculture. (G. R. No. 189, dated 12th January 1886.)

* Vide G. of I. No. 19-861, dated 6th May 1878.

28. Copies of all reports relating to vegetable products published by the Government of Bombay and by the Agricultural or Horticultural Societies in the Bombay Presidency should be sent through the India Office for transmission to the Royal Gardens at Kew (S. of S., No. 1 (Rev.), dated 15th January 1880; vide G. R., No. 1292, dated 11th March 1880.)

29. Copies of all reports relating to vegetable products or the material resources of the country should, as soon as they are published, be sent direct to the India Office superscribed "for the Royal Gardens, Kew." The following is an exemplar list of the kind of reports, &c., which might be sent in addition to any special publications issued by Local Governments. The reports should be regularly forwarded to avoid any ground of complaint on the part of the Kew authorities :—

1. Annual Reports of the Department of Land Records and Agriculture.

2. Annual Reports on Botanical and Public Gardens.

3. Annual Forest Administration Reports.

4. Annual Reports on Cinchona Plantations.

5. Annual Museum Reports.

6. Annual and other Reports by Botanical Officers.

7. Annual Tea and Coffee Reports.

8. Arboricultural Report.

9. Crop Experiment Report.

10. Experimental and Model Farm Reports.

11. Notes, Bulletins and Selections on Vegetable and Economic Products.

12. Provincial Agricultural Ledger Series.

13. Annual Reports on Inland Trade.

(G. I., R. & A., Nos. 37-A., dated 16th August 1882, 55-A., dated 30th April 1884, 16-33, dated 25th April 1893; vide G. Rs. Nos. 4589, dated 7th June 1884, and 5666, dated 5th August 1893.)

30. Copies of all reports and papers on the economic products of India published by Government should be systematically sent to the Secretary of State for record in the India Office, and for transmission to the Kew Museum (S. of S. No. 23 Rev., dated 10th March 1887; vide G. I., R. & A., No. 26-72-3A., dated 5th May 1887, and G. R. No. 3353, dated 30th idem.)

31. Whenever publications on agricultural subjects are communicated to the Government of India for information, it should be stated in the forwarding letter whether they have been or are about to be duly circulated to other provinces. (G. I., R. & A., No. 51-A., dated 24th April 1884; vide G. R. No. 3916, dated 15th May 1884.)

tion to the great inconvenience due to the occasional employment in botanic-economic reports published under the authority of Government, of absolute scientific names of plants, and desired the uniform use in all such official reports of the nomenclature established by Sir Joseph Hooker's 'Flora of British India' and the official 'Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.' Considerable inconvenience has also been caused to the Government of India by the use in official reports generally of vernacular and unscientific names in describing or referring to natural and economic products. His Excellency the Governor General in Council is, therefore, pleased to issue instructions that economic products, whether plants or not, should be described by the scientific name adopted in the official Directory, either used alone or written in brackets after any English or vernacular name which may be employed. The nomenclature of economic plants dealt with in the 'Dictionary of Economic Products' is practically based on the 'Flora of British India' to which no further reference need be made in such cases. In the case of plants not being economic products, and not, therefore, included in the Economic Dictionary, the Flora itself should be consulted; but if this work is not available, or difficulty is experienced in identification, reference may be made to the Agricultural Department or to the botanical authority of the province. (G. I., R. & A., No. 654-89, dated 14th March 1892; vide G. R. No. 3264, dated 7th April 1892).

33. It is of importance that facts and statistics regarding any special subject should be presented in a form in which they can be easily brought together and ledgered under an appropriate head. This object can be best fulfilled by the establishment of some arrangements under which useful information of sufficient value to be recorded for purposes of future reference should be published in separate sheets, pamphlets or reports, which may be from whatever province received, bound up or otherwise gathered together in appropriate ledgers. The appended instructions for the maintenance of a uniform series of agricultural ledgers have accordingly been formulated. While it is necessary that the system of recording information which it is desirable to circulate throughout India should be uniform, this scheme is not intended in any way to interfere with the continuance or establishment of any scheme of publication that may be considered desirable for provincial purposes:—

- (1) Any interesting or instructive papers, notes, and statistics on subjects dealt with by Departments of Land Records and Agriculture should be printed separately for distribution to all Agricultural Departments, or to any other Departments, officials, or individuals who may wish to have them for incorporation in ledgers.
- (2) A series of agricultural ledgers will be maintained, which will be uniform in all offices, whether of the provinces or of the Government of India.

- (3) A classification of subjects for which it is considered that separate ledgers might be maintained is given in the appendix. Uniformity in sub-heads is not a matter of importance.
- (4) Any information, whether included in an official report, or not, considered to be of sufficient general interest to justify its inclusion in the agricultural ledgers, should be printed separately so as to admit of its being filed under the appropriate ledger heading.
- (5) When such information is included in a report, it may be perhaps conveniently printed off from the type of the report before the type is broken up.
- (6) As far as possible, each note or set of statistics should refer to one subject only.
- (7) The ledger series should be printed on the same size of paper and when possible in similar type, and, as a rule, on one side of the sheet; (this is not essential in the case of lengthy articles).
- (8) The ledger series will, for purposes of convenient reference, be uniformly numbered in all Provincial and Imperial offices, and the serial number to be assigned to each pamphlet or paper will be arranged by the Government of India. For this purpose the subject of any note which it is proposed to print should be reported to the Reporter on Economic Products, Indian Museum, Calcutta.
- (9) All subjects which can be brought under economic products will be referred to the serial numbers in the official "Dictionary of Economic Products."
- (10) Notes of only local interest will not be brought into the Imperial series.
- (11) Lengthy pamphlets or papers containing a material proportion of unimportant matter should not, as a rule, be issued in extenso. Abstracts of them including, if necessary, brief extracts will suffice, and be more likely to receive perusal.
- (12) In some cases it will be sufficient merely to place on record in a ledger sheet references to interesting or useful papers of which it is desirable not to lose sight with brief paragraphs indicating their character.
- (13) A brief introductory preface should precede any paper or extract explaining the points to which it is desired to invite attention.
- (14) An index of the numbers of the ledger series issued during each year will be prepared by the Government of India, and circulated for general use.
- (15) All correspondence connected with the agricultural ledger series will be conducted, on

PART V.—FORECASTS OF CROPS.

1. The Government of India have decided that, for the present at least, three memoranda on the Indian <sup>wheat crop</sup><sub>oil-seeds crop</sub> shall be published by it during each season. The first of these will be a rough account of the state of the crop, and will not, except in cases in which details can be supplied without trouble by Local Governments, contain information as to area. This statement will be published immediately before the close of the calendar year. The second memorandum, which will be issued about the 15th March, will give as accurate information as may then be procurable regarding both the estimated area and the state of the crop. In the latter half of May the third memorandum will be published, and will contain revised and fuller information on the points mentioned in the second statement. In order to admit of the punctual preparation of these memoranda the Government of India desire that the necessary data may be supplied in time to reach them* at the latest on the 20th December, the 1st March and the 15th May, respectively. It will be convenient that the first two reports, which should give the latest information available at the time of their submission, should be made by telegraph. Fullness of detail being of more importance in regard to the third memorandum, the reports on which it is to be based should be forwarded in writing. The value of the reports on the wheat crop will be much enhanced by a general statement regarding the character and prospects of the other food crops, as this will enable persons interested to draw their own conclusions as to the amount likely to be available for exportation. (G. I., R. & A., No. 20-4-82-A., dated 3rd March 1886; vide G. R. No. 2324, dated 25th idem.)

2. As regards the wheat reports, the dates prescribed have necessarily been chosen with reference to the requirements of the Punjab, the province in which the wheat crop comes latest to maturity. There is no objection to the Director of the Bombay Agricultural Department submitting his reports and placing them at the disposal of the mercantile community as soon as he can do so, though they can only be embodied in the Imperial forecasts at a somewhat later date. (G. I., R. & A., No. 554-A.-4-169, dated 9th June 1886; vide G. R. No. 4585, dated 26th idem.)

3. The following general instructions should be observed in the preparation and publication of seasonal reports on the oil-seed crops.

The crops which will be regularly reported on in future are linseed, rapeseed, and sesamum. But if

PART V.] [LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.]

in any province other oil-seeds of commercial importance are grown, their inclusion in the prescribed reports is unobjectionable, provided that they are separately shown. The report on linseed and rapeseed now incorporated with the wheat forecasts, should be separately published; the two crops should also be kept distinct and not treated together under the general head of oil-seeds.

For Bombay the Department of Land Records and Agriculture will submit reports on rapeseed and linseed in accordance with the instructions previously issued in the Circular of 3rd March 1886.

As regards sesamum, the Government of India desire to be furnished with three reports * similar in character to those already prepared for linseed and rapeseed from the provinces noted on the margin. The first report will give, in general terms, a character of the season and the state of the crops; the second will contain a fuller report on prospects and a rough estimate of area; and the third complete statistics of area and probable outturn. The dates which have been suggested, by the various provincial authorities, for the submission of the reports on sesamum, range from 1st August to 15th January, and the 15th August, 15th October, and 1st January will probably be found generally suitable, except in Madras, where the existing dates will be maintained.

A special difficulty in estimating area and outturn arises in the case of oil-seeds owing to the almost universal practice of growing them as mixed crops. In some provinces the areas of the several crops composing a mixture are already recorded separately, in others the areas under mixed crops are recorded in a lump for each field, and standard formulæ have been framed after experiment and local enquiry for calculating area and outturn of the crops composing the mixture. In such provinces there will be no difficulty in furnishing the necessary figures. But in the provinces where neither of these systems is in force, there may be difficulty in giving the areas under oil-seed grown as a mixed crop. In these cases the Government of India will not object to the statistics and information in the forecasts being restricted to the area on which the crop is grown unmixed, leaving the area and outturn of the mixed area to be roughly estimated at such proportion to the unmixed area as may have been determined by special enquiry. But apart from the requirements of forecast reports, the Government of India consider that in provinces where the mixed area of any crop is an important factor in the total production, measures should be taken in the interests of the accuracy of agricultural statistics at large to ensure a record of such areas, and the framing of careful standards for reducing them to an equivalent in unmixed areas.

(G. I., R. & A., No. 347-357 C., dated 13th March 1890; vide G. R. No. 2904, dated 29th April 1890.)

4. In circular dated the 3rd March 1886, (No. 20-4-82), the Governments of Bombay, North-Western Provinces and Oudh and Punjab, and the Administrations of the Central Provinces and Berár, were desired to furnish the Government of India with two reports on the cotton crop, viz., the first on the 15th July, showing the character of the crop, and the second on the 15th October, giving the fullest details available as to both the area and prospects of the crop. These dates having been found unsuited to the Bombay Presidency, they were altered to 10th September and 10th December for the early districts, and 10th October and 10th February for the late districts.

The expediency of publishing more frequent reports on the Indian cotton crop during the period the crop is on the ground, has recently been made the subject of a representation to the Secretary of State on behalf of merchants in the United Kingdom interested in the cotton trade. In forwarding this representation to the Government of India, His Lordship desired that the question should be considered whether monthly abstracts might not be published for the whole of India, giving estimated figures of area and probable outturn for each province, with totals for the whole of India.

The Government of India consider that some attempt should certainly be made to meet the wish of the commercial community in this country, as well as in the United Kingdom, for earlier and fuller information, and have arrived at the conclusion that no great disturbance of existing arrangements would be caused by the publication of four two-monthly reports, beginning with the period when the greater portion of the early crop has been sown and ending with the arrival of the season for the harvesting of the late crops. For provinces in which only the early variety is cultivated, three reports will suffice, but a fourth is necessary where the late varieties are also grown.

The Government of India have accordingly resolved that four general summaries shall be published, on the 20th August, 15th October, 15th December and 15th February. The first summary will contain an estimate of the area sown with the early crop, as compared with the normal area on that date, with remarks as to the general condition and prospects of sowings; the second, a corrected and completed estimate of the area of the early crop, and the sowings to date of the late crop, together with a report on the condition and prospects of both crops. The third summary will deal fully with the area and outturn of the early crop, and give further information regarding the condition and area of the late crops. The fourth and last summary will review the harvest of both early and late crops.

To admit of the punctual compilation of these summaries, the following separate reports* are required from the provinces on the dates mentioned :—

August 15th.—First report, early crops, from Madras, Bombay, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Punjáb, Central Provinces and Berár.

October 10th.—Second report, early crops, from Madras, Bombay, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Punjáb, Central Provinces and Berár. First report, late crops, from Madras and Bombay.

December 10th.—Final report, early crops, from Madras, Bombay, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Punjáb, Central Provinces and Berár. Second report, late crops, from Madras and Bombay.

February 10th.—Final report, late crops, Madras and Bombay.

The Directors of Local Departments of Land Records and Agriculture should use every effort to make these forecasts trustworthy sources of information to the public, and in the few instances where the revised dates entail the submission of earlier reports than are at present supplied, to secure their punctual issue. The dates have been determined with reference to the demand for early and reliable information, and to the necessity for uniformity in the period of reporting in order to allow of the publication of general summaries. For no province, however, has an earlier date been fixed than has been found possible by experience in other provinces similarly circumstanced.

The Government of India also desire that great care may be taken in every case to express the outturn in terms of "cleaned cotton," that is, cotton with the seeds extracted. For the return of areas over which cotton is sown as a mixed crop, attention should be had to the instructions furnished in Government of India, Revenue and Agricultural Department, Resolution No. 347-357 C-Agriculture of 13th March 1890, regarding the returns of mixed oil-seed crops. Figures which are estimates should invariably be shown as such, and the calculations of outturn should be systematically verified by the statistics of consumption and trade.

(G. I., R. & A., No. 358-369 C-Agriculture, dated 13th March 1890; vide G. R. No. 2904, dated 29th April 1890.)

5. All Political Officers attached to Native States should be impressed with the necessity of causing proper arrangements to be made for the supply to the Director of Agriculture in due time of the required statistics regarding their States for embodiment in his general crop telegrams. (G. R. No. 1816, dated 3rd March 1885.)

6. The Director of Land Records and Agriculture should state in the crop forecasts submitted by him whether or not figures for the Baroda State are included. (G. I., R. & A., No. 808-4-B-5-A., dated 27th April 1891; vide G. R. No. 3309, dated 13th May 1891.)

7. Crop forecasts should be prepared in all provinces on the system under which an average crop is denoted by one rupee. (G. I., R. & A., No. 129-A-7-197, dated 6th November 1885; vide G. R. No. 6685, dated 21st September 1886.)

8. The Government of India have decided that in future it shall be left to Local Governments and Administrations to fix the scale of notation to be used in forecasts of crops for themselves in accordance with local conditions, the object being to secure that the returns are in terms of a normal crop. To secure conformity with local usage, it may even be necessary to use different scales in different parts of the same province. This being so, it is obvious that the anna standard will no longer possess any fixed or uniform value, and will, therefore, be unsuitable for use in any published forecasts. In all future forecasts that may be furnished to the Government of India or the Director-General of Statistics the use of the anna notation may be entirely discontinued, and the American notation used in its stead, 100 being taken to represent a normal crop, and the estimated outturn being stated as a percentage of that crop. Indeed, there is reason to believe that, apart from the formal periodical forecasts, all estimates of crop-outturn furnished to the Government of India—such, for instance, as were reported in connection with the famine of 1896-97—are subject to the same uncertainty of standard; and in future, whenever outturn is mentioned in such cases, either the American notation may be used, or, if the anna scale is preferred, the standard on which it is based may be stated. A brief parenthesis (so many annas = normal) is quite sufficient.

It will be noticed that in the above instructions the word 'normal' has been substituted for 'average.' The normal crop has been defined as 'that crop which past experience has shown to be the most generally recurring crop in a series of years; the typical crop of the local area, the crop which the cultivator has a right (as it were) to expect, and with which he is (or should be) content, while if he gets more he has reason to rejoice, and if less he has reason to complain.' This will not necessarily correspond with the average crop of a series of years; which is indeed an arithmetical abstraction and may possibly never occur. For it is obvious that in a tract in which the agricultural standard is low and the harvest precarious, the yield of the year will fall below the normal, as above defined, more often and more largely than will be the case in a highly cultivated and well-irrigated tract, and that in the former case the average will probably be considerably below the normal, while in the latter it will probably approximate very closely to it. (G. I., R. & A., No. 9-27-4, dated 23rd October 1897; vide G. R. No. 725, dated 1st February 1898.)

In accordance with the foregoing instructions of the Government of India, 12 annas should be taken as representing a normal crop in all reports and returns submitted in future, and the attention of all officers should particularly be drawn to the distinction between a normal and an average crop. The necessary calculations for showing the estimates in the American notation will be made in the office of the Survey Commissioner and Director of Land Records and Agriculture while compiling the Presidency forecast reports for the Government of India. (G. R. No. 725, dated 1st February 1898.)

9. As it is desirable that the commercial community should obtain as early information as possible regarding the condition and prospects of the crops, the Agricultural Department should in future send a copy of the crop forecast to the principal newspapers in the province at the same time that they are telegraphed or forwarded by post to the Government of India.* The Agricultural Department should, however, not publish actual figures if estimated figures have previously been published by the Government of India. (G. I., R. & A., No. 25-A-5-2, dated 4th May 1887; vide G. R. No. 4159, dated 6th July 1887.)

10. The utility of forecasts is enhanced in proportion to the promptitude with which they reach the persons interested in the information which they contain. Moreover, where facilities for printing exist in the provinces, no appreciable advantage is gained from the printing and distribution of forecasts by the Government of India, while the delay due to the time occupied in transmission would be saved by direct distribution. In future, therefore, the direct distribution at present effected by the Local Agricultural Departments under the orders contained in Circular No. 25-A of 4th May 1887, should be extended so as to include the entire distribution now made by the Government of India.

The forecasts now reported* to the Government of India by telegram will continue to be so reported in order that the general summaries prepared and published by the Imperial Department of Revenue and Agriculture may be issued with punctuality. Other forecasts may be submitted either in manuscript or in print, provided they reach the Government of India by the prescribed dates.

It would be convenient if the Provincial reports and Imperial summaries could be uniform in size * Under later instructions (vide G. I., R. & A., No. 15-52-6, dated 23rd May 1895; G. R. No. 4678, dated 21st June 1895) these forecasts of crops are to be reported to the Director-General of Statistics.

11. The Government of India desire that in the final reports on the wheat crop information may be furnished in connection with the prices and general condition of the supply of food-grains in the Province. The main questions are—

(a) Whether the produce of the year's supply of food-grains has been much above or below the average;

(b) Whether the food stocks of former harvests are plentiful or not;

(c) Whether prices of food-grains generally have ruled higher or lower than usual; and

(d) What have been the causes which have caused increase or decrease of exports of wheat and how far has the movement been influenced by a scarcity or otherwise of food-grains.

(G. I., R. & A., No. 8-5-4-A., dated 30th March 1888; vide G. R. No. 2311, dated 17th April 1888.)

12. The District officers in Sind should state, in their forecast returns for wheat and cotton, the estimated yield per acre in pounds to enable the Director of Land Records and Agriculture to give complete statistics showing the outturn of the crops for the whole of the Presidency as desired by the Government of India. (G. R. No. 6354, dated 28th August 1889.)

13. In the forecasts of cotton crop published by Provincial Governments, the yield should be shown in bales of 400 pounds of clean cotton. (G. I., R. & A., No. 10-3 L-18-A., dated 4th June 1890; vide G. R. No. 4561, dated 30th idem.)

14. The first or preliminary forecasts of the cotton and oil-seed crops and the first and second reports on the prospects of the wheat crop should be transmitted to the Government * of India by telegraph. (G. I., R. & A., Nos. 24-3 L-28-A., dated 15th August 1890, and 1683-3 L-37-A., dated 29th October 1890; vide G. Rs. Nos. 6387, dated 9th September 1890, and 8238, dated 20th November 1890.)

15. The following form should be used in submitting the final crop forecasts of the Bombay Presidency. The appended memorandum of suggestions may be conformed to in the compilation of these forecasts as nearly as the circumstances of the Presidency admit. Particular importance is attached to the suggestions in paragraph 4. To the final forecast of the Bombay cotton crop, the Director of Land Records and Agriculture should append a statement showing district details.

* Under later instructions (vide G. I., R. & A., No. 15-52-6, dated 23rd May 1895; G. R. No. 4678, dated 21st June 1895) forecasts of cultivation and of outturn of crops are to be communicated to the Director-General of Statistics.

MEMORANDUM.

With the intention of securing greater accuracy in the system of estimating the outturn of harvests and uniformity in the exhibition of the statistics embodied in the final forecast reports on crops, the Government of India, in August 1891, called for information regarding the system adopted in each province and circulated a form of statement for criticism. The replies received afforded useful information and suggestions as to the method of calculating harvest yields.

2. The system generally followed is, that the area under crop being measured and accurately known, the outturn in annas is calculated by some officer for a certain area. The area and estimated outturn are reported to the Director of the Agricultural Department. For each area reported on, the Director has by him a standard of outturn per acre corresponding to a 16-anna crop, and by applying this he gets the estimated outturn. Thus if  $y$  represents the standard outturn per acre and a 12-anna crop on  $x$  acres is reported, the outturn is estimated at  $\frac{12}{16} x y$ . The area and estimated outturn of the province are then reported to the Government of India, by whom the provincial statistics are published in a combined form.

There are thus three items in the estimate, viz., the "area," the "fraction," and the "standard."

3. As regards the area, there exists in the village establishments of most provinces an agency capable of reporting the acreage of crops with great accuracy wherever the fields have been mapped and surveyed. But, although yearly diminishing in extent, there are still important tracts for which at present statistics are not available, owing to the absence of maps or the non-existence of trained village establishments. For these tracts the areas as well as the outturn cannot be more than an estimate. These area-estimates, once framed, are too often allowed to become stereotyped and repeated year after year without regard to the influence of exceptional seasons or changes in the economical condition of the tracts. They should be revised with care annually by comparison with the conditions prevailing in surrounding areas of a similar character for which accurate information is available, and by means of such special enquiries as may be possible. To this end the estimates of unsurveyed areas, where they are large and important, should be shown separately in the returns from the figures relating to surveyed areas and should not be merged in the latter. This separation is already carried out to a large extent in the returns of agricultural statistics for British India.

4. In dealing with the calculation of areas, two other matters in which practice varies, demand consideration, viz., (1) whether the area returned should be the area sown or that successfully cropped, and (2) in the case of forecast crops which are sown mixed with other crops, whether the total area covered with the mixed crops should be exhibited, or an area calculated to represent the acreage covered by the forecast crop only.

As regards (1) the general rule should be that the returns should exhibit the areas actually sown, whether the crop comes to maturity or not. The failure of the crop should affect, not its area, but its outturn. An exception to this rule will, however, be made when fields, owing to the failure of the first sowings, have been devoted to other crops. In this case the area first sown with the forecast crop may be omitted. As to (2), the areas covered by the several crops in a mixed field are at present estimated in various ways in the different provinces, and the most suitable method of calculation of them is a question of some difficulty. But for purposes at least of the forecast, the area to be returned must be the area covered by the forecast crop, exclusive of the area covered by the other crops with which it is mixed. However rough the estimate of the area of the forecast crop may be, it will be less far from the truth than a return of the area of the whole mixed field as the area covered by the single forecast crop.

5. The method of arriving at standards for the conversion of anna estimates is under separate consideration, in connection with the requisition received from the Secretary of State for India for periodical returns of the average outturn per acre of the principal crops. In view, however, of the fact that the accuracy of a standard bears necessarily an inverse ratio to the extent of the area for which it is framed, and that in some provinces extremely wide areas have been adopted for the framing of a single standard, it is desirable that some limit should be introduced as early as possible, in regard to the unit of area for which standards should be framed; and that ordinarily it should not be larger than a táluka or tahsil. To ensure the correct application of the standards, the areas for which fractional anna-estimates are made and reported should invariably correspond with those for which standards are framed. Experience has shown, moreover, that the anna-estimates of village officers, when not systematically tested, become untrustworthy and misleading; and where they are not actually prepared by a responsible local official of rank, they should always be carefully checked by means of information independently collected from landholders. The resulting outturns for the province should also be tested in the office, in which the computation is made, by the light of trade returns, estimates of consumption (where such exist), and other cognate statistics. If the comparison indicates palpably misleading results in the crop returns, no time should be lost in amending the standards for the crops concerned.

6. Prefixed to this memorandum is the form of statement which should accompany the final forecast for each crop reported on. In previous instructions it has been laid down that the normal area and outturn should be calculated on the average of the last five years exclusive of exceptional seasons. Statistics are, however, now available for a considerable series of years, and it is no longer necessary to adhere to this scale. The normal area and outturn should be taken as the average of the whole period for which reliable data are forthcoming, irrespective of the character of the season, but the period upon which the calculation rests should be indicated in the return.

PART VI.—CROP EXPERIMENTS.

1. In carrying out crop experiments nothing with regard to the localities should be suffered to transpire until the experiments are actually made. No crop is to be cut except in the presence and under the personal supervision in the field of a European officer or Deputy Collector, before whom also the threshing out of the crop should be made, and its weight and the area from which it was cut noted down in his own handwriting. It is particularly enjoined on all officers who may be called upon to conduct crop experiments, that Government rely upon their taking a personal interest in the matter and carrying out to the letter the instructions of the Survey Commissioner.

The expenditure need not be restricted to the payment of labourers: a present to the owners or occupants of land whose crops may be operated on, or to any other person who may give zealous assistance, is allowable.

(G. R. No. 3859, dated 6th August 1872.)

2. Government will not lightly accept any excuse for failure to make crop experiments in any district for any year. The subject is most important. (G. R. No. 776, dated 27th January 1883.)

3. The reports on crop experiments should be submitted in print. The Superintendent, Government Central Press, should as usual apply to Government, as soon as he has received the manuscript reports, for instructions as to the number of copies to be printed. (G. R. No. 6752, dated 12th September 1883.)

4. The Governor in Council must impress on all officers concerned the necessity of care and attention in making crop experiments. The absence of such care and attention to the rules entails waste of time and labour, and gives absolutely valueless results. Besides the importance of the results in connection with the incidence of the land revenue and the condition of the peasantry, the habits of observation formed and the information about agriculture gained in making the experiments are invaluable to Government officers, and the evidence of accuracy, patience and intelligence or the want of them which the experiment afford is carefully noted by Government. (G. R. No. 4755, dated 8rd July 1886.)

5. The Director of Land Records and Agriculture, besides criticising experiments after they are made, should keep a general watch over the experiments proposed to be made in any year. He should draw up a programme, in consultation with Collectors, of the experiments considered necessary, the talukas in which and the times at which they are to be made, and should endeavour, by communicating at the proper times with the Collectors concerned, to prevent the matter being lost sight of, as, it is feared,

PART VI.] [LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.]

is too often the case, especially when transfers of District officers have recently been made. Special experiments, no doubt, take up more time than many officers can spare. Allowance must be made for this fact in drawing up the programme mentioned above; but these experiments should, nevertheless, be considered as necessary. (G. R. No. 2823, dated 13th April 1889.)

6. Where the prescribed programme has not been carried out, Commissioners should comment on such omissions by District officers when submitting their remarks on the Director's report. (G. R. No. 2253, dated 31st March 1891.)

7. The Director of Land Records and Agriculture should submit his annual report on crop experiments by the end of the revenue year, so that Government might have the results of crop experiments before them when reviewing the Annual Administration. Reports of the District officers. A further advantage would be that the criticisms of the Director could be communicated to experimenters before the following season's experiments were conducted, and an officer would have the opportunity of repeating in the same locality and on the same crop the experiment of the previous year, with special view to the avoidance of any errors pointed out by the Director. To enable the Director to submit his report to Government in time in accordance with the above instructions, the officers conducting experiments should transmit their reports to that officer immediately on completion of the experiments. (G. Rs. Nos. 2341, dated 11th April 1890, and 3377, dated 15th May 1890.)

8. The possibility of an officer losing his notes or going on leave, or being transferred to another district before reporting on the experiments he has conducted or subsequently supplying information required to explain his report, should be obviated, and, therefore, the reports should be submitted by experimenters immediately on completion of the experiments. The Director will then be in a position to, and should, make further references to experimenters with the object of clearing up any points in their reports which appear doubtful. (G. R. No. 849, dated 7th February 1888.)

9. In the case of ordinary experiment unless the officer conducting the experiment has leisure to deal fully with the question, no attempt should be made at compiling details of cost of cultivation. An ordinary experiment ends with the ascertainment of the ratio which the Government assessment bears to the gross produce. Calculations as to cost of cultivation in such experiments are, therefore, of use only in so far as they afford a means of comparison with similar calculations made in the case of special experiments, and if they are inaccurate, they are obviously worse than useless. (G. R. No. 2541, dated 11th April 1890.)

[PART VI.]

In the case of ordinary, as well as special experiments, it would be useful if information regarding the rent, as distinct from assessment, paid for the land in question could be given whenever possible. (G. R. No. 2253, dated 31st March 1891.)

10. The form in which the quinquennial return showing the average yield per acre of the principal crops in India will be submitted* is that given in Appendix I to this Circular, and the crops of which the outturn will be shown are those noted against the names of the respective provinces in Appendix II.

These quinquennial returns will be based on information collected every year by enquiry or actual experiment. Rules for the conduct of crop-cuttings have been in force for some years in Bombay and certain other provinces. Copies of the rules adopted in Bombay are annexed, Appendix I.

APPENDIX I.

NOTES.—(a) Crops should, as far as possible, be classed and entered in the order adopted in Table A. 3 of the Annual Agricultural Tables.

(b) The yield should be that of the crop when sown unmixed. In each column the estimate given should be that of the average outturn on average soil in a year of average character as deduced from a consideration of the information obtained or experiments made during the years under review; so that when multiplied by the average area cropped it may give as near an approximation as possible to the outturn of the crop in an average year.

(c) It is not necessary that estimates of outturn of each crop should be made for every district; they may be given for selected districts only.

(d) Columns 3 and 4—Provincial Estimate.—Where the outturn of the crop has been estimated for each district, the average outturn of the province can be estimated by multiplying each district outturn by the area cropped in each district and dividing the total outturns by the total area cropped in the province. Where the outturn has not been estimated for each district, the best estimate possible should be made.

(e) Columns 3, 6, 8, &c.—In the case of crops not ordinarily irrigated these columns may be left blank.

(f) Column 5.—Will be obtained by multiplying column 3 by the irrigated area cropped, adding column 4 multiplied by the unirrigated area cropped, and dividing the sum of the above by the total area cropped.

(g) A brief memorandum stating the sources of the estimates and the manner in which they have been calculated should accompany the return.

* Under G. I., R. & A., No. 15-52-6, dated 23rd May 1895 (G. R. No. 4678, dated 21st June 1895), this return is to be forwarded to the Director-General of Statistics.

NOTE.—Returns are required for crops marked a and are not required for crops marked b. There is no objection, however, to Provinces ascertaining the yield of other crops besides those of which returns are required and including them in the return.

The yield given should be in all cases that of the main product of the crop (e.g., grain, manufactured gur or jaggery, cleaned cotton, &c.): if any estimate can be made of the outturn of by-products (e.g., straw, fodder, &c.), these should be added below the estimate of the main product.

STANDING ORDERS ON CROP EXPERIMENTS (BOMBAY).

Introductory.

1. The crop experiments made by Revenue officers, not below the rank of Deputy Collector, are of two kinds—ordinary and special. The former deals with a selected survey number or subordinate number. The latter deals with all the numbers making up a selected holding, and is based on one or more ordinary experiments made on holding or even in part, as will be explained (para. 27) on fields not contained in the holding under enquiry.

A.—Ordinary Experiments.

2. The objects of ordinary experiments are: (1) to ascertain the outturn of the whole number by cutting the crop or crops on small accurately measured areas; and (2) after making a careful valuation of the outturn of both principal and by-products to show the incidence of the assessment fixed by the Survey and Settlement Department on the value of the gross produce.

NOTE.—By continuous attention year by year, by ledgering the results with notes as to the character of the season, and by careful deductions from numerous recorded results most trustworthy information as to the varying outturn of staple crop and even of minor crops, as to customary rotations, crop mixtures, catch crops, double cropping, and the like will be gleaned; and the burden of the land tax justly estimated.

Short Rules and Cautions.

3. Read over the instructions printed on the standard form carefully and fill in all the information asked for in the headings to the columns.

4. Do not select a field with an abnormally poor crop, but seek to choose a crop which represents a fair average for the season.

5. Show how you made your selection. Describe shortly the various steps taken in the conduct of the experiment so as to prove that you have maintained the closest personal supervision and have taken due care to prevent any tampering with the cut crop.

6. Remember that you are to estimate the output of a whole field by tests on small areas. Be very careful then in measuring, always using chain and cross staff; and if the crop is at all uneven, as it generally is, make up the area of test by patches cut with discrimination in different parts of the fields, but do not cut any patch less than two gunthas, else you risk error.

7. Choose areas of which 40 gunthas is a multiple, to save yourself unnecessary labour in calculations, but do not neglect the prescribed minimum (vide remarks on column 8 of Standard Form), else your trouble will be fruitless; and do not err on the other side by cutting very large areas, which will take unnecessary time and labour.

8. Do not attempt to ascertain the cost of cultivation, or the incidence of assessment on net produce, unless your ordinary experiment is to fit in with and help a special experiment, or unless you have unusual facilities.

9. Show simply, but fully, how you arrived at the rate of seeding, rotation, &c.; in fact explain each entry in the tabular statement, so that it may be accepted without lurking suspicion of inaccuracy.

10. Note that the entry (column 12) of local estimate in annas is not to be made with reference to other fields, but is one based on the capabilities of the area of experiment, which vary with the season.

But in your report you should also compare the crop with that of similar crops of the village or taluka of the same season, in order to show how near you have been able to select an average crop of the season (see rule 4 above).

11. Be careful to weigh or measure grain and seeds well dried. The measure is always a heaped measure. If practicable, have the measure filled by a grain-dealer and weigh the contents in a carefully tested balance with Government Rupees as a counterpoise. Repeat the filling and weighing 3 or 4 times for the sake of accuracy. Do this about a week after the crop has been threshed, and keep for that purpose about  $1\frac{1}{2}$  sers of the grain or seed.

12. When the test is done, send the exact contents of the local ser to the Director, Land Records and Agriculture, with your bill of costs or report, noting the test results.

13. Do not confound the weight ser and the measure ser, and remember that the weight of the contents of a measure ser will vary with different grains or seeds, and even with different qualities of the same.

14. Where the weight ser is customary, it will suffice if 2 or 3 tolas weight of the grain or seed of the experiment are sent, so that the sample may be examined.

15. In the case of rice, ground-nut, and other crops, where the crop is generally sold by the producer with its husk or shell, be careful to show whether your entries are for the unhusked or unshelled product, or for that with the shell or husk removed.

16. In sugarcane tests show number of canes, weight of canes topped and stripped for the mill, weight of tops, weight of juice, and finally weight of gul, which is the principal product. The by-product is the fresh tops used as fodder. Other by-products need not be noticed.

17. When the incidence (column 27) is very high or very low, comment fully and carefully, showing the reason or reasons, remembering that one of the principal objects is to test the burden of the assessment. When the selected crop is a poor one in the rotation, or when it is a second crop after one reaped early in the season, or when it is a subordinate row crop, be very careful to intimate the fact clearly.

B.—Special Experiments.

18. The objects of special experiments are not unlike, but are more extensive than those of ordinary experiments. The special experiment is, as shown above, one on a selected holding. The typical holding is one fairly representing the average agricultural holding of the locality cultivated by a holder, who subsists and supports his family on it, and who has no other means of support than the crops raised on his holding. But the typical holding is hard to find at the time which the experimenter can devote to the enquiry.

19. Experimenters are free to select holdings, which may greatly differ from the typical one described, e. g., (1) a holding cultivated entirely by tenants; (2) or entirely by hired labourers; (3) or one occupying only a portion of the time of the holder who lives partly by day labour or by some trade. Again holdings, cultivated by tenants vary in character according to the nature of the agreement between the holder and the tenant.

20. In the typical holding and in holdings which can by careful manipulation be reduced to the type, the main object is to show by exhaustive enquiry what the standard of living of the holder is as compared with that of the day labourer.

21. In other holdings, the main object is to show whether the holding gives a fair return for the labour and money expended on it. Other objects are to show the varying conditions under which the land is sub-let, the profits of investing in land, the rent received by investors or superior holders compared with the assessment, and the like.

22. The enquiries necessitated by special experiments should throw light on the varying methods of tillage; the kinds of manure and the mode of application; the customary usage as to employment and payment of hired labour for weeding, harvesting, &c.; the number of acres tilled by one pair of bullocks; indication of improvement in the methods of tillage by the use of improved implements for cultivation or for preparing the crop for the market; the increase in the growth of crops for export rather than for local consumption; the introduction of new crops, sales of standing crops; in fine, everything connected with the practice and improvement of agriculture.

Short Rules and Cautions.

23. A special experiment comprises one or more ordinary experiments. The details for the component parts of the special experiment should be entered in the prescribed form as for so many ordinary experiments, and the instructions under the head "Ordinary Experiments" are to be observed as far as they are applicable.

24. The size of the holding to be selected for experiment will depend very much on the time which the officer is able to spare, and on the average holding of the tract. It is not convenient to choose very small holdings, while, for obvious reasons, very large ones cannot satisfactorily be dealt with.

25. Officers are advised at first to carry out experiments on holdings cultivated wholly or for the most part with one or two of the chief crops of the district. After making several such experiments, an officer will find it easier to experiment on holdings cultivated with a variety of crops; assisted, as he would be, by the results, mutatis mutandis, of the simpler experiments.

26. Where the holding comprises several survey numbers cultivated with the same crop or with different crops, happening to be ripe for cutting at the time of experiment, plots should, if possible, be selected in each field. This should be specially attended to, if widely differing rates of assessment on the several fields disclose the fact that the soils have been classified as of varying quality and productiveness. Experimenters should be careful to deduct in special experiments the unsown portions of arable lands.

27. When the average produce of each field has been estimated, as far as possible, by the tests made, it will frequently be found that the outturn of a row crop, or other subordinate crop, cannot be ascertained. Experimenters should endeavour to supply the deficiency in the best method available. There is a large number of careful experiments in the yearly reports, which may be utilized (provided the results are intelligently applied), or later on in the season the experimenter may find it easy to take an ordinary experiment elsewhere on a crop similar to the unestimated crop. Such experiment should then be embodied with the other component parts of the special experiment. Foresight must be used to prevent, if possible, the choice of a holding containing a crop which cannot be directly or indirectly estimated, unless, indeed, its area is insignificant.

28. The next step (after filling in the tabular statement) is to calculate the gross outturn of the holding. First show exactly the area and assessment of all the component parts of the holding and then compute the outturn of principal and by-products for each part and the seed used for each crop.

29. From this point the treatment will vary according to the nature of the holding. If it be a holding of the kind described above (paragraph 18), then make deductions in kind for (1) seed used, (2) fodder required for plough cattle. Value the balance according to the entries of the tabular statement. If the holder has borrowed seed to be repaid on the crop with interest, deduct the amount to be repaid rather than that actually used.

30. The balance left must be now stated in rupees. Deduct all items of cash expenditure:—

e. g., Local Funds, Irrigation charges, manure purchased; cattle food, as cotton seed which is purchased; hired labour paid in cash or kind. If in kind, the value of the grain, &c., given should be computed. Payments to balutedars also converted into cash.

Note.—Payments in kind may be deducted with seed and fodder if found more convenient.

31. The balance after the cash deductions goes to pay assessment and to support the holder and his family. Deduct assessment (exclusive of Local Funds, charges of Irrigation Department for water of Government tanks and canals) and then show the number of men and women and children in the holder's family dependant on the holding for support.

Estimate requirements for food, clothing, condiments, &c. Compare the standard of comfort thus disclosed with that of the day labourer.

If milch cattle are kept, they prove an increased standard of comfort. Estimate their requirements for keep and show how it is met. If their milk is sold in part, show how far this meets their keep.

32. If the holder is in debt, show how contracted and how being paid off. Whether increasing or diminishing.

33. Turning now to other kinds of experiments, all that can be done is to give one or two examples, bearing in mind the remarks in paragraphs 19 and 21 above.

Case A.—Holding of day labourer or village artisan partly supporting himself by agriculture and possessing land and cattle of his own. Show the area and the assessment of the land and the outturn with value of each portion. Make deductions as above, but do not suppose that the by-products will necessarily feed the cattle for the whole year. If they are not sufficient, show how the cattle are used, when not engaged in the holding. Show as nearly as you can how many days the holder and members of his family are engaged in cultivating the land. Take no notice whatever of the rest. Then show what balance is left to the holder, as a return for the labour and time expended, and comment on the number of months this return will keep him and those of his family, either too young to work or working on the land, and discuss how he supports himself and them for the rest of the year.

If in such a holding the holder has no cattle, the necessary modifications, e.g., cost of hire, should be made.

Case B.—Superior holder sub-letting land at a grain or cash rent. Show agreement between holder and tenant. Show after calculation of outturn the net receipts of holder and compare the value with the assessment. Turning to the tenant, show the cost of labour, human and animal, spent on the cultivation, and cash payment by tenant. Divide outturn between tenant and holder according to agreement, and comment on the return from the tenant's share, for the labour and money spent by him.

Cost of Cultivation.

34. In all special experiments, whether the cost of cultivating each individual crop is an essential part of the enquiry or not, experimenters are expected to make the estimate for each individual crop or crop mixture.

35. First ascertain what operations were actually required and performed for each crop or crop mixture.

36. Study the sample entries for cost given in the Appendix to Report for 1889-90. Show how many bullocks were yoked to the plough, or harrow or seed-drill, and how many men, &c., required.

37. For each operation ascertain by inquiry about how many acres can be covered in a day or, if less than one acre a day, what portion of an acre can be covered in one day.

38. Base the charges for man or woman or child on the local rates for hired labour; so the hire for a pair of bullocks.

39. Show cost of watering, weeding, &c., in the same way.

PART VI.] [LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.

40. Reduce all estimates to the cost per acre, and show by remarks information sufficient to allow of the calculation being fully checked.

41. No form is prescribed, because no one form can be applied to all estimates. The form recommended on page 41 of Report for 1887-88, or those shown in the Appendix to Report of 1889-90, may be selected, or another form may be devised, if necessary, provided home and hired labour are distinguished when necessary, and provided the rates of charges are specified and explained.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

Column 4.—Show total area, then pot-kharāb, and then the difference, which is the total assessed area—V. F. No. I, columns 4, 5, 14, Manual of Revenue Accounts.

In mixed numbers; e.g., numbers assessed partly as rice or garden and partly as dry-crop, show area and assessment in detail for each class of land—V. F. No. I, columns 7-12.

Column 5.—Write below figure of assessment "Original" or "Revision Survey" as the case may be.

In case of land paying only a quit-rent, show full assessment—V. F. No. I, column 15.

Columns 6, 7.—Show whether by well, canal, tank or channel. If water-rate is fixed and shown in V. F. No. I, column 13, enter in column 7. If charge is made by Irrigation Department, leave column 7 blank and show in column 6. If land is irrigated but no special rate levied, show reasons in column 6, e.g., private well made since settlement.

Column 8.—Area not to be less than 8 gunthas in dry-crop or 4 gunthas in rice or garden. In special experiments the aggregate area of tests to be generally up to 5 per cent. of the holding.

Column 9.—Give the name according to column 2 of the list appended to V. F. No. 16, and the vernacular name of the variety.

When the area selected for experiment (column 8) contains more crops than one, show in column 9 all the crops and in report explain the nature of the mixture. If it consists of one crop with rows of a subordinate crop, find the proportionate area under each crop by counting the rows. If the seed of two or more crops was sown mixed, find the proportionate area by considering the seed sown. Cases will occur where both means of ascertaining the proportionate area must be used.

Divide the area of column 8 among the ingredients of the mixture and show the division in column 9.

Column 10.—Here enter in order of rotation crops sown in previous years, e.g., 1 wheat, 2 jowāri, and 3 gram. The figures 1, 2, 3 means 1st, 2nd and 3rd year. If in any year two crops are taken off the same piece of land, the two should be bracketed, thus 2 { (1) Rice }
(2) Wheat. }

If the rotation cannot be ascertained, write "undefined" and enter the crops as shown in V. F. No. 3 for the last three years in the manner above described. Where the rotation includes one or more years of fallow, show the customary fallows.

Column 12.—The estimate is to show the anna valuation of the crop as compared with former crops on the same field.

LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.] [PART VI.

Column 15.—Amount of manure per acre should generally be shown. By time of application is meant whether before or after sowing, as a top dressing.

Column 16.—If seed sown first in seed-bed and then seedlings transplanted, show proportionate area of seed-bed to acre of transplantation, and then calculate entry for the column.

Column 18.—Where weight ser and not measure ser customary, erase "measure" and substitute "weight."

Column 19.—Below entry of equivalent weight write 1 ser =            tolas, viz., the result of the actual test on which the entry is calculated.

Column 20.—Useful, that is useful as fodder or saleable for other purposes.

Columns 21-22.—Experimenters are not authorized to accept the prices recorded in the "Prices current" published in the Government Gazette for the purposes of entering the money value of the crop, but should ascertain it at the market town, which should also be the usual market of the produce. The value obtaining on the date of experiment, with the name of the market town at which it was ascertained, should be shown in these columns, and for purposes of check show the market rates both for principal and by-products in lbs. per rupee on which valuations are made. If fodder is sold in bundles, &c., find by test average weight of bundle, give price per 100 bundles, and calculate and show also price in lbs. per rupee.

Column 26.—See note on columns 6 and 7. The average assessment per acre should be calculated on the class of land dealt with in the experiment. Fluctuating canal-rates, sometimes levied according to the season for which water is taken, and sometimes according to the crop raised and calculated at rates liable to be modified from time to time, should not be considered as forming part of the standard assessment, but should be shown in column 6, as stated above.

Column 27.—Show to two places of decimals, not in rupees, annas, and pies.

Special Bombay Rules for the preparation of a Quinquennial Return showing the average outturn per acre of principal crops.

Report of the Director of Land Records and Agriculture under paragraph 6 of Government of India letter No. 3-45, dated 20th February 1892 (Revenue and Agricultural Department).

The crops proposed for each district are those shown in the provisional statements attached to this office letter to Government, No. 1237, dated 27th May 1892.

2. It may be possible eventually to distinguish between crops grown on 1st, 2nd and 3rd class soil; for the present only the district average can be shown.

3. The provisional form of return shows outturn in each district and not for Representative Districts as implied in paragraph 1 of the Government of India letter. In the Bombay Presidency proper, it is not necessary or desirable to make any limitation as the formulæ and crop experiments alike extend to every district.

4. Mixed crops will in no case be returned as such. Both under the Revenue Manual and in Crop Experiments the several components of such crops are dealt with separately.

5. The form proposed is generally suitable as it stands.

LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.] [PART VI.

11. Collectors should take steps to have the programmes observed as strictly as the circumstances of the season will allow. Only in cases where special circumstances exist should any deviation be allowed.

Copies of the programmes of crop experiments, which are annually settled by the Director, in consultation with the Collectors, should be communicated to the Commissioners to enable them to exercise proper supervision over the operations allotted to each officer. The Director, to whom the reports are forwarded immediately on completion of the experiment, should, when necessary, call for further information or verification of details, and in the absence of other defects, results should not be excluded because they differ materially from formulæ, the accuracy of which has not yet been established.

LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.] [PART VII.

PART VII.—AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENTS.

1. The recommendations of the Statistical Conference regarding the system of carrying out, and reporting agricultural experiments were briefly:—

- (a) That agricultural experiments should be systematically prosecuted in every province where adequate machinery for the purpose exists, and that "areas should be set aside in every province for the trial of agricultural experiments with a view to obtaining scientifically accurate results," it being left to Local Governments, subject to the principles laid down by the Government of India, to decide whether such areas should be situated on estates under Government management or on experimental farms.
  - (b) That as it is important to obtain and exhibit comparative results, care should be taken that all conditions other than those appertaining to the novelty itself should be, so far as possible, identical on the two areas.
  - (c) That in the management of the experimental farms, undue stress should not be laid on financial results, no portion of the area being necessarily managed with the sole object of obtaining a net profit on the outlay, and that, therefore, to emphasize their character such farms should, in future, be termed "experimental" rather than "model" farms.
  - (d) That with a view to economy the area under experiment on each farm should be the smallest consistent with the object in view—that of obtaining trustworthy results.
  - (e) That reports on experimental farms should be strictly confined to a description of the working of the farms and to a clear and accurate account of the experiments made, excluding the discussion of all points requiring the orders of Government; and that the reports might most conveniently take the form of one progress report for each of the two main agricultural seasons of the year, supplemented by an annual report of a somewhat fuller character.
  - (f) That uniformity should, so far as possible, be observed in regard to farm returns and accounts.
2. The points on which the opinions of Local Governments and Administrations were specially desired were—(1) whether experimental farms should be the subject of a report after each of the principal harvests, supplemented by a full annual report; (2) what forms should be adopted to show the results of farming and experiments; and (3) how far the financial results of working should be taken as tests of success.
3. As to point (1) the Governor General in Council is led to the conclusion that one annual record is sufficient for submission to the Government of India, though there is no reason why the record should not be brought out in parts after each harvest, should the Local Government consider this arrangement desirable for provincial purposes. In accordance with the principles put forward by the Conference, the record of the experiments should be brief, concise and positive, and should not be complicated by the discussion of questions of a speculative or administrative character. The Government of India would prefer, therefore, that if no objection is offered to this course by the Governments and Administrations concerned, reports by officers connected with Agricultural Departments or Government farms should be distinctly divided into two sections, of which the first or main section containing the body of the report and dealing with the administration of the farms or questions requiring the orders of superior authority, should be submitted to the Local Government in the ordinary course, and the second or subordinate section, containing the bare record of experimental results, should, with a view to the early publication of statistical results, be forwarded directly by the Departmental Officer to the Government of India, to all Local Governments and to other Agricultural Departments, and should, at the same time, be made available to the public through Agricultural Papers, Government Gazettes, or by other means.

4. The opinions expressed by Local Governments indicate that it is difficult, or at any rate premature, to prescribe any definite forms in complete detail for the record of experiments. At the same time, in order that proper attention may be ensured to the principles laid down by the Calcutta Conference and approved by the Government of India, and with a view to secure an amount of uniformity sufficient to admit of the intelligible collation of results in the Central Office of the Revenue and Agricultural Department, it is desired that in framing the record of experiments the following rules may be observed:—

(1) The record should be termed the “Record of Experiments of the Experimental Farm in the <sup>Province</sup> <sub>Presidency</sub> of (half) year ending .”

(2) The results of each experiment should be embodied in the record in a form of which the first column should invariably be headed “Object of Experiment.” In this column should appear such entries as these:—

“To test Swedish plough B pattern.”

“To test effects of selected cotton-seed.”

“To test value of gypsum as manure.”

(3) The second column should be headed “Point or Points in which treatment of experimental area differed from ordinary native treatment.” Examples of entries are:—“sugar-canes planted, 1 foot apart instead of 6 inches.”

LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.] [PART VII.

"X plough used three times instead of native plough ten times."

(4) The form should also contain three columns showing—

(a) Results obtained by ordinary native method in weight, value, &c., per acre, per hour, &c.

(b) Results obtained from experiments in weight, value, &c., per acre, per hour, &c.

(c) Percentage of difference per acre, per hour, &c.

(5) All statistics in the record of experiments should be given under English denominations of weights and measures. No vernacular terms should on any account be employed.

(6) The total area under experiment in all farms in each Presidency and Province must be shown.

5. The following are examples of the entries prescribed by Rules (2), (3) and (4) :—

|   | Column 1.                                           |    | Column a.                                                      | Column b.                                            | Column c.                     |
|---|-----------------------------------------------------|----|----------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 1 | To show result of adding gypsum to ordinary manure. | .. | Net value profits 20 per acre.                                 | Net value profits 25 per acre.                       | 25 per cent. gain in profits. |
| 2 | To test X sugar mill.                               | .. | Amount of cane juice extracted by native mill per hour 40 lbs. | Amount of juice extracted by X mill per hour 44 lbs. | 10 per cent. gain in juice.   |

It is evident that in the columns (a), (b) and (c) results may be shown in more than one way : thus, in the case of field produce, the difference in outturn might be shown per acre without reference to the difference in cost of treatment; or again the difference in outturn of grain might be shown without reference to the outturn in straw. As a rule, however, it is desirable that whatever other results may be recorded, the column (c) should, if the calculation is not too troublesome, include the percentage of the loss or profit entailed in money per acre, per hour, &c. Thus in the second of the above examples the real value of the X mill cannot be gauged unless the cost of working it, as compared with the cost of working the native mill, be taken into account.

If there has been no comparative experiment, columns (a) and (c) must be left blank, but the Government of India desires to draw prominent attention to the second of the recommendations of the Conference cited above. The occasions on which columns (a) and (c) are left blank should be few.

6. The importance of stating the results of every experiment in the terms of a common unit must not be overlooked. Thus it is of little practical use to state that one method gave 2 maunds, 20 seers on  $\frac{3}{4}$ th of a bigha, while another resulted in 3 maunds,

PART VII.] [LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.

2 seers on 2 acres. The general reader for whose information the record is to be published, however much he may be interested in the question, will not, as a rule, and indeed cannot be expected to take the trouble himself to reduce these statistics to an intelligible form. In the above example the results should in each case be shown as so much per acre.

7. The advantage of the above method of record may be exemplified by the following illustration. It is desired by the Government of India to collect the statistical evidence obtained each year in each province as to the advantage of modifying the native plough. If the percentage of outturn of profit per acre due to the use of English or American ploughs (including native ploughs modified on Western patterns) can be readily found in some one column of the record of every experimental farm throughout the country, it will be a matter of no difficulty to collate the results obtained in all parts of India and to deduce statistical evidence of a decisive character in favour of modifying the native plough or the reverse. The net or average advantage (or loss) can be expressed in a single line of figures.

8. The Government of India see no reason to change the views expressed in the previous Resolution on the question of finance. It is quite impossible that every experiment can be financially successful: on the contrary, the difficulty of procuring cheap labour on a Government farm, the improbability of initial success in introducing an untried implement or method under new conditions, before time has been given for the modifications necessary to bring it into accordance with those conditions, and the existence of unsuspected causes which may induce complete failure, render it impossible to expect a profit upon the purely experimental area. For this reason the Government of India desire that strict effect should be given to the views of the Conference that the experimental area should, if maintained at Government expense, be restricted within the narrowest limits, and that the results should be recorded in a manner which will ensure accurate information being presented in the forms employed. The Government of India cannot sympathize with any measures which involve the conduct of doubtful experiments entailing either lavish expenditure or a loose and vague record of results. For this reason they wish that the record of the experimental area should be kept entirely distinct from the report on model or demonstration farms. Upon these latter the positive results of experiments may be usefully tried with a view to financial profit, and discredit should attach to any financial failure upon them not justified by very exceptional or unforeseen causes, such as a draught, cattle-murrain, &c. Any continued failure should lead to their contraction or discontinuance. It is only on these conditions that the Government of India can believe in the utility of expending public money upon agricultural experiments. It was very distinctly pointed out in the Resolution of the Government of India No.  $\frac{6}{340-50}$  G. of the 8th December 1881, that "agricultural improvements" must for a considerable time be looked upon as a subsidiary duty of Agricultural Departments, and while the Government of India admit that experiments in agriculture (as fully proved at Rothamstead and elsewhere) owe a great part of their value to the extent of the period over which they are tried, and should, for that reason, be taken in hand at an early date, it cannot approve of any large outlay upon them which must, however useful in its remote results, be immediately unremunerative.

(G. I., R. & A., No. 1431 A-77-4, dated 28th December 1885; vide G. R. No. 935, dated 4th February 1836.)

2. As many important experiments are totally unsusceptible of tabulation in the manner laid down in the Government of India's Circular Resolution No. 143 $\frac{1}{2}$ A-77-4, dated 28th December 1885, the Superintendents of Government Farms are allowed full discretion as to the manner in which they shall exhibit the results of experiments, but to the report describing in detail the objects and the progress of experiments, an abstract should be added, tabulating the results in the manner prescribed as far as possible, and cutting from the body of the report the results of experiments not susceptible of tabulation in a concise, brief and positive form. (G. R. No. 2520, dated 1st April 1886.)

3. The method of instituting a comparison between yields on the basis of 100 as shown in the appended paragraph 5 of the review by the Director of the Department of Agriculture and Commerce, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, of the report of the Cawnpore Experimental Farm for the kharif season of 1883, is a simple and convenient one, and may be adopted by Agricultural Departments whenever it is convenient:—

"5. The results from deep and shallow ploughing for cotton confirm those for last year, and show, though not perhaps to the extent that might have been expected, that the advantage of a moderately deep ploughing is even greater in a dry year like the last than in a year of ordinary rainfall. Taking 100 as the yield from two shallow ploughings, the proportions of the yield to that obtained by one ploughing at different depths have been as follows:—

|                       | Year. | Shallow. | 5-inch. | 9-inch. |
|-----------------------|-------|----------|---------|---------|
| Farm ... ..           | 1882  | 100      | 114·8   | 107·6   |
| ...                   | 1883  | 100      | 118·1   | 113·9   |
| Common cultivator ... | 1883  | 100      | 112·3   | 112·8   |

(G. I., R. & A., No. 81-A., dated 4th July 1884; vide G. R. No. 5965, dated 23rd idem.)

4. The farm attached to the College of Science, Poona, should be transferred to the Agricultural Department. The Principal, College of Science

PART VII.] [LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.]

Poona, will continue to be consulted only on such questions arising in the farm management as concern its educational functions, and on all such questions the Director of Land Records and Agriculture will be careful to regard the Principal's wishes. (G. R. No. 2190, dated 10th April 1888.*)

5. The Collectors should give a short account of any experiments in poudrette that may be made, in the annual report on the Administration of Municipalities within their districts. (G. R. No. 1037, dated 7th February 1891.)

6. Portions of the Agricultural Chemist's Inspection notes which discuss the results of any experiments carried out on experimental farms in the Bombay Presidency should be included in the annual reports on experimental farms. (G. I., R. & A., No. 234-88-4, dated 28th January 1899: vide G. R. No. 1455, dated 23rd February 1899.)

* It was stated in this Resolution that His Excellency the Governor had consented to the transfer of the old Botanical Gardens to the Agricultural Department, subject to the reservation that the gardens should preserve their present character and be open at all times to the occupants of the Government House, that the produce of the mango trees planted by the then administration should be reserved to Government House, and that the ornamental character of the gardens should not be interfered with if they were kept for grazing and grass-cutting and for ensilage experiments.

PART VIII.—AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS.

1. The Statistical Conference of 1883 recommended the adoption of an uniform scale of colours for the illustration of percentages in maps prepared for the representation of agricultural statistics. A scale was accordingly prescribed by the Government of India in their Resolution No. 27-16-3, dated 21st March 1885. This scale is a simple ascending scale, and will generally be employed in showing percentages above zero of rainfall, crops, irrigation, and the like, over different areas. The amount of difference in percentage to be indicated by the different colours in the scale is left to the discretion of the Local Governments and Administrations. The maps are to be coloured by hand, and to facilitate this, Local Governments and Administrations will be supplied by the Stationery Department, on indent, with small boxes containing colours in cakes corresponding exactly with the prescribed scale. It will probably be found convenient that as soon as a given scale of percentages is adopted, the percentage which each colour is to express should be clearly shown on a label fixed to the inside of every box.

Whenever statistical maps are sent for reproduction by lithography to the Surveyor-General's office, the course suggested in the following letter No 292 S., dated 25th January 1889, should be adopted. Whenever it is more convenient (as would be the case where a few copies are required) to have a map prepared in the Provincial offices, the colours laid down in the scale prescribed in the circular of the 21st March 1885 might continue to be used :—

“With reference to certain correspondence that took place in 1885 on the subject of a scale of colours for the illustration of statistical maps, I have the honour to point out the great saving of both time and expense in making use of different tints of the same colour, rather than a scale of different colours, for that purpose. It is quite possible to represent seven different shades, which in most cases is quite as many as are necessary; such a map printed in shades would pass only twice through the press, whilst, if seven different colours were used, it would necessitate eight pulls, or at least four, if three of the colours could be made by combination. Again, as regards the legibility of the map, I think there is no doubt as to the superiority of graduated shades of one colour, for the purpose of illustrating percentages, over the method of allotting a separate colour to each percentage. If this is acknowledged, I think it would be advisable to issue instructions to those who require such maps prepared to allot to each percentage a number, which number should be shown on the map in each district to which it refers. The table of references explaining the percentages should also be clearly given on the margin of the map. By this plan all hand-colouring and possibility of confusion between different colours is avoided.”

(G. I., R. & A., Nos. 27-16-3, dated 21st March 1885, and 14-63-2, dated 27th February 1889; vide G. Rs. Nos. 2956, dated 11th April 1885, and 2436, dated 28th March 1889.)

2. The errors and discrepancies occurring in the agricultural statistics submitted to the Government of India will be adjusted by them in direct communication with the officers charged with the preparation of the statements. (G. I., R. & A., No. 12-10-13, dated 9th February 1886; vide G. R. No. 20c2, dated 16th March 1886.)

PART VIII.] [LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.

3. For the purpose of Imperial compilation uniformity is indispensable. No modifications in the forms of the returns of agricultural statistics submitted to the Government of India which have not been specially authorized can therefore be permitted; and where deviations from the prescribed headings are unavoidable under existing circumstances, efforts should not be spared to gradually eliminate them. There is no objection to the amplification or modification of the forms for provincial purposes. On the contrary, it is most desirable that these returns should be utilised to the fullest extent in administration reports, the headings being expanded or re-arranged as may be necessary. By this measure the labour now devoted to the separate and independent compilation of statistical returns for provincial reports dealing with agricultural subjects will be minimised; the discrepancies which frequently exist between the two sets of returns and detract from the value of both will be obviated; and the examination and discussion to which the figures will be subjected in provincial reports will provide the Government of India with the materials, now wanting, for a review of the Imperial tables. The opportunity is at the same time taken to remind Local Governments and Administrations of the express desire of Her Majesty's Secretary of State, that the information in provincial reports and returns regarding crops and other agricultural matters should be as full and detailed as the means at disposal will allow.

Instructions for the compilation of the forms are given in the shape of foot-notes, but there are some points which call for supplementary remarks and are dealt with in the following paragraphs:—

Form A 2 (1).—Forests.—To provide for the case of lands legally declared to be forests or administered as forests under any legal enactments other than Forest Acts it has been necessary to enlarge the definition of the heading. Care should be taken that the areas of Government forest included in this return are obtained from the same source as the areas exhibited in the reports on forest administration.

Form A 2 (3).—Culturable waste other than fallow.—Owing to the extreme variations which have been found to exist in the period for which land is left fallow, the heading "Culturable waste other than fallow" has been substituted for that formerly proposed, viz.:—

"Culturable, but not cultivated for three years."

Form A 3 (1 to 30).—Details of Crops.—After careful consideration it has been decided to add rdgi or mandva (Eleusine coracana) to the new crop heading adopted on the recommendation of the Delhi Conference. This is as important a food-crop in Southern India as is barley in Northern India, and the Government of India desire that where the area cultivated with rdgi is not already recorded separately, the alterations necessary in the village returns of crops to secure these statistics may be introduced as soon as convenient. If, for reasons of real importance, the statistics of any crop included in the statement cannot be separately given, the corresponding column may be left blank, but the reasons for omission should be fully explained. Alterations in the standard crop headings of the Imperial return cannot, for the reasons already stated, be allowed, though the forms may be expanded or modified at the discretion of Local Governments for provincial purposes.

LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.] [PART VIII.

Form A 4.—Stock, &c.—The headings added in this return to those previously suggested are young stock and camels. Pigs have been omitted. Special importance is attached by the Government of India to the correct compilation of the information required for columns 1 to 5, which involve the separate classification of animals whose milk is valuable, and of young apart from adult stock.

The provincial returns are, with the following exceptions, due to the Government of India* on the 1st November of each year and should be punctually submitted by that date:—

|        | 1st instalment on the1st December. | 2nd instalment on the1st February. |
|--------|----------------------------------------|----------------------------------------|
| Bombay | ... Forms A, B and E                   | ... Forms C and D.                     |

No uniform period can be prescribed for the year to which the statistics should relate, but the Government of India desire that Forms A and B should be compiled for the recognized agricultural year of each province.

No general review of the statistics is required with the returns; but all differences in excess of 20 per cent. between the figures of the year of report and the previous year should be explained in an appendix to the tables in the form prescribed. Where general causes sufficiently account for differences, detailed explanations need not be given.

(G. I., R. & A., Nos. 19-20, dated 20th July 1891, 36-36, dated 29th July 1892, and 538-3, dated 15th February 1893; vide G. Rs. Nos. 5802, dated 25th August 1891; 7090, dated 6th September 1892 and 1639, dated 2nd March 1893.)

4. In compiling Form C of the Agricultural Statistical Returns, the Director of Land Records

PART VIII.] [LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.

and Agriculture should exclude the revenue on account of "fallows" from column 8 thereof. (G. R. No. 5173, dated 23rd June 1892.)

5. The returns of agricultural statistics for the Bombay Presidency should be submitted to Government in duplicate in the forms* prescribed by the Government of India in their letter No. 51-41, dated 17th October 1892. Should the number of columns provided in the form prove insufficient, they may be increased by the addition of fresh sheets; but in no case should the arrangement of the forms be altered. To facilitate the compilation of the Imperial returns the arrangement of districts, except in so far as they may be inevitably affected by territorial changes, should be the same in all the returns and in the returns of every year. Whenever further supplies of the printed forms are required by the Director of Land Records, an indent for them should be submitted through the Government of Bombay. (G. R. No. 8937, dated 12th November 1892.)

6. For the purposes of the returns of agricultural statistics the Director of Land Records and Agriculture should collect statistics differentiating between the various classes of irrigation. (G. I., R. & A., No. 3513-41, dated 12th December 1892; vide G. R. No. 1606, dated 1st March 1893.)

7. In Form A 1, column 2 (a), the area of Feudatory and Tributary States may be shown as returned for the General Administration Report of the Presidency. (G. R. No. 5785, dated 15th July 1892.)

8. There is no objection to the insertion in red ink between headings 2 (a) and 2 (b) in Form A 1 of figures showing the areas of British districts after excluding Native States of all kinds. (G. I., R. & A., No. 1418-8, dated 9th May 1893; vide G. R. No. 3932, dated 30th idem.)

LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.] [PART IX.

PART IX.—AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.

1. Provincial Agricultural Departments are permitted to obtain the agricultural implements and machinery they require direct from the makers in England or America, provided that the consequent expenditure in each province does not exceed Rs. 4,000 and that the orders are confined to articles required for purely experimental purposes. (S. of S. No. 34, Finl., dated 19th June 1834; vide G. R. No. 6689, dated 19th August 1834.)

2. In order to facilitate the introduction of agricultural implements suitable to the agricultural circumstances of the country, it is desirable that there should be annually published a general list of agricultural implements which have in any province been found useful, or which can be recommended for trial by any Agricultural Department or institution in the country.

The list should be prepared for the year ending 30th September, and should be published as an Appendix to Chapter V (Scientific and Local Enquiry under Provincial direction) of the Annual Report of the Department of Lands Records and Agriculture.

On receipt of the provincial lists a combined statement will be prepared and published in the supplement to the Gazette of India and otherwise circulated. In any province in which an agricultural department has been organized, arrangements should be made to procure for experiment any implement which has been found satisfactory in any other part of India, provided that there is prima facie reason to believe that it is in any way adapted to the agricultural circumstances of the province. Any such implement should be included in the provincial list for the year in which the experimental trial is made, and the results of the trial should be entered in the column of remarks.

To ensure uniformity in the lists, the following points should be observed :—

(i) No implements in general use among native agriculturists should be entered otherwise than in the case of any exceptionally useful implement which is believed not to be in use in other parts of India.

(ii) Improved or patented implements already recommended, or of which the utility is already established (e. g., the Behua Sugar Mill, the Kaisar Plough, &c., &c.) need not be entered, unless—

(1) they have undergone modification, or

(2) defects have been discovered, or

(3) they have been for the first time introduced into the province during the year under report, or

(4) their sale has considerably extended.

PART IX.] [LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.]

In the last case the description of the implement need not be repeated.

- (iii) In case the materials for the provincial list are obtained from lists supplied by a number of officers, the provincial list should be carefully revised in accordance with the above instructions, all unnecessary implements being excluded; and where several reports have been received regarding any one implement, their general purport should be summarised.

Information should be particularly supplied respecting any implement which is received with favour by native farmers or cultivators, and as to the extent to which the use of the implement is gaining ground. The opinion of native agriculturists should, whenever possible, be quoted. (G. I., R. & A., Nos. 17-A., dated 15th May 1882, 70-A., dated 15th September 1883, 12-A.-9-2, dated 16th February 1889, 59-A.-9-28, dated 2nd October 1889, and 13-72-16, dated 3rd May 1899; vide G. Rs. Nos. 3646, dated 6th June 1882, 7674, dated 15th October 1883, 1893, dated 9th March 1889, 7420, dated 2nd October 1889, and 3797, dated 31st May 1899.)

3. The officers reporting should submit the lists to the Director of Agriculture, who should cause a general list for the whole Presidency to be compiled in his office from the district returns and embody it as an appendix to Chapter V of his Annual Report with any remarks which he may himself have to offer. (G. Rs. Nos. 7000, dated 29th August 1885, and 3797, dated 31st May 1899.)

PART X.—BOTANICAL SURVEY.

1. The following territorial division of India is prescribed for the purposes of botanical survey :—

Under the Superintendent, Royal Botanical Gardens, Calcutta.

The Province of Bengal.

„ Assam.

„ Burma.

The Andamans and Nicobars.

North-East Frontier Expeditions.

Under the Government Botanist, Madras.

The Presidency of Madras.

The State of Hyderabad.

The State of Mysore.

Under the Principal, College of Science, Poona.

The Presidency of Bombay, including Sind.

Under the Director, Botanical Department, Northern India.

The North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

The Punjab.

The Central Provinces.

Central India.

Rájputána.

North-West Frontier Expeditions.

It is desirable that the Sibpur Institution should, without any interference with the Provincial control over the Royal Botanical Gardens, Calcutta, be officially recognized as the acknowledged centre of the Botanical Survey of India, and that to it should be referred the solution of all problems rising out of the practical or scientific study of Indian botany. In view of the important position which the Superintendent of the Royal Botanical Gardens, Calcutta, will thus occupy as the central authority in the Botanical Survey of India, the Government of India have, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State, added to the designation of the Superintendent the official title of "Director of the Botanical Survey of India." In all correspondence dealing with subjects relating to general botanical exploration, the latter title should be employed.

In the Bombay Presidency a herbarium exists at the College of Science, Poona, and a botanical collection is in course of formation at the Victoria Gardens, Bombay. The former place is to be the head-quarters of botanical research and collections, and the existing herbarium there is to be developed.

(G. I., R. & A., No. 5-57-1-A, dated 26th February 1891; vide G. R. No. 1928, dated 16th March 1891.)

2. In order to bring under general review, for the information of the authorities at Kew, the progress made from year to year in the Botanical Survey of India, it is desirable that all botanical officers should annually communicate to the Director of the

PART X.] [LAND RECORDS AND AGRICULTURE.

Botanical Survey of India a report summarizing the operations of the year, so far as these are concerned, with investigation, collection or publication of materials of a purely scientific character. As little delay as possible should occur in the transmission of the report to the Director, who will incorporate it with his own report to the Kew authorities. The most convenient date for the communication of the report will be the 1st July, the report covering the operations for the financial year ending on the 31st March previous.

2. The officer in charge of the Botanical Survey of the Bombay Presidency should prepare the necessary report as regards the Bombay Presidency and send it direct to the Director of the Botanical Survey of India, by the prescribed date, copies thereof being, at the same time, submitted to Government for information. (G. I., R. & A., No. 547-62, dated 11th March 1893; vide G. R. No. 2992, dated 27th April 1893.)

3. The Government of India place definitely upon the Director of the Botanical Survey of India the responsibility of guiding the survey, and after such consultation with the botanical officers in Madras, Bombay and Northern India and the authorities at Kew as he may deem expedient, of giving directions as to the general character of the explorations, the subjects which are to be taken up and the form in which results are to be published. The main object of his directions should be to secure the gradual completion of the Botanical Survey of India on a systematic plan, but no instructions should be issued which are likely to involve the interruption of the executive duties of the botanical officers without the consent of the Government to whose orders they are subject. A copy of all such instructions, as may be issued by the Director, should, at the same time, be communicated to the Government of India and to the Provincial Governments concerned for information.

Any proposals made by the Director of the Botanical Survey of India for the improvement or perfecting of the survey, which involve fresh expenditure, should be submitted to the Government of India for consideration. (G. I., R. & A., No. 18-30, dated 12th May 1893; vide G. R. No. 4265, dated 14th June 1893.)

4. All applications involving a pecuniary outlay which the heads of botanical establishments may desire to address to the authorities at Kew, should not be sent direct, but should be forwarded in the usual way through the India Office. (S. of S. No. 76, Rev., dated 31st October 1883; vide G. I., R. & A., No. 1031-146-1, dated 5th December 1883, and G. R. No. 9538, dated 26th idem.)

5. All demands on the Royal Gardens at Kew for botanical information or for seeds should be made through the Central Botanical Institutions at Calcutta, Madras and Bombay. (S. of S. No. 86, Rev., dated 3rd November 1887; vide G. R. No. 766, dated 2nd February 1888.)

LITIGATION.

1. His Excellency the Governor General in Council desires that there may be no misunderstanding as to the views and wishes of the Government of India with respect to litigation in which the Government is concerned. In many parts of India the union of judicial with executive functions in one chief officer of a district is still, and may long be, inevitable; and His Excellency in Council trusts that all officers, who exercise this double power, realize the responsibility which it throws upon them for scrupulous observance of equity in all suits to which the Government which they serve is a party. To lean towards technical pleas in favour of Government, or towards technical obstacles against a suit which the Government defends, whenever such pleas or obstacles merely hinder a decision on the merits—to strain laws for the advantage of Government—all these things would be exactly contrary to the rule of judicial conduct which in such cases the Government desires to impose. And His Excellency in Council expects all officers to understand that the interests of Government are most effectually promoted by sedulously upholding this high standard of entire impartiality. (G. I., H. D., No. 832, dated 14th May 1873; vide G. R. No. 963, dated 21st February 1874.)

2. The reports of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs in the matter of suits should be treated by the local officers to whom they are sent as strictly confidential documents. (G. R. No. 5120, dated 8th September 1875; vide also No. 69 of the rules for the institution and defence of suits.)

3. It should be clearly understood that all opinions and advice given by the Law Officers of Government for the conduct of the law business of Government are to be considered strictly confidential. (G. R. No. 1560, dated 27th March 1878.)

4. When expenditure is incurred for law charges, the sanction of Government should always be communicated to the Accountant General, who should exercise the same supervision over these charges as he does over all other charges. (G. R. No. 3244, dated 1st June 1876.)

5. In applications to Government for sanction to appeal, the date within which the appeal can be preferred should be invariably stated. (G. R., J. D., No. 4834, dated 7th August 1877; vide G. M. No. 4923, dated 13th idem.)

6. Government pleaders are not entitled to separate fees for such trivial miscellaneous duties as that of obtaining copies of papers for any Government officer or of searching for original papers. (G. R. No. 4985, dated 15th August 1877.)

7. In an appeal made to a District Court by a private individual, a question arose as to the sufficiency of the court-fee on the memorandum of appeal, and as Government are interested in matters of stamp-revenue, the District Judge gave the Collector an opportunity of being heard, if he should wish; through the District Government Pleader. The Collector thereupon directed the Government Pleader to appear, and the question was disposed of by the Court against the appellant. But in the opinion of the Governor in Council it is unnecessary to direct the Government Pleaders to appear on behalf of Government in such cases. (G. R. No. 5395, dated 5th July 1884.)

8. The Oriental Translator to Government is authorized, when he receives a vernacular paper for translation which turns out to be a notice to Government under Section 424 of the Civil Procedure Code, to return it to the Secretariat at once without a translation, with a view to its being sent without delay, under No. 7 of the Rules relating to the defence of suits, to the proper officer, who will be able to ascertain in his own office what the notice relates to, and will make a report to Government only if there is occasion. (G. R. No. 1912, dated 13th April 1880.)

9. The following extract from a letter from the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, No. 1460, dated 11th November 1885, was circulated to all Collectors for information and guidance:—

"I take the opportunity of respectfully suggesting that the attention of Collectors should be drawn to No. 8 of the Rules for the defence of suits against Government with regard to notices under Section 424 of the Civil Procedure Code. The object of the notice is to give every opportunity of full justice being done to a complainant before a suit is actually filed. Here the vague opinion of the district Government Pleader on the question of limitation, without any reference to any specific provision of the Limitation Act (an opinion which he afterwards qualified), was not sufficient ground for ignoring the notice. If a reference had been made on receipt of the notice, it is possible that the claim would have been compromised at once, and thus the costs of the suit would have been saved. This is not the first instance in which I have been led to the opinion that it would have been safer had a reference been made by the Revenue authorities on a law point before the filing of a suit."

(G. R. No. 9369, dated 21st November 1885.)

10. The High Court, Bombay, has held that sending a newspaper containing notice amongst other matters is not such a notice as is required by Act X of 1877, Section 424. (High Court's Printed Judgments for 1881, p. 286.) (G. R. No. 962, dated 5th February 1886.)

11. It is not generally desirable that Collectors should accept as sufficient, for the purposes of the Civil Procedure Code, notices published in newspapers. (L. R. No. 809, dated 6th May 1892; vide G. R. No. 4803, dated 8th June 1892.)

12. No. 66 of the Rules relating to the conduct of civil suits is of general applicability, and the name of Government or of any Government officer ought not to be used in any civil proceeding without a reference being first of all made under it, whether the costs of the proceeding will eventually fall on Government or not. (L. R. No. 488, dated 20th April 1880; vide G. R. No. 2225, dated 27th idem.)

13. The rules regarding the conduct of suits should be understood as applicable to the Panich Mahāls so far as the peculiar circumstances of that district will admit, and irrecoverable balances on account of pauper costs should not be written off without the previous sanction of Government. (G. R. No. 6980, dated 19th September 1883.)

14. The Collectors of the Kánarese Districts should be instructed that Kánarese documents of importance, which may be sent to the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs with reports on suits, should always be accompanied by their English translations. (G. R. No. 2702, dated 10th April 1889; vide also No. 72 of the Rules for the institution and defence of suits.)

15. It is absolutely necessary in all cases in which reports on suits are forwarded to the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs for submission to Government, to state the date of the filing of the plaint, such information being indispensable for the consideration of questions of limitation and other points not perhaps obvious to the officer reporting. (G. R. No. 5373, dated 27th July 1889.)

16. The Commissioners of Divisions and Collectors should see that there is no avoidable delay in reporting on suits filed against Government or Government officers in their official capacity. (G. R. No. 5913, dated 14th August 1889.)

17. Officers reporting on suits requiring Government sanction for their defence, should furnish the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs with English translations of all vernacular documents essential to the merits of the case. (G. R. No. 1883, dated 12th March 1890.)

18. The following extract paragraph 5 of the Legal Remembrancer's report No. 96, dated 22nd January 1891, was forwarded to all heads of offices under the Revenue Department for information and guidance:—

"5. I would ask that Government might be pleased to issue orders that officers in reporting on suits should invariably state the date on which the plaint was filed in Court. In this instance the date was not given, and no mention was made of the point of limitation in the defence proposed. Accordingly, in submitting my report for sanction of the defence, I assumed that the point could not be raised, but if the date of the filing of a suit is not stated, either delay will be entailed in obtaining further information from the officer concerned, or an important point of defence will be liable to escape notice."

(G. M. No. 814-A, dated 30th January 1891.)

19. Whenever it is proposed to take the objection that a plaintiff has not exhausted his rights of appeal, the whole of the proceedings should be furnished with necessary translations to enable the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs to advise whether any right of appeal remained unexhausted. (G. R. No. 1840, dated 11th March 1891.)

20. With a view to avoiding the vexation and expense of unnecessary litigation, the officers concerned should, in forwarding reports on cases where dispute as to the title to land is concerned, invariably send a plan or map of the land in dispute and its surroundings. (G. R. No. 10140, dated 28th December 1892.)

21. The following opinion No. 694, dated 19th October 1875, was recorded by the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs:—

“With reference to Government Resolution No. 5808, dated 14th instant, I have the honour to report that the case put by the Magistrate of Thána is as follows:—

The Magistrate of a District having on appeal reduced the amount of a fine inflicted by a Subordinate Magistrate on a person convicted by him of an offence, directed the excess to be returned to the accused. But a judgment-creditor of the accused caused the Subordinate Magistrate to be served with a notice from a Civil Court for the attachment of the excess before the Subordinate Magistrate had time to issue the necessary order to the Treasury Officer for the payment of it to the accused person.

The Magistrate asks:

- (1) Can the Civil Court's order take effect?
- (2) Should the Subordinate Magistrate obey the Civil Court's order in preference to the District Magistrate's?
- (3) Should the order of attachment not be served on the debtor himself instead of on the Subordinate Magistrate or the Mámílatdár (Treasury Officer)?

“2. The Magistrate seems to regard the Subordinate Magistrate's order as illegal so far as it imposed a fine in excess of that which subsequently, on appeal, the District Magistrate considered to be sufficient, and, therefore, to hold the view that the detention of the excess amount by the Subordinate Magistrate, or by the Treasury Officer, was ab initio illegal, and that the money must be considered to have been all along in the accused's possession. But the determination of the amount of fine that should be inflicted upon a person convicted of an offence is a matter of legal discretion. If the Subordinate Magistrate did not exceed the lawful limits of his powers, his sentence was perfectly legal, although perhaps he failed to exercise sound discretion in passing so severe a one. I do not think, therefore, that the question of the legality of the Subordinate Magistrate's sentence can affect the questions which the District Magistrate raises as to the attachment of the excess money.

“3. I am of opinion that the Magistrate's first two questions should be answered in the affirmative, and with regard to the third, that the proper course for attaching the money was for the Civil Court to issue a notice under Section 237 of the Civil Procedure Code to the Subordinate Magistrate or to the Treasury Officer. The money became the property of the accused person as soon as the District Magistrate's order was passed for its repayment to him and so long as it remained in the hands of the Subordinate Magistrate or, subject to his orders for its disposal, in the hands of the Treasury Officer, it was liable, I think, to be attached like any other money held in trust.

(G. R. No. 6156, dated 1st November 1875.)

22. The following decision of the High Court of Bombay (Judgment in Miscellaneous Special Appeal No. 7 of 1877) laying down that Article 167* of Schedule II, Act IX of 1871, does apply to applications made on behalf of Government under Section 309† of the (old) Civil Procedure Code for the recovery of pauper costs, and that a previous application for execution of the decree made by the actual plaintiff in the suit does not give Government a fresh starting point from which to calculate the period of limitation, was circulated to all officers concerned in order that care might be taken not to allow applications for pauper costs to be neglected until they are time-barred :—

* Cf. Article 179 of Schedule II, Act XV of 1877.

† Cf. Section 411 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882.

"Section 309 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1859 directs that 'on the decision of the suit, the Court shall calculate the amount of stamps which would have been paid by the plaintiff if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper, and such amount shall be recoverable by Government from any party ordered by the decree to pay the same in the same manner as costs of suit are recoverable.' In this case the original decree of the Subordinate Judge containing an order directing the payment of the court-fees by the pauper plaintiff, was made on the 15th April 1868, and was finally affirmed in this Court on the 28th July 1869. The present application to the Collector to enforce the payment of those fees was made on the 25th November 1875, so that upwards of three years have elapsed since the date of the affirmance of the decree which contained the order for the payment of the fees. The District Judge, while holding that Article 167 of Schedule II of Act IX of 1871 prescribes the period of limitation which is applicable to such a case, yet is of opinion that an application by a defendant, made within three years before the 25th November 1871, for execution in respect of the costs of suit decreed to him, is the terminus whence the period of limitation (three years) should begin to run. We, however, think that the application to enforce or keep in force the decree or order mentioned in the 4th clause of Article 167, which gives a fresh starting point, is an application by the party himself seeking execution or by a party in the same interest as he who presently seeks the enforcement of the decree, and not an application by a party whose interest under the decree is totally unconnected with that of the person seeking present enforcement. The interest of the defendant Apaji Govind in the costs awarded to him by the decree is not in anywise connected with that of the Collector on behalf of Government in the court-fees which the pauper plaintiff has been directed by the same decree to pay. The activity of that defendant was not exhibited in the remotest manner on behalf of Government, but solely on behalf of himself. In the cases in 8 Cal. W. R. 100 Civ. Rul. and 1 Beng. L. R. 62 App. Side, the early and later applicants appear to have been either jointly interested or in the same interest, and so also in the case in 9 Cal. W. R. 485, so far as we can understand the meagre report of it. We think that the right of Government to recover court-fees under Section 309 is subject to the same period of limitation as the right of a subject to enforce a decree or order would be. The Legislature in passing the Limitation Act of 1871, which is applicable to this case, where it intends that Government should have a longer period than the subject, has been careful expressly to say so: as for instance, in Article 150 of Schedule II, where the period assigned to suits brought by the Secretary of State is sixty years from the time of the accrual of the cause of action; but the Legislature makes no difference between Government and its subjects in the cases of appeals or applications (a). We fully recognize the authority of Ganpat Pataya v. The Collector of Kanara (Ind. L. R., I Bombay 7), but that case relates to priority of execution, and has no bearing upon the present question of limitation. Holding, as we do, that the present application of the Collector is barred by Article 167 of Schedule II of Act IX of 1871, we must reverse the orders of both of the Courts below and reject the application with costs throughout.

(a) As to the distinction made in the Act (IX of 1871) between suits, appeals and applications, see Govind Lawman v. Narayan Moreshwar, II. Bom. H. C. Rep., 111.

"We are aware of the explanations annexed to Article 179 of the new Limitation Act (XV of 1877), which article is the enactment therein analogous to Article 167 of the Act 1871, but we have arrived at our decision quite independently of any aid from that quarter."

(G. R. No. 7519, dated 20th December 1877.)

23. The following opinion No. 1060, dated 10th August 1893, was recorded by the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs :—

"The Collector of Surat, who is supported by the Commissioner, N. D., recommends an appeal from the order passed by the First Class Subordinate Judge, Surat.

Darkhast No. 113 of 1893 in Miscellaneous
Pauper Application No. 78 of 1888.

Ranchod Morár... .. Applicant.

Bejanji Ebdaji ... .. Opponent.

Surat, on the application noted in the margin.

"2. The facts are as follows :—

(a) Ranchod Morár applied for leave to sue as a pauper.

(b) The application was opposed by the District Government Pleader on notice given under Section 408 of the Code of Civil Procedure, as well as by the opposite party against whom the suit was to be brought.

(c) On the hearing of this application the Court, at the instance of all the opponents, required the applicant to give security for opponents' costs, and one Vamālidās Dayārām passed a surety bond accordingly on 19th September 1889.

(d) On 29th November 1889 the Court passed the following order :—

"Since the applicant does not wish to proceed with his application, I reject his application to be allowed to sue in formā pauperis, and order him to pay the costs of the opponents and bear his own."

(e) The decree, originally silent as to the persons to whom costs should be paid, having been so amended under Section 206 of the Code of Civil Procedure as to bring it into conformity with the order, an application (Darkhast No. 113 of 1893) was made to recover the costs incurred by Government in opposing the application for leave to sue as a pauper.

(f) This application was rejected for reasons fully stated by the Subordinate Judge whose order dated 26th July 1893 is among the papers.

(g) The principal grounds given for the rejection of the order are :—

(i) that the surety bond was taken under Section 380 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that it is doubtful whether such a bond could be taken before the petition had been numbered and registered as a suit,

LITIGATION.]

(ii) that neither the Collector nor the Government Pleader was a defendant,

(iii) that the surety bond, though accepting liability for the costs of the opponents, does not specify who the opponents are.

"3. Against this order it is now proposed to appeal.

"4. The case at I. L. R., VI Bom., 590, shows that no appeal would be admissible in such a case under Section 244 (c) of the Code of Civil Procedure, as the Collector is no party to the suit, while it seems equally clear from the decision at I. L. R., XV Bom., 77, that an appeal might be entertained under Section 622.

"5. I consider, however, that an appeal from the order passed would most certainly fail.

"6. The surety bond purports to have been taken because the applicant resides out of British India and possesses no property within British India. 'For this reason,' it states, 'the Court has required the applicant to give security for the opponents' costs.'

"7. Now it is clear from Section 380 of the Code of Civil Procedure that a surety bond may be taken for such reason 'at the institution or at any subsequent stage of a suit.'

"8. But it is also clear—

(a) that an application to sue as a pauper until it has been granted, does not amount to 'the institution of a suit,'
Section 430, Code of Civil Procedure, and vide also I. L. R., 10 Bom., 207.

(b) that there is no authority under Chapter XXVI to take such a bond in an enquiry into the pauperism of an applicant under that chapter, and

(c) lastly, that the Legislature contemplated as a distinct question the recovery of costs incurred by Government in resisting such application.

Thus—

(a) if adjudication follows

(i) when plaintiff succeeds, Section 411 applies;

(ii) when plaintiff fails, Section 412 applies;

(b) if an order or refusal is made under Section 403 and the application is rejected, Section 413 applies, from which it will be seen that

(i) if the applicant drops the suit, the Code is absolutely silent as to costs, presumably on the ground that the applicant was really too poor to carry it on, while

(ii) if the applicant chooses to sue in the ordinary manner he is at liberty to institute a suit, provided that he first pays the costs, if any, incurred by Government in opposing his application for leave to sue as a pauper.

"9. The remedy, if any, in this case lies therefore, I think, not against the surety, but under Section 413 of the Code of Civil Procedure, in case the applicant, whose application has been rejected, brings a suit in the ordinary manner, and in that event the District Government Pleader should move the Court to require him before the suit is entertained to pay the costs incurred by Government in opposing his application for leave to sue as a pauper.

"10. I would beg to recommend that the District Government Pleader be instructed accordingly.

"12. I doubt whether the remedies I have indicated above in case of pauper costs are generally understood, and Government might perhaps deem it desirable, if they concur in my view, to have this opinion circulated so as to avoid mistakes and facilitate recovery in cases of this nature, in which, as Government are probably aware, attempts at recovery are so commonly infructuous."

(G. R. No. 6319, dated 31st August 1893.)

24. It is a frequent practice and often a necessary one for the Collector to agree with judgment-debtors (whether the judgment-debt be on account of pauper costs or under an ordinary decree) to allow them to pay what is due by them to Government gradually in fixed instalments. Such agreements must, under Section 275A of the Civil Procedure Code, in every case be made with the sanction of the Court which passed the decree; otherwise they are void. When payments are made in accordance with such agreements out of Court, the debtors are entitled, under Section 258 of the Civil Procedure Code, to have those payments certified to the Court. If default is made in any payment, execution of the decree should be applied for in the usual course, the agreement being regarded as a modification and not as a supersession of the decree. A separate suit will not lie upon the agreement. (L. R. No. 162, dated 4th February 1892; vide G. R. No. 1110, dated 13th idem.)

25. As regards all appeals to Her Majesty in Council in which Government are interested, the Secretary of State should in each case be furnished with a distinct expression of the opinion of the Government transmitting the papers as to the course which ought to be adopted by him. It not unfrequently happens that the papers reach the India Office unaccompanied by any clear indication of the steps which it is desired the Secretary of State should take, and it is necessary that he should always receive such an indication for his assistance in arriving at a decision in the matter.

These instructions should be strictly observed in cases to which Government or the Court of Wards are a party. When an appeal, to which a Municipality is a party, is preferred to the Privy Council, the duty of making arrangements for the conduct of the case must be undertaken by the Municipality concerned; and the information and papers required by the letter from the Government of India in the Home Department, No. 1-119, dated 30th January 1878, should be forwarded to the India Office only in cases to which the Government or the Court of Wards are a party. (G. L., H.D., No. 1274, dated 9th September 1889; vide G. R. No. 8067, dated 23rd October 1889.)

26. The Accountant General should, in consultation with the Legal Remembrancer and the

* With reference to the action to be taken in this country and the instructions to be given to Counsel, it is important that this office should be made acquainted with the views of the different Governments from whose Courts appeals may be brought either by or against the Crown, and with the opinions of their local advisers; and even as regards the mere procedure of the Appellate Court, it is to be observed that the absence of information as to the transmission of the record places the Government

27. The only powers which exist of issuing a Commission in a criminal case are those contained in Chapter 40 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and those powers do not include that of issuing a commission to England for the examination of witnesses there. at a disadvantage, and might lead to the dismissal of one of its appeals for want of prosecution, or to a decision ex-parte against the Government as respondent.

"I request further that in all appeals, to which the Government is a party, from provinces under the administration of your Government, the fact of the transmission of the appeal should be communicated to this office, with such information regarding it as you consider desirable, in order that proper steps may be taken for protecting the public interests."

LOCAL FUND CESS.

1. Railway Companies like all other landholders are liable to local taxation, and they should pay the Local Fund Cess on the amount of rent payable to Government for lands held by them. (G. R. No. 2544, dated 3rd July 1868.)

2. The Local Fund Cess should be levied on the amount of rent fixed under existing rules on lands transferred to Railway Companies. (G. R. No. 2391, dated 20th April 1876.)

3. In the case of all farms that may be given in contract, the obligation to pay the one-anna cess under the Local Funds Act III of 1869 should be stipulated for. (G. R. No. 1483, dated 10th April 1869.)

4. Only such items of Sayer revenue as are farmed are liable to the one-anna cess leviable under Section 6 of the Bombay Local Funds Act No. III of 1869. (G. R. No. 1639, dated 20th April 1869.)

5. The levy of cesses on excise under the Bombay local Acts should cease, and it must be understood that the term "Sayer" in the Bombay Acts VIII of 1865 and III of 1869 is equivalent only to "Miscellaneous Land Revenue," and includes no assets classified in the public accounts under any other head whatever. (G. I., F. D., No. 617, dated 27th January 1873, and 3169, dated 24th September 1873; vide G. Rs. Nos. 681, dated 6th February 1873, 5650, dated 11th October 1873, and 1996, dated 7th April 1873.)

6. Savasthans held on political tenure are subject to the payment of the one-annā cess. (G. R. No. 2728, dated 6th July 1869.)

7. Lease-holders of villages are liable to the one-anna cess on the amount of the revenue payable to Government under the lease. (G. R. No. 3706, dated 30th June 1873.)

8. Holders of alienated villages have not the right to levy more as Local Fund Cess from their rayats than they themselves pay to Government on account of that cess. In unsurveyed villages the revenue fixed as the total annual assessment as settled for the purposes of summary settlement, must, for the purposes of the Local Fund Act, be held to be the land revenue on which the cess can under the Act be levied, and neither the Collector nor the Jāghirdār has the power to levy more. The Collector should not only abstain from giving assistance to collect, but should warn the rayats of Jāghirdāri villages that they are not to pay more to the Jāghirdār than the amount of his assessment. (G. R. No. 5339, dated 8th October 1874.)

9. A Jāghirdār who had obtained agreements from his tenants binding them to pay as Local Fund Cess sums in excess of the amounts actually payable by them in respect of their holdings, filed suits on these agreements, and the Subordinate Judge of Bijápur decreed his claim thereon. He then petitioned the Collector for an order to enable him to obtain the assistance of Revenue officers in recovering these claims.

(2) The Collector of Bijápur considered that the agreement, on which the Jághirdár insisted, was void under Section 24 of the Contract Act (IX of 1872), and that the Subordinate Judge's decision was therefore wrong. But this view is not quite correct. No doubt, under Bombay Act III of 1869, Section 8, the right of the Jághirdár to make such recoveries as arrears of land revenue with the assistance of Revenue officers is strictly limited, in the case of each tenant, to the amount leviable by law as Local Fund Cess in respect of that tenant's holding.

(3) The Act gives the special power and privilege, and defines the limits to their exercise. It would, therefore, be illegal for a Revenue officer to assist the Jághirdár in recovering more than that Act authorizes by the special procedure of the Bombay Land Revenue Code (Sections 86 and 87 of Bombay V of 1879).

(4) Such contracts would not extend the powers of Revenue officers to give their assistance for recovery. The Jághirdár, therefore, could not enforce such contracts without recourse to the Civil Courts.

(5) But there is nothing in Section 8 of Bombay Act III of 1869 which makes it unlawful for any one to pay more or to contract to pay more than the law would oblige him to pay; or more than could be recovered by the special summary procedure there prescribed.

(6) Such a contract could not, therefore, be regarded by a Court as void under Section 24 of the Contract Act, on the ground that its object was unlawful.

(7) If there were any room for doubt as to the lawfulness of the object, the only way that the question could be raised would be by an appeal made by the tenants themselves. But there is clearly nothing unlawful in an undertaking to pay money. Possibly a tenant might raise the question whether there was any consideration for such an agreement. The Court would then probably consider that the mere mention of the Local Fund Cess as the nominal reason for the addition to the rent, would not materially distinguish the case from that of an ordinary agreement to pay so much rent in a lump sum without distinguishing or specifying the items. The contract might be successfully impugned of course, if undue influence, misrepresentation or coercion were shown. Such objection would have to be taken by the tenants in Court. But if the tenants have entered into the contract with their eyes open, there is nothing to prevent the plaintiff from enforcing the contract in a Civil Court, although the contract would, by no means, entitle him to recover from his tenants, as Local Fund Cess, with the assistance of Revenue officers, more than he could recover under the Act (Bombay III of 1869, Section 8) without such contract.

LOCAL FUND CESS.]

(8) To sum up—

(a.) The contract is not void, as for an unlawful object, but would apparently be enforceable in a Civil Court, unless shown to be void for want of consideration, misrepresentation or undue influence.

(b.) The contract does not give the Jāghirdār any right to recover with the assistance of Revenue officers any more than he could before.

10. In cases of inām villages which have been surveyed without the consent of the Ināmdārs, the Local Fund Cess should be levied on the amount settled for calculating the quit-rent under the Summary Settlement Act and not on the amount fixed by the Survey. (G. R. No. 4189, dated 24th July 1875.)

11. An Udhar jamābandi village is not an inām village. The rule should be that Local Fund Cess is to be levied on the jama of an Udhar jamābandi village. (G. R. No. 4745, dated 20th August 1875.)

12. Whatever may be the jūdi on inām lands in khālsa villages or the mode of calculating it, Local Fund Cess has to be levied upon the assessment, whatever that may be. (G. R. No. 6547, dated 23rd November 1875.)

13. In alienated villages in all cases where there is no legal objection to the levy of the Local Fund Cess on the kamāl, this should invariably be done, except in instances where there is a very wide difference between the jama and the kamāl. Such cases may be treated exceptionally and the difference treated as a remission. (G. R. No. 888, dated 11th February 1881.)

14. The wording of Section 6 of Act III of 1869 is only intended to provide for no fresh imposition of the cess during the currency of a term of years for which the settlement may be made after the passing of the Act. (G. R. No. 3364, dated 14th August 1869.)

15. The one-anna cess is leviable on the following items which are credited to land revenue:—

1. Sale-proceeds of grass in waste land.
2. Sale-proceeds of grass in kurāns.
3. Ground rent on lands sold as building sites.
4. Proceeds from sales of melon beds by river sides.
5. Proceeds from sales of alluvial deposits on the banks of rivers let for purposes of cultivation from year to year.
6. Assessment on Gairān land when used for purposes of cultivation.

7. Proceeds from sale of mango fruit in Bagsheri land.

8. Sale-proceeds of fruit trees on waste land.

(G. R. No. 3589, dated 25th August 1869.)

16. In the case of lands held by village officers whose services are retained for the use of the State, the one-anna cess should not be levied. In all other cases the one-anna cess is to be levied not on the judi which may be payable, but on the full survey or kamál assessment. (G. R. No. 4258, dated 4th October 1869.)*

17. Excess lands held by Patels on payment of half assessment, which are not assigned to them as their private property, but which form a part of their service watans and cannot be alienated, are exempt from the payment of the one-anna cess. (G. R. No. 4940, dated 30th August 1876.)

18. It would be illegal to apply to the Local Fund Cess the rule adopted in the realization of ordinary land revenue for getting rid of fractional divisions of an anna by striking out the amount altogether if it is under six pies, and by entering one anna instead, if the amount is in excess of six pies, and as it is undesirable to forego any income, pies should be retained in the Local Fund accounts. (G. R. No. 4988, dated 16th November 1869.)

19. So long as the taking of water from any source of irrigation and payment for the same are optional with the cultivator, the payment cannot be looked upon in the light of "ordinary revenue" and should be exempted from payment of the one-anna cess. Where payment for water as a part of the land revenue, whether it be brought to account under the separate heads of water and dry-crop assessment or not, is compulsory, it should be held liable to the cess. (G. R. No. 1506, dated 23rd March 1870.)

20. In the case of salt-pan lands the levy of the Local Fund Cess is to be restricted to revenue derived from the ground according to the bigoti or acre system. (G. Rs. Nos. 2637, dated 4th June 1870, and 2865, dated 16th idem.)

21. Tenants of an inámdár holding lands on fixed kauli rents are liable to pay the Local Fund Cess on the survey assessment that may be newly fixed on the lands and not on the kauli rents actually paid by them to the inámdár. (L. R. 458, dated 25th May 1898; vide G. R. No. 3865, dated 10th June 1898.)

It is only in the case of the Imperial Reserved Forest Tracts that the levy of the one-anna cess from the lessee of the grazing rights is inadmissible under the orders † of the Government of India. In all other cases, whether the land is under the management of the Revenue or Forest Departments, the cess is leviable from the lessee. (G. Rs. Nos. 3040, dated 26th June 1872, 476, dated 28th June 1873, and 3535, dated 20th June 1873.)

24. Bābul kurans in charge of the Forest Department cannot be held to be "Imperial Reserve Forest Tracts" and the one anna cess is consequently leviable. (G. R. No. 539, dated 31st January 1874.)

25. Purchasers of forfeited occupancies sold at once should not be required to pay one anna in each rupee of the price realized to Local Funds, nor should one anna in the rupee of the whole sale-proceeds be credited to local cess. But as the one-anna cess is chargeable on arrears of assessment and recoverable as land revenue, the sale-proceeds of such lands should be credited in accordance with Section 183 of the Land Revenue Code—the surplus, if any, being paid to the defaulter. (G. R. No. 2002, dated 10th March 1883.)

26. Local Funds have no legal claim to compensation for losses due to the development of the Forest Department. In the first place it is to be observed that under the Bombay Local Funds Act of 1869 it is lawful for Government, but not obligatory on Government, to levy a cess for local purposes. Secondly, the cess is leviable on the survey assessment paid by occupants or enjoyed by grantees and on the sums payable by farmers of land or sāyer, that is, a cess is a tax on the subject, and is not leviable on land which is in the hands of Government and not of an occupant or grantee, or let to a farmer. Any sums given by Government to a District Local Fund are voluntary contributions and not payments rendered obligatory by law. If it happened that any lands included within forest limits are assessed and cultivated by occupants, the cess should be levied from the occupants and paid over to the District Fund. The cess may fairly be levied from the farmer when in protected forest a farm is given of the grazing of a definite area or of any miscellaneous produce coming within the meaning of sáyer. And it is reasonable that the Forest Department should from its own funds co-operate with District Local Funds by constructing and maintaining roads and bridges and similar works within forest limits. This is actually done. But any attempt to compensate Local Funds for items of receipt withdrawn at the discretion of Government would be merely a complicated method of doing what can be done much more simply by grants from the public revenue. It must not be overlooked that Government are largely increasing their grant to primary education to the direct benefit of Local Fund revenue and the extra grants made in this way are likely in the next few years greatly to exceed the receipts which have been transferred to the Forest Department. Nor can it be admitted that the Forest Department is analogous to a private concern worked for profit. The department is established for the public benefit, its administration is costly and the expenditure is always tending to increase. It is both reasonable and convenient to treat as receipts of the Forest Department any monies which accrue from the lands which it is deemed proper to place under the management of the department for purposes of conservancy. (G. R. No. 9094, dated 18th November 1884.)

27. The cost of all lands provided whether for the temporary or permanent use of Railways falls either immediately or ultimately on Government, and in these circumstances the capitalization of the Local Fund Cess on such lands would amount to a bonus to Local Funds at the expense of public revenues and is inadmissible on the principles laid down in Government Resolution No. 9094, dated 18th November 1884. (G. R. No. 7887, dated 26th October 1893.)

28. The Local Fund Cess cannot be levied on simple sales of trees whether the sale-proceeds are credited to Forests or to Land Revenue. The cess can be charged only on the ordinary land-revenue assessment and on sums payable by farmers of land or sáyer revenue other than ábkári the levy of the cess on which the Government of India disallowed. The claims of the Local Funds under these heads have been recognized even within Forests by Government Resolution No. 9094, dated 18th November 1884, and the levy should not be extended to items of revenue which are clearly not taxable within the meaning of the Act. (G. R. No. 9993, dated 19th December 1884.)

29. The Local Fund Cess should be calculated on the amount of the revised assessment actually for collection. (G. Rs. Nos. 3694, dated 7th May, and 5050, dated 19th June, 1885.)

LOCAL FUND CESS.]

30. Looking to the manner in which Bombay Act III of 1869 has been amended by Bombay Act I of 1884 and especially to the fact that the references in it to the older revenue law have been changed throughout to references to the Bombay Land Revenue Code, the term "superior holder" in Section 8 of Bombay Act III of 1869 is to be interpreted not according to the definition of that term in Bombay Act I of 1865, but according to the definition in the Land Revenue Code.

Section 8, Bombay Act III of 1869, enacts that "the provisions of the law relative to the assistance to be given to superior holders for the recovery of their dues from their tenants * * * shall be applicable to all superior holders * * * in respect of the recovery of this cess from their tenants"; and when it is enquired what law is here referred to it is now-a-days found in Sections 86 and 87 of the Land Revenue Code, in which the term "superior holder" is governed by the definition of it given in that Code. On this ground also the term "superior holder" in Bombay Act III of 1869 may be held to have the same meaning as in the Land Revenue Code. No special meaning is attached to it in Bombay Act III of 1869 and the enactment which is referred to with respect to it is therefore the one in which its meaning must be sought.

31. The words of Section 6 of Bombay Act III of 1869 are that Government may levy a cess of "one anna on every rupee that is assessable to the ordinary land revenue." These words do not apply to any sums, however the same may be calculated, which is paid to Government for the extinction in perpetuity of their right to levy land revenue. Such sums, even if they be credited in the Government accounts to land revenue, are not 'ordinary land revenue.' (L. R. No. 261, dated 24th March 1887; vide G. R. No. 2452, dated 23rd April 1887.)

32. In future the payment or the redemption of the Local Fund Cess should, as a rule, be made a condition of the transfer of lands on redemption of assessment except in the case of Railway Companies. (G. R. No. 2452, dated 23rd April 1887.)

33. The law in Sind † for the levy of the one-anna cess is practically the same as in the rest of the Presidency. The law for both Sind and the rest of the Presidency authorizes the levy of that cess—

†In the case of the Jâghirdârs-(Beluch Chiefs) of the Upper Sind Frontier District, the levy of hakabo and the local cess has been postponed as a matter of favour and during good behaviour and for so long as may seem proper to Government in regard to the circumstances of the district and the particular estate; vide G. Rs. No. 1171, dated 25th February 1881, and 9406, dated 21st December 1883.

- (1) from all lands with certain exceptions; and
- (2) from every farmer of land or sáyér revenue.

In the former case the cess is to be 'one anna on every rupee that is assessable to the ordinary land revenue;' in the latter it is to be one anna 'on every rupee that is payable by the farmer \* \* \* in respect of his farm.' With regard to the farmer, the language is clear enough. He is to contribute to the Local Fund a sum equal to  $\frac{1}{16}$  of the amount he pays for his farm. The word 'farmer' must be read in its ordinary acceptation as meaning a person who, for remuneration, collects taxes; so that in the Local Fund Acts it means a person who undertakes, for a consideration to collect 'land revenue' or 'sáyér revenue.' The term here used is not 'ordinary land revenue' but 'land revenue' generally, so that a farmer of any item which goes to swell the land revenue is liable to pay the cess. 'Sáyér revenue' is a technical expression and according to the usual rule must be interpreted in the 'sense in which it is understood in the \* \* \* business in which it has acquired such sense,' unless there is reason for holding that it was used by the Legislature in a popular or wider sense; Maxwell on the Interpretation of Statutes 2 and 51.

34. It is safest to construe the words "farmer of land or sáyér revenue" as meaning a person who for remuneration collects such revenue. To say that the word "farmer" is to be taken as the equivalent of maktedár so as to include purchasers of kurans and other rights sold at auction, is to put a strain on its wording which it will hardly bear. Moreover, it appears to be useless to put this construction on the words in question, as it seems much simpler to ascribe to contract the liability which a purchaser at an auction incurs for the payment of Local Fund. Even if this liability is not published in the notice of sale, the custom is now so thoroughly well established that all sales (other than those under the Abkári Act) of which the proceeds are credited to land or sáyér revenue are, it is believed, subject to it; and therefore any purchaser who bids or offers Rs. 16 is bound by implied contract to pay an extra rupee for Local Funds, and although the Local Fund Board may not be entitled to claim the amount as a legal right Government has the power to place it to its credit (vide clause (g) of Section 44 of Bombay Act I of 1884) and does so by its recognition of the custom.

(2) It seems then that the interpretation given in the Legal Remembrancer's report No. 467, dated 22nd April 1887, of the words "farmer of land or sáyér revenue" leads to no real difficulty or loss of Local Fund revenue. From farmers of revenue properly, so called the cess is leviable under the Act. From purchasers of grass, &c., it appears due by contract. No advantage is to be gained by endeavouring to extend the former class so as to include the latter.

LOCAL FUND CESS.]

And it appears undesirable to strain the meaning of words in an Act in a manner not likely to command general acceptance, nor to lead to any very practical result.

(3) The connection between the word "assessable" and "assessment" as commonly understood in connection with the land revenue and the use of the words "ordinary land revenue" in Section 6 of the Bombay Local Funds Act, 1869, suggests the conclusion that it was meant to restrict the levy of Local Funds to one anna on every rupee assessable as ordinary land revenue on the land. But it is also arguable that by the words "every rupee assessable to the ordinary land revenue" it was intended to mean "every rupee liable to be placed to the account of the ordinary land revenue" and that in order to ascertain to what items this referred it would be necessary to consider what was known as "ordinary land revenue" in the account system in force in 1869. Other items besides assessment on land are credited to land revenue, and having regard to the practice that has always prevailed of levying Local Fund on such items it cannot be held that the word "ordinary" before the words "land revenue" has the effect of limiting the phrase to assessment on land. If assessment on land, tree-tax, and a number of other items are commonly designated "land revenue" in the accounts, it is not very easy to see why the assessment alone should be considered "ordinary." It is no doubt the form of land revenue most widely prevalent, but in particular localities, it is believed, other items are equally "ordinary." It may be urged that this view deprives this word of all effect, but this does not necessarily follow, as there may be items of an unusual character which cannot properly be treated as ordinary land revenue.

(4) There is an old maxim for the construction of laws "optimus interpret usus." And in discussing this subject, Maxwell in his work on the Interpretation of Statutes says: "The meaning publicly given by contemporary or long professional usage is presumed to be the true one even when the language is hardly doubtful." In the present controversy this rule may advantageously be applied; custom in dealing with this Act seems by now to have assigned a meaning to the words "ordinary Land Revenue" wider than that of the expression "assessment on land," and there would be no advantage in attempting to limit that meaning.

(5) It seems probable then that, without straining the meaning of the word "farmer," the levy of Local Funds on most of, if not all, the items in respect of which it is at present levied can be justified either on the wording of the Act as interpreted by custom or on the basis of contract, express or implied; and if in regard to any single item any doubt is felt in any particular instance it can be decided when it arises. It seems difficult and dangerous to lay down any general rule applicable to all items.

character of official correspondence in such matters between Government and their officers. Revenue officers should, therefore, be informed that all communications they may have to make to Government on the subject of estates under their management must continue to be in their own words. 8. It frequently happens that, when the opinions of heads of offices and controlling officers are called for on questions relating to proposed legislation and matters of general policy, the reports and opinions of subordinate officers are submitted in original with a few remarks from the controlling officer. Government desire in future that the substance of the opinions of subordinates be condensed as much as possible in the controlling officer's own report. It is, of course, to be understood that any reports which it may be thought advisable to send on in original to Government may be forwarded with the controlling officer's report as heretofore. (G. C. 15. Vernacular papers should not be submitted to Government unless they are accompanied by translations in English. * (G. R. No. 2087, dated 12th April 1873.)

16. The direction contained in the following extract from the Secretary of State's Despatch No. 20, dated 30th March 1876 (acknowledging the receipt of the Revenue Survey and Assessment Atlas of the Khándesh Collectorate), as to the translation into the English language of native terms, is very necessary in all Departments, and should be strictly enforced :—

17. The instructions contained in the following letter from the Government of India, No. 2, Public—135, dated 7th February 1895, should be observed in all official correspondence in this Presidency :—

"In the circular letter from this Department, No. 70—3943-52 of the 31st December 1873, the Government of India drew attention to the instructions of the late Honourable Court of Directors regarding the use of vernacular terms in official correspondence, and requested that such terms should be employed as sparingly as possible, especially in papers which were intended to go beyond the Local Government first concerned. Again, in the extract circulated with Resolution No. 2—81-95 of 31st January 1881, the Secretary of State drew attention to the inconvenience attending the use of vernacular terms in reports or official correspondence sent home to the India Office, and directed that, whenever it was considered desirable to make use of them, their English equivalents should also be given.

"2. It appears to the Government of India that these instructions have in some measure been lost sight of owing to lapse of time. Letters and reports which come before the Governor General in Council, and especially those dealing with revenue matters, are not infrequently almost unintelligible to persons unacquainted with the Province from which they are received, owing to the number of vernacular terms with which their pages are laden.

"3. I am, therefore, to request that the use of such terms may be avoided as far as possible. It is sometimes necessary to employ vernacular words for which there exists no English equivalent; and the precise meaning of which can be conveyed in English, if at all, only by a long periphrasis. But wherever it is possible to use an English word which expresses, with sufficient accuracy for the immediate purpose, the meaning to be conveyed, this should be done.

"4. In the orders of 1873, referred to above, it was stated that they were 'not meant to govern necessarily the style of correspondence carried on between a Local Government and the officers subordinate to it, but were applicable mainly to writings intended to go beyond one Local Government.' It is, however, difficult to distinguish between papers that may go beyond the Local Government and those that will not; and even those that do not, must be reproduced in Proceedings which are always examined by the Government of India. Moreover, officers can hardly be expected to cultivate two distinct official styles, to be used respectively in the two classes of papers."

(G. R., G. D., No. 901, dated 5th March 1895.)

18. Local terms which it is found necessary to use in official correspondence should be defined. (G. R. No. 3722, dated 8th May 1885.)

19. No modifications are to be made in the statistical forms prescribed by the Government of India without the distinct permission of that Government, and returns are to be submitted in the exact forms prescribed. Should any difficulties be felt in filling them up, or should any defects be found in them, such difficulties or defects should at once be brought to the notice of the Government of India.

It is not, however, intended in any way to debar Local Governments and Administrations from asking for any additional information beyond that given in the statements prepared for the Government of India, or from prescribing other returns for their own information. (G. I., R., A. & C., No. 5, dated 3rd January 1873: vide G. R., G. D., No. 129, dated 15th idem, and G. M. No. 407, dated 23rd idem.)

20. All printed documents are to bear the date of their despatch, and not that on which they were sent in manuscript to the Press. (G. R. No. 2668, dated 10th May 1873.)

21. When papers are called for by the Government of India for perusal, they may usually be furnished in original, whereby much needless labour and expense of copying will be avoided. (G. I., F. D., No. 2837, dated 10th December 1875; vide G. R., F. D., No. 4311, dated 22nd idem.)

22. Except in cases of absolute necessity, only foolscap-sized paper should be used for any returns or estimates submitted to the Government of India in the Financial Department, to whatever subject they may relate. With a little ingenuity the largest returns can always be arranged upon paper of foolscap size. (G. I., F. 23. The returns submitted to the Government of India in the Home Department should also be prepared on foolscap-sized paper. This order applies only to separate or special returns, and does not affect any return submitted with annual or other reports. (G. I., H. D., No. 42—1994, dated 29th October 1877; vide G. R., F. 24. Collectors should report through the Commissioners in all cases except when they are specially directed to address Government direct. (G. R., F. D., No. 1238, dated 18th March 1876.)

25. The Secretary of State deprecates the practice of officially reporting demi-official correspondence without the sanction of the writers. (S. of S. No. 42, dated 26th October 1876; vide G. R. No. 489, dated 25th January 1877.)

26. The latest edition of books of reference should always be quoted in official communications to avoid misunderstanding. (G. R. No. 3534, dated 5th July 1879.)

27. Three copies of the circular orders issued by the High Court should be forwarded to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for the use of the India Office. (G. R. No. 6618, dated 16th December 1880.)

28. All matters connected with the subjects noted below, so far as they affect the provinces of British India, come under the cognizance of the Revenue and Agricultural Department of the Government of India:—

1. Land Revenue, including Settlements and Takávi Advances.
2. Surveys, including Geological Surveys, but excluding Archæological and Marine Surveys.
3. Agriculture and Horticulture, including Fibres and Silk, Fisheries, Cattle-breeding and Cattle-disease.
4. Minerals.
5. Meteorology.
6. Famine.
7. Practical Arts.
8. Museums.
9. Exhibitions.
10. Weights and Measures.
11. Forests.

All matters relating to the undermentioned subjects are administered by the Home Department:—

1. Law and Justice.
2. Jails and the Penal Settlements in the Andaman and Nicobar Islands.

33. The following letter No. 423, dated 23rd December 1886, from the Government of India, Home Department, was communicated to all Departments of the Secretariat for information and guidance :—

“ I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 8316, dated the 25th ultimo, enquiring what is the practice of reporting to the Secretary of State the deaths of Bombay officers, Civil or Military, serving elsewhere, i.e., whether the Government of India or Local Governments under whom they may be serving report the deaths direct or leave it to the Government of Bombay to do so.

“ 2. In reply, I am to say that ordinarily it is not customary to report such deaths to the Secretary of State at all. When, however, a Civil or Military Officer is killed or wounded in the execution of his duty, especially in time of war, the fact should be reported to the Secretary of State by the Government under which he was actually serving at the time, and it will be convenient to make the report by telegram in the case of a death.

“ 3. Casualties among Civil and Military Officers serving in Burma are reported by the Chief Commissioner and His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, respectively, direct to the Secretary of State.”

*Letter from the Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department (Public) No. 843, dated 15th April 1887 :—

“ I am directed to forward the accompanying copy of a despatch from Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, No. 110 (Public), dated 18th November 1886, asking for a report of casualties among Civil Officers in the execution of their duty. The Government of India leaves it to the discretion of His Excellency the Governor in Council to report to the Secretary of State the casualties by telegram or by letter; but in the case of wounds, the report should invariably show whether they were dangerous, severe or slight. The report need be made only regarding officers actually serving under the Government of Bombay at the time when the casualty occurs. A copy of the report should at the same time be sent to the Government of India.”

Despatch from Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India to His Excellency the Right Honourable the Governor General of India in Council, No. 110 (Public), dated India Office, London, 18th November 1886 :—

“ With reference to the second paragraph of your letter dated the 21st of September last, No. 45, I am of opinion that the practice followed with regard to reporting to the Secretary of State information respecting Military Officers, who are killed or wounded in the execution of their duty, should be followed in the case of Civil Officers, especially in time of war.

“ I must leave to the discretion of the Governments in India the question whether the reports to the India Office should be made by telegram or by letter in the ordinary way. The latter course as a rule will suffice.”

34. The Revenue, Financial and General Departments of the Secretariat, when sending for publication rules or notifications which, in their opinion, should be made available to the public, should intimate the fact to the Superintendent, Government Central Press, and state at the same time the number of copies which should be separately printed for sale to the public in addition to those required by the respective departments for their own use and for distribution to Government officers. When amendments of rules printed for the public are published, copies thereof should also be printed for sale to the public. In such cases the Superintendent of the Press will be able to judge from the number of copies of the original rules sold and in stock how many copies of the amendments will be required, and he need not, therefore, expect any instructions from Government. (G. R., F. D., No. 2908, dated 20th September 1888.)

35. All communications on the subject of (road) tolls and toll-bars should be addressed to Government in the Public Works Department. (G. M. No. 8444, dated 6th November 1889.)

36. The following Resolution of Government in the Political Department containing orders regarding the channel and the form of communication to be adopted by British officers in addressing Native Chiefs was communicated to all heads of offices under the Revenue Department for information and guidance:—

“The question raised is one as to the channel and the form of communication to be adopted by British officers in addressing Native Chiefs. The particular incident which gives rise to the discussion is a reference made to the Chief of Vála by the High Court in connection with an appeal before it which concerns his status as a ruling Chief; and on the question being raised, the Registrar at once complied with the Political Agent's suggestion and sent his communication through the Political Agent. It will be observed that in connection with this reference the status of the Chief of Vála as a Foreign Chief had not been decided by any judicial tribunal adversely to him.

“2. It appears to Government that in laying down a rule, two separate conditions of circumstances must be considered. If the subject of the correspondence concerns the Chief as a foreigner and a ruling Chief, the reference should be made through the representative of Government who conducts the relations of Government with the Chief as such. The High Court in the case before them were dealing with the Chief of Vála, if not solely in his character as a Chief at least in that character blended with his other character as a British land-holder or British property-holder amenable in respect to such property to the British Courts. The question of the status of the Chief was concerned, and the Registrar very properly dealt with the case as one requiring the approach to the Chief to be made through the diplomatic channel.

"3. But cases do arise in which Chiefs are suitors or sued in British Courts, or are in direct relations as British land-holders with British authorities solely in reference to their interests in British territory. A striking instance of such relations was afforded when in 1866 the High Court issued a writ of attachment of certain property within its jurisdiction belonging to the Indore State in satisfaction of a decree passed in favour of the plaintiff Dādābhāi Jamsetji, who sued His Highness the late Mahārāja of Indore and his partner Kāvasji Jehānghir, trading in linseed under the name of Sadāshiv Mārtand. When it was ascertained that the whole of the property attached was under British law and administration, the Government of India declined to interfere. The principle was laid down that, whatever privileges the Mahārāja enjoyed as a ruling Chief could not accompany His Highness when he assumed the new character of a British trader. In the same way Government, whilst discouraging the acquisition by Native Chiefs of landed property in British India, have laid down that when such Chiefs acquire the position of British land-holders, they place themselves, in respect to that property, in direct relations with the British system of administration and its incidents of liability to stamp duty and revenue regulations. In such cases there is no reason why the intervention of the Political Agent, who represents Government in its dealings with a ruling Chief, should be employed by the Revenue or Judicial authorities who have to deal exclusively with the Chief in a distinct character as a British land-owner or suitor or other private capacity. The form of the communication as well as the channel would be that adopted in the case of British Sardars."

37. The attention of all Departments of the Secretariat should be invited to the necessity of avoiding unnecessary references to the Accountant General and of specifying clearly the points on which his reports are called for, unless the points are obvious.

2. Frequent requests have been made by Government for full compliance with the Code rules and standing orders of the nature referred to in the following rules which should be strictly observed by all heads of offices: -

1. Every application must contain information upon the following points:

(a) Whether the expenditure has been provided for in the budget.

(b) If no such provision has been made, whether it can be met from savings under the head to which it will be charged.

(c) If no such savings are expected, a re-appropriation statement should be submitted.

(d) If not provided for in the budget, why the necessity was unforeseen and why the expenditure cannot be postponed till the next year.

2. Where the application is for additions to, or revision of, establishments, a proposition statement must be forwarded (Civil Account Code, Article 57).

3. Where it is for contingent expenditure, the provisions of Article 98, Civil Account Code, should be kept in view and it must be explained why the charge cannot be avoided.

PETROLEUM.*I.—EXTENSION OF CERTAIN PROVISIONS OF THE PETROLEUM ACT, XII OF 1886, TO BOMBAY, KARACHI AND ADEN.

1. In exercise of the power conferred by sub-section (3) of Section 1 of the Petroleum Act (XII of 1886) the Governor in Council is pleased to extend the provisions of the said Act, other than those relating to dangerous petroleum and the importation of petroleum, to the cities of Bombay and Karachi, and to Aden, with effect on and from the 1st of September 1890. (G. N. No. 5796, dated 18th August 1890.)

In exercise of the powers conferred by Sub-section (3) of Section 1 of the Petroleum Act XII of 1886, His Excellency the Governor in Council is pleased to direct that all the provisions of the said Act, other than those relating to dangerous petroleum and to the importation of petroleum, shall on and after the 1st day of September 1896, extend to the areas undermentioned, that is to say,

- (1) the Municipal Districts of—
  - (a) the Suburban Municipality of Poona,
  - (b) the Broach City Municipality,
  - (c) the Ahmedabad City Municipality,
  - (d) the Surat City Municipality;
- (2) the Taluka of Jalgaon* in the Khándesh District, and
- (3) all land between the City of Bombay and any of the aforesaid areas occupied by or acquired for—
  - (a) the G. I. P. Railway, or
  - (b) the B. B. & C. I. Railway for the purposes of such Railway, including not only all land within the fences or other boundary marks indicating the limits of the land appurtenant to such Railway, and all lines of rails, sidings and branches worked over for the purposes or in connection with the same, but also all stations, offices, warehouses, workshops, manufactories, compounds, yards, roads, open spaces and other lands, whether occupied by buildings or not, used or that may be used for the purposes of, or in connection with, such Railway.

II.—IMPORTATION, POSSESSION AND TRANSPORT.

* G. N. No. 6314, dated 25th August 1897.

† This Act was brought into force from 2nd August 1890; vide G. I., H. D., Notn. No. 1078, dated 2nd August 1890, republished under G. N. No. 5480, dated 6th idem.

PRELIMINARY.

- Short title, 1. These rules may be cited as the Bombay Petroleum Import Rules.
- Interpretation. 2. In these rules,—
- ‘The Act.’ (1) “the Act” means the Petroleum Act, 1886 :
- (2) “petroleum declared dangerous” means petroleum which the master of a ship has declared under rule 5 to be dangerous petroleum :
- (3) “certificated petroleum” means petroleum in respect of which a certificate of such description as the Governor in Council, from time to time, by Resolution, permits to be recognized for the purposes of these rules, has been obtained, at the port of shipment, declaring that the said petroleum is not dangerous petroleum :
- (4) “uncertificated petroleum” means petroleum which is neither petroleum declared dangerous nor certificated petroleum :
- (5) “petroleum reported dangerous” and “petroleum reported not dangerous” mean petroleum which the testing officer has certified in a report under rule 23 to be, respectively, dangerous or not dangerous :
- (6) “the Chief Customs-officer” means the chief executive officer of sea customs for any port to which these rules apply :
- (7) “the Testing-officer” means the Testing-officer appointed by the Governor in Council under Section 9 of the Act for the port of Bombay, Karachi or Aden, as the case may be : and
- (8) words and expressions defined in the Act have the same meanings as are respectively assigned to them therein.

PORTS AT WHICH PETROLEUM MAY BE IMPORTED.

3. Petroleum from any port in Burma or from any port beyond the limits of British India may not be imported except at the ports of Bombay, Karachi and Aden.
4. Petroleum from any port in British India, other than a port in Burma, may be imported at any port in the Bombay Presidency :
- Importation from British Indian ports.

Provided as follows, namely :—

PETROLEUM.]

(c) or, if it is petroleum which is ordinarily used for lubricating or jute-batching purposes and which has a flashing-point above 150° of Fahrenheit's thermometer:

Provided that the officer whose duty it is, under Rule 21, to select samples of petroleum on board may at any time take a sample of any such petroleum or oil for the purpose of having it tested.

7. Every other ship having petroleum on board shall be anchored at such anchorage as the Conservator of the Port shall appoint in this behalf, and shall not leave such anchorage until such petroleum has been discharged.

When a ship carrying petroleum must anchor at a special anchorage.

8. Petroleum shall be landed only at such landing-places as shall be prescribed by the Chief Customs-officer, with the sanction of Government, for Bombay, of the Commissioner in Sind, for Karachi, and of the Resident, for Aden.

Petroleum only to be landed at appointed landing-places.

9. Except as is otherwise provided in Rules 10 and 11, no petroleum shall be landed from any ship referred to in Rule 7 until the Testing-officer's report in respect thereof has been received in the office of the Chief Customs-officer.

Petroleum referred to in Rule 7 not to be landed until it has been tested.

10. If the quantity of petroleum declared dangerous on board a ship does not exceed forty gallons and there is no other petroleum on board, or the aggregate quantity of petroleum on board, including petroleum declared dangerous, does not exceed forty gallons, the said petroleum may be forthwith landed.

Exception in respect of petroleum declared dangerous which is not in excess of forty gallons or is covered by an import license.

If the quantity of petroleum declared dangerous exceeds forty gallons, or if it does not exceed forty gallons, but the aggregate quantity of petroleum on board exceeds that amount, the whole or any portion thereof may be at once landed, if the whole amount of the petroleum on board is covered by an import license under Section 5 of the Act.

11. The Chief Customs-officer may, in anticipation of the Testing-officer's report, allow the consignee of any certificated petroleum exceeding five thousand gallons in quantity to discharge the same into boats or to land it.

Except in respect of certificated petroleum exceeding five thousand gallons.

Such permission shall be subject to the condition that the boats into which the petroleum is discharged shall remain at such place as may be directed by the Chief Customs-officer, or that the petroleum shall be landed at a landing place duly appointed for this purpose under Rule 8, and be stored in a public warehouse built according to any rules in force for the storage of petroleum and set apart for the storage of certificated petroleum which has not been reported not dangerous, or within such limits as may be approved for the purpose by the Chief Customs-officer.

Before removal to such warehouse the petroleum must be entered inwards and cleared under Sections 86 and 87 of the Sea Customs Act.

12. As soon as the Testing-officer's report has been received in the office of the Chief Customs-officer, the petroleum to which the same relates shall be deemed to be dangerous or not dangerous in accordance with the said report; and any petroleum reported dangerous which has not been declared dangerous shall at once be subject to the provisions relating to dangerous petroleum.

Testing-officer's report to be final as to the nature of the petroleum tested.

13. Petroleum reported not dangerous may be landed forthwith.

Landing of petroleum reported not dangerous.

14. If the petroleum reported dangerous, together with the petroleum declared dangerous, if any, exceeds forty gallons in quantity and the same has not been already landed under the second paragraph of Rule 10, no part of it shall be landed without production of an import license under Section 5 of the Act covering the whole amount thereof.

Dangerous petroleum in excess of forty gallons may not be landed except under an import license.

15. Applications for import licenses under the said section shall be submitted in Bombay to the Commissioner of Police, in Aden to the Resident, and in Karachi to the Collector of Customs, Karachi, who will, after inquiry, forward the same with their opinion to Government in the Revenue Department.

Import licenses how obtainable.

If the application is granted, a license, signed by a Secretary to Government will be forwarded to the applicant through the officer to whom his application was submitted.

16. Except* in the case specified in Rule No. 18 (II) below, petroleum shall not be discharged, landed or transhipped at any time between sunset and sunrise.

Petroleum to be landed, &c., only in the daytime.

Smoking and fire, &c., on cargo-boats and, if the light be naked, in licensed premises, prohibited.

17. Smoking and the use of any fire or light are prohibited—

(a) on any boat which is being used for landing or transshipping petroleum, and

(b) in any premises or enclosure licensed for the storage of petroleum in bulk, unless, in the case of a light, such light be not naked

* G. N. No. 10230, dated 14th December 1896.

PETROLEUM.]

(a) if such petroleum be dangerous petroleum, it must,—

(i) if it exceeds forty gallons in quantity, be covered by an import license under Section 5 of the Act; or,

(ii) if it exceeds three gallons but does not exceed forty gallons in quantity, be covered by a possession or transport license under section 6 of the Act; or,

(iii) if it does not exceed three gallons in quantity, be contained in vessels of the nature prescribed in the proviso to Section 6 of the Act;

(b) if such petroleum be not dangerous, it must have been certified to be not dangerous by a Testing-officer appointed by a Local Government under Section 9 of the Act, and the words “not dangerous” must be noted on the shipping bill and on the export manifest.

(b) whether any, and, if so, what part of it is dangerous petroleum;

(c) whether any, and, if so, what part of it is certificated petroleum; and

(d) whether any, and, if so, what part of it is oil intended exclusively for lubricating or jute-batching purposes and having a flashing-point above 150° of Fahrenheit's thermometer:

Provided that, if, in anticipation of a ship's arrival, the agent of such ship delivers to the Port-officer a written declaration as aforesaid under his signature, no such declaration shall be necessary by the master of the ship.

If the master or agent declares that any petroleum is certificated petroleum, he shall deliver to the pilot or Port-officer, as the case may be, along with his declaration, the certificate relating to such petroleum.

Every such certificate and declaration delivered to a pilot shall by him be made over without delay to the Port-officer, and all certificates and declarations received by the Port-officer shall, with all convenient despatch, be forwarded by him to the Chief Customs-officer.

(b) Discharge, Landing, Transhipment and Storage of Petroleum.

When a ship carrying petroleum may anchor at ordinary anchorages. 6. A ship may proceed to the usual anchorage in the port and there discharge the petroleum—

- (a) if it is petroleum which has been certified not to be dangerous under Section 9 of the Act, and has come from a port in British India as a part of a general cargo, and the quantity does not exceed five thousand gallons;
- (b) or, if it is certificated petroleum not exceeding five thousand gallons in quantity, and the master produces the certificate to the pilot;

XII of 1886), were approved by Government Resolution, General Department, No. 3800, dated 17th October 1884 :—

1. The master of every ship bound for Aden, conveying petroleum, shall deliver to the pilot the declaration in duplicate required by Rule 2 before entering the limits of the Inner Harbour, or before anchoring in the Outer Harbour. The pilot shall send one copy of the declaration to the Superintendent of A'bkári, and the other to the Conservator of the Port.
2. A ship having on board
  - (a) petroleum declared dangerous; or
  - (b) certificated petroleum exceeding five hundred gallons in quantity; or
  - (c) uncertificated petroleum; shall remain in the Outer Harbour leeward of all other shipping, at such anchorage as the Conservator of the Port shall appoint.
3. The Superintendent of A'bkári has been authorized to proceed on board and obtain samples of petroleum and to carry out the duties assigned in Rule 2.
4. Petroleum discharged under Rule 3, and petroleum reported not dangerous passed under Rule 10, may be debarked on any Government or private pier or landing place, used for goods.
5. Dangerous petroleum shall be landed at the Pier at Shaikh Othman and deposited in the Government warehouse there.
6. In order that vessels importing certificated petroleum, exceeding 500 gallons in quantity, and uncertificated petroleum may not be unnecessarily detained until the petroleum on board thereof has been examined, such petroleum may either be landed at the pier at Shaikh Othman and deposited in the Government warehouse there, until it has been tested by the Chemical Examiner; or such petroleum may be deposited in lighters or boats which shall remain at anchor during the North-East Monsoon 1,000 yards north-east from the Light Vessel, and in the South-West Monsoon 600 yards due north from the Outer P & O. Moorings, until duly passed.

Note.—Owners, importers or consignees may store petroleum in the warehouse at the Shaikh Othman Pier, if they are not in possession of premises which fulfil the conditions prescribed by Rule 2 under Section 9 of the Act, and warehouse rent will be levied as under :—

For each case—anna 1 per quarter or part of quarter;

For each barrel—annas 4 per quarter or part of quarter.

Licenses for the import, possession or transport of petroleum will be issued by the Court of the Resident.

but protected. (G. N. No. 4301, dated 8th June 1897.)

18. Petroleum shall not be stacked on or near any landing-places, but shall be removed with the least possible delay to its proper destination.

Petroleum not to be stacked on or near landing-places.

(For part II of Rule No. 18 vide G. N. No. 5018, dated 11th July 1893.)

19. Except as is otherwise provided in Rules 16 and 17, the transshipment of certificated petroleum or of petroleum which has been certified not to be dangerous under Section 9 of the Act, for any other port, whether within or beyond the limits of British India, shall not be subject to any restriction other than what is imposed by any rules under the Sea Customs Act.

Transshipment of petroleum.

20. Dangerous petroleum and petroleum exceeding five hundred gallons in quantity shall not be stored on any premises which are not licensed under Section 11 of the Act.

Storage of petroleum.

(c) Selection and Delivery of Samples.

21. When a ship is brought to anchor at the anchorage appointed under Rule 7; the Superintendent of the Preventive Service or any Inspector of the Preventive Service at Bombay, the Head Preventive Officer at Karachi, and the Inspector of A'bkari, under the orders of the Collector of A'bkari at Aden, shall proceed on board and select, as soon as possible, samples of every variety of petroleum on board other than petroleum declared dangerous.

The master shall deliver to the said officer without charge such samples as he shall select.

Delivery of samples by master.

The said officer shall forthwith seal each sample so obtained and affix to each the name of the ship, the name of the consignee of the petroleum, and such other particulars or distinguishing marks as he thinks fit, and forward them to the Testing-officer for report.

Forwarding of samples to the Testing-officer.

22. Samples shall be selected in the proportion of one sample for every fifteen thousand cases or fraction of fifteen thousand cases of certificated petroleum, and one sample to every ten thousand cases or fraction of ten thousand cases of uncertificated petroleum of each brand or quality comprised in the cargo.

Number of samples to be selected.

(d) Testing.

23. The Testing-officer on completing his tests shall, as soon as practicable, and ordinarily within twenty-four hours after the receipt of the samples, sign a report certifying to the Chief Customs-officer that the samples are or are not dangerous petroleum, as the case may be.

Report by Testing-officer.

[PETROLEUM.]

24. If more than one sample of any one brand or quality forming the cargo or a portion of the cargo of a ship is sent to the Testing-officer for report, that officer shall test each sample separately and strike an average of the results of testing the several samples. If the average flashing-point is not lower than 73° of Fahrenheit's thermometer and no one test gives a flashing-point below 70° of that thermometer, the whole of the petroleum represented by the samples shall be reported as not dangerous.

25. When the results of the testing of samples raise a doubt as to the uniformity of the quality of the petroleum in any consignment stated to be of one uniform quality, the Testing-officer, if he thinks further tests necessary to satisfy him that none of the petroleum is dangerous, shall inform the Chief Customs-officer.

The Chief Customs-officer shall cause the petroleum in question to be landed and stacked in lots of one thousand cases each or to be discharged into boats each containing five hundred cases; and the officer named in Rule 21 shall select and deliver to the Testing-officer one sample from each lot. The result of the testing of each of these samples shall determine the quality of the lot which such sample represents.

If the petroleum has been already landed and stored under Rule 11, it shall be divided into lots, and samples of each lot shall be selected as aforesaid by the Superintendent of Police.

(e) Fees for Sampling and Testing.

26. The following fees shall be charged for sampling and testing petroleum :—

(1) under Rules 21 and 24—for each sample selected, one rupee;

for each sample tested, one rupee;

(2) under Rule 25—

for each sample selected, five rupees;
for each sample tested, five rupees.

GENERAL EXCEPTION.

27. Nothing in these rules applies to petroleum other than dangerous petroleum comprised in a ship's stores and manifested as such, if the quantity thereof is not, in the opinion of the Chief Customs-officer, unreasonably large.

If, in the opinion of the said officer, the quantity of petroleum is unreasonably large, the provisions of these rules shall be applicable, to the excess over and above the quantity which he deems reasonable

(G. Nos. Nos. 2743, dated 22nd April 1890, and 3772, dated 31st May 1890.)

Preliminary.

Interpretation.

1. In these rules,—

"The Act."

(1) "the Act" means the Petroleum Act, 1886.

(2) "City of Bombay" includes every place for the time being within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court of Judicature at Bombay, and Words and expressions defined in the Petroleum Act.

(3) Words and expressions defined in the Act have the same meaning as in the Act.

2. These rules, so far as they apply to dangerous petroleum, extend to the whole of the Presidency of Bombay, and, so far as they apply to other petroleum, only to those local areas to which the rest of the Act has, for the time being, been extended by a notification of the Governor in Council under Section 1, sub-section (3) of the Act.

Local extent.

3. Licenses for keeping petroleum exceeding five hundred gallons in quantity or dangerous petroleum shall ordinarily be granted only when the premises intended to be used for the storage of such petroleum are separated by a clear open space of not less than twenty feet on every side from any other building, and when they also fulfil the following conditions, namely:—

Licenses for possession not to be granted unless the premises on which the petroleum is to be stored fulfil certain conditions.

- (a) in the City of Bombay, when the building in which the petroleum is to be stored is constructed of masonry with terraced or iron roof, and with tiled or paved or earthen floors, and when the doorways and openings of the building are built up to a height of not less than two feet above the level of the road or street, or when the floor is sunk at least two feet below the level of the road or street so that petroleum cannot flow out of the building in case of fire;
- (b) outside the City of Bombay, either the conditions specified in clause (a) or the following conditions, namely, when the building in which the petroleum is to be stored is built of brick or earth and no inflammable material has been used in the construction of any portion thereof except the doors; and when the building is surrounded by a wall or earthen embankment not less than four feet high with a trench between such wall or embankment and the building, close to and completely surrounding the building, of sufficient capacity to hold all the petroleum stored and to prevent its escape beyond the limits of the trench in case of fire:

Provided that Government or the officer who grants the license (as the case may be) may for special reasons (which, when the license is granted by an officer, shall be recorded by him in writing before he grants the license) dispense with any or all of the said conditions.

4. The licensing-officer, or any police-officer of or above the rank of head constable, may enter any premises in respect of which a license for the possession of petroleum has been granted for the purpose of inspecting the same, at any time between sunrise and sunset.

5. The licensing-officer, or any police-officer as aforesaid, may require any licensee to show him any of the vessels in which any of the petroleum in his possession is stored or contained, to give him such assistance as he may require for examining the same and to deliver to him a sample from any vessel which he indicates for this purpose on payment of the value of such sample.

The procedure prescribed in Section 13 of the Act shall be followed in respect of the testing of any sample so obtained, the licensee being deemed for this purpose a dealer in petroleum.

Transport of Petroleum.

6. Licenses for the transport of petroleum shall only be granted if the petroleum to be transported is packed in air-tight tins or other vessels not easily broken or is contained in bottles securely stopped and carefully packed so as to avoid risk of breakage.

If the petroleum is to be conveyed in a cart, it shall only be so transported between sunrise and sunset.

7. It shall be the duty of all police-officers to see that petroleum which is being transported under a license is conveyed only in the manner prescribed in the last preceding rule and by such route as is specified in the license; any such officer may stop and inspect any petroleum in transit and, if necessary, require the person in charge of the same to comply with these rules or with any of the conditions of the transport license.

Grant of Licenses.

8. Applications under Section 5 of the Act for a license to keep or transport dangerous petroleum exceeding forty gallons in quantity shall be submitted in the City of Bombay to the Commissioner of Police, in Aden to the Resident, and elsewhere to the Commissioner of the Division, who will, after inquiry, forward the same with their opinion to Government in the Revenue Department.

If the application is granted, the license, signed by a Secretary to Government, will be forwarded to the applicant through the officer to whom his application was submitted.

9. Application for licenses to possess or transport petroleum not falling under Section 5 of the Act should be made to the officers who are herein below respectively authorized to grant the said licenses, namely:—

| License for—                                                                                                           | If applied for in—                                     | May be granted by—                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |

(d) the amount of petroleum, if any already licensed, to be kept in the same premises.

(3) Applications for licenses for transporting petroleum shall specify—

(e) the description and quantity of petroleum to be transported;

(f) the places from and to which it is desired to transport the said petroleum;

(g) the route and means by which it is proposed to convey the same; and

(h) the kind of vessels in which the petroleum to be transported is contained.

(4) In the case of applications for licenses for the possession or transport of dangerous petroleum under Section 5 of the Act, the application shall also contain the particulars required by sub-section (2) of that section.

11. In dealing with any application under Section 6 or Section 10 of the Act the licensing-officer may, in his discretion, grant a license for the possession or transport of such quantity of petroleum as he thinks fit.

12. Every license for the possession of petroleum shall be in force for one year from the date of the grant thereof; and every license for the transport of petroleum shall be in force for such period not exceeding three months from the date of the grant thereof as shall be fixed by Government or by the officer who grants the same, unless such license is revoked by competent authority before the expiry of such period.

13. Every application for the renewal of a license for the possession of petroleum shall be made in the same manner as an application for an original license. Every such application shall be made not less than fifteen days before the day on which the original license expires.

Fees for Licenses.

“When the consignment is imported in cases.”

And in the said paragraph after the word “shall” the word “thereupon” shall be omitted.

There shall be added to the said paragraph the following, viz. :—

“When the consignment is imported in bulk, should the Testing-officer think a further test necessary, the Chief Customs-officer, after the contents of the tank from which the original sample was taken have been duly stirred, shall forward a second sample, and, until receipt of the Testing-officer’s further report, shall prevent the landing of any portion of the contents of the tank in question. Should the report of the second sample prove unsatisfactory, the Chief Customs-officer shall treat as dangerous the whole contents of the tank in question.”

Rules under Section 11.

1. To No. 1 of the rules made under Section 11 of the said Act and published by Notification No. 2743-A of 22nd April 1890, there shall be added the following, viz. :—

“(4) Petroleum in bulk means petroleum in any vessel or receptacle having the capacity of 300 gallons or upwards.”

2. In Rule 3 of the said rules made under the said Section 11, after clause (b) and before the proviso, there shall be added the following, viz. :—

(A) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing rules the Local Government may, in its discretion, and subject to such conditions as it may prescribe, grant a license for the possession of any stated quantity of petroleum in a place specially prepared for the storage of petroleum in bulk in accordance with plans and specifications approved by the Local Government. The capacity in gal-lions shall be conspicuously marked on every storage-tank or other receptacle in such place.

(B). Any tank or receptacle for the storage of petroleum in bulk that may be erected, with the written consent of the Trustees and in accordance with plans and specifications approved by the Local Government, on the land vesting in or held by the Trustees of the Port of Bombay or of the Port* of Karachi shall be deemed to be a place in respect of which a license for the possession of petroleum has been granted under these rules.

(C). Wharves at which petroleum in bulk is to be landed must be notified in the Government Gazette under the Sea Customs Act as landing places for non-dangerous petroleum.

3. For No. 6 of the said rules made under the said Section 11 there shall be substituted the following, viz. :—

Transport in bulk of dangerous petroleum prohibited.

6. (1) The transport of dangerous petroleum in bulk is absolutely prohibited.

Special license necessary for transport of dangerous petroleum.

(2) No dangerous petroleum shall be transported without a special license.

Licenses general and special for transport in bulk of non-dangerous petroleum.

(3) For the transport of petroleum other than dangerous in quantities exceeding 500 gallons, licenses, either general or special, may be granted.

Licenses for transport otherwise than in bulk.

(4) Licenses for the transport of petroleum otherwise than in bulk shall be granted only if the petroleum to be transported is packed in air-tight tins or other vessels not easily broken, or is contained in bottles securely stopped and carefully packed so as to avoid risk of breakage.

Licenses for transport in bulk.

(5) Licenses may be granted for the transport in bulk of petroleum, other than dangerous petroleum, way-wagons, steamers, barges and carts in which petroleum has been stored or carried in bulk.

(6) (a) General licenses for a period of twelve months may be issued for the transport of petroleum, other than dangerous, by rail, by road or by water. Such licenses shall authorize the holders to transport any petroleum bonâ fide their own property without restriction as to destination or quantity. (G. N. No. 5710, dated 5th September 1898.)

(b) The holder of a general license with each consignment of petroleum conveyed under cover thereof shall issue a pass in Form G appended to these rules, which shall specify the places from and to which the petroleum is to be conveyed and the quantity of petroleum covered by the pass. Each pass shall be numbered and the number of the general license shall be legibly marked on a conspicuous part of the last case on the cart, or in some other conspicuous manner.

(7) Special licenses for the transport of petroleum shall, unless earlier revoked by competent authority, be in force for such period not exceeding six months from the date of the grant thereof as shall be fixed by Government or by the officer who grants the same.

(8) Every special license for the transport of petroleum shall specify the places from and to which respectively the petroleum is to be conveyed, the quantity of petroleum covered by the license, and the time for which the license is in force.

4. In No. 12 of the said rules under the said Section 11 all after the words "grant thereof" shall be omitted.

5. To No. 14 of the said rules there shall be added the following, viz. :—

III.—TESTING OF PETROLEUM.

1. Under the provisions of Section 21, sub-section (2), of the Petroleum Act, XII of 1886, the Governor General in Council is pleased to prescribe the following form of certificate of verification of petroleum testing apparatus:—

Certificate under Section 21 of the Petroleum Act XII of 1886.

This is to certify that the apparatus stamped by me with the No.        and with the date        and provided with two slides, marked A and B and three thermometers numbered 1, 2 and 3, respectively, having been submitted to me for the purpose of being compared with the model test apparatus and verified under Section 21 of the Petroleum Act XII of 1886, has been compared and verified by me on the date aforesaid with the following results:—

I. When the slide marked A is used with the thermometer number 1 the apparatus records* ..... the flashing point of an oil.†

II. When the slide marked A is used with the thermometer number 2, the apparatus records* .....the flashing point of an oil.†

III. When the slide marked A is used with the thermometer number 3, the apparatus records* .....the flashing point of an oil.†

IV. When the slide marked B is used with the thermometer number 1, the apparatus records* .....the flashing point of an oil.†

V. When the slide marked B is used with the thermometer number 2, the apparatus records* .....the flashing point of an oil.†

VI. When the slide marked B is used with the thermometer number 3, the apparatus records* .....the flashing point of an oil.†

† If the apparatus records the flashing point above or below the truth as ascertained by comparison with the model test apparatus enter here '.....(degrees and decimals) too high' (or 'too low' as the case may be).

PETROLEUM.]

2. Under the provisions of Section 9 of the Petroleum Act of 1886, His Excellency the Governor in Council is pleased to appoint the officers hitherto * entrusted with the work of testing petroleum at Bombay, Aden and Karáchi to be the testing officers for the purposes of that Act and the rules made thereunder. (G. R. No. 5499, dated 7th August 1890.)

3. The following letter from the Chemical Examiner to Government, Calcutta (No. 827-A., dated 12th September 1890), on the subject of the use of the petroleum test apparatus supplied for the ports in the Bombay Presidency was forwarded to the Chemical Analyser to Government, Bombay, for information and guidance, and also to the Political Resident at Aden and the Commissioner in Sind for communication to the officers appointed to test petroleum at Aden and Karáchi:—

"I have the honour to bring to your notice the following points in connection with the use of petroleum test apparatus, on which I think it very desirable that definite instructions should be issued to officers employing the instruments.

"2. I have found the thermometers, on receipt from England, in most cases cannot be used at once, because a portion of the mercury from the column has been forced into the small pear expansion of the capillary bore at the top of the stem. This is owing to the cases containing the instruments having been inverted during transit; and as there is every probability of the boxes being treated in a similar way, in spite of 'this side up' labels, during their transmission in India, it is requisite that testing officers should be warned against a source of error which would entirely invalidate the accuracy of any tests. I have appended directions for setting the thermometers. It would, however, be far more satisfactory for me to personally set the instruments, and at the same time to give practical instructions in the use of apparatus. Though I have tried to render the directions as simple as possible, I fear that in the hands of officers unaccustomed to handle physical apparatus, thermometers will be broken in attempts at adjustment; and I have no spare ones to replace those broken.

"3. As Government is aware, two slides with three thermometers have been issued with each apparatus—two thermometers for testing ordinary oils, and the third for lubricating oils. Two contingencies are possible—a slide or thermometer may break. In the case of a thermometer breaking, two would still be left for carrying on the work; but in the case of one slide being thrown out of work, the fact of the remaining slide being actuated by mechanism and the risk of its breaking through any slight accidental cause, has to be remembered, and steps must, therefore, be at once taken to replace the broken one. The instruments have been verified as a whole. Each slide has been verified with each thermometer, and each thermometer with each slide; so that each set of instruments issued, represents six sets of apparatus. A broken thermometer cannot be replaced by a new one until it has been verified on each of the two slides. Similarly, a broken slide cannot be replaced by a new slide, until it has been tested with each of the three thermometers.

"4.* What is a testing officer to do when a slide or thermometer breaks? He cannot be supplied with duplicates unless he returns the whole set into store. I have in store two sets of apparatus. I propose calling them 'spare sets' No. 12 and No. 13. Madras and Bombay might each be supplied with one. I can also put together a third spare set, which might be kept in Calcutta, forming spare set No. 14. On a thermometer or a slide breaking, the testing officer should at once telegraph for a spare set to his Presidency town, and immediately on its arrival despatch to Calcutta his defective apparatus for re-verification.

5. It is desirable that I should have in store at least one dozen thermometers for the oil-cup, graduated from 50° to 100° Fahr. For testing ordinary petroleum, six thermometers, graduated from 56° to 200° Fahr., for testing lubricating oils and six thermometers for water-baths.

"6. Some of the spare slides now in store are defective and must be repaired."

Rules for Examination of Thermometers, &c., &c.

On receipt, examine each thermometer most carefully in a good light to ascertain whether any mercury or not has been forced into the small pear-shaped bulb at the top of the stem. A globule of mercury, no larger than a small pin's head, thus detached from the column will entirely vitiate the results of a test. If mercury be found detached from the columns, grasp the lower part of the stem of the thermometer with the right hand while the fingers support the bulb, and try and jerk the detached mercury back into the column; should this fail, very cautiously heat the bulb, when the mercury will ascend and enter the bulb at the top, and then allowing the instrument to cool; as the mercury descends it takes with it the detached column. In this manner the greater part of the detached mercury will be forced to join the main column, but it sometimes happens that a very minute globule obstinately adheres to the apex of the pear-shaped bulb at the top of the stem. It may occasionally be dislodged by tapping the tube; it is not permissible to heat the mercury in the bulb until the whole of the pear-shaped cavity is filled; the instrument would certainly be broken under such conditions, but the pear-shaped bulb may be very cautiously and slowly heated, and the mercury vapourized and made to condense in the capillary bore. The mercury in the bulb is then heated, until the two columns unite. A break due to a minute bubble of air will sometimes be seen between the two columns, in which case the heating of the mercury in the bulb should be continued, until the portion of the column in which the air bubble occurs has overflowed into the pear-shaped cavity. The instrument is then allowed to cool, when the mercury will contract, and the overflowed portion be withdrawn from the pear-shaped bulb. These operations must be conducted with the utmost caution, as thermometers are very easily fractured.

If the water-bath thermometer be accidentally broken, telegraph to Calcutta for a new one, and as a temporary measure use an oil-cup thermometer. It is not necessary to return the water-bath into store to have a new thermometer fixed.

* Note.—The suggestion contained in this paragraph, that the Governments of Madras and Bombay should be supplied with a spare set each of the apparatus and that a third set should be kept in reserve at Calcutta, was approved by the Government of India, provided that the instruments referred to were not intended for ports to which they have not been sent; vide Government of India, Home Department, letter No. 1395, dated 25th September 1890, to the Chemical Examiner to Government, Calcutta.

PETROLEUM.]

If a slide or an oil-cup thermometer be broken, telegraph, in the case of stations in the Bengal, Bombay and Madras Presidencies, to Calcutta, Bombay and Madras, respectively, for a spare set of apparatus. On receipt of the spare set, return immediately to Calcutta both slides, all the oil-cup thermometers and the testing-cup. The water-bath, jacket and water-bath thermometer need not be returned.

(G. R. No. 7426, dated 18th October 1890.)

4. Under the provisions of Section 21, Sub-section (5), of the Petroleum Act, XII of 1886, the Governor General in Council is pleased to prescribe a fee of one rupee for the inspection of the model test apparatus deposited in the office of the Chemical Examiner to Government, Calcutta. 5. Under the provisions of Section 21, Sub-section (1) of the Petroleum Act, XII of 1886, the Governor General in Council is pleased to prescribe the following rates of fees for the verification of apparatus for testing petroleum, which may be submitted to the Chemical Examiner to Government, Calcutta, for that purpose, viz. :—

Rs. 16 for the verification of one slide with one thermometer, which fee will cover the cost of engraving the name of the owner on the apparatus, and Rs. 10 for each additional slide or thermometer verified after the first. (G. I., H. D., Notn. No. 1475, dated 9th October 1890; vide G. R. No. 7727, dated 30th idem.)

IV.—MISCELLANEOUS.

1. Provisional publication of draft Rules.—In exercise of the power conferred by Section 24, Sub-section (1), of the Indian Petroleum Act, 1899 (VIII of 1899), the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct, in supersession of the Notification of the Government of India in the Home Department, No. 187, dated the 1st February 1887, that drafts of rules which it may be proposed to make under the said Act shall be published—

(a) when the authority making the rules is a Local Government, in three consecutive issues of the local official Gazette in English and in such other language or languages as the Local Government may direct; and

(b) when the authority making the rules is the Governor General in Council, in three consecutive issues of the Gazette of India in English, and in three consecutive issues of the local official Gazette (if any) of every Local Government in British India in English and in such other language or languages as the Local Government may direct.

(G. of I. Notn. No. 562, dated 12th April 1899; vide G. R. No. 3034, dated 2nd May 1899.)

2. Report on applications for licenses to import dangerous petroleum.—The Chemical Analyst to
B 1955—376 REV.

Government should in reporting on applications for licenses to import dangerous petroleum, state specifically his opinion on the points mentioned in clause (3) of Section 5 of the Petroleum Act XII of 1886, in order to enable Government to decide whether the licenses asked for can be granted, consistently with the provisions of the Act. (G. R. No. 445, dated 19th January 1891.)

3. It is necessary that, in the matter of import of dangerous petroleum, the Municipal Commissioner for the City of Bombay should exercise the discretion vested in him under No. 11 of the Rules to regulate the granting of licenses for the Possession and Transport of Petroleum in the Presidency of Bombay. The case contemplated by Rule 11 is the case of such forms of petroleum, as mineral naphtha or benzoline, as are distillates of petroleum. These are used for certain purposes for which non-dangerous petroleum cannot be used. In the case of paints and varnishes, the presence of dangerous petroleum is not a necessity. In view of this distinction on which the Petroleum Act lays so much stress, and also considering the special risk which attaches to the use of a dangerous form of an article such as paint with which no special danger or precaution has hitherto been associated, the Municipal Commissioner should adopt measures for checking the import of quantities of dangerous petroleum not exceeding 40 gallons. With this object the Municipal Commissioner should refer to the Customs authorities all applications which he may receive for licensing consignments of less than 40 gallons of dangerous petroleum. In reply the Customs Authorities could state as contemplated in 5 (2) (b) the purpose for which the oil is to be used, and (c) that petroleum other than dangerous petroleum cannot be used for this purpose. With the information before him, the Municipal Commissioner would be in a position to exercise the discretion vested in him under Rule 11.

2. No avoidable delay should be allowed to occur in disposing of applications for licenses. (G. R. No. 6759, dated 19th September 1893.)

4. Fees.—In the case of petroleum imported on behalf of Government, the consignees should pay the prescribed fee leviable on the transport license and then prefer an application for its refund. (G. R. No. 2048, dated 19th March 1891.)

5. Fees for testing Government petroleum should not be demanded. (G. R. No. 7276, dated 22nd October 1891.)

6. The fees for licenses levied by the Commissioner of Police, Bombay, under the rules under the Petroleum Act should be in cash. (G. R. No. 7464, dated 12th October 1893; vide also G. R., G. D., No. 3452, dated 20th September 1884.)

7. Certificated Petroleum.—No certificates the ports of exports should be recognized

PETROLEUM.]

under Section 2 (3) of the Petroleum Import Rules. (G. R. No. 9104, dated 18th November 1892.)

8. Transport.—The removal of petroleum from a warehouse to a shop or other place within the city of Bombay is a 'transport' within the meaning of that term as defined in Section 3 (4) of the Petroleum Act, 1886. This strict interpretation, however, would probably cause great inconvenience without much corresponding advantage, and it need not be insisted on in practice, if the Bombay Government are satisfied that it can safely be disregarded. The existing practice according to which licenses for removal from one warehouse or place to another within the city are required only in the case of dangerous petroleum, is a very reasonable one. (G. I., H. D., No. 747, dated 3rd July 1893; vide G. R. No. 5018, dated 11th idem.)

In exercise of the power conferred by Section 21 of the Indian Petroleum Act, 1899, His Excellency the Governor in Council is pleased to exempt from the operation of all the provisions of the said Act and of all the rules made under the said Act, shale oil, which has its flashing point not lower than two hundred degrees of Fahrenheit's thermometer and is imported as ordinary cargo and in quantities not exceeding ten thousand gallons in each consignment. (G. N. No. 5364, dated 2nd August 1899.)

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.*

1. Proposals for the sale of buildings should be submitted to Government, as it is often desirable, before sanctioning such sales, to ascertain if the buildings are required by any other department of the service. (G. R. No. 3911, dated 28th October 1862.)

2. It is expedient that the Public Works Department should be consulted by the Revenue Department in all cases where it is proposed to sell Government buildings in their charge or the remains of such buildings. The Commissioners of Divisions and the Commissioner in Sind are authorized to sell petty or abandoned buildings valued at less than Rs. 1,000 in charge of the Civil Department and not borne on the Public Works returns. (G. R. No. 7073, dated 24th November 1881, and G. R., F. D., No. 1529, dated 17th June 1887.)

3. The Collector should let each kacheri or other building in charge of a guard furnishing a relief of sentries during the night be supplied with a good lantern of ordinary construction, and should give stringent orders that this shall invariably be used when it is necessary to carry about a light for the inspection of locks, seals, &c., during the night.

The lantern should be delivered to the guard every evening by the kacheri masul, or other person responsible for keeping it clean and in order, and the guards should be held responsible for reporting when it is not delivered to them in order and in clean condition.

The Collectors should also give such orders as will prevent any of the oil lamps used in the kacheris of their Collectorates from assuming the character of dripping fountains of rancid oil forming offensive heaps of grease and filth where they stand. (G. R. No. 610, dated 20th February 1864.)

4. The standard plan for the Mámlatdár's kacheri having been arrived at after very considerable discussion and consideration on an estimate of average requirements, if more accommodation for records is needed in one place, less should be provided in another. Revenue officers when applying for a new kacheri should state what accommodation for records is needed above or below the average provided for by the standard plan, and their reasons in each case should be given to the satisfaction of the Revenue Department before the matter is taken up by the Public Works Department. (G. R. No. 1114, dated 23rd February 1875.)

5. In proposals for building Mámlatdárs' kacheris, sites are sometimes selected outside the taluka towns, but such situations are open to the following objections:—

(a). The inconvenience of distance to the people of the town and those lodging there who have business at the kacheri;

* Vide also orders under "Finance and Resource" (sub-head "Public Works").

[PUBLIC BUILDINGS.]

(b) the comparative want of publicity in proceedings going on at the various offices ;

(c) the greater risks implied in the isolation of the building containing treasure, prisoners, &c., especially at night and in the rainy season ;

(d) the withdrawal from the town and from immediate call for service of such Police as may be at the kacheri off duty.

A hard and fast rule cannot be laid down, but each site will have to be selected with reference to the above points, which should be carefully borne in mind in submitting proposals for new kacheris.

(G. Rs. Nos. 2933, dated 11th May 1887, and 2114, dated 5th April 1888.)

6. There is no objection to the employment of prisoners undergoing rigorous imprisonment in subordinate jails attached to Mámlatdárs' kacheris for the purpose of watering the trees in the compounds of the offices, provided that convenient arrangements involving no extra expense to Government can be made by the Jail authorities. (G. R., F. D., No. 2370, dated 18th June 1889.)

7. Mámlatdárs and Maháلكaris should keep earthen jars filled with water near the record rooms in their kacheris as a precaution against fire, and it will be one of the duties of all officers examining these kacheris to see that these orders are properly carried out. (G. R. No. 6740, dated 9th September 1889.)

8. The places used for custody of records should be regularly visited by the guards on duty at the kacheri at intervals or at least at the time of reliefs. The Magistrates should instruct the Police Superintendents to arrange for the maximum number of visits which can be given in each case without harassing sentries unduly. The Police should include every public building for which a guard is not specially provided in their ordinary beats or rounds, and should have a special care for the protection of all such buildings.

A board studded with nails should be put near the guard room on which should be hung the keys of the Huzúr offices after they are closed for the night. Over each nail and key the name of the office to which the key belongs should be printed in plain letters on the board, so that the guard could at once open the office door if he saw or heard anything amiss inside a room.

(G. Rs. Nos. 6072, dated 7th September 1888, and 6705, dated 9th September 1889, and G. R., J. D., No. 5823, dated 24th October 1888.)

9. Grants of public money should not be made towards repairing temples even when they are used as chávdís, and no works connected with the repair or building of temples should be entered in the returns of works of public utility. (G. R. No. 4214, dated 11th October 1865.)

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.]

10. Chávdís are used and perhaps in their origin were intended for purely Imperial purposes. They are now also devoted to a considerable extent to what may be called Local Fund objects, that is to say, they are used as rest-houses for travellers and for the social gatherings of the villagers themselves. It is, therefore, just that not only should Government contribute Imperial money to the maintenance of the chávdís, but the Local Fund Committees should do so too, and the villagers themselves should assist by giving either money or labour. (G. R. No. 2112, dated 24th April 1874.)*

11. Proposals for making alterations and additions to public offices will not be entertained without full information as to the circumstances which render the expenditure desirable or necessary. (G. R., P. W. D., No. 271-C. W.-1090, dated 19th June 1871; vide G. M. No. 3038, dated 23rd idem.)

12. The designs and specifications of all new buildings on the Bombay Esplanade should be referred to the P. W. Department before sanction is granted. (G. R. No. 4447, dated 2nd August 1876.)

13. Every design and estimate relating to buildings must be submitted to the department concerned before being sent to the authority by whom it has to be sanctioned. The plans concerning any particular department should be countersigned by the head of that department, in token of approval of the design and all proposed arrangements.

It is necessary that even if a Collector has signed a plan in token of his approval, the Commissioner, as the head of the department, should also do so. The Inspector-General of Registration and Stamps should be consulted as to dimensions necessary for Sub-Registrars' offices in new Mámlat kacheris. (G. Rs., P.W.D., Nos. 149-C.W.—497, dated 24th March 1886, and 235-C. W.—899, dated 4th June 1892, and G. M. to the Commissioner, N.D., No. 6752, dated 19th September 1893.)

14. When a public officer in civil employ rents a Government building, the officer in charge of the building may inform the Accountant General, in whose circle the officer who rents the building is employed, of the amount of rent payable on account of it, and the Accountant General should make arrangements for deducting the rents from the officer's salary. If, when the officer leaves the station, any rent is still due from him, the fact should be stated in his last pay certificate, so that it may subsequently * Government Resolution No. 7261, dated 24th December 1875, directed that as a general rule assistance should not be granted from the Imperial grant to chávdís in cases where no village contribution had been raised, and that when a very exceptional case occurred, it should form the subject of a separate report to the Commissioner, who might, at his discretion, allow Imperial money to be given where no village contribution had been raised. Under Government Resolution, Financial Department, No. 1550, dated 20th April 1893, charges on account of construction and repair of chávdís are now treated as countersigned contingencies.

be recovered. (G. I., F. D., No. 2828, dated 17th August 1871, republished in the Bombay Government Gazette of 31st idem.)

Note.—It has been laid down in Government Resolution, Public Works Department, No. 108-A—375, dated 3rd March 1892, that it would suit the convenience of all concerned, if rents due from Government officers were recovered by deductions from their salary bills, and that this course should be followed in all departments, when feasible.

15. The following is the standard form of lease for adoption in all cases of hiring of buildings for Government in which special conditions are not deemed necessary :—

An Agreement made the                      day of 18    between A.B. of                      (hereinafter called the lessor) of the one part and the Secretary of State for India in Council (hereinafter called the lessee) of the other part.

The lessor hereby agrees to let and the lessee to take the house situate in the                      of                      on the                      side of the road called                      to which it fronts, numbered No.                      by the Municipality (or village officers) now in the occupation of                      and formerly in the occupation of                      with the open compound, and separate sheds and out-houses appertaining thereto for the term of                      months from the day of                      18                      , and so on from month to month until this lease shall be determined at the end of the said                      months or of any subsequent month by either party giving to the other two months' previous notice in writing, at the monthly rent of Rs.                      to be paid in arrear not later than the day of each month, the first of such payments to be made not later than the                      day of                      18                      .

And the lessor doth hereby for himself, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns covenant with the lessee as follows, (namely) :—

(1) That he will during the said term keep the said premises in good condition and complete repair to the satisfaction of the and that should he fail so to do, the said                      may on giving to the lessor one month's previous notice in writing execute all such repairs as he deems necessary at his own cost, and recover the amount thereof from the lessor by deducting the amount of the said costs from the rent then due or thereafter from time to time to become payable to the said lessor, or otherwise as he deems fit.

(2) That he will not by notice as aforesaid require the lessee, without the lessee's consent, to deliver up the said premises to him at any time during the monsoon season commencing on the 1st June and terminating on the 31st October in each year.

And the lessee agrees with the lessor to pay the said rent in manner aforesaid, and on the determination of the lease to quietly deliver up the, said premises.

The lessor agrees with the lessee that he, paying the said monthly rent, may peaceably hold the said premises during the lease without any interruption by the lessor or any person claiming under him.

In witness whereof the lessor hath hereunto set his hand, and * hath by order of the Governor in Council of Bombay also hereunto set his hand on behalf of the Secretary of State in Council, the day and year first hereinbefore written.

(G. R., J. D., No. 2986 of 7th May 1877; vide G. M. No. 3688, dated 13th June 1877.)

16. The Civil and Military Departments occupying public buildings in Bombay should furnish a return to the Executive Engineer, Presidency, showing how each building is occupied and whether there is any room available for another office or offices in such building. This return should be submitted on the 31st of March of each year, and all intermediate changes in occupation and vacation of buildings should be promptly reported to that officer. (G. R., P. W. D., No. 220-C. W.—688, dated 10th July 1880; vide G. R. No. 4001, dated 31st July 1880.)

17. The attention of all Heads of Offices under the Revenue, Financial and General Departments is invited to the orders conveyed in Government Notification, dated 26th March 1844, quoted below:—

“The Honourable the Governor in Council is pleased to resolve that no public office shall be used as a private residence except with the permission of Government”

(G. R. No. 1477, dated 23rd February 1886.)

18. District officers are permitted while on tour to use temporarily a portion of the Mám-lat-dár's kacheris at Devgad and Málvan in the Ratnágiri District as a residence, it being distinctly understood that no inconvenience will be caused thereby to the transaction of their ordinary duties by the Mám-lat-dárs and their establishments. (G. R. No. 2514, dated 1st April 1886.)

19. No Government building should be placed at the disposal of a Municipality without the consent of the Executive Engineer of the District, and the sanction of Government in the Public Works Department. (G. R. No. 2211, dated 22nd March 1889.)

20. The Governor General in Council is pleased to lay down the following rules in supersession of all previous orders, for regulating the rents to be charged for Government buildings occupied as residences by Government officials :—

* (Here enter the name of the officer authorized by the Government of India to execute such contracts.)

[PUBLIC BUILDINGS.]

I.—(1) The rent should be a sum which will cover—

- (a) Four per cent. interest on the actual capital cost of the house and its site;
- (b) The estimated average annual cost of repairs.

The capital cost of the house should be taken as the cost of the building and its site, together with a sum to cover the share of tools and plant and establishment. The amount to be added for these charges may be specially approved by the Local Government, but should not be taken as less than 20 per cent. on the cost of "works." When there is no record of the original cost of the building, its present value should be estimated by the Executive Engineer of the Division and approved by the Superintending Engineer; and this estimate should be taken as the capital cost.

(2) The average cost of annual repairs should be specially estimated in each case by the Executive Engineer on the best data available, and be approved by the Superintending Engineer. Such average cost should not, as a rule, be taken at less than 3 per cent. on cost of a permanent building, or 6 per cent. on the cost of a temporary building, but should be sufficient to cover quadrennial and special repairs. The actual cost of repairs should be compared annually with the amount assessed on this account in the rent; and, when necessary, the rents should be revised.

(3) In calculating the outlay on repairs of any building, a sum should be included to cover the cost of tools and plant and establishment, as defined above.

(4) When a building is occupied partly as a residence and partly as an office for which no rent is paid, the capital value of the portion occupied as a residence should be separately estimated and the rent calculated accordingly.

(5) The actual charge for the rent of a residence occupied by any Government official shall, in all cases, be subject to a maximum of 10 per cent. on the salary and local allowances of the official in actual occupation.

(6) Local Governments or Administrations must, irrespective of the fund from which the cost of the building was met, obtain the special sanction of the Government of India if they desire to reduce the rent of any Government building below that authorized in these rules :—

II.—At stations where owing to excess of available accommodation or to other special circumstances, rents cannot be fixed on the above principles, but must unavoidably be assessed with reference to prevailing rates, sanction to make such spécial assessments at the particular stations must be obtained from the Government of India, but the actual rents may be fixed by the Local Government.

III.—When any Government building is, under proper authority, let to a private person, rent shall be regularly recovered for the same at the rates prevailing in the locality for similar accommodation belonging to private owners; but without the permission of the Government of India, the rent charged shall not be less, at any station, than that defined in clause I (1).

IV.—In the case of houses occupied free of rent or at reduced rents by any Government officials, the authority under which the reduction is made should, in every case, be communicated to the Examiner of Accounts, in order that he may enter it in the return which is submitted to the Accountant General, Public Works Department, under Public Works Department Circular No. 3-p.w., dated 10th September 1887.

VI.—The above rules are not applicable to officers in regimental employ, nor to upper subordinates in the Public Works Department paying rent under Code XI, Section 29, nor to members of the subordinate Revenue Staff of State Railways.

As some misapprehension appears to exist concerning the interpretation of Section IV, it is considered necessary to explain that it is not intended to make any alteration in the rents of Government houses, occupied free of rent or at reduced rents by Government officials, when any specific sanction of the Government of India can be quoted for the existing practice. It is essential that the number and date of the letter giving the sanction of the Government of India should be communicated to the Examiner of Accounts. As, however, there may be probably be cases in which the grant of free quarters or reduced rents is no longer necessary, Local Governments and Administrations should, in such cases, assess rents under the rules laid down in the Resolution.

The Government of India has had under consideration certain cases of rents chargeable to officers drawing not more than Rs. 100 a month, and who, for the convenience of their work, are practically compelled to occupy certain houses. The Governor-General in Council is pleased to issue the following supplementary rules with reference to these cases:—

(1) In the case of Government servants drawing salaries not exceeding Rs. 25 a month, Local Governments and Administrations are authorized to charge whatever rents are thought suitable, or to remit rents entirely, according to the circumstances of each case.

- (2) In the case of Government servants drawing salaries exceeding Rs. 25 but not exceeding Rs. 100 a month, who are not already charged rent under any special rule of the Government of India, the amount of rent to be charged shall be fixed by the Local Government or Administration, subject to a minimum of five per cent. on the salary and local allowance of the occupant of the house.

(G. I., P. W. D., Nos. 479-B., dated 7th September 1888, and 214-B., dated 8th June 1889; vide G. Rs., P. W. D., Nos. 245A-1645, dated 26th September 1888, and 242A-1114, dated 25th June 1889, and G. M. No. 6096, dated 20th August 1889.)

21. The productive power of a compound should be treated as a reason for enhancing the rent of the building. Municipal taxes should be considered whenever the clause has to be used under which an officer's rent is not to exceed 10 per cent. of his salary; and where a rent has to be reduced in pursuance of this condition, Municipal taxes should be treated as part of the rent, i.e., the rent plus tax must not exceed 10 per cent. of the occupant's salary. (G.I., P.W.D., No. 647-B., dated 31st December 1888; vide G. R., P.W.D., No. 33-A.-135, dated 21st January 1889.)

22. The proceeds of the sale of all trees, fruit and grass, &c., in the compounds of Government buildings, used as offices, hospitals, &c., should be credited to Public Works Provincial Revenue, the disposal of the timber being in the hands of the Executive Engineer, and that of the other products in those of the head of the establishment occupying the premises.

The proceeds of the sale of all trees in Government buildings occupied as residences will be paid in to the Executive Engineer, without whose sanction no trees should be cut down, to be credited to Public Works Provincial Revenue. The produce of all fruit, trees, grass, &c., will be the property of the tenant for the time being, and the value of the same should be taken into consideration when fixing the rents of such buildings. These rules do not refer to Military Cantonments.

(G. R., P. W. D., No. 139-A.-686, dated 6th April 1889; vide G. M. No. 3622, dated 17th May 1889.)

The trees growing in the compounds of the buildings at Khárághoda are as a special case exempt from this ruling. (G. R., P. W. D., No. 14-A.—52, dated 7th July 1890; vide G. M. No. 509, dated 21st idem.)

23. All the central distilleries are furnished with small lines for the A'bkári Police guarding them, as the repairs of such buildings are done by the A'bkári contractors under the terms of their contracts. The contractors pay only a nominal rent for the use of the whole distillery buildings and premises, and are bound to maintain the whole in substantial repair to the satisfaction of the responsible local authorities. The buildings and their distribution between the contractor and the Government establishments employed at the distilleries pertain to the A'bkári Department. The A'bkári Commissioner will see that effect is given in all future contracts to the arrangement described. (G. R. No. 3118, dated 31st March 1892.)

24. No charge whatever should be levied from Government officials occupying district as distinguished from travellers' bungalows, and Assistant and Deputy Collectors in charge of the talukas in which these bungalows are situated should be given a preferential right to occupy them. (G. R. No. 2670, dated 10th May 1873.)

25. Charges on account of district bungalows should be debited to Land Revenue on the principle that these bungalows are maintained for the accommodation of public officers engaged in that branch of the administration. (G. R. No. 2671, dated 10th May 1873.)

26. The following are the regulations for travellers' bungalows under Provincial control :—

I. The bungalows are for the temporary accommodation of travellers.

II. Regimental non-commissioned officers and soldiers, when not with detachments, or provided with lodging by the State, may take shelter in the bungalows, and for this no charge will be made. They must, however, vacate in favour of other travellers requiring the rooms, under the ordinary regulations. It will be understood that the exemptions granted to Regimental non-commissioned officers and soldiers on duty, does not apply to Staff Serjeants, or Telegraph or Railway subordinates.

III. The fee is one rupee per diem for each person occupying a separate room. Two or more persons occupying the same room to pay only the single fee of one rupee. Uncovenanted ungazetted officers of all departments in receipt of a monthly salary not exceeding Rs. 200 when on duty during the rainy season, i. e., from 1st June to 31st October, should be allowed to occupy travellers' bungalows on payment of a fee of 8 annas per diem instead of the full fee of one rupee; but this concession does not apply to those who pay half fee only for occupying the bungalow between sunset and sunrise; 8 annas is the minimum fee. (G. Rs., F. D., Nos. 3453, dated 27th September 1880, 381, dated 2nd February 1882, and 3872, dated 25th October 1883.)

IV. Travellers passing the night at the bungalow pay the full fee.

V. Travellers occupying the bungalows between sunrise and sunset only are subject to half fee.

[PUBLIC BUILDINGS.]

VI. (Cancelled ; vide G. R., F. D., No. 381, dated 2nd February 1882.)

VII. No one may occupy the same bungalow for more than three consecutive days, if the accommodation is otherwise required, without the permission of the Superintending Officer, who is usually the Executive Engineer of the District.

VIII. No person may occupy more than one room when the others are in demand.

IX. Officers and gentlemen in the service of Government are subject to the same fees for occupancy when travelling on duty as under other circumstances.

X. The Superintending Officer is responsible that the rooms be adequately furnished with plain cots, tables and chairs.

XI. A printed form changed monthly, will be kept in the bungalow. In this travellers are requested to enter their names, dates of arrival and departure, and amount of fees paid.

XII. Travellers are prohibited from sheltering their horses or other cattle or vehicles within the verandas of the bungalows.

XIII. Travellers will be held responsible for damage done by themselves or their servants to the bungalows or furniture.

XIV. There is a peon in each bungalow, who is bound to assist travellers in procuring supplies and carriage for ready money.

XV. The messmen who are established in some bungalows are required to place conspicuously in each room a list of charges, countersigned in approval by the Superintending Officer. If travellers prefer to procure their own meals, the peon is bound to afford them assistance, and they have the use of the cook-room.

XVI. The Superintending Officer is the referee in all cases of dispute. Travellers who have any complaints to make should address that officer by letter, or enter their complaint in the "Remarks" column of the printed form.

XVII. It is requested that all fees and demands, in accordance with the foregoing regulations, or the mess charges authorized by the Superintending Officer, be paid by travellers before leaving the bungalow ; any irregularity, inconvenience, or other supposed cause for exemption from the regulated payment being referred to the Superintending Officer.

XVIII. It is the duty of the peons to report any violation of the foregoing regulations.

Note.—No part of a bungalow or of the bungalow compound may be used, nor may the servant be employed without payment of the regulated fee ; and travellers using their own tents should be so informed.

Travellers who do not intend to use the bungalows must pitch their tents outside of the compound enclosure.

Where the maintenance and receipts of a traveller's bungalow are entered in the Local Fund budgets, the charges on their account may be sanctioned by the Commissioners with proper budget provision. The trees in the compounds of bungalows controlled by the Public Works Department should be in the charge of the Executive Engineer of the District and those of bungalows under the Collector's control should be under that officer's charge. Attention should be paid to the conservancy and growth of trees in these compounds. (G. R., F. D., No. 1019, dated 20th March 1891.)

PUBLIC OFFICERS.**I.—ARBITRATIONS.

1. An officer shall not act as an arbitrator in any case without the sanction of his immediate superior, or unless he be directed so to act by a Court having authority to appoint an arbitrator.

2. No public officer shall act as an arbitrator in any case which is likely to come before him in any shape in virtue of any judicial or executive office which he may be holding.

3. If an officer act as an arbitrator at the private request of disputants, he shall accept no fees.

4. If he act by appointment of a Court of Law, he may accept such fees as the Court may fix.

(G. I., H. D., No. 544, dated 12th February 1873; vide G. R. No. 1013, dated 20th idem.)

II.—BORROWING AND LENDING MONEY.

1. It has been brought to the notice of the Governor General that public officers in some parts of India are in the habit of overdrawing their accounts with native bankers and other persons residing, or carrying on business, within the limits of their jurisdiction.

This practice is entirely opposed to the orders of Government, and is expressly prohibited by Section 3, Regulation VII, 1823, of the Bengal Code. This section is now republished for general information and guidance.

All Judges of Zillah and City Courts, all Magistrates, Joint Magistrates, Registrars and Assistants to Magistrates, all Collectors and Deputy Collectors of the Land Revenue, all Assistants to such Collectors or other officers exercising the powers of such Collector are prohibited, under pain of dismissal from office, from borrowing money from, or in any way incurring debt to any, zamindár, talukdár, rayat or other persons possessing real property, or residing in, or having a commercial establishment within the city, district or division to which their authority may extend.

Officers politically employed were prohibited by the orders of the Government of India, dated the 22nd March 1845, from borrowing money of, or lending money to, any native of India resident within their respective political circles.

The Governor General now calls the attention of all officers of Government employed in any Civil or Political capacity in any part of India to these express prohibitions, and warns them that by any infraction thereof, whether by overdrawing accounts with bankers or in any other way, they will incur the severe displeasure of the Government.

[PUBLIC OFFICERS.]

Residents, Agents, Commissioners and other Controlling Officers will be held responsible for checking any departure from the strict letter of this order on the part of their subordinates.

(G. I., For. D., Notn. No. 900, dated 31st December 1859; vide G. M. No. 548, dated 10th February 1860.)

2. The foregoing orders are not to be interpreted as prohibiting the purchase of miscellaneous stores of trifling amount from retail shop-keepers for payment on bills presented periodically. (G. I., For. D., No. 1166, dated 2nd April 1860; vide G. M. No. 1453, dated 19th idem.)

III.—CARRYING OUT OF GOVERNMENT ORDERS.

1. Government wish it to be clearly understood that they expect all their servants to aid one another cordially in carrying out the views and orders of Government. Any deviation from this course will meet with the marked displeasure of Government. (G. R. No. 4688, dated 17th August 1876.)

IV.—CHANGE OF NAMES.

1. Heads of departments may, on sufficient cause being shown, sanction change of names in the case of non-gazetted officers, sending an intimation of the fact to the Accountant General. Cases of gazetted officers should be submitted for the sanction of Government. (G. R. No. 2536, dated 13th July 1882.)

V.—COMMISSIONS.

1. Any paid servant of Government accepting a commission for taking evidence must hand over forthwith to his superior officer or the neighbouring treasury any and every sum which he may receive as a fee for his services.

Courts sending and receiving commissions should be informed that, so far as Government is concerned, there is no objection on its part to the defrayal of all fees that are paid or credited to Government by an equivalent amount in court-fee stamps. A note of such payment should be made by the transmitting Court and formally taken cognizance of by the Court executing the commission. (G. R., J. D., No. 2551, dated 11th May 1889, and G. R. No. 4898, dated 9th July 1889.)

VI.—COMPENSATION FOR LOSS OF PROPERTY CAUSED BY ACCIDENT.

1. A public officer is not entitled to compensation for loss of property caused by an accident of such a kind as the foundering of a ship merely because such accident may have happened to him while he was employed in the service of the State. Government cannot guarantee its officers against every loss which they may suffer while in its service, and compensation should not be given to public officers for accidental losses of their property. (G. I., F. & C., No. 390, dated 4th May 1880; vide G. R. No. 1784, dated 28th idem.)

VII.—CONNECTION WITH AND WRITING TO THE PRESS.

1. It is obviously most unbecoming that a public officer should discuss in the public press questions intimately connected with the department to which he belongs, and with the official duties he is called on to perform. Government see no objection to any public servant writing to the papers on matters not coming under his cognizance officially. But if public servants find it inconsistent with their sense of duty as Justices of the Peace to refrain from writing on matters connected with their official duties, it is proper that they should resign either one office or the other, as it is obviously detrimental to official discipline to have such matters discussed by subordinate officers, except through the proper channel. (G. R. No. 3950, dated 15th November 1867.)

2. All heads of offices should make the following Resolution in the General Department, No. 3193, dated 4th September 1884, as widely known among their subordinates as possible :—

No. 3193.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.

Bombay Castle, 4th September 1884.

Despatch from Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, No. 14, Public (Records), dated 19th June 1884—Forwarding copy of a Treasury Minute, dated 13th March 1884, containing rules regarding the "premature publication of official documents," and requesting that similar rules may be adopted by the various departments of this Government.

Letter from the Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department (Public), No. 30-1268, dated 16th August 1884:—

"The Secretary of State has forwarded to the Government of India a copy of a Treasury Minute, dated the 13th March 1884, respecting the 'premature publication of official documents,' with the request that similar rules may be adopted in this country.

"2. The minute in question draws attention to previous orders prohibiting the unauthorized communication to the public press of information derived from official sources, and points out, that the communications so prohibited are not confined to matter still under discussion, but include also the unauthorized disclosure of matter finally decided on, but as to which the manner and the time of publication may be not less important than the matter itself.

"3. The standing orders of the Government of India upon the subject are contained in the Notification and Resolution reproduced in the appendix. The Governor General in Council desires that these orders may, in future, be held subject to the further restrictions explained in paragraph 2 above."

APPENDIX.

General Order, Foreign Department, dated the 15th March 1847.

The Governor General deems it advisable to republish for general information the Notification issued on the 30th August 1843, in which the principle is laid down that it is contrary to the duty of every officer, Civil or Military, to make public, or to communicate to individuals, without the previous sanction of Government, any documents, papers, or information of which he

Fort William, Foreign Department, the 30th August 1843.

NOTIFICATION.—Some misconception appearing to exist with respect to the power which officers of both services have over the documents and papers which come into their possession officially, the Governor General in Council deems it expedient to notify that such documents and papers are in no case to be made public, or communicated to individuals, without the previous consent of the Government to which alone they belong.

The officer in possession of such documents and papers can only legitimately use them for the furtherance of the Public Service in the discharge of his official duty; and it is to be understood that the same rule which applies to documents and papers applies to information of which officers may become possessed officially.

By order, &c.

may have become possessed in his official capacity.

The practice of making use of official information in carrying on personal controversies is a course highly prejudicial to the public interests, and is not only at variance with the rules by which due discipline and obedience to superior authority can be adequately maintained, but is a positive breach of faith, inasmuch as no functionary has a right to reveal, without due authority from his official superiors, or the Home authorities, any fact or circumstance which may come to his knowledge in the performance of his duty, or to correspond with any one upon the instructions he may have received for his special guidance.

The Governor General is persuaded that every Officer, Civil and Military, will henceforth conform to this rule of the service under the conviction that, if in the transaction of his official duties his public conduct be impugned, he is at liberty to seek redress through the usual official channel by an appeal to the Government he serves, and that the Government so appealed to will afford him every opportunity of vindicating his character.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Home Department, (Public), No. 19-1134, under date Simla, the 8th July 1875.

RESOLUTION.—Questions having recently arisen as to the extent to which officers in the service of Government are permitted to connect themselves with the Press, the Governor General in Council thinks it desirable that the existing orders on the subject should be clearly understood:—

I.—No officer in the service of Government is permitted, without the previous sanction in writing of the Government under which he immediately serves, to become the proprietor, either in whole or in part, of any newspaper or periodical publication, or to edit or manage any such newspaper or publication. Such sanction will only be given in the case of newspapers or publications mainly devoted to the discussion of topics not of a political character, such, for instance, as art, science or literature. The sanction will be liable to be withdrawn at the discretion of the Government.

II.—Officers in the service of Government are not prohibited from contributing to the public press; but their position makes it incumbent upon them to confine themselves within the limits of temperate and reasonable discussion, and they are prohibited from making public, without the previous sanction of Government, any documents, papers, or information of which they may become possessed in their official capacity. These rules have been hitherto in most cases honourably observed. In case of a departure from them, or if the Government should consider the connection of any officer with the Press to be contrary to the public interests, his liberty to contribute will be withdrawn.

III.—The Government of India will decide, in case of doubt, whether any engagements of officers with the Press are consistent with the discharge of their duties to the Government.

IV.—Nothing in this Resolution is intended to relax the provisions of any regulations on this subject which now apply to the Army.

ORDER.—Ordered, that this Resolution be published in the Gazette of India and circulated to Local Governments and Administrations for information and guidance.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Home Department, (Public), No. 1 C. H., under date Camp Lahore, the 16th December 1878.

RESOLUTION.—His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General desires to remind all officers of the Government that information received by them in their official capacity, whether from official sources or otherwise, which is not from its nature obviously intended to be made public, cannot be treated as if it were at their personal disposal.

The Governor General does not think it necessary to issue any general order entirely prohibiting the disclosure, without special authority, of any information received officially. In such matters much must necessarily be left to the discretion and intelligence of officers holding places of trust, and in charge of duties more or less important. But His Excellency would impress upon all officers the serious responsibility involved in the exercise of this discretion. Whenever there is any room for doubt as to the right course to pursue, the orders of superior authority should be obtained before information regarding the public affairs is communicated to any one not officially entitled to receive it.

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General has reason to believe that sufficient attention has not upon all occasions been given to the principles which should guide the conduct of public officers in these matters, and which are especially applicable to the present time, when much important business is passing through the public offices. And His Excellency trusts that these principles may in future be clearly apprehended and observed.

ORDER.—Ordered, that a copy of this Resolution be circulated to all Departments of the Government of India and to Local Governments and Administrations for information and guidance.

Letter from the Government of India, Home Department, Public, No. 1317, dated 20th August 1884—Inviting, in reply to the letter from this Government No. 2588, dated 23rd July 1884, regarding the premature publication of official documents, attention to the orders on the subject contained in the Circular letter from the Home Department, No. 30-1268, dated 16th August 1884.

RESOLUTION.—Copies of the Circular letter from the Government of India and of the appendix should be forwarded to all Departments of the Secretariat, and to all Heads of Offices under the Revenue, Financial and General Department.

VIII.—COURTESY TOWARDS NATIVE STATES.

1. Native Governments, not understanding the principles of British Administration, may frequently prefer requests with which British authorities may be unable to comply, but it is the duty of such officers to express their inability to meet the views of the Native Government in terms of the most studious courtesy. This is a plain rule, which ought to be level to every capacity, and His Excellency in Council will not fail to manifest his displeasure towards any officer who shall, by violating it, evince an ignorance of the rudiments of his duty. (G. R., P. D., No. 397, dated 6th February 1863; vide G. M. No. 404, dated 10th idem.)

IX.—FAMILY CLIQUES.

1. Practical experience proves the rule forbidding the employment of a large number of members of the same family in the offices of any one Collectorate to be a judicious and prudent one. (G. R. No. 393, dated 5th February 1864.)

2. It is not desirable that a large number of the relations of a native officer should be employed in a district in which that officer is the Collector's chitnis. (G. R. No. 3347, dated 29th June 1880.)

3. The Commissioners should break up family cliques in the same district, and in districts where there is a preponderance of either Brahmins or Prabhus or Wánias, other castes should be introduced. As a rule, the first Kárkun and Mámlatdár should not be of the same caste, and relations should not serve in the same kacheri. (G. R. No. 1870, dated 30th March 1881.)

4. It appears that owing to the numerical preponderance of Kshatris in the Broach District, the employment of a large number of this caste in the public service is inevitable. The Commissioner should see from time to time that the element of any one community or caste is not allowed to preponderate unduly in the Land Revenue Department in any district within his charge. (G. R. No. 8880, dated 23rd November 1889.)

X.—GRIEVANCES.

1. Whatever grievance a servant of Government may consider himself to be labouring under, the ventilation of such grievance in an insubordinate manner will not be tolerated. (G. R. No. 5747, dated 21st August 1891.)

PUBLIC OFFICERS.]

XI.—MANAGEMENT OF COMPANIES.

1. In the despatch of 28th September 1880 the Secretary of State for India was informed that, in the belief that the rule forbidding public officers to act as Directors of a Company does not affect the power of Government to appoint a public servant as a Director to watch the public interests, the Government of India had sanctioned the appointment of the Commissioners of Kumáon and Rohilkhand to act as Government Directors of the Bereilly-Ranibágh Light Railway. It was added that the fact of the officers above named being shareholders need not, in the opinion of the Government of India, prevent their appointment to be Government Directors, inasmuch as it seemed improbable that the interests of the Government would conflict with those of the shareholders.

The Secretary of State in reply remarked :—

"It may, as you observe, be improbable that the interests of the Government should conflict with those of the shareholders. The interest of both may generally be identical; but nevertheless, as a matter of principle, and without any personal reference or consideration, I concur in the opinions which have been expressed by my predecessors on the subject and I think it best that, if it is considered advisable for the Commissioners of Kumáon and Rohilkhand to continue as Government Directors, they should divest themselves of all personal interest in the railway."

The above decision must be treated as a general ruling bearing on the subject, and the Governor General in Council accordingly directs that it be circulated to Local Governments and Administrations for information and future guidance.

(G. I., H., R. & A., No. 12-365-831, dated 7th March 1881; vide G. R. No. 1739 dated 25th idem.)

XII.—IMPRESSMENT OF CARTS AND LABOUR.

1. The pressing of oilmen's bullocks for carts is not to be allowed. (G. R. No. 3272, 9th June 1873.)

2. The practice of providing carts by impressment, through the agency of the Revenue and Police officials, for the conveyance from Mahábaleshvar of the baggage of persons visiting that hill station on their own affairs and for their own pleasure, should be discontinued.

This order is not applicable in the case of Government officers who have proceeded to Mahábaleshvar on public duty and who may experience difficulty from causes beyond their own control in the way of obtaining carts for the return journey without the assistance of the local authorities. (G. L. No. 4956, dated 18th September 1880.)

3. When carts are required by Commissariat officers they should be procured in a regular and legal manner, and if they cannot be obtained in the open market, the Commissariat officers should apply for assistance to the Collectors and not to subordinate Revenue officials. (G. R. No. 4086, dated 14th July 1881, and G. R., M. D., No. 3761, dated 21st idem.)

4. The pressing of cultivators' carts is liable to great abuse. It gives the Police and others the means of oppression and extortion. It throws upon certain of the community a tax and a service which they are not legally bound to render any more than any officer of Government or private gentleman, and nothing but the public exigency, strictly interpreted, can justify resort to such requisitions.

Officers will incur the serious and exemplary displeasure of Government if they act in violation of the orders of Government contained in their letter No. 4956, dated the 18th September 1880. (G. L. No. 3299, dated 8th June 1881.) -

5. The orders issued in Government letter No. 4956, dated 18th September 1880, with reference to Mahábaleshvar should be maintained; but with regard to the requirements of public officers engaged in the administration of the country elsewhere the following regulations shall be observed as an executive order of Government:—

(a) That the rate of cart hired by him be fixed by order of the Commissioners of Divisions per mile, as kos vary greatly, that there be a minimum charge for engaging a cart at all, and a minimum rate for a cart kept a whole day.

(b) That no cart be carried beyond 20 miles, or thereabouts, from the place of hiring.

(c) That a list of all carts in a village be kept by the Pátel, and a list of the number of carts in each village by the Mámldár.

(d) That requisitions by public officers for carts be made on the Pátel, or where a large number are needed (as when troops are marching,) on the Mámldárs, and be met in strict rotation of individuals and of villages.

(e) That no person's cart be taken in a village other than his own unless he offers it for hire.

(f) That no cart in use on any public road be taken for the use of public officers' travelling.

2. The minimum hire should be 1 rupee if a cart is used for any distance, however short.

3. Batta for defention should be paid at the following rates:—if a cart is detained unused more than half a day—1 rupee; if a cart is detained unused half a day or less, and then dismissed—8 annas.

4. Government also desire that a record shall be kept by every officer using carts thus obtained, in which the number of carts used, the distance they travel and the sum certified by him to have been paid to each shall be stated.

PUBLIC OFFICERS.]

5. Officers below the rank of Assistant or Deputy Collector, Assistant Superintendent of Survey or Executive Engineer, should be furnished with a written order from their official superiors for obtaining transport by requisition.

6. These rules are issued to regulate the requisition (Rule d) by public officers for carts on Pátels and Mámlatdárs. They do not preclude officers from obtaining carts by free contract, where that is feasible and convenient.

7. His Excellency in Council will rely upon the Commissioners to see that these regulations are strictly enforced.

(G. Rs. Nos. 5521, dated 23rd September 1881, 6524, dated 2nd November 1881, and 6633, dated 8th idem.)

6. Circumstances occasionally occur in the districts, where in order to carry out efficiently the requirements of the public service, it is necessary to procure pressed labour. But it is distinctly to be understood that labour is not to be pressed when free labour is available; and that no officer under the rank of a Mámlatdár is authorized to press labourers or coolies. When any labourers are pressed, the officer having recourse to the measure is to keep a register showing the numbers of coolies pressed, the duties on which they were engaged, the time during which they were detained, and the rates paid to them. These rates should be as follows in the different divisions:—

NORTHERN DIVISION.

Daily rates 4 annas per day or 2 annas per half a day (that is, for not more than 6 hours) for all districts, except in parts of the Sháhápúr Táluka and in the Váda Táluka of Thána, for which the rate should be 2 annas a day.

The minimum rate of payment to a cooly should, in all cases, be 2 annas.

| 6              |                     | Arbyle to Yellápur...             | 12            | 8              | 8 "                 | 8 " "                     |

N. B.—This rate of batta depends entirely on the officer who indents for a dák keeping time exactly. For each day the bearers are made to wait, batta at the rate of 2 annas a day per man will have to be paid.

PUBLIC OFFICERS.]

General Rules.

1. Requisitions by public officers for begáris or bearers should be made on the Police Pátel of the village, or, where a large number is needed, on the Mámlatdár.

2. No begáris or bearers should be taken beyond 12 miles or thereabouts from the place of hiring.

3. The begáris or bearers should be paid at once the fixed hire on reaching the destination and discharged.

The above are the rates during the day time. If night work is required the rates shall be either half as much again, or double, according to circumstances.

Any time over 5 hours is to be reckoned as a full day.

4. The Governor in Council expects that the Commissioners will see that payments, according to the rates sanctioned, are made in their respective Divisions, and that proper remuneration on the scale approved is punctually given to all persons required to render service as coolies to Government officers when travelling on duty. The Commissioners should take the requisite measure to ensure due local publicity being given to these orders.

5. These orders do not affect Government Resolution No. 5521, dated 23rd September 1881, relative to pressing carts.

(G. R. No. 6126, dated 18th August 1883.)

XIII.—INSOLVENCY.

1. The orders of the Government of India

* "An uncovenanted servant taking the benefit of the Insolvent Act is to be dismissed the service unless he can show that his insolvency was produced from causes over which he had no control (vide Digest of Service Rules, paragraph 879).

*No. 100, dated 12th January 1856, are to be considered the standing orders which should guide the treatment of the cases of insolvency of Government servants, each case being reported to Government for orders, with a full statement of the circumstances that have led to the insolvent's embarrassments, and the opinion of the head of the office or department whether any relaxation of the rule should be granted. (G. R., F. D., No. 1323, dated 13th March 1877.)

XIV.—INSPECTION OF OFFICES AT ADEN.

1. Heads of Departments are not allowed to inspect departmental offices at Aden on their way to Europe or to make over charge of their offices at that station. (G. I., F. D., Nos. 2822, dated 30th November 1876, and 584, dated 8th February 1879; vide G. Rs., F. D., Nos. 5112, dated 8th December 1876, and 849, dated 11th March 1879.)

XV.—MILITARY PENSIONERS.

1. With Public Works Department Nos. 2829-g and 130-g., dated 26th October 1888 and 16th January 1882, respectively, the Government of India in the Public Works Department forwarded for consideration and report of all Local Governments and Administrations having railways under their control, and to the Consulting Engineers, Calcutta, Central Division and Lucknow, a note by Lieutenant-Colonel Leigh-Hunt, Superintendent of Family Payments and Pensions, Madras, on the subject of employment of military pensioners in civil capacities. With some exceptions the authorities consulted were generally in favour of the employment of military pensioners in the posts of watchmen, porters, peons, gatekeepers, burkundazes, &c.

It was also clear from some of the replies received that similar posts in the Buildings and Roads and Irrigation Branches of the Public Works Department could be properly filled by military pensioners.

The principal difficulty to be overcome is to place within the reach of those who make such appointments descriptive lists of the pensioners seeking for employment.

It was suggested at a Divisional conference on the subject, held at Delhi under the presidency of Colonel Grey, the Commissioner, that the best way of securing the object in view would be for Commandants of regiments to send to Commissioners of Divisions the particulars regarding retired soldiers residing in their divisions. This proposal was approved by the Punjab Government, and by the Government of India; and it was further proposed that registers of candidates for employment thus compiled should be circulated to district officers and heads of departments, in order to enable them to apply for the services of any men they might require.

The several Local Governments and Administrations were also addressed by the Government of India* with the view of a similar procedure being adopted by them in the territories under their control.

* Military Department, No. 924-B., dated the 1st April 1889.

PUBLIC OFFICERS.]

Endeavours should be made systematically to employ military pensioners for such posts in all branches of the Public Works Department, and so far as possible on the Guaranteed Railways, and Commissioners of Divisions should be applied to for men suitable for such posts.

(G. I., P. W. D., No. 1895-G., dated 2nd July 1889; vide G. R. No. 6314, dated 27th August 1889.)

XVI.—OFFICERS CAUSING PUBLIC SCANDAL.

1. Whenever any officer appointed by Government causes a public scandal by inebriety or otherwise, his case should be reported for the orders of Government, and not disposed of departmentally. (G. C. No. 3379, dated 5th September 1868.)

XVII.—PATRONAGE FOR LITERARY AND OTHER WORKS.

1. Servants of the Government in India soliciting the patronage of the Secretary of State for works published by them in India should prefer their requests through the Government under which they are serving. (S. of S., No. 12, dated 19th December 1878; vide G. R., E. D., No. 166, dated 11th February 1879, G. M., No. 802, dated 14th idem, and G. R., F. D., No. 543, dated 14th idem.)

XVIII.—PEONS.

1. The Government of India have ruled that, to prevent misconception, the word "Sepoy" should be confined to Sepoys of the Native Army, and that other servants of corresponding rank should be designated "Peons" and not Sepoys. (G. C., J. D., No. 1367, dated 22nd May 1863; vide G. M. No. 1774, dated 29th idem.)

XIX.—PREPARATION OF PETITIONS.

1. An instance having lately come under the notice of Government of a clerk in one of the public offices being concerned in the preparation of petitions for a private individual, the Governor draws general attention to the standing orders noted in the margin prohibiting the officers of Government having anything to do in such matters. (G. N. dated 4th January 1865.)

Government Notification, dated 23rd September 1843.
Government Circular No. 2541, dated 20th June 1851.

XX.—PRESENTS.

1. An application being made to the Government of India that a certain Mámlatdár might be allowed to retain a pair of shawls and a turban which had been presented to him by the Maháráni of Indore in consideration of the services rendered by him to Her Highness when on a visit to his táluks station, it was ruled by them that, having regard to the fact that Native Chiefs were very numerous in Bombay and were frequently moving from one place to another, and that it was often visited by Chiefs from other parts of India, it would not be expedient to establish a precedent that would probably have a bad effect, not only upon Mámlatdárs, but also upon their subordinates, and would lead them to expect the grant of rewards for acts of civility. (G. I., R., A. & C., No. 1101, dated 18th December 1876; vide G. R. No. 7610, dated 27th idem.)

[PUBLIC OFFICERS.]

XXI.—PURCHASES OF PROPERTY.

* G. R.
No. 2958,
dated 17th
June 1854,
p. 347, Circular Orders of the Revenue Department.

1. The orders* of Government prohibiting Huzúr and District Kárkúns from purchasing or taking up lands within their respective ranges should not be held applicable to Huzúr Treasurers. They may, if they choose, occupy Government land, but they should be clearly made to understand that should they avail themselves of the privilege, the fact of their being in possession of land will debar them from promotion to any post, the incumbent of which is prohibited from holding lands as being detrimental to the public interests. (G. R. No. 2112, dated 3rd May 1861.)

2. Public officers when making purchases of property on behalf of Government should exercise great caution. Personal responsibility will be enforced in all cases in which there has been a want of reasonable care in such transactions. (G. R., E. D., No. 16, dated 8th January 1873; vide G. M. No. 255, dated 15th idem.)

XXII.—RAILWAY TRAVELLING.

1. In certain cases which have come before Government, certain of the Railway servants, instead of discountenancing the proceedings of gentlemen who desire to induce their fellow passengers not to occupy first class compartments, have actually undertaken to convey these unreasonable requests. Where no first class compartment is vacant and a second class compartment is, first class passengers desiring solitude should be offered the compartment which is vacant, not the one to which the holder of a first class ticket is entitled. (G. R. No. 6276, dated 4th August 1885.)

XXIII.—READING OF PREVIOUS RECORDS.

1. It is the duty of an officer on joining an appointment to read up the previous records and ascertain what orders have been passed by Government for the guidance of the holder of the appointment. (G. R. No. 7305, dated 28th December 1875.)

XXIV.—REWARDS.

1. Whenever it is proposed to reward a Government officer, the nature of the case, and the particulars of conduct, should be specially reported, so that it may be seen whether by extra exertion beyond what is required in the ordinary discharge of duty he is a worthy subject for the exercise of extraordinary favour or reward. (G. R. No. 4024, dated 15th October 1861.)

2. A check should be imposed on the habit now becoming general in Bombay of applying for rewards for Police officers whenever they perform their duties successfully. The detection of crime and the bringing to justice of criminals is the most important duty for the discharge of which Police officers are employed, and for performing which they are paid. To pay them rewards for simply doing their duty is a mischievous and demoralising anomaly.

(G. R. No. 6100, dated 14th November 1879.)

3. While rewards may reasonably be given to those who actually assist in salvage operations, the Governor General in Council cannot consider that such service as that of assisting in preparing a lighter for sea and in discharging her cargo on return to port is of such a nature as to warrant the grant of any reward. Service of this nature must be regarded as labour performed in the ordinary course of the duties for which the staff is employed by Government, and remuneration cannot be sanctioned for it. (G. L. F. & C., No. 4232, dated 30th October 1884; vide G. R. No. 3777, dated 20th November 1884.)

XXV.—SECURITIES.

1. Security should not be taken from Pátels or Kulkarnis who hold office hereditarily, or who are members of the watan. (G. R. No. 2036, dated 20th May 1869.)

2. The Treasurer and Head Accountant at Aden should be required to furnish security to the extent of Rs. 40,000. (G. R., F. D., No. 1615, dated 2nd May 1882.)

3. The clerks or kárkúns in the Huzúr Treasurer's offices who are entrusted with work in connection with stamps should be required to furnish securities to the extent shown below:—

Northern Division.

Rs. 3,000 in Ahmedabad from the head stamp kárkún, Rs. 1,000 from the second, and Rs. 500 from the third kárkún.

Rs. 2,000 in all other districts, only one kárkún being employed in Kaira, Surat, Broach and Thána.

Central Division.

Rs. 2,000 from the chief and Rs. 1,000 from the lower paid kárkún, where two are employed. In the case of the stamp head kárkún at Poona Rs. 25,000 (vide G. R. No. 3087, dated 1st July 1899.)

Southern Division.

Rs. 2,000 in Bijápur, Belgaum and Dhárwár; Rs. 1,000 in Kánara, Kolába and Ratnágiri.

(G. Rs., F. D., Nos. 519, dated 25th February, 736, dated 15th March, and 1266, dated 7th May 1886.)

[PUBLIC OFFICERS.]

4. Tapadárs in receipt of salaries of Rs. 20 per mensem or less should furnish security to the extent of Rs. 300 each, and those drawing pay in excess of Rs. 20 monthly should furnish security to the extent of Rs. 500 each. (G. R., F. D., No. 3871, dated 17th December 1888.)

5. There is no objection to money lodged by a public servant in the Government Savings Bank as a security deposit for the due discharge of his duty being refunded to him on his leaving the service, or on his being appointed to an office other than that in connection with which the deposit was made, or in case of death to his legal heirs in accordance with rule. (G. R. No. 2728, dated 16th May 1881.)

6. Subject to the orders of the Local Government, the Revenue authorities are responsible for seeing that adequate security is taken from any of their subordinates (including all officers employed in District and Sub-Treasuries) who may be entrusted with the custody of public money.

Without the special sanction of the Local Government in respect of any particular case or class or cases, the only form of security to be taken from Treasurers or other officers of Government who are entrusted with the charge of public money should consist of promissory notes (including stock notes) of the Government of India. In the Bombay Presidency, however, it is left optional with subordinate Revenue officers who are entrusted with the charge of public money either to deposit Government promissory notes, or to execute a bond in the form contained in Schedule B of the Land Revenue Code, 1879.

(G. I., F. & C., Nos. 3454, dated 2nd September 1882, and 2232, dated 25th July 1883; vide G. Rs., F. D., Nos. 3739, dated 2nd October 1882, and 3031, dated 17th August 1883.)

7. The Political Resident, Aden, is authorized to accept personal securities from the treasurer and shroff attached to the treasury at Aden, if no suitable candidates willing to deposit Government paper present themselves. (G. R., F. D., No. 52, dated 6th January 1883.)

8. The following addition should be made at the foot of the form of the security bond prescribed in Schedule B of the Land Revenue Code:—

“The above bond will be retained by Government for one year after the said has vacated his appointment.”

(G. R. No. 6920, dated 28th August 1884.)

9. Section 23 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code provides for security being furnished by Revenue officers in the form prescribed in Schedule B of the Act, and No. 2 of the Rules under Section 214 fixes the amount for which they have to furnish security; but whereas the form of the security bond given in Schedule B provides for binding the principal in a specified sum, it omits to do so in the case of his sureties and binds them conformably to Section 27 of the Code in "such sum as shall be deemed sufficient to cover any loss or damage which the Government may actually sustain by the default of the principal." Now, it is possible that the actual loss sustained by Government by the default of the principal may, in certain cases, exceed the amount for which he is bound down by security bond, and while under the terms of his bond he will not be liable for any sum in excess of that specified in the bond, the sureties can be called upon to make good the loss or damage, whatever its amount may be. Thus, although the liabilities of the principal are restricted, those of the sureties are unlimited. It seems rather anomalous to bind the sureties in a larger sum than the principal.

The form given in the schedule referred to should be used until it is amended by a legislative enactment; but in the meantime it should be made known that it is not the intention of Government to make securities liable for a larger amount than their principal.

(G. Rs., R. D., Nos. 8725, dated 11th December 1886 and 843, dated 4th February, 1887.)

10. When security is given according to Schedule B of the Land Revenue Code, the Treasurer binds himself in a certain sum (mentioned in No. 2 of the rules under Land Revenue Code, Section 214), which varies according to the Treasuries. He also gives sureties. These do not bind themselves in any specific sum, but agree to make good all losses caused to Government by their principal's default. What precaution should be taken to ensure the ability of a surety to fulfil, should occasion arise, the obligation thus undertaken by him is an executive, not a legal question. It appears to Government that, inasmuch as they have fixed the amounts of the securities to be given by the various Treasurers in consideration of the responsibilities undertaken at their respective treasuries, those amounts may be held to sufficiently accurately represent the sums which the principals might possibly have to make good, and which, therefore, each surety might possibly have to make good, should the principal and the other surety fail to do so. Before accepting a man as surety for a Treasurer, therefore, he should be ascertained to be worth the amount fixed for the Treasury in question in No. 2 of the rules under Land Revenue Code, Section 214. It is not sufficient to ascertain that two sureties combined are worth that sum, for the very object of requiring two sureties instead of one is to ensure that even if the principal and one surety are not in a position to pay anything, the other surety may be called upon, and may be able, to pay the full amount.

When Government paper is deposited, it is necessary also, under Chapter 17, Rule 4, Civil Account Code, that a bond should be given in the form in Schedule C, Civil Account Code, Volume 1, by the principal and his sureties. As by this bond they are bound severally as well as jointly, it is necessary to ascertain that each surety is worth the amount of the bond. It has not apparently been expressly decided hitherto what the amount of this bond should be, but it may be considered to be the amount fixed as the security to be given by each Treasurer under No. 2 of the Land Revenue Code rules, Section 214.

It is observed that in both cases the principal's personal bond is for the same amount, and in both cases also, two sureties, each worth that amount, are provided. The obligations are therefore practically the same in the two cases, except that in the second case (mentioned in paragraph 3 above) the Treasurer has the additional obligation of depositing Rs. 40,000 worth of Government paper. He gets no advantage, but an additional and serious disadvantage by adopting the second course. Consequently it is highly improbable that any Treasurer, with a knowledge of the rules, would adopt the second course, and the rule allowing him an option must be superfluous. It seems to the Governor in Council simpler, and therefore of more practical use, to require surety in all cases according to Schedule B, Land Revenue Code.

(G. R., F. D., No. 3687, dated 7th November 1890.)

11. The use of the form of security bond contained in Schedule B to the Land Revenue Code in all Departments has been authorized by Government Resolution No. 7522, Revenue Department, dated 22nd October 1882,* except for cases in which Government paper is deposited. As regards Land Revenue officers, the use of that form is prescribed by Section 28 of the Land Revenue Code, and the form may not be varied by the Executive Government. But there is no legal necessity for the use of this particular form in other Departments, and Government may, if it is thought fit, modify it for such Departments.

The law as to a surety's liability is contained in Section 128 of the Indian Contract Act (IX of) 1872. 'The surety's liability is co-extensive with that of the principal debtor, unless it is otherwise provided by the contract.' The Revenue Code form does "otherwise provide," because the surety thereby makes himself liable for any loss or damage which the Government may sustain by the principal's default. But as the amount prescribed for * This Resolution directed that in cases in which Government paper was deposited under Section 23 of the Land Revenue Code, a bond should be executed in the form circulated with G. R., F. D., No. 3739, dated 2nd October 1882, but that the form prescribed by Section 23 of the Code must continue to be used in other cases.

the principal is probably calculated to cover any loss or damage which it would be in his power to cause, the surety would seem to be practically liable only for as much as his principal.

Whether this be so or not, the form serves the interests of Government better as it stands than it would if the surety's liability were strictly limited to the same extent as the principal's and it seems inadvisable that it should be altered. If one person is unwilling to sign the bond as it is, the officer who has to give security can be called upon to produce another fit person who is prepared to sign it.

12. As to the question whether an old security-bond which is superseded by a new one cannot by some means be kept in force, the first paragraph of Section 29 and Section 30 of the Land Revenue Code contains the law on this subject. A security-bond continues in force until it is cancelled and a surety who withdraws from his suretyship continues liable, notwithstanding his withdrawal, for any defalcation of his principal occurring up to 60 days after his giving notice of his intention to withdraw. Therefore, a security-bond should not be destroyed until so long after the principal has ceased to occupy an office in which he has to furnish security that there is no probability of its being of any use. If a fresh bond is for any reason taken, the old one should still be preserved as security against defalcations which may have occurred before the date of the new one. (G. R., F. D., No. 3449, dated 14th October 1890.)

13. The following rules have the approval of Government and should be adopted by the Conservators and Deputy Conservators in charge of circles and communicated by them to all whom they affect:—

In accordance with the provisions of Section 2 of Act XII of 1850, the following rules have, with the approval of His Excellency the Governor in Council, been made by the * * * requiring the amount and kind of securities and the sureties to be given by every person appointed by the said * * * to any office in which such person is to be entrusted with the receipt, custody or control of any such moneys as are specified in Section 3 of the said Act:—

1. Every Forest officer below the rank of Extra Assistant Conservator, whether appointed permanently or temporarily, whose duty requires that he should be entrusted with the charge of Government money and drawing pay

• In Sind, Rs. 8. *at the rate of Rs. 10 * or over,* shall furnish security with one or more sureties as the Principal Forest Officer of the Circle may direct for a sum which shall in no case be less—

(a) than the aggregate of the pay payable to such subordinate for 12 months' service, or,

(b) than the amount of forest revenue or funds which such subordinate is, by special authority from the Principal Forest Officer of the Circle permitted to hold at any one time in his custody.

2. Every such Forest Officer shall within 1 month, on obtaining temporary or permanent promotion or on the decease, or withdrawal of his original security, furnish fresh security.

3. The Divisional Forest Officer, with the sanction of the Principal Forest Officer of the Circle, may at any time require any such Forest Officer, as is referred to in Rule 1, to furnish within 1 month a fresh bond in substitution of any bond previously executed by such Forest Officer.

4. The Divisional Forest Officer may, at discretion and without stating his reasons, decline to accept any person as surety.

5. The Principal Forest Officer of the Circle may at any time direct that the security to be furnished under these rules shall be in the form of a deposit of Government Promissory or Currency Notes or Cash.

The following supplementary orders on the subject are passed for the guidance of Forest Officers :—

(1) The Divisional Forest Officer will be held responsible that security is furnished and maintained by every Forest Officer below the rank of Extra Assistant Conservator in his Division, who may be required, under the rules made by the Principal Forest Officer of the Circle under Section 2 of Act XII of 1850, to furnish security; and he shall, in consultation with the Mámlatdár of the taluka in which the surety resides, satisfy himself that the surety offered is, and continues to be, a proper one.

(2) Care must be taken that no person's security is accepted on behalf of a disproportionately large number of Forest Officers below the rank of Extra Assistant Conservator, whether of the same Range, or Department, or not.

(3) In the first week of January a statement (in the form now in force) of the securities furnished by Forest Officers below the rank of Extra Assistant Conservator in their Divisions shall be submitted to the Principal Forest Officer of the Circle by the Divisional Forest Officers.

(4) No Forest Officer shall, in any case, keep in his own custody any item of forest revenue for more than 8 days after its receipt by him, but he shall remit it to the Treasury or to the Range Forest Officer as the general or special departmental orders issued for his guidance may direct.

No Forest Officer shall allow a larger sum of revenue, than the amount of the security which he has furnished, to accumulate or remain in his charge, but he shall remit the money at once to the Treasury or to the Range Forest office as the standing orders issued for his guidance may direct.

(5) In no case shall a Forest Officer accept ready-money payment when it can be avoided, but he shall furnish the payer with a chalan, and direct him to pay the money direct to the Treasury and return the chalan signed by the Treasury Officer as a voucher.

(6) The amount of advances to be made to a Forest Officer should never, as a rule, exceed the amount of his security; but should it be found absolutely necessary on any special occasion to supply a Range Forest Officer with funds in excess of the amount for which he has furnished security, save in the case of the advance made for the payment of salaries and allowances of the Range Forest establishments, the fact shall be reported to the Principal Forest Officer of the Circle.

These orders apply to the Province of Sind with the substitution of the following for No. 4:—

(4) No Range Forest Officer, or Depôt Officer, shall allow more than Rs. 50 of revenue (and no Round Guard shall allow more than Rs. 10) to accumulate in his charge; and in no case shall any subordinate keep any item of revenue received more than 8 days in his own custody, but shall remit it to the Treasury or the Range Forest Office, as the case may require. The collections at nákás shall ordinarily be remitted to the Treasury daily.

(G. R. No. 3767, dated 18th May 1895.)

XXVI.—SUBSCRIPTIONS.

1. An officer holding the post of District Deputy Collector issued instructions to the officers subordinate to him directing them to collect subscriptions in their charges for what was termed a Land Improvement Fund, to be named after His Royal Highness Prince Albert Victor of Wales. On representations made, steps were, however, promptly taken by this officer's superiors to prevent any action being adopted on the circulars sent out by him, and the matter was reported to Government for orders.

However excellent may have been the motives which influenced the officer in question, the line of conduct followed was injudicious and the excess of zeal displayed might easily have led to very undesirable results. It is obviously most inexpedient that official agency should be employed for the collection of subscriptions on behalf of any memorial or reception fund, or indeed of any object, without the express previous sanction of Government which would only be accorded, if ever, in very rare and exceptional instances. Contributions in such circumstances would often practically cease to be voluntary, and grave abuses would be likely to arise.

(G. R. No. 2936, dated 30th April 1890.)

Note.—This resolution is not intended to apply to the Municipal Commissioner for the City of Bombay personally, his position being recognized as one which frequently entails on him the duty of collecting subscriptions for various charitable and other objects. At the same time it is obviously desirable, in order to prevent misunderstandings, that he should be fully cognizant of the orders of Government against the employment of official agency generally for such purposes, and should refrain from any action which might possibly tend to bring subordinate officials into collision with those orders. (G. L. No. 7377, dated 10th October 1893.)

2. Arrangements having been started in a district for the formation of a society to take over the High School from Government, an appeal for subscriptions was issued by the Committee formed for the purpose. The Collector, who sympathized with the project, allowed the Mámlatdárs to circulate copies of the appeal published by the Committee and asked Government to permit the Government servants of all departments in the District to join the Committees which were being formed for the collection of funds. Government did not grant the permission asked for and doubted the expediency of allowing copies of the appeal to be officially circulated. It was observed that if the influence of the Government servants of all departments was brought to bear in the matter, it was to be feared that contributions not really voluntary would be made. The fact that the object was good and approved by the Collector was almost certain to stimulate such officials to zealous exertions for its furtherance. The co-operation of officials in such movements was calculated to retard rather than foster the growth of true public spirit while the ignorant were apt to view, and the disaffected to represent, the whole proceeding as State taxation in disguise. (G. Rs. Nos. 3894, dated 5th June 1890, and 5109, dated 21st July 1890.)

XXVII.—SUPPLIES.

1. The following Resolution was passed by Government on certain proceedings submitted by the Commissioner, Central Division, relative to the proceedings of the Mámlatdár and certain other Government officials in the Peint Táluka of the Násik District in compelling rayats to supply to them grain at a lower rate than that prevailing in the market:—

“The Commissioner’s proceedings are approved and confirmed, and it should be notified that the dismissed men are not to be re-employed in the service of Government in any capacity. These officers by their own confession used their official position to make the rayats under their charge supply the fruits of their labour at rates far below their market value, and the inequity of this conduct is so obvious that the example of others is no excuse for any official concerned in it. Every person who is convicted of it should be dismissed and the evidence against employes in the Educational, Medical and other Departments should be communicated to their official superiors with this object.

PUBLIC OFFICERS.]

"2. His Excellency the Governor in Council desires that the utmost publicity should be given to the orders of Government on this case, so that both officials and the public may understand that condign punishment will follow on the discovery of such malpractices."

(G. R. No. 3716, dated 28th June 1881.)

2. Officers when travelling in the districts ought not to leave a camping ground until they have satisfied themselves that all bills have been paid and no cause for subsequent discussion exists. (G. R. No. 7175, dated 28th November 1881.)

3. Public officers should bear in mind that the employment of public servants in making purchases, or in any private matter in which the receipt or expenditure of money is concerned, is most strictly prohibited, and that every breach of this order which is brought to the notice of Government will be severely dealt with.

It is not intended that the prohibition mentioned above should preclude officers from employing public servants to procure for them conveyance or necessary supplies while they are travelling upon duty, though in all such transactions constant vigilance is needed to prevent cheating and extortion.

(G. I., H. D., No. 121, dated 16th January 1873, and No. 895, dated 22nd May 1873; vide G. Rs., J. D., Nos. 425, dated 25th January 1873, and 3126, dated 5th June 1873, and G. Ms. Nos. 577, dated 31st January 1873, and No. 3404, dated 14th June 1873.*)

* The following is an extract from an answer given by the Honourable Sir Philip Hutchins to a question asked by the Honourable Raja Udai Partab Singh of Bhinga at the meeting of the Legislative Council of His Excellency the Governor General held on 16th February 1893 in regard to the supply of provisions to Government officers on tour:—

"The attention of the Government of India has not been specially directed to the hardships alleged by the Honourable Member in his question to be suffered by cultivators and village shop-keepers owing to the system of collection by tahsildars of supplies for Government officers on tour.....The subject is one within the province of the Local Governments to deal with, and the Government of India have no doubt that it has attracted their attention, and that in most, if not in all, provinces orders exist, in the spirit of Section 8 of Bengal Regulation, XI of 1806, requiring 'a just price for the provisions or other articles provided to be secured to the persons entitled thereto,' forbidding requisitions for more articles than are actually required, and also prohibiting the interference of the tahsildar at all where there are regular shops or markets at which the necessary supplies can be readily obtained. I may perhaps add my belief that officers on tour generally make it a rule either to pay for their supplies personally, or at least to satisfy themselves that the price of any supplies which have been procured through the tahsildar has reached the person from whom they have been obtained.

"The Government of India will, however, have great pleasure in circulating the Honourable Member's question and this answer to all Local Governments and Administrations, in order that their attention may be specially drawn to the matter, and that they may consider whether the present arrangements sufficiently provide for the avoidance of hardship to the furnishers of supplies, and, if not, in what way they should be supplemented."

XXVIII.—VOLUNTEERS.

1. From the returns supplied to Government of Europeans and Eurasians employed in different public offices and the proportions of them enrolled as Volunteers it appears that in some offices no attempt has been made by the heads thereof to encourage the Volunteer movement, while in the case of other offices the large proportion of Volunteers justifies a belief that it is in some measure due to the interest shown in the movement by the heads. The Governor in Council considers it unnecessary to dilate at length on the advantages accruing to the country from a full encouragement of the movement, or to refer to the orders that have been received from the Government of India on the subject. Heads of Offices and Departments should in particular be requested to consider whether it may not be possible so to arrange the office hours of their employes as to admit of those who are Volunteers being set free earlier on drill days, and for the purpose of taking part in reviews of troops. (G. R. No. 3018, dated 26th March 1892.)

2. Local Governments and Administrations should give their earnest attention to the subject and endeavour to increase existing Volunteer Reserve Corps and Companies and to raise new corps and companies where none at present exist, and should also impress on the Civil officers and officers commanding Volunteer Corps the necessity for taking a personal interest in the movement as it is one to which the Government of India attach great importance. (G. I., M. D., 541 B., dated 12th February 1890; vide G. R., M. D., No. 619, dated 3rd March 1890 and G. R. No. 2059, dated 19th idem.)

3. The mere fact of belonging to the Volunteer force, does not entitle a Government servant to proceed on field service without special permission from the head of his department. The grant of permission to any Volunteer Corps, or members of a corps, to proceed on field service rests with the Government of India, who will consider each application on its own merits and with reference to the circumstances of the time. In the case of Volunteers who are in Government employ and who desire to proceed on field service, it is necessary that the heads of the departments, in which they are employed should be consulted, as to whether their services can be spared without inconvenience to the department, and without extra expense being caused to Government, beyond what would be incurred by granting leave or furlough.

Officers Commanding Volunteer Corps should, therefore, before submitting applications from members of their corps who are in Government employ to proceed on active service, ascertain from the heads of the departments to which the Volunteers belong whether their services can be spared,

RECORDS.

1. (1) Every answer to a petition should contain so much of the points of a case as is necessary to enable the superior officers in case of appeal to form a judgment whether to accept or reject the petition of appeal.

(2) When the order of a subordinate is reversed or modified, the reasons are to be communicated to the subordinate. When the order is confirmed, a simple intimation to that effect will suffice.

(3) The petitioner is also to be informed.

(G. R., F. D., No. 561, dated 27th April 1870.)

2. In suits to which Government is not a party, the Collector of Bombay is not bound, or compellable, to allow the records of his office to be searched by the parties to the suit for the purpose of ascertaining whether these records contain documents which may be useful to them. Where documents are known to exist in those records and can be specifically described, the Collector may be compelled to produce them under a subpoena duces tecum unless they are privileged; and in all cases in which production can be so compelled, the Collector should give inspection and copies if asked, charging reasonable fees for the same.

It frequently happens, however, that parties are unable specifically to describe documents, though they may have just reason to believe that such documents exist and are to be found in the Collector's Office. In such cases when the Collector is satisfied that the documents sought would, if produced, be material to the case of the applicant, the Collector should allow his records to be searched, for "it is the anxious desire of Government to further the ends of justice" (see Government Resolutions Nos. 565, dated 3rd February 1846, and 6400, dated 29th August 1850). The records of the Collector frequently contain the only reliable documentary evidence of title to lands in Bombay; and it would be unjust to close them against a man whose title was impeached, simply because he was unable to point out, by date and description, the particular documents he required. Such search, however, should only be granted when the Collector is satisfied that the application is made bond fide, and should be conducted by or under the inspection of the Collector's own officers for whose attendance he should make a sufficient charge. Otherwise the records might be tampered with or abstracted, and the object of Government in allowing the search entirely defeated.

In the Government Resolutions quoted above, it is declared to be the policy of Government to allow the production of documents on its records, "which though compiled for the use of Government are nevertheless resorted to as the common evidence of the private rights of the district, or of the mutual and relative rights of Government and individuals, such as registers, survey maps," &c. Of such documents, the Collector should also allow inspection in his office, on such reasonable terms as he may think fit. Indeed wherever production can be compelled under a subpoena duces tecum, the Collector would find it a safe and convenient rule to give preliminary inspection, as the result of such inspection will frequently be to diminish the number of documents required to be produced.

Under Section 77 of the Indian Evidence Act, certified copies may be produced in proof of the contents of public documents, and the Collector's records are public documents under Section 74 of the Act. In many cases a copy is as satisfactory evidence as the original; and in such cases, the Collector might well require parties to dispense with production of the originals in Court and to take certified copies. In some cases, however, there are particularities about the original which cannot be shown on a copy; and in such cases the originals should be produced in Courts.

The Evidence Act I of 1872 contains several important sections with regard to public documents. Section 76 requires that copies of public documents "which any person has a right to inspect" shall be given to that person, on payment of the legal fees therefor. It is nowhere in the Act laid down what public documents any person has a right to inspect, but in Section 123 it is enacted that "no one shall be permitted to give any evidence derived from unpublished official records relating to any affairs of State except with the permission of the officer at the head of the department concerned, who shall give or withhold such permission as he thinks fit." In Section 124 it is provided that "no public officer shall be compelled to disclose communications made to him in official confidence when he considers that the public interests would suffer by the disclosure," and Section 162, under which a witness summoned to produce a document must, if it is in his possession or power, bring it to Court, notwithstanding any objection which there may be to its production, does not empower the Court to inspect the document if it refers to matters of State. The head of the department, and not the Court, is thus made the judge, whether a public document is to be withheld on the ground that it relates to affairs of State. The Collector should, therefore, be careful, before allowing inspection or granting copies of documents from his records, to ascertain that the public interests are not likely to suffer by the disclosure. And in cases in which, though compelled to bring a document into Court, he considers it would be detrimental to the public service to produce it, he should attend personally to state his objection.

(Adv. Gen., No. 57, dated 30th August 1873; vide G. R. No. 5190, dated 16th September 1873.)

3. It is to be observed from the foregoing Resolution that it is the wish of Government that no needless restrictions should be placed on the right of inspection of public documents. It would not be possible to define precisely what particular class of documents should be allowed to be inspected and copied, but in withholding permission the officer in charge of the records should be guided mainly by the consideration whether or not the public interests would suffer by the disclosure. As a general rule, permission to inspect a copy should not be withheld in all cases not affecting the public interests, in which had the application been made by a Court it could not have been refused. Thus, in addition to the documents referred to in Section* LXXXVII of Act VIII of 1871, parties to a suit should be allowed copies of depositions and other judicial documents which they may desire to produce in evidence. (G. R. No. 5487, dated 3rd October 1873.)†

RECORDS.]

* Vide Section 90 of the Indian Registration Act III of 1877.

4. If a Civil Court asks for the production in original of a public document, the officer in whose custody such document is, is at liberty to represent to such Court that its production will involve inconvenience (as in the case of a current register) and to offer to send a certified copy if the production of the original is not, in the opinion of the Court, necessary.

A public officer is only bound to furnish a certified copy, unless the original is called for by the Court (Section 76 of Act I of 1872), and the Court shall presume (i.e., in the absence of evidence to the contrary) that such certified copy is genuine (Section 76 of Act I of 1872). But it by no means unfrequently happens that the genuineness of a certified copy is impugned or that the meaning of its contents can only be rightly gathered from a context too voluminous to be conveniently copied, or for other reasons, necessary in original.

In such cases a public officer cannot refuse to produce or cause the production of the original, if so ordered by a Court, unless of course it were protected under Sections 123 or 124, as relating to an affair of State or to communications made in official confidence.

23 W. R., 272.

† For rules for search, inspection and obtaining copies of maps, land registers and other records of the Bombay City Survey, and all records concerning the land or the land revenue under Section 40 of Act II of 1876, and for rules under Section 41 of the same Act regarding the production of the Bombay Collector's records into Court, vide G. N. dated 17th January 1877.

But they would be admissible in evidence and their production compellable by the Court in a suit against Government unless protected either—

- (1) by Section 123 of Act I of 1872 as relating to affairs of State, on which point the decision of the head of the department concerned would be conclusive; or
- (2) by Section 129 as expressly prepared for the instruction of the legal advisers of Government.

The expression "affairs of State" in Section 123 of the Evidence Act would not cover records or correspondence merely affecting the title of an individual to land.

6. Except in the case of unpublished official records relating to affairs of State, which the officer at the head of the department concerned may withhold as such under Section 123 of the Evidence Act, 1872, the Court alone can decide as to the relevancy and admissibility of any document, the production of which is demanded in a suit—Section 162, Evidence Act, 1872. (L. R. No. 1526, dated 20th October 1892; vide G. R. No. 9607, dated 8th December 1892.)

7. No Royal Commission, no Parliamentary Committee, has "free access to the records of Government." The authority of Government to communicate or to withhold records and papers from Parliament is undoubted. Such a refusal does not entail want of confidence, but implies simply that Government are of opinion that a document is irrelevant or from its very nature intended for Government only. Commissions are appointed by Government to institute an independent enquiry by examining witnesses, and by consulting records and such papers as Government may place at their disposal. They are not appointed to institute an enquiry into the actions or opinions of subordinate Government officers, concerning which orders have been passed by Government. Nowhere have any Government ever granted powers which would be tantamount to abdication and which would paralyse administration, because it is obvious that—in their official intercourse with Government—officers of Government frequently make communications which are intended for Government only and it would be, on the part of Government a gross breach of confidence to divulge such communications. (G. R. No. 1678, dated 3rd March 1886.)

8. His Excellency the Governor in Council is pleased to publish for general information the following rules for inspection, search or obtaining copies of documents from the records of the Secretariat:—

1. Every application for search, inspection and obtaining copies of or extracts from the Government records shall be made in writing on plain paper. The date of receipt shall be endorsed upon the application as also shall be the number and date of the order of the Secretary granting the same and the dates on which the requisition was satisfied, and the amount of the fee received shall be duly recorded. The name of the person who conducted the search shall also be recorded in full.

2. Copies shall be given in accordance with Article 22, Schedule I of Act I of 1879, and Schedule I of Act VII of 1870.

3. A fee of Rs. 5 for each day will be charged in every case for search and inspection when permitted by Government. In no case will less than Rs. 5 be charged for search or inspection. The search will be conducted by clerks in the Department of the Secretariat concerned.

4. Each applicant will be required to pay a deposit of Rs. 20 before search and inspection of records are allowed.

5. For every copy of a document taken from the records a fee of one rupee will be charged as a comparing fee.

6. Copying fees at the rate of one anna for every 100 words or fraction of 100 words will be charged, but if the original is in a tabular form double this rate will be charged.

7. No search, inspection or copies of documents will be given in cases where it is considered that such a course would be prejudicial to the interests of Government.

(G. N. No. 2023, dated 14th March 1889.)

9. The best arrangement for the safe custody of reclamation and other leases granted in the several districts of minor importance is to keep them in the Collectors' safes. Printed lists of these leases should be sent to the General Record Room. In the case of more important leases which will fall in after ninety-nine years, greater precautions are necessary. These should all be printed, and authenticated copies should be kept in the Secretariat, Bombay, and at the Collectors' head-quarters. (G. Rs. Nos. 2351, dated 2nd May 1879, and 9991, dated 19th December 1884.)

10. The Collectors should forward to Government lists of leases granted in their respective districts since the date of Government Resolution No. 2351, dated 2nd May 1879, to be added to the lists previously printed. (G. R. No. 6827, dated 22nd August 1885.)

11. The officials, in whose custody public documents are, are responsible for their not being tampered with, and if any tampering is found to have occurred, they are bound to show that they were not privy to and had no concern in the matter, and are not responsible for what occurred. (G. R. No. 4334, dated 30th May 1884.)

12. It is essential that the greatest care should be taken of papers sent from the Alienation Office on loan to officers for reference, &c. With a view to avoid the possibility of such papers being lost or stolen when papers are received for reference from the Alienation Office, the officer receiving the same should give a receipt for the same, keep them always in his own custody and must personally see them packed for despatch so as to be sure of the contents of the parcel or packet, and all such parcels or packets should be invariably registered. In cases where the papers applied for are not lengthy, the Commissioner may use his discretion in supplying copies in lieu of sending the originals. (G. R. No. 7003, dated 29th August 1885.)

13. Government attach great importance to the systematic indexing of the records in the mofussil kacheris, and the Commissioners should see that this work is kept up to date in the districts under their charges. (G. R. No. 1220, dated 13th February 1889.)

14. It is of the utmost importance that the orders regarding the destruction of old and useless records should be carefully and regularly carried out, as useless papers not only take up a great deal of room, but if allowed to accumulate soon get beyond the power of the ordinary establishment to put them in order. The Commissioners on their tours should continue to see that no laxity is allowed in this respect. (G. R. No. 4491, dated 21st August 1874.)

15. Generally no documents in which the Accountant-General's office may be interested should be destroyed without the assent of that officer. (G. R. No. 3276, dated 21st June 1879.)

16. As regards the classification and destruction of papers of the Forest Department, Government are of opinion that papers classed A should be kept permanently and those classed B should be destroyed after varying periods. It would be easy to mark on the bundles of B papers the period after which they should be destroyed. Before, however, the papers classed B are destroyed, lists of such papers should be submitted to the Conservators of Forests or Deputy Conservator of Forests in charge of Circles for approval. (G. R. No. 8697, dated 7th November 1895.)

Note.—The revised lists of A and B papers prescribed in this Resolution have not been printed in this compilation.

17. Lists* of A and B Famine papers have been prescribed by G. R. No. 6309, dated 27th August 1889.

18. The list* of papers pertaining to the office of Collectors to be periodically destroyed has been sanctioned by Government Resolutions Nos. 8818, dated 9th November 1892, and 2828, dated 21st April 1893.

RECORDS.]

19. Lists* of Táluka, Huzúr and Village A and B papers have been sanctioned in Government Resolution No. 3479, dated 20th April 1892, and a further revision of them has been ordered in Government Resolution No. 5921, dated 10th August 1897.

20. The list* of papers in the Vernacular Branch of the Divisional Commissioner's offices to be preserved and destroyed has been sanctioned by Government Resolution No. 6897, dated 7th September 1895.

21. With the object of enabling boys attending vernacular schools to learn to read vernacular handwriting, Mámlatdárs may supply on application by school masters of Government schools a number of B list papers, taking a receipted list thereof from the school masters, who shall be responsible for them, and on duly returning them, can have a fresh supply of such papers. Care should, however, be taken that no records (of the A list) that are to be kept are allowed to leave the Mámlatdárs' kacheris, and that all B papers lent are carefully returned. (G. Rs. Nos. 2643, dated 22nd May 1878, and 3099, dated 19th June 1878.)

22. Masters of registered indigenous schools should be furnished by Mámlatdárs with B list papers through the kulkarnis of the villages in which the schools are situated, care, however, being taken that no records of A list papers are allowed to leave the Mámlatdárs' kacheris. (G. Rs. Nos. 7004, dated 2nd September, and 7986, dated 9th October 1884.)

23. It is essential that waste paper in Government offices should be so disposed of as to reduce to a minimum the risk of fire from its being allowed to accumulate. For this purpose it should either be collected and burnt daily by the office peons or stored in iron bins till removed. Where it is probable that the proceeds of the sale of the paper will cover the cost of the bins, the latter course should be adopted. (G. R., P. W. D., No. 295A-1037, dated 27th July 1897.)

24. The proceeds of the sale of waste paper must be credited to Government, and all charges connected with the preservation of records should be duly provided for in the budget. (G. R. No. 889, dated 22nd February 1871.)

25. Papers filed under Acts XIX of 1857, X of 1866 and VI of 1852, of such companies as have become defunct or been dissolved for over five years should be destroyed, subject only to such special direction, if any, as might be made at the time of the winding up of any company regarding the disposal of their papers under the first clause of Section 199 of the Indian Companies Act. (G. R. No. 4711, dated 20th July 1898.)

* Not printed.

Note.—It is not intended that daftars already sorted and classed according to the old list should be resorted according to the new, but that the revised classing should apply only to records which had not already been sorted.

(G. R. No. 4645, dated 28th June 1893.)

REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.*PART I.—COMMISSIONERS.

1. Commissioners should give an opinion on every subject submitted to Government through them, even though it be an appointment in the patronage of His Excellency the Governor. (G. L. No. 4738, dated 19th December 1860.)

2. Although the power to grant sick leave necessitating the departure of an officer from his district has not been conceded to the Commissioners, yet His Excellency the Governor in Council authorizes them to permit the departure of officers in cases of emergency in anticipation of formal leave. (G. R. No. 4041, dated 17th September 1861.)

3. In modification of the orders contained in Government Resolution No. 1192, dated 21st March 1862, His Excellency the Governor in Council is pleased to authorize the Commissioners of Divisions to sanction applications for the grant of privilege leave of absence to gazetted officers under them for periods not exceeding 30 days* in cases where no substitute is required and no extra expense is involved. In other cases leave will be granted by Government. (G. R. No. 6834, dated 12th September 1889.)

4. All correspondence in the Revenue and Police Departments should be carried on through the Revenue and Police Commissioners, direct references being avoided as much as possible. (G. L. No. 3116, dated 8th July 1861.)

5. Commissioners are authorized—

(1) to write off outstanding balances of revenue to any extent, but all such remissions, with the reasons for them, should be reported annually to Government for its information in a tabular statement appended to the Jamābandi reports;

(2) to write off unserviceable dead-stock to any extent, but they should forward annually to the Accountant General for information a statement of the prime cost, the amount realized, and the cause of sale stated briefly;

(3) to correspond direct with the Accountant General in all cases connected with travelling allowances to Collectors, their Assistants and Deputies, Superintendents of Police and their Assistants, batta to establishments, disbursements of salaries inadvertently credited as savings, and salaries of acting officers of all grades, reference to Government being made only in the event of final differences of opinion. (G. R. No. 3116, dated 8th July 1861.)

(4) Commissioners are authorized to sanction remissions of assessment up to Rs. 1,000. If remissions on a large scale are proposed to be granted, on account of bad harvests over an extensive tract of country, the matter should be referred for the orders of Government.

(G. R., F. D., No. 720, dated 8th March 1887.)

Any order which would involve a loss or delay in receipt of revenue of a sum exceeding Rs. 20,000 should be reported at once on its issue to the Government of India.

(G. R. No. 2585, dated 27th April 1888.)

6. Commissioners are authorized to sanction, in rectification of evident errors, refunds of sums credited to Government. (G. R. No. 251, dated 21st January 1862.)

7. The Commissioner, as responsible for the entire revenue administration of his Division, is entitled to apply to any officer employed therein, for such information affecting the revenue as he may deem necessary. (G. R. No. 785, dated 25th February 1867.)

8. The sanction of the Commissioner is necessary in all cases of exchanges in lieu of land taken up for public purposes. (G. R. No. 1910, dated 24th March 1877.)

9. Commissioners have power to give Government waste land in lieu of inám land taken up for a public purpose. (G. R. No. 6825, dated 24th September 1886.)

10. Cases of grants of inám lands to village servants in exchange for that taken up for public purposes, or rendered unfit or unsuitable from any cause, may be sanctioned by the Commissioners. They may also sanction cash allowances, in accordance with the rules when no suitable lands are available. (G. Rs. Nos. 2863, dated 21st May 1881, and 3422, dated 12th May 1893, and G. R., F. D., No. 720, dated 8th March 1887.)

11. The Extra First Assistant Collector in charge Panch Maháls having requested sanction to enter certain land in Kálol belonging to one Ishwar Kuvarji as alienated, liable to a salámi of Rs. 23-8-0 out of an assessment of Rs. 43-4-0, the said holder having established his claim to hold the land as alienated, the Revenue Commissioner enquired whether in cases of that kind he had authority to order the entry of the lands as alienated. It was resolved that in such cases the Revenue Commissioner might decide the question without reference to Government. (G. R. No. 5998, dated 5th October 1877.)

12. Commissioners are authorized—

- to incur expenditure for the erection of boundary marks in Government waste survey numbers;
- to sanction excesses over contract grants of the Collectors up to Rs. 100 in respect of “3, Land Revenue,” “6, Stamps,” “7, Excise” and “32, Miscellaneous,” on being satisfied that the expenditure was really unavoidable.

and that every care was taken to avoid unnecessary expenditure; and to sanction refunds of Khoti profits during attachment of Khoti villages in Ratnágiri.

(G. Rs., F. D., Nos. 720, dated 8th March 1887, and 2050, dated 30th June 1888.)

13. The power vested in the Commissioners by the foregoing order to sanction expenditure over the contract allotments within the limit of Rs. 100, should be exercised by them subject to the condition, which will be strictly enforced, that the grant for the following year be reduced by a corresponding amount. (G. R., F. D., No. 2777, dated 7th September 1888.)

14. Commissioners are authorized, in cases of mere clerical mistakes in sanads, to sanction their cancellation and the issue of fresh ones in their stead without reference to Government, except in matters beyond the scope of the Commissioner's proper authority. Sanads once issued are the property of the holders thereof, and that it was never contemplated that they should be renewed or altered otherwise than with the consent or at the instance of the holders themselves, except in the following cases :—

(1) When they refer to land which had not been surveyed and assessed when they were granted, and contain entries of areas, salámi, &c., expressly declared to be provisional only and liable to revision when the land is surveyed.

(2) When they are vitiated by some clerical error in making them out.

(3) When the land to which they relate has been entirely surrendered to or resumed by Government, in which case they should be re-called and cancelled if possible.

In other cases Government are not concerned in the renewal of sanads, though, when any changes occur which are likely to obscure the identity of land, the holders of them should be encouraged to present their sanads for endorsement or renewal if they prefer it, and are willing to pay the renewal fee. For Government purposes it is sufficient that all such changes should be duly recorded in Village Form IX, so that the identity of the land, for which the sanad was originally granted, can be readily traced through all subsequent changes of number, area, or assessment.

(G. Rs. Nos. 5589, dated 8th July 1892, and 6003, dated 16th July 1894.)

15. The Commissioner in Sind and the Divisional Commissioners are authorized to sanction refunds of forest revenue exceeding Rs. 200, and the writing off of irrecoverable balances of forest revenue up to Rs. 1,000 in each case. (G. Rs. Nos. 1361, dated 18th February 1893, and 4756, dated 10th July 1899.)

PART I.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

16. The Commissioners of Divisions and the Commissioner in Sind are authorized to grant leave on allowances, subject to the restrictions imposed in Article 317 of the Civil Service Regulations, to kárkuns and other Revenue subordinates for the period spent at appearing at the Lower and Higher Standard Departmental Examinations. (G. R., F. D., No. 3980, dated 24th December 1888.)

17. The Commissioner in Sind is authorized to sanction the temporary entertainment of zabits on Rs. 20 per mensem each for a period not exceeding three months, provided the expenditure can be met from grants entered in the budget estimates. (G. R. No. 9090, dated 30th November 1889.)

18. In the interests of the public administration it is desirable that each Divisional Commissioner should have his monsoon head-quarters and should reside during the rains in his own Division in place of spending at Poona five months of the year.

The head-quarters during the monsoon months of the Commissioner, N. D., should be at Ahmedabád; those of the Commissioner, S. D., at Belgaum.

(G. Rs. Nos. 9280, dated 7th December 1889, 1982, dated 17th March 1890, and 2653, dated 17th April 1890.)

19. The touring systems tentatively introduced in the Central and Southern Divisions under the orders contained in Government Resolutions, Financial Department, Nos. 3047, dated 10th November 1887, and 281, dated 31st January 1888, are to be permanently adopted.

The Commissioner, N. D., is allowed to locate his head-quarter office in a few central camps while touring in the districts of Thána, Surat, Broach and Kaira and halting at the City of Ahmedabad, and to take with him such portion of his records and office establishment as may be found to be absolutely necessary when travelling along the tract of country north of Ahmedabad and in North-East Gujarát.

(G. R. No. 9280, dated 7th December 1889.)

REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART II.

PART II.—COLLECTORS, ASSISTANT AND DEPUTY COLLECTORS.(i) Appointments, Leave, &c.

1. In the list of Senior and Junior Collectors, the names should be entered according to date of appointment, and not according to seniority in the service. But this order should be considered as merely laying down how the list of Senior and Junior Collectors in the Civil list is to be prepared for purposes of information and not as giving directions as to promotion from one to the other grade.

Promotions from the grade of Junior to the grade of Senior Collector are to be made according to seniority in the service, not according to date of appointment to a Collectorate. The Accountant General should dispose of all questions of pay and allowances to Senior and Junior Collectors in accordance with this ruling.

(G. Rs. Nos. 4144, dated 22nd July 1875, and 6839, dated 6th December 1875.)

2. When it becomes known to the Accountant General's office that a Collector has made over charge to the Senior Assistant Collector of the District, it should enter the latter as acting as a Collector and propose the promotions consequent on such appointment in the gradation list which is submitted for the approval of Government, so that orders may be passed regarding all the changes involved without unnecessary delay. (G. R. No. 4395, dated 28th July 1881.)

3. The vacancies of acting First and Second Assistant Collectors are filled up in the gradation list of Revenue officers according to the seniority of officers, and irrespective of the districts in which they occur, and the work which the Assistant Collectors perform. (G. R. No. 6577, dated 5th November 1881.)

4. A mere re-arrangement of the work of a district among the available Assistants and Deputy Collectors does not give any of those officers claim to higher allowances, as the vacancies in the grade of Assistant Collectors are filled up under standing orders by promotion of the Senior Second Assistant and Supernumerary Assistant Collectors without reference to their duties. (G. R. No. 970, dated 11th February 1882.)

5. The Accountant General should submit two separate monthly gradation lists, viz., one of Commissioners and Senior and Junior Collectors and the other of First and Second Assistant Collectors and Judges, who under the orders contained in Government Resolution, Judicial Department, No. 778, dated 10th February 1892, are to be borne on one list. The former list will be issued from the Revenue and the latter from the General Department. (G. R. No. 1751, dated 11th March 1892.)

PART II.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

6. Every First Assistant Collector is required to carry on the duties of the Collector when that officer is summoned to a conference, without extra remuneration. (G. R. No. 5747, dated 17th October 1873.)

7. For the first thirty days of the absence of a Collector on privilege leave one of the officers acting as Collector must lose acting allowance, and it is generally fair that that officer should be the Junior Acting Collector, although he may not personally have had any connection with, or owe anything to the departure of the officer on privilege leave. (G. R. No. 2343, dated 19th March 1885.)

8. The Bombay Government is authorized to temporarily retain in the Judicial Department the services of an Assistant Collector and to allow him to continue to act as a Supernumerary Assistant Judge instead of reverting temporarily to the Revenue Department, although no acting vacancy to which he could be appointed be available at the time, provided (1) that the period within which the expected vacancy in the Judicial Branch will occur does not exceed three months in each case from the date on which the officer concerned becomes a Supernumerary in the Judicial Department, and (2) that no promotion is allowed in the Revenue Department in place of the Supernumerary Judicial Officer concerned until he is absorbed by the occurrence of a vacancy in the Judicial Department. (G. L. H. D., No. 1207, dated 2nd September 1885; vide G. R. No. 8316, dated 13th October 1885.)

9. The attention of the Commissioners and Collectors is invited to Article 119 of the Civil Service Regulations. A Collector when submitting with his recommendation for its grant an application for privilege leave preferred by an Assistant or Deputy Collector serving under him should always explain how he proposes to provide for the discharge of the duties of the officer applying for leave during his absence on leave. If he is unable to make such provision with his existing staff he should report what are the exceptional circumstances in the case which render it advisable that the grant of privilege leave applied for should not be deferred until he can make satisfactory arrangements for the performance of the duties of the officer requiring the leave. In the case of an application for privilege leave preferred by a Collector, the Commissioner of the Division when forwarding it, for orders should submit a similar explanation or report. (G. R. No. 3434, dated 9th May 1889; vide also, G. A. to the Commissioner of Customs, Salt, Opium and Akkari, No. 890, dated 3rd February 1890.)

10. The Commissioner in Sind and the Divisional Commissioners should promptly report to Government all cases of grant of leave by them to Collectors and District Magistrates, and the arrangements they may make for the discharge of the duties of those officers during their absence, so that Government can gazette the appointments of acting officers at once, and thus avoid the risk of any legal difficulties which may arise in the omission to furnish the incumbents with political, magisterial, or any other jurisdiction which under the circumstances may be needed. The Commissioners should further be directed with reference to the provisions of Section 11 of the Land Revenue Code to report the circumstances before actually granting the leave in any case in which it may be desirable that an officer other than the Senior Assistant Collector on regular duty in the district should take charge, in order that the necessary notification may be issued beforehand.

Officers on whom the duties of Collector and District Magistrate may devolve temporarily under Section 11 of the Land Revenue and Criminal Procedure Codes, should abstain from taking on themselves any of the functions under the Bombay Local Boards and District Municipal Acts which have been vested personally in the officer for whom they are acting until they have been formally gazetted to exercise those powers.

(G. R. No. 867, dated 31st January 1893.)

11. The appointment of Collector of the Presidency Town of Bombay is not one of the reserved or scheduled appointments under Act 24 and 25 Vict., c. 54, kept exclusively for members of the Covenanted Civil Service. (S. of S. No. 4, Rev., dated 15th February 1883; vide G. R. No. 2290, dated 20th March 1883.)

12. The post of First Assistant Collector, Bombay, is not a reserved or scheduled appointment. (G. M. to the Accountant General, No. 6180, dated 30th August 1890.)

13. The circumstances of the appointment of the Assistant Collector, Bombay, are peculiar. It is not a scheduled appointment, but it has been decided that it should always be held, if possible, by a covenanted Civilian, and it therefore is included in the graded appointments and has no special local pay. (G. R. No. 6580, dated 16th August 1892.)

14. The appointments of the Collector of Land Revenue, Customs and Opium, Bombay, and the First Assistant Collector, Bombay, should be treated not as special appointments of a particular grade, but as additions to the general sanctioned strength of Senior Collectors and First Assistant Collectors, respectively. (G. R. No. 3686, dated 5th June 1888.)

15. As a general rule, Huzúr Deputy Collectors should only be allowed privilege leave during the rains, when other Assistants can take charge of the Huzúr without interfering with the district duties of Assistants in permanent charge of districts. (G. R. No. 900, dated 22nd February 1861.)

16. All notifications issued by the Commissioner in Sind affecting the temporary transfer of Deputy Collectors should be recognized as authoritative. (G. R. No. 5961, dated 2nd December 1870.)

PART II.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

17. As a general rule, all promotions in the grades of Deputy Collectors will be made according to seniority, both in the case of substantive vacancies and in respect to promotions pro-tem. to a higher grade. It follows that any Deputy Collector appointed for the first time to a particular grade, will be placed at the bottom of the grade, and except on special occasions, every new appointment will be made to the lowest grade of all. Government, however, reserve to themselves the right on such special occasions to nominate to a higher grade any officer whose appointment to it, without his having passed through the lower grades, the exigencies of the State may render necessary. (G. R. No. 918, dated 17th February 1873.)

18. Daftardárs in Sind having been graded with Deputy Collectors, their appointments emanate from Government, who will attend, as far as possible, to the recommendations of the Commissioner, but the Commissioner may fill up mere temporary vacancies in such manner as may be necessary, the confirmation of Government being subsequently obtained. (G. R. No. 1010, dated 18th February 1875.)

19. At stations where the treasure is kept by the Bank of Bombay, the Deputy Collector at the Sadar station should be called, not Deputy Collector or 'Officer' in charge of the Treasury, but by the ordinary title borne by all such officers, viz., 'Huzúr Deputy Collector.' (G. R. No. 4880, dated 26th August 1875.)

20. The Accountant General should submit every month a gradation list of Deputy Collectors. (G. M. No. 1382, dated 13th February 1884.)

21. Officers of the rank of Deputy Collectors, whose services are lent to Native States or who are detailed on other special duty, will ordinarily be considered entitled to receive substantive grade promotion according to seniority during their absence for a period of five years from the date of their deputation on special duty, but on the expiration of that period they will not receive any further promotion during their absence without the special orders of Government. (G. R. No. 6986, dated 1st September 1884.)

22. Reversions from substantive pro-tem. to acting appointments in the grade of Deputy Collectors should be regulated according to the merits of each case as it arises. (G. R. No. 5568, dated 11th July 1884.)

23. Deputy Collectors are ordinarily graded in the order in which they were appointed substantively to the post of Mámlatdár or Head Accountant. (G. R. No. 7995, dated 9th October 1884.)

24. The appointments of Deputy Collector and Assistant Collector are parallel appointments on the same establishment. This is clear from the nature of the pay and duties, and was specially laid down in Government Resolution No. 3831, dated 14th October 1868. An officer can receive no extra allowance for doing the work of a fellow officer on the same establishment who does not hold a higher appointment, and a Deputy Collector discharging the duties of an Assistant Collector in addition to his own is in the same position as if he were discharging the duties of another Deputy Collector in addition to his own. He can in neither case draw any extra allowance. (G. Rs. Nos. 5990, dated 21st August 1886, and 6714, dated 9th October 1888.)

(ii) Powers, duties, &c.

1. Collectors are not called upon to provide districts for every Assistant sent to them, or to change the charges of their Assistants in accordance with their varying numerical strength. The charges of the First, Second and Third Assistants and Deputy Collectors once arranged are not to be altered except for important public reasons. Young Assistants attached to Collectors are to be employed under the Collector himself or under the First or Second Assistant, who ought to have more than enough work at their disposal to give an Assistant useful employment.

The distribution of the charges of Assistants will rest with the Collectors subject to the control of the Commissioner, whose notification in the Government Gazette may be accepted by the Civil Auditor as authority. Reference to Government will be necessary only when the Commissioner sees special reason for it.

(G. R. No. 414, dated 30th January 1860.)

2. A Collector need not always hold charge of a taluka, but he should occasionally do so if he has doubts whether any Assistant or Deputy is conducting his duties in a satisfactory manner.

He should always (unless there is special cause, which should be reported) do the jamabandi of two talukas from different Assistants' charges.

He should take talukas in turn (not necessarily in regular rotation), so that he may, within a reasonable time, see how work is conducted in all talukas.

In all complicated cases, the Collector should require his Assistants or Deputies to make their reports in English, so that their work may come fully under his observation.

(G. R. No. 4305, dated 23rd August 1878.)

3. The question of the redistribution of Assistants' charges is left to the decision of the Commissioners of Divisions. (G. R. No. 2591, dated 10th May 1881.)

4. The settlement of the land and sayar revenues of the districts should be completed, if possible, by the end of February or at the latest by the 15th of March, and the cause of delay in the settlement of any taluka should be briefly explained in the annual reports. The period for completing the jamábandi can be extended by the Commissioners without reference to Government. (G. Rs. Nos. 161, dated 18th January 1864, 330, dated 25th January 1868, and 1824, dated 11th March 1893.)

PART II.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

5. The following are extracts from a memorandum by Mr. (now Sir) T. C. Hope, dated 11th December 1874, which was circulated by Government for the information and guidance of all Collectors and their Assistants:—

“3. One principal matter is the jamábandi. Before beginning the jamábandi of any taluka, I would suggest that the officer cause his karkúns to prepare a tabular statement containing the name of each village, and the chief items of revenue for the previous year, in the vernacular, as also blank columns for similar items of the current year, and ample space for causes of increase and decrease and general remarks. As each village comes up for settlement, the officer should enter with his own hand the items of revenue as settled by him in Village Form No. 10, the causes of increase and decrease as ascertained on enquiry, and any general remarks on the state or wants of the village, the efficiency of the village officers, accuracy of the accounts, &c., which may suggest themselves. When all the villages have been gone through, a few remarks on the taluka and the settlement in general will complete the record for subsequent use by the officer himself, or any successor into whose hands it may pass. A Collector doing a jamábandi should hand over a similar record to the officer in charge of the taluka.

“4. The only other record which I would recommend is a current memorandum book, in which should be written at the time anything which particularly strikes the officer regarding any place, and is intended for practical use, as also any information necessary for the Administration Report, for instance:—

December 1st.—Examined the statistics of Taluka. The figures of population, resources, &c., are as under. The great increase in appears owing to and the falling off in to December 5th.—Completed 1st examination, and signed taleband.

December 15th.—Began jamábandi of Taluka

January 5th.—Inspected tank at : it is much in want of repairs. The people offer Rs. 200: a grant of Rs. 300 more should be recommended in the Taluka Local Fund Budget.

January 10th.—Visited ; inspected fields and rayats' books; examined the accounts and records.

April 5th.—Held quarterly Local Fund meeting at . The figures of attendance, &c., for the past year are as under . The best members are and .

I need scarcely say that it is the duty of a Shirastedár to aid the memory of his chief, ascertaining before leaving the head-quarters of a táluka for instance that no necessary information has been forgotten, and in the case of a young officer on his first tour explaining what there is to be done.

■                    ✱                    ✱                    ✱                    ✱

"5. It should be a standing rule that nothing which can be obtained or done at a taluka at the time of the first inspection should, without definite good reason, be left over for the second, and when an officer giving over charge has violated this rule it should be the duty of the officer receiving charge to bring the fact to the Collector's notice."

(G. R. No. 53, dated 6th January 1875.)

6. At the jamábandi, lists should be obtained from the village officers of the deceased Khátedárs, whose names are retained in the accounts in place of their heirs, and carefully examined. (G. Rs. Nos. 8246, dated 23rd November 1886, and 10072, dated 23rd December 1892.)

7. The orders of Government as to the completion of the jamābandi settlement at least three camps in each taluka should be strictly observed. Government must insist on this duty being carried out with a minimum of inconvenience to the village officers and their work. Where agricultural establishments have been appointed, it is especially desirable that Kulkarnis and Talātis should not be called away to any distance from their charges, and all Collectors should issue orders to ensure that village officers are not detained beyond a limited period for the preparation and disposal of the jamābandi papers. (G. R. No. 9246, dated 18th December 1893.)

8. It is hereby notified, with reference to Section 3 of Bombay Act I of 1868, published in the Bombay Government Gazette of the 1st December 1868 that the powers and duties of a Collector may not be conferred by a Collector on any Assistant, or Deputy Collector, who has not passed the Departmental Examination according to the Higher Standard. * * * (G. N. dated 2nd December 1868.)

9. The Land Revenue Code, Bombay Act V of 1879, is an Act passed 'to consolidate and amend the law relating to Revenue Officers' as well as the law relating to the assessment and recovery of land revenue. Chapter II of the Code deals with the 'constitution and powers of Revenue Officers,' and Section 10, which occurs in that chapter, lays down that an Assistant or Deputy Collector in charge of talukas shall, subject to appeal, perform all the duties and exercise all the powers conferred upon a Collector of a district by the Code or 'any other law at the time being in force,' so far as regards the talukas in his charge; but authority is given to the Collector to withdraw any duties or powers that he thinks fit from any Assistant or Deputy.

There is no ground for limiting the meaning of the words 'or any other law at the time being in force' by holding that only laws relating to land revenue are meant. If this had been intended, the Legislature would have employed language which would have made such intention clear. The intention of the words actually used is that, in his talukas, the powers and duties of an Assistant or Deputy Collector shall be the same as are conferred or imposed by any law upon the Collector, subject always to a right of appeal to the Collector and to the power of the Collector to direct his Assistant or Deputy not to perform certain duties or exercise certain powers.

The Local Boards Act has been passed by the Legislature with a knowledge that this was the general law, and as it has not thought fit to enact that the Collector's duties and powers under that Act shall not be performed or exercised in their respective talukas by his Assistants or Deputies, the general law applies to the Collector's functions under the Local Boards Act.

10. Collectors should have no difficulty in deciding what powers conferred upon the Collector by Act I of 1884 they should reserve to themselves. The powers under Sections 64 and 65 should be so reserved. (G. R. No. 8718, dated 5th November 1884.)

11. It is the duty of the Collector of the district and the Commissioner of the Division to make themselves acquainted with all the material wants of the Collectorates entrusted to their charge. They should then carefully consider whether the wants ought to be supplied by the use of the Local Funds, or by contributions from the Imperial Treasury. This being determined, specific proposals, supplemented by plans and estimates, should be forwarded to Government. The necessity of the works and the best method of carrying them into effect would then be carefully considered. (G. R. No. 1329, dated 20th March 1871.)

12. Government have in their Resolution No. 5091, dated 12th October 1871, paragraph 6, clause b, issued the following instructions to Assistant Collectors apropos of the preparation of their annual reports:—"Every Assistant is at the time of doing jamābandi or examining records, &c., to keep in his own hand notes of the results and the statistics necessary for his report. All such notes are to be handed over on a transfer, and the fact that all materials necessary for the report up to date have been so transferred is to be mentioned in the usual report of giving over and receiving charge."

No such orders exist with reference to Collectors; but it is considered desirable that similar instructions should apply to those officers as well. Copies of the following circular of the Government of the Punjab, No. 25-3793, dated 9th November 1878, directing that every Deputy Commissioner who shall have been in charge of a district for more than a year, shall, on leaving it, record for the information of his successor a memorandum of all important points connected with the administration of the district, are circulated for the information and guidance of Commissioners and Collectors:—

"A large amount of valuable information is lost to the Government for administrative purposes from the fact that Deputy Commissioners, leaving their districts on furlough, transfer, or retirement, make over charge to their successor without giving any memoranda on the various matters of importance with which they have been long officially connected. Consequently, the new-comer has to discover for himself the facts regarding every branch of the administration which might have been more conveniently collected and placed on record by the officer who had long been in charge of the district.

"2. The burthen of the duties of the new District Officer is thus largely and unnecessarily increased; it is long before his knowledge of the district becomes such as to enable him to control it efficiently, while all continuity in administration is apt to be lost.

"3 The Honourable the Lieutenant Governor is accordingly pleased to direct that every Deputy Commissioner who shall leave a district, of which he has been in charge for more than a year, on transfer, furlough, or retirement, shall record, for the use of his successor, a carefully drawn and exhaustive memorandum noting all points of which it is important that his successor should be informed.

"4. It may hereafter be possible to note in more detail the subjects to which attention should be specially directed in these memoranda; but I am here principally to note the working of the Police; the manner in which the incidence of the land revenue assessment affects the district; the portions which require particular care on the occurrence of drought or high prices; any special offence to which any portion of the ordinary population or criminal tribes of the district are addicted; and the working of Municipal and District Committees.

"5. In addition to this, should be carefully recorded the names and character of the more important native gentlemen or headmen of the district; their activity or supineness in the suppression of crime, and any special services which they may be fitted to render to the Government in case these should be required of them. Existing rules provide for a record of the qualifications and services of the ministerial officers of a district, and this record must be duly kept up.

"6. Commissioners are requested to ascertain, before a Deputy Commissioner leaves a district, whether the memorandum now prescribed has been prepared, and should satisfy themselves that it contains the information required in sufficient detail."

(G. R. No. 2857, dated 31st May 1879.)

13. It is the duty of Collectors to insist on their Assistants keeping their notes in a full and complete manner. (G. R. No. 1265, dated 11th March 1874.)

14. Commissioners should take measures to ensure references from Government meeting with prompt replies.

Collectors should at once furnish replies to references which do not require any kind of labour or research, and the information necessary to reply to which can be extracted at once by a clerk from the Accounts and Records.

In matters requiring careful consideration valuable time should not be lost by calling for opinions in an indiscriminate manner. Opinions should only be called for from those officers likely to give useful ones.

Great attention should be paid to the punctual transmission of periodical reports. Collectors should invariably keep a list of such reports by them, and see that they are regularly despatched.

Before a petition reaches Government it has, as a rule, been reported on both by the Assistant Collector and the Collector. All reports of this nature should be written by the transmitting officer in his own language. The Assistant or Deputy, in reporting on a petition to the Collector, should do so in English, and, if possible, after having given the petitioner an opportunity of personally stating the particulars of his case. The Collector should, on appeal, record in English his reasons for confirming or annulling the decision of his Assistant or Deputy; and in the event of a further appeal being made to the Commissioner, the Collector should transmit the record of proceedings with a report in English. By this means there will be a guarantee that each officer has understood the merits of the case, and the Commissioner will, as a rule, have by him the means of at once replying to any petition referred to him by Government.

(G. C. No. 4283-A., dated 5th October 1869.)

The orders in Government Circular No. 4283-A., dated 5th October 1869, are applicable to all revenue and miscellaneous petitions.

The decisions passed in the first instance by the Assistant are generally communicated to the Mám-latdárs, and are frequently on trivial matters; they may, therefore, be recorded in the vernacular. In important or complicated cases, where the decision is likely to be appealed against, the Assistant will generally find it most convenient to record his judgment in English in the first instance, and send a translation of it to the Mám-latdár. This is a matter that must be left to the discretion of the Assistant.

REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART II.

But in reporting on a petition in appeal to the Collector, the Assistant must do so in English.

(G. R. No. 4920, dated 12th November 1869.)

15. A Collector or his Assistant may with the concurrence of the Commissioner be absent from his district for two or three days at a time; but the Commissioner must see that this indulgence is not granted too often. This does not apply to public holidays. (G. R., F. D., No. 5948, dated 27th November 1871.)

16. Collectors should submit their reports, &c., to Government in all cases through the Commissioner of their Division, except when specially directed to address Government direct. Reminders to the Collectors are not to be sent to them direct from the Secretariat. (G. R. No. 784, dated 7th February 1877.)

17. The position of Revenue officers in charge of districts gives them special facilities for stimulating the progress of education and examining into the state of primary schools, and Government are aware that a good deal has been done in this respect. And, in consideration of the success which has attended these voluntary efforts, Government will not issue authoritative instructions on the subject. Government will view with marked approbation the exertions of any officer who gives special attention to this particular duty. The Director of Public Instruction should notice in his annual report the cases in which individual members of the service have given effective support to his Department. (G. R., E. D., No. 89, dated 10th February 1871; vide G. M. No. 483, dated 14th idem.)

18. Government have never made the examination of schools by Assistant Collectors compulsory, as the zeal of those officers has hitherto rendered any such order unnecessary. His Excellency in Council is quite content to leave matters on their present footing. (G. R. No. 6825, dated 24th December 1874.)

19. Collectors have authority—

- (1) to write off articles of unserviceable dead-stock the prime cost of which did not exceed Rs. 100;
- (2) to appoint all their own office people (except the Daftardár, Shirastedár, Head Accountant, and Huzúr Treasurer,) all Mahálkaris, and all acting or officiating (but not probationary) Mámlatdárs*;

---

* "The power of appointing Mámlatdárs, whether acting or substantive, vests, I think, under Sections 12 and 20 of the Code, in the Commissioners alone. A subordinate who takes charge of a Mámlatdár's office under Section 15 should do so, I think, in accordance with orders issued from time to time by the Collector designating the subordinates who should take charge on the occurrence of sudden and temporary vacancies and not

PART II.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

- (3) to grant leave of all kinds, in accordance with the existing rules, to the extent of six months to all officers whom they have the power to appoint;
- (4) to disburse their "discretionary allowances" (for public works) as they think fit;
- (5) to sanction contingent expenditure up to Rs. 50 in each case;
- (6) to discharge all village officers who are not hereditary, appeal lying to the Commissioners.

(G. L. No. 3116, dated 8th July 1861, and G. R., F. D., No. 311, dated 10th March 1869.)

20. The appointment of peons and talátis rests with the Assistant or Deputy Collector in charge of the taluka. (G. R., F. D., No. 595, dated 20th May 1867.)

21. Collectors are authorized to write off outstanding balances of revenue up to Rs. 100 in each village in one year. This is applicable to balances on account of any items of revenue over the levy and collection of which they exercise a control and for which they are responsible. (G. L. No. 3116, dated 8th July 1861, and G. R. No. 685, dated 4th March 1863.)

22. Collectors are authorized to grant remissions of assessment on account of loss by fire to the extent of Rs. 50 in each case. This authority has reference to each individual who has suffered loss. (G. Rs. Nos. 1054, dated 26th February 1874, and 4431, dated 19th July 1877.)

23. Collectors should see that no remissions are granted without a careful scrutiny in each individual case. (G. R. No. 2916, dated 5th June 1880.)

generally by express appointment; and such subordinates, whether expressly nominated or not, should, I think, subscribe themselves as 'in charge of the Mámlatdár's office' and not as 'Acting Mámlatdár.'

"The Commissioner, C. D., informs me that it has been the practice hitherto to leave to the Collectors the power of nominating Acting Mámlatdárs for short vacancies, like the one in the present instance, which is for three months, and Government Resolution No. 3116, dated 8th July 1861, is quoted by his Assistant as the authority under which Collectors thus appoint Acting Mámlatdárs. This Resolution can of course not prevail against the enactment of the Revenue Code, which limits the power of appointment to the Commissioners, and I am of opinion that all appointments of Mámlatdárs, whether substantive or acting, must be made by the Commissioners and gazetted. When this is done it will be unnecessary, in accordance with Government Resolution, Judicial Department, No. 3339 of 18th May 1883, for Acting Mámlatdárs' powers under Bombay Act III of 1876 to be gazetted; and if subordinates take charge temporarily only of Mámlatdárs' offices, as is intended by Section 15 of the Code, it will hardly ever be necessary or expedient that they should be invested with these powers. The adoption of the above views need not cause any great alteration in the present practice. For short vacancies, the Commissioners might still accept the Collectors' nominations without question, but should gazette them as appointments made by themselves."

(L. R. No. 1177, dated 30th August 1883; vide G. R., J. D., No. 6825, dated 2nd October 1883.)

REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART II.]

24. Collectors are authorized to make refunds up to Rs. 100 in the following cases:—

(1) Assessment levied, at five or ten times the ordinary rates, on lands unauthorizedly occupied, and which on appeal to the Collector or Commissioner is remitted.

(2) Assessment levied on lands which are declared alienated by the Commissioner.

(3) Over-collections made by the village officers. The Collectors should, however, forward to the Commissioner of their Division a half-yearly statement of the refunds they may make without obtaining his sanction.

(G. R. No. 5246, dated 1st December 1869, and G. R., F. D., No. 720, dated 8th March 1887.)

25. Collectors are empowered to write off arrears of judi leviable from watandars up to the same extent as prescribed in the case of arrears from ordinary revenue defaulters. Commissioners are likewise authorized to grant remissions of item of revenue in cases in which they may exceed Rs. 100. The returns of remissions should include remissions of judi. (G. R. No. 6862, dated September 1883.)

26. Authority may be delegated to the Collectors to grant refunds of over-collections made and added to Excise to the extent of Rs. 100 in each case. (G. R. No. 8543, dated 10th December 1891.)

27. Assistant and Deputy Collectors are authorized to grant refunds of over-collections of revenue for current or previous years up to Rs. 50. (G. R. No. 1037, dated 7th February 1891.)

28. Assistant and Deputy Collectors are authorized to sanction refunds of Local Fund Cess up to Rs. 10.

The Accountant General should pass refusals of Land Revenue and Local Fund Cess for sums not exceeding Rs. 10 on vouchers signed by the Assistant and Deputy Collectors.

(G. R. No. 4581, dated 26th June 1893.)

29. Contingent bills of the Collectors should not be countersigned by the Commissioners of Divisions and the Commissioner in Sind. Such bills may be countersigned by the Collectors and sent to the Accountant General for audit. (G. I. F. D., No. 6541, dated 12th November 1874; and G. R. No. 6125, dated 21st idem.)

30. Collectors are authorized to sanction, according to fixed rules, village expenses in surveyed districts, and the same, until the introduction of the revenue survey, in the case of villages in unsurveyed tracts lapsing to Government, or otherwise falling under their direct control. (G. R. No. 1037, dated 7th February 1891.)

31. Birth and death registers should be compared with each other and scrutinized each month.

PART II.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

as they are received and promptly tested by the district authorities. (G. R. No. 4607, dated 30th August 1879.)

32. Advances for the purchase of property under Section 325 (c) of the Civil Procedure Code should be debited to the Collector under advances repayable pending adjustment by re-sale. The amount of advances when necessary should be reported periodically to the Commissioners. (G. Rs. Nos. 2701, dated 14th May 1881, and 6093, dated 15th October 1881.)

33. The Legislature does not contemplate the exercise by the Collectors, for the purposes of Sections 22 and 29 of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act, of the powers of a Civil Court in compelling the attendance of parties and witnesses and the production of documents, and any rule framed by Government conferring such powers would be ultra vires.

It seems to be the intention of the Dekkhan agriculturists' Relief Act that the Court should indicate in its order to the Collectors, under Section 22 or 29, the property which he is to take into his session. This is inferred from the fact that the Collector, acting as he does as a ministerial officer of Court, has no judicial powers conferred upon him to enable him to ascertain what property does not belong to the judgment-debtor or insolvent or whether he is entitled to possession or not.

G. R. No. 1507, dated 21st November 1883; vide G. R. No. 9107, dated 12th December 1883.)

34. Collectors are authorized to grant privilege to Head Accountants and Huzúr Treasurers engaged in their respective charges. (G. R. No. 3785, dated 31st May 1890.)

Collectors have power to introduce Part II of Village Sanitation Act of 1889 into villages without the previous sanction of the Commissioner, when of course take such steps as he may consider necessary to enable him to exercise the power of control conferred on him by Section 6 of the Act. (G. No. 680, dated 30th January 1892.)

36 After consideration of the various inconveniences arising from the appointment of Collectors under Section 504 of the Civil Procedure Code to be Receivers in a greater number of cases than they can properly attend to, and in cases in which their appointment is not likely to be beneficial, the following rule have been prescribed for the guidance of Collectors in accepting or declining such appointments :-

"1 Collectors shall only consent to act as Receivers under Section 504 of the Civil Procedure Code in as many cases as they are from time to time of opinion they or, subject to their supervision, their subordinates can properly attend to, and shall exercise their discretion as to what cases they shall consent to act in.

REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART II.

"2. They should decline to act in any case in which previous to their appointment they have not been consulted by the District Court as to their willingness to act.

"3. They should decline to act in every case in which, after enquiry, they find—

- (a) that the estate is of insignificant value; or
- (b) that, if they accept the office, no sufficient provision will remain for the support of the judgment-debtor and his family during the management; or
- (c) that owing to the property being an undivided share, or for any such reason, the management will probably be attended with litigation or serious complications and difficulties of which it would be unreasonable to throw the burden upon the officers available for the management;
- (d) that a more satisfactory method of dealing with the case would be for the Court to transfer execution of the decree under Section 320 of the Civil Procedure Code, if that section is applicable; or
- (e) that the case is one to which the provisions of Section 326 of the Code ought to be applied, and to which they propose to apply those provisions.

"4. They should accept the office, as a rule, when the judgment-debtor is a person of rank and position, or the descendant of such a person, and there is reasonable hope of the management of his attached estate conducing to his advantage, and the judgment-creditor consents to a reasonable allowance being made out of the proceeds for the maintenance of such judgment-debtor and his family during the management, if he has no other sufficient means of support."

(G. R. No. 3913, dated 22nd May 1883.)

37. The appointment of a Collector as Administrator under Regulation VIII of 1827 is not made in his official capacity. On this point, the following decision passed, by Sir M. Westropp, C. J., and F. D. Melvill, J., (reported at page 320 of the Bombay High Court Printed Judgments for 1880) is relied upon:—

"Regulation VIII of 1827 does not contemplate the appointment of a Collector as the Administrator of the estate of a deceased person in his official capacity as Collector, whereas Act XX of 1864 does provide for the appointment of a Collector, in his capacity as such, to be the Administrator of the estate of a minor. The Collector can be appointed Administrator under Regulation VIII of 1827 simply as any other individual may be appointed under that Regulation. The circumstance that, in the certificate of appointment he has been described merely as the Collector of Kaira,

PART II.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

does not alter the case. The Court must be regarded as having appointed him Administrator in his individual capacity. It had not any power under the Regulation to appoint him in a quasi corporate capacity. If the Collector, originally appointed, was succeeded by a nother gentleman as Collector, the latter would not be warranted in acting as Administrator of the deceased without a revocation of the grant to the present Collector, and a fresh appointment of his successor as Administrator. * * * * * We hold that the circumstance, that the Administrator appointed in the present case under that Resolution is the Collector, does not deprive the Subordinate Judge of jurisdiction.'

There is no provision in Regulation VIII of 1827 requiring the Collector to take charge of, and administer the property of a deceased person as is contained in Section 11 of the Act XX of 1864 relating to estates of minors. It is no part of a Collector's duty under Regulation VIII of 1827 to administer such estates, and Government are in consequence in no way bound under that Regulation to allow the Collector to do so. If Government do allow him to do so, Government are no doubt entitled to charge the estate for all services performed by him or his official subordinates in that connection. It is undoubtedly open to Government to direct Collectors to decline in any case or class of cases to act as Administrators. But Government deem it unadvisable to leave it merely to the discretion of an individual officer, either to accept or to decline the appointment. If, however, there are special circumstances which in any case render the management of an estate by the Collector inexpedient, it is open to him to represent his difficulties to the Court in view to his appointment being revoked.

(G. R. No. 2527, dated 11th April 1890.)

38. Looking to the wording of Section 9 of Regulation VIII of 1827 * it seems exceedingly improbable that a Collector appointed thereunder as Administrator has any power to alienate the corpus of the estate under his administration. The section does not appear to contemplate that the person appointed under its provision should exercise the full powers of an owner in dealing with the estate. He is not appointed to administer the estate, but merely as an Administrator for the management thereof. He is spoken of as 'an Administrator in charge' only, and he may, on the right of succession being determined, be directed 'to deliver over the property with a full account of all receipts and disbursements.

The Collector is not appointed in his official capacity, and his successor in office would not, as such, be warranted in acting without a revocation of the original appointment and a fresh appointment in his favour.

39. An Assistant Collector is not to be put in charge of a treasury until he has passed at least one Departmental Examination, and the Collector has explained to him personally the details of the supervision required in superintending the daily transactions. (G. R. No. 3625, dated 26th July 1871.)

40. A District Deputy Collector is not qualified for the duty of Treasury officer until he has passed the Departmental Examination according to the second standard. (G. R. No. 3870, dated 8th July 1873.)

41. The object of Government in requiring a Junior Assistant Collector to discharge the duties of Treasury officer is not to enable him to pass examination, but to afford him experience of the control exercised by the Treasury officer over the accounts, receipts and payments of a whole district, and impress upon his mind the practical working of the account system and financial rules of which he has acquired a knowledge from books. The suggestion that an Assistant Collector could learn all that is necessary without being placed in actual charge of a treasury, does not commend itself to the Governor in Council, who considers on the contrary that, by attaching responsibility to the discharge of his duties of an office, the payment of proper attention thereto is most effectually secured. A treasury ordinarily* consists of two departments, that of the accounts and that of the cash. It is intended by Government that a Junior Assistant Collector should in such cases be placed in actual charge of both departments and discharge all the duties of Treasury officer. In the discharge of those duties he will be aided by the Deputy Collector in permanent charge. (G. R. No. 1861, dated 8th March 1889.)

*(i.e. except where the Bank of Bombay manages cash transactions.)

42. As it is not possible in Poona to put an Assistant Collector in charge of the Cash Department, in future Assistant Collectors in that district should attend the treasury in some other district with a view to their qualifying for the necessary certificate under the rules for the examination of junior Civilians. (G. R. No. 2749, dated 11th April 1839.)

43. The intention of the Resolution of the Government of India, No. 355,* dated 18th January 1882, was that full responsibility should primarily attach to the Assistant Collector for all the duties

* Extracts from the Resolution of the Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce, No. 355, dated 18th January 1882; vide G. R., F. D., No. 469, dated 9th February 1882:—

he discharges quâ Treasury officer during his period of charge 'in training.'

"His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct—

1st.—That no Covenanted Civil Servant (including Military and Uncovenanted Officers in the Commissions of Non-Regulation Provinces) shall be placed in charge of a district treasury, except for the purpose of training as provided in paragraph 7 of this Resolution, or as a strictly temporary measure, pending the arrival of a Deputy Collector (or Extra Assistant Commissioner) appointed to the post.

2nd.—That all special emoluments accompanying in any locality the charge of a treasury shall cease from April 1st, 1882. If the amount of these should, in any province, be considerable, it may be specially reported by the Local Government when replying on the subject of revision of salaries to the letters from the Department of Finance and Commerce, dated 28th December 1881.

3rd.—That the charge of district treasuries shall be entrusted to Deputy Collectors, but may be combined with such definite charge of magisterial, revenue, municipal, or other work as may not be incompatible with the efficient performance of the primary duty of treasury administration.

4th.—That the Deputy Collectors entrusted with the charge of treasuries shall be, as far as possible, officers selected from among the whole body of Deputy Collectors for acquaintance with, or aptitude for, accounts which they may have evinced, and that, though rising in the general graded list of Deputy Collectors, they shall ordinarily be employed on treasury duty at one station or another, and thus gradually become the trained and experienced agency which is desired. Sub-divisional treasuries, which are peculiar to the Lower Provinces, may, under the same general principles, be placed in charge of Deputy Collectors or of officers of the Sub-Deputy class, as to the local authorities may in each case seem expedient. It will be distinctly understood that officers in charge of treasuries should not be in any inferior position, as regards prospects of promotion, to others in the graded list who may be differently employed, and that efficiency in treasury management shall not be overlooked.

"6. The appointment of young Civilians, and of supernumerary and probationary Deputy Collectors, who have not passed all or any of their examinations, appears to have been a fruitful source of laxity and irregularities on the part of subordinate officials. His Excellency the Governor General in Council directs that this practice may be discontinued; and that (except as provided in paragraph 7) no Deputy Collector remain hereafter in charge of a district treasury unless he has passed the departmental examination according to the higher standard, and has also been not less than three years in the service of Government. (G. I., F. & C., No. 550, dated 2nd February 1883; vide G. R. No. 625, dated 14th idem.)

"7. In order to ensure a better acquaintance with the system of treasury accounts, and of the revenue accounts which in some provinces are an important contributory to the accuracy of the latter, His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct—

1st.—That examination in treasury and local fund accounts and in departmental revenue accounts shall form a part of the test obligatory on all Assistant and Deputy Collectors or other officers at the departmental examinations according to both the lower and higher standards. The scope of the questions at the former will necessarily be somewhat elementary, but at the latter the candidate should be required to exhibit a satisfactory general acquaintance with the whole system of accounts as prevailing in the province in which he is employed. A paper of questions on treasury and local fund accounts, set by the local Accountant-General or Comptroller, should form a part of the examination under each standard.

REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART II.

There is, however, no express decision either in the Government of India orders quoted or elsewhere as to who should have custody of the keys, and the orders of the Government of India seem certainly by implication to exact responsibility for 'general supervision' from the 'Deputy Collector ordinarily in charge or some other competent officer on the spot.' It is therefore inferred that the Deputy Collector's responsibilities do not cease in respect of either the Treasurer's or the Accountant's Department when a Junior Civil Servant is posted to treasury work for the purpose of training. So far as the custody of treasure, stamps, &c., is concerned, the safest and simplest course would be for the keys to be always retained in the custody of the officer in permanent charge of the treasury, the Junior Civilian being required to be present when the treasury is opened or locked up.

It is no doubt desirable that the work of the Junior Civilian should be reviewed by the Deputy Collector in charge of the treasury so as to prevent fraud, mistakes and irregularities. The Deputy Collector should initial all documents of value or importance in token of his examination, after they have been passed by the Junior Civilian. Payment orders should be signed by the Junior Civilian first, but before the vouchers are actually paid, they should be initialled by the Deputy Collector. In every case the Junior Civilian should originally dispose of all treasury business as if he were in independent charge, and only after it has passed through him should it go to the Deputy Collector for review, except in petty cases in which the Assistant Collector will be solely responsible. This order of procedure should not be allowed to be reversed; otherwise there would be a tendency on the part of the Junior Civilian to sign documents on the security of the initials of the Deputy Collector.

Vernacular correspondence with officers in charge of the sub-treasuries should be conducted by the Huzúr Deputy Collector.

(G. R. No. 7645, dated 7th November 1891.)

2nd.—That every 'Covenanted' Officer, or Deputy Collector, shall, until he has passed the higher departmental examination, be placed for purposes of training, in charge of a district treasury under the general supervision of the Deputy Collector ordinarily in charge, or some other competent officer on the spot for a period not less than six weeks or more than two months in each year. A certificate from the Collector of the District, that the officer in training has, under these provisions, duly attended to, and satisfactorily discharged the duties of Treasury officer shall be indispensable to the examinee being declared to have passed any departmental examination.

"8. (With reference to the inspection of treasuries, His Excellency the Governor General in Council trusts that, under the provisions of the last preceding paragraph, executive officers of all grades will gradually become more competent to perform the duty of inspecting treasuries. This duty is of the utmost importance, and is clearly defined in the Resolution No. 1796, dated 24th July 1880, which is to be considered as still in full force.) Collectors of Districts are not to consider that by the improvement of the arrangements for the immediate charge of treasuries their own responsibility is in any sense diminished."

PART II.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

44. It is desirable that all Junior Civilians should obtain a general knowledge of the details of the operations of the Survey Department preparatory to the introduction of a survey settlement, and with a view to their attaining such knowledge, Collectors should each year in the month of June, so long as survey operations are in progress in their districts, communicate to the Superintendent of Survey the names of any officers of less than 7 years' standing who require to be instructed; and the dates from which to which their absence from their ordinary duties can be most conveniently spared, and the Superintendent will then name the establishments to which they should be attached.

Survey establishments work in the field from about the beginning of November until the end of May, and during this field season the junior officers referred to should be present with a measuring establishment for about a fortnight, and with a classing establishment for about a month; within these periods a fair knowledge of the practical nature of survey operations should with ordinary attention be easily acquired.

To connect the field operation with the settlement papers it is desirable that the junior officers in question should attend at the office of a measuring and of a classing Assistant for a few days during recess season and go through the complete papers of one or two villages; two or three days would be sufficient for this, and they would then be entitled to a certificate of general knowledge of the practical part of survey operations which will be granted by the Superintendent of Survey.

(G. Rs. Nos. 4957, dated 27th August 1881, and 5984, dated 11th October 1881.)

45. If a Junior Civilian under 7 years' standing is employed on revenue duties in any district in which a revenue survey establishment is working in connection with original or revision settlement, or in any district within a reasonable distance from or within easy access of such revenue survey establishment, he shall be required to avail himself of the opportunity of acquiring a practical knowledge of the operations of the survey by joining the officer in charge of the establishment and working with him for such short period as may be prescribed in each case.

(2). On or before the 31st October in each year the Superintendent of Survey shall address the Collector of each district to which his survey charge extends, informing him of the locality in which each establishment will be working, the period during which it is likely to be employed in that locality, and the name of the officer in charge.

(3). If more than one measuring or classing establishment be employed in the same district at the same time, the Superintendent shall intimate to the Collector the name of the Assistant in charge who, in his opinion, is the most experienced and best fitted to impart instruction.

REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART II.

(4). The period for which a Junior Civilian shall be attached to a measuring establishment shall ordinarily be one fortnight. In the case of a classing establishment it shall not be less than one month.

(5). The Collector of the district in which the Junior Civilian is employed shall make arrangements to relieve him of his ordinary duties for the prescribed period. It shall be his duty to instruct the Junior Civilian as to the particular establishment he should join, and to fix the date on which he should be relieved of and should return to his ordinary duties.

(6). After the prescribed course with either a measuring or classing establishment has been completed, a certificate in the Form A appended shall be prepared by the Assistant Superintendent in charge and forwarded to the Superintendent of Survey for countersignature. It shall be the duty of the Superintendent to satisfy himself as far as possible that the certificate is correct and that the time passed with the survey has been profitably employed.

(7). The Junior Civilian shall ordinarily be required to obtain a certificate of having acquired a knowledge of measuring with a measuring establishment before he shall be attached to a classing establishment. If, however, there be no measuring establishment but only a classing establishment employed in the district, the opportunity of learning classification of soils should on no account be lost.

(8). An account of the time spent with a survey establishment and how it was occupied shall be added to the Assistant Collector's annual administration report. The annual administration report of the Collector shall also contain full information as to how the orders of Government on this subject have been carried out.

(9). An annual return of all certificates granted during the year shall be forwarded by the Superintendent to the Survey Commissioner for communication to Government. The return shall be in the Form B appended, and shall be forwarded so as to reach the Survey Commissioner not later than the 15th July of each year.

(Note.—It is not the intention of Government that the Junior Civilian should be required to become either a skilled measurer or classifier of soils, but it is their wish that he should obtain such a general knowledge of the methods of procedure in each case as will enable him fully to appreciate the settlements which result and to subject them to intelligent criticism. To attain this end it is not advisable that Junior Civilians should be required to join Assistant Superintendents of Survey whose establishments are employed upon extraordinary duties such as bend-demarcation in Gujarāt or breaking up of 'warās' numbers in Ratnāgiri: they should only join establishments which are engaged in field work directly preceding original or revision settlements.)

46. Junior Civilians who appear for their higher departmental examinations should not be required to produce the certificates mentioned in the rules sanctioned by Government Resolution No. 4958, dated 27th August 1881, showing that they were attached to * Junior Civilians under instruction in survey operations are regarded as temporarily transferred to the Survey Department, and as such are subject to the provisions of Article 1161 of the Civil Service Regulations, under which the Survey Commissioner exercises the powers of a Local Government to exempt officers under him from the operation of Article 1159, for their halts in excess of 10 days, after satisfying himself that the conditions of that article have been fulfilled. (A. G.'s memo. No. G. A.-1412, dated 23rd August 1895; vide G. R., F.D., No. 3074, dated 7th September 1895.)

the establishment of an Assistant Superintendent of Survey, &c. (G. R. No. 3265, dated 26th April 1883.)

47. A Junior Civilian should not be required to obtain a practical knowledge of classification and be attached to a revenue survey classing establishment for this purpose under the rules sanctioned by Government Resolution No. 4958, dated 27th August 1881, until he has been in revenue charge of a taluka or talukas for twelve months and has acquired a knowledge of land revenue administration and work. (G. R. No. 8238, dated 8th November 1883.)

48. Measuring and classing are two distinct operations, and an officer cannot learn both simultaneously. It is not material that a Junior Civilian should have had revenue experience and been in charge of talukas before he learns measuring, which is a simple technical operation. (G. R. No. 10405, dated 24th December 1885.)

49. In districts where there may be only one Assistant Collector, the Commissioners should consider the merits of each case, and where they consider the disadvantage resulting from the absence of the Assistant to outweigh the advantage of the special knowledge gained, they are authorized to excuse the Assistant from joining a survey party. (G. R. No. 7125, dated 16th October 1891.)

50. The Native Assistant to the Commissioner is the confidential adviser to the Commissioner in matters relating to the character and qualifications of the numbers of native officials subordinate to the Collectors. It is his duty to advise on complicated questions relating to the tenures and customs of the country; and he has to see, by personal examination, when on tour with the Commissioner, that the vernacular revenue accounts are properly kept with the minutest details.

The Uncovenanted Assistant to the Commissioner is the head of the English as distinguished from the vernacular branch of the office. He has to draft ordinary letters, to summarize the correspondence received from the several Collectors, to compile statistical information, and to examine and scrutinize travelling bills and other English accounts and statements submitted to the Commissioner.

(G. R. No. 807, dated 17th February 1871.)

(iii) Tours and Inspections:

1. A bullock cart is not the proper kind of conveyance in which a British officer, holding the important position of Assistant Collector, should travel about his districts. (G. L. to the Commissioner, S. D., No. 5736, dated 28th October 1880.)

2. In Government Resolution No. 4259, dated 14th August 1880, district officers were reminded that they were expected to ride in the discharge of their duties. But it has come to the knowledge of Government that some young officers, though they must have furnished certificates to the Secretary of State of their having undergone a course of instruction in equitation, are either unable to ride or avoid doing so.

The fact that such a certificate is required proves that it is considered by the Supreme Government necessary that officers should frequently move on horseback, and it is needless to show that no officer can have a sufficient acquaintance with his district, and be active in moving about it, who does not habitually ride.

Officers in charge of Collectorates should report without delay if any of their Assistants, and especially of those lately joined, cannot ride with facility in order that he may be ordered to a station where he can be properly instructed and practised in riding.

(G. Rs. Nos. 2932, dated 4th May 1882, and 775, dated 29th January 1891.)

3. It is not necessary that native gentlemen holding the office of District Deputy Collector should be required to go through a course of equitation at a riding school. Riding is, however, highly conducive to the usefulness of native as well as of European district officers. Mámlatdárs should, therefore, be reminded that Government will, as a rule, consider an ability to ride as contributing to their fitness for promotion. (G. R. No. 3747, dated 10th June 1882.)

4. Civil Officers going through a course of equitation should pay the charges on that account themselves. As the persons to whom the payments have to be made in cases of this nature are people to whom prompt payment is probably a matter of importance, bills of this description should on presentation be paid at once by the Collector, who should debit the different sums to the personal heads of the officers concerned. If any doubt exists as to whether the charge should be defrayed by the officers instructed or by Government, a reference on the subject can then be made to Government, and the final adjustment can be effected in accordance with the orders passed on such reference. (G. R. No. 295, dated 13th January 1883.)

5. The Commissioners of Divisions being unanimously of opinion that the practice hitherto prevailing of Assistant and Deputy Collectors in charge of talukas making a second inspection of the Mámlatdárs' kacheris in their respective charges is unnecessary, and that the time so spent might be more usefully employed in visiting other parts of their charges, it is ruled that the second inspection at the close of the season is not compulsory. It is of course desirable that this second inspection should be made if the Assistant or Deputy happens to be at the Mámlatdár's station.

Assistants and Deputies should spend at each Mámlatdár's station not less than seven days, and at each Mahálkari's station not less than five days during each year. But where a Mahálkari has charge of a sub-treasury, the rule as to Mámlatdárs' stations should apply to Mahál stations also.

(G. R. No. 5815, dated 13th August 1886.)

6. The above orders are also applicable to Sind with certain modifications. The orders maintain the examination in the early part of the season as that which must necessarily be made, but in Sind it is hardly advisable to do this because it is the first examination which chiefly interferes with special Sind work, e. g., remission enquiries, bigoti measurements and test of village registers for jamábandi purposes. On the other hand, at the time that the examinations at present known as the second examination of táluka accounts are carried out it is too hot for the Assistants to be engaged in Sind in field work, but it is very possible for them to visit the head-quarters of the tálukas in their charge and examine the accounts. It is also the most useful time for such a circuit, as by that time any orders passed by the Collector or Commissioner when visiting tálukas on tour should have been forwarded and can receive the personal attention of the Assistant Collector in charge of the sub-division; and lastly the inspection, if made late in the season, interferes less with the field work of the Mukhtyárkars.

Having regard to these considerations, in Sind it is better to maintain the second examination of táluka accounts as the examination obligatory on Assistant Collectors. It will, of course, be possible also to carry out the first examination in some tálukas as well as the second, and different tálukas should be selected each year so as to distribute this examination as far as possible. In the annual administration report explanation should be given as to why the first examination of the accounts has or has not been made in each táluka.

7. When the orders which required two examinations of each Mámlatdár's office to be made were relaxed, Government did not intend that the second examination should not, if possible, be made; and when an Assistant Collector finds it convenient to visit a Mámlatdár's station a second time he should, if possible, make a second examination. (G. R. No. 1425, dated 26th February 1892.)

8. The Commissioners should obtain from the Collectors returns of circuit and examination of village accounts and should see that the Collectors and their Assistants perform their circuits properly and supervise efficiently the village accountants. It will be the duty of the Commissioners on their tours to test the efficiency of the work reported in these returns and to inform Government of any neglect or serious disregard of orders that may be observable. (G. R. No. 2876, dated 17th August 1860.)

PART. II.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

9. The Governor in Council does not doubt that officers of such high standing as Collectors are fully alive to the importance of their having opportunities, as far as circumstances will permit, of inspecting annually every part of their districts, and examining the accounts and records of all the Mámlatdárs serving under them. It may not be always practicable or advantageous for them to visit every taluka in the course of a year, but Government must trust to their judgment and sense of duty for the due regulation of their movements. (G. R. No. 5138, dated 25th September 1874.)

10. The question regarding the tours of Collectors is one on which it is undesirable that there should be a very hard and fast rule, and it may be left to the Commissioners to deal with according to the circumstances of each district. If an officer is fit to be a Collector, he is fit to judge for himself, subject to such control as the Commissioners can best exercise, how the travelling season can best be utilized in the public interests. So long as every Mámlatdár's and Mahalkari's office is thoroughly examined at least once in every two years, and the jamabandi of two talukas is done every year by the Collector, so that all may come under his supervision in turn, he may be left to arrange his tour as he thinks best. In the very unlikely event of any misuse of his discretion, the Commissioners have authority and opportunity to check it. (G. R. No. 6719, dated 18th September 1893.)

11. Government expect Collectors to be engaged for at least four months in the year in visiting their districts and the several Mámlatdárs' kacheris and satisfying themselves that the orders for the guidance of revenue, magisterial and police officers are duly enforced.

Little or no good will be obtained by officers making rapid raids over their districts. What is required is that the personal influence and supervision of the European officer should be felt. To this end each Assistant should be required to divide his time equally amongst the several talukas in his charge; and ought, without inconvenience, to spend two months in each. It is not necessary or advisable that he should be constantly on the move. Some six encampments in each taluka, combined with occasional visits to surrounding villages for the purpose of examining accounts, receipt books, and boundary-marks, and for generally exercising that amount of percentage examination which constitutes the special business of the higher Revenue Officers under the Rayatwar system that prevails in this Presidency, will suffice. It rests mainly with the Commissioners to see that the orders of Government in this respect are duly enforced, and the examination of the monthly travelling bills affords them the best opportunity for doing so.

REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART II.

12. The Commissioners should take care that sufficient time is spent by the Collectors at the Mámlatdárs' kacheris which they may visit to enable their establishments thoroughly to examine the accounts and compare Huzúr Form No. III with the táluka books, and in such order that no táluka station may be left unvisited for two seasons consecutively. This is essentially necessary in Collectorates where there is no Daftardár. (G. R. No. 4923, dated 3rd October 1871.)

13. Assistant Collectors are enjoined to be in their districts at least seven months in the year, and during that time they should visit every táluka in their charge. A discretionary power is given to the Commissioners as regards the seventh month, but any case in which this discretionary power is made use of should be reported to Government. (G. Rs. Nos. 5515, dated 14th December 1869, and 5923, dated 1st December 1870.)

14. When an Assistant Collector is placed in charge of the Sadar Station during the travelling season, the time during which he is so engaged is not to be included in the five months during which it is allowable for him to remain at head-quarters; but no additional time is to be allowed if he is re-employed during the four months from the 16th June to the 16th October. (G. R. No. 2837, dated 14th June 1871.)

15. Government do not consider it necessary to lay down any rule as to the particular five months during which an Assistant Collector can reside at the Sadar Station without forfeiture of his travelling allowance, beyond saying that four of them are to be the monsoon months. In all, an Assistant Collector will be allowed five months out of the twelve, and if during the four months from the 16th of June to the 16th October he is called upon to do duty at the Sadar Station, no extra time will be allowed him in consequence of his being thus employed. (G. R., No. 3719, dated 2nd August 1871.)

16. It should be the object of Collectors and Commissioners, especially of the former, to move about with as small an office establishment as possible, and to arrange for mere clerical work being done at head-quarters. (G. R. No. 2011, dated 28th April 1871, and G. R., F. D., No. 1648, dated 29th May 1874.)

17. There is certainly nothing in the orders of Government that can warrant the conclusion that it is their wish that Assistant Collectors should make frequent encampments. On the contrary it is the express desire of Government that they should remain stationary for lengthened periods at central and accessible places, and do their work of inspecting the surrounding villages from these centres. As far as possible, most parts of each táluka should be visited, but this can generally be done without frequently changing camp. (G. R. No. 4966, dated 16th September 1874.)

18. It is not the wish of Government that Assistant Collectors should be constantly on the move. In every way it will be better for them to make a few central camps and to make village inspections from thence. They should note in the final column of the form in which their camping places are entered, the fact of their having visited thence so many villages as they may have been at for official inspections. (G. Rs. Nos. 5645, dated 4th October 1876, and 6072, dated 8th October 1877.)

19. The practice of district officers visiting as many villages as possible from a central camp is preferable and should be carried out as far as possible. District officers should visit frequently the poorer and more remote villages in their charge, make themselves acquainted with the ways of their inhabitants, gain their confidence and learn their real grievances. (G. Rs. Nos. 10079, dated 16th December 1885, and 7103, dated 6th October 1886.)

20. The diaries of Assistant Collectors should be kept in the following form :—

Assistant Collector.

(G. Rs. Nos. 724, dated 31st January 1887, and 2989, dated 13th May 1887.)

21. It is disadvantageous to the public service that an Assistant Collector in charge of tálukas should be absent from his post for half a month of the open season in order to take part in University Examinations. (G. R. No. 6600, dated 5th November 1881.)

22. The Deputy Commissioner, Thar and Párkár, should spend at least seven months of the year in his district. (G. R., F. D., No. 1685, dated 4th June 1888.)

23. The circumstances of the Thar and Párkár District are peculiar. The Deputy Commissioner is his own Superintendent of Police. He and his Personal Assistant do the whole work of the district, and for five months of each year live in Hyderabad, about 60 miles distant from the nearest point of it, 90 miles from Umarkot and about 150 miles from Nagar Párkár, the head-quarters of the most distant desert táluka. The inconveniences to the people from the protracted absence from the district of all officers of higher grade than that of Mámlatdár, must be very great; the arrangement is a bad one administratively, and should obviously be improved as circumstances will allow. (G. R. No. 4334, dated 26th June 1891.)

24. In all cases in which any examination of the táluka accounts cannot be held, the Collector should depute his Daftardár to supply the deficiency. (G. R. No. 5706, dated 21st November 1872.)

25. The orders of Government passed so long ago as 1844 and 1850 are that "Assistant Collectors are expected frequently to examine the rayats' receipt-books in different villages and to compare them with the entries in the village books, and it is better to give but a short notice of the intention to do this;" and that "these enquiries should, as often as possible, be carried out on the spot, as if the rayats are required to attend at the Assistant Collector's camp some miles from their houses, not only will a great many of them stop away, and great inconvenience be caused to the rest, but it will be difficult also to get the same amount of information in case of disputes." In the remarks on the form of receipt-book in Hope's Manual of Revenue Accounts it is stated that the examination of receipt-books "should be made by Assistants and Deputies during their tours without previous warning and sometimes at villages distant from their camps."

The practice of calling rayats to a camp for the examination of their receipt-books is contrary both to the letter and the spirit of these orders. The primary object of the examination, which is to check fraud by ascertaining that receipts are punctually given by village accountants for all money received by them from rayats, will be frustrated if the rayats are called to the camps of district officers, and particularly if they are allowed to come at their own time. Not only would the receipt-books of such rayats as are willing to travel to the camp be got into order, but care would be taken that no rayat who had been defrauded was called. And the practice would probably result in villagers being occasionally required to attend for days at the officer's camp, the possibility of which should be guarded against.

PART II.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

Nor can it be perceived that there is any difficulty in carrying out the instructions of Government in this matter without interfering with office work. Assistant and Deputy Collectors can spend an hour in one or two villages in the course of a morning's ride, and they are ordinarily sufficiently acquainted with the language of the district to be able to check the entries in the receipt-books by comparison with the ledger and the vivâ voce statements of the rayats without the assistance of a kârkûn.

For these reasons Government must insist on the instructions regarding the examination of rayats' receipt-books being strictly carried out, and it will be the duty of the Commissioners to see that these orders are carefully attended to by the officers concerned.

The detailed examination of village accounts can, as a rule, be conveniently done by Assistant and Deputy Collectors only in their camps, and the Governor in Council does not object to this practice. The examination of village records, on the other hand, which work has to be shown separately in the prescribed statement, and which consists principally of seeing whether the papers are kept in accordance with orders, can usually be best done in the villages, and it is not expedient that village officers should be required to carry all their records to distant places. The records are not, however, usually very bulky, and there would be no hardship in requiring those of villages within a few (say 5) miles of the camp to be brought to the camp. Government do not desire to interfere unnecessarily with the discretion of district officers in this matter. But when it is found that an officer visited for all purposes only 43 villages in the course of the year while he examined records of 109, there is reason to infer that he travelled too little and made the village accountants travel too much.

(G. R. No. 1806, dated 17th March 1882.)

26. It is not intended by the foregoing order that no notice should be given, but that it is better that but short notice should be given of the intention to examine receipt-books. (G. R. No. 7558, dated 6th October 1883.)

27. Objections to the rules for the examination of rayats' receipt-books have been very frequently answered, but as regards the general complaint that under the present system cultivators are not found in the village it seems necessary to point out again the precise nature of the orders. The objections proceed on the assumption that it has been directed that the examination should be made 'without previous warning' interpreted in the most literal sense. That phrase is used in Hope's Manual of Revenue Accounts, but the orders in force since 1844 are that but short notice should be given of the intention to make the examination, and no exception has ever been taken to the issue of sufficient notice to the village officers to permit of the assembling of such cultivators as are willing to attend. What is strictly prohibited in Government Resolution No. 1806, dated 17th March 1882, is the practice of calling rayats to a camp for the examination of their receipt-books. (G. R. No. 9166, dated 19th November 1884.)

REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART II.

28. It is distinctly not the intention of Government to require a large amount of perfunctory and hurried examination of rayats' receipt-books, in place of other useful and important work. The time has not yet come of dispensing with these examinations, which however fruitless they may be in disclosing irregularities, act as a valuable preventive against overcollection by village officers. They bring district officers into personal contact with village communities, and give them opportunities for testing the accuracy of vital statistics, and for making themselves acquainted with the condition, wants and grievances of the cultivators. (G. R. No. 775, dated 29th January 1891.)

29. As regards the examination of boundary marks and receipt-books, His Excellency in Council is willing that precedence be given to more important or more urgent duties; but considers it is essential for effective supervision that the Collector as well as Assistants should take some test of this part of the work of village accountants. The Collector cannot ride through the district without seeing whether boundary-marks are in good repair or not, but the marks which he sees in this manner are principally those in the vicinity of the roads which village officers are usually astute enough to keep in good order though others may be neglected. Although the rayats themselves do not evince much interest in the matter, regular scrutiny of their receipt-books is calculated to prevent as well as to detect fraud. There is nothing which justifies the assumption that the orders of Government are to be carried out with so little intelligent discretion as to summon cultivators from the village in which an officer's camp is and in which they reside to a distant village in which their land lies. (G. R. No. 8276, dated 27th November 1882.)

30. It is not necessary for an Assistant Collector to postpone his test of the inspection of boundary-marks till the second examination by the village officers is completed. (G. R. No. 6837, dated 2nd October 1882.)

REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART III.

PART III.—MÁMLATDÁRS, MAHA'LKARIS AND MUKHTYA'RKARS.***

1. Government will not allow Mámlatdárs to be treated ignominiously by any persons under its control. (G. L. to Revenue Commissioner, N. D., No. 289, dated 23rd January 1860.)

2. Kacheris being public offices are open to the public, and every one visiting a kacheri will be there received by the Mámlatdár, or other senior native official, in a manner befitting his rank. The Mámlatdár, being responsible for the maintenance of order in his office, will take proper steps to prevent improper persons entering, or misconducting themselves while there. (G. R. No. 4432, dated 11th December 1863.)

3. Kacheris should, as a rule, be built inside the towns. (G. R. No. 398, dated 19th January 1882.)

4. Mámlatdárs are authorized to appoint inferior village servants, i.e., others than Pátels, Kulkarnis and Talátis. They may grant leave of absence—

1st.—To Peons and Talátis one month in each year without a substitute, and three months with substitute.

2nd.—To Pátels and Kulkarnis three months' leave on due provision being made for the performance of their duties.

3rd.—To all other village servants twelve months' leave subject to the same provision.

4th.—To all Kárkúns, including the first, as al leave under the ordinary rules.

It is to be clearly understood that no leave of any description is to be granted to any officer if inconvenience to the public service will thereby result, or unless arrangements have been made for the employment of a substitute. The Mámlatdár may enter in the accounts the names of the heirs of deceased holders of khalsat lands, or of holders of inám lands to which the summary settlement has been made applicable. He will, however, report for orders such cases as from the number of claimants, the difficulty of establishing the heirship, or some other intricacy he may feel himself incompetent to decide.

The Mámlatdár will make, without special orders, in each case deductions, under the rules in force, from allowances and stipends, &c., unclaimed for years. The Collector may at his discretion withhold any of these powers from Mámlatdárs whom he may not consider fit to be entrusted with them. (G. R., F. D., No. 595, dated 20th May 1867.)

5. Mámlatdárs are bound to afford to Europeans all legitimate aid and assistance in their power, and to see that the Pátels exert themselves towards obtaining supplies for adequate payment. It is the duty of Mámlatdárs to call on gentlemen who may arrive in their tálukas on duty, and to show them every courtesy and respect. (G. R. No. 2129, dated 27th May 1869.)

6. Either the Mámlatdár or his Head Kárkún should certify to the correctness of the accounts in the pass-book referred to at page 172 of the High Court Circulars (Civil), 1889 Edition. (G. R. No. 6753, dated 16th December 1873.)

7. There is no more important part of an Assistant Collector's duties than that of vigilantly supervising the manner in which the Mámlatdárs perform their work, and of seeing that a proper distribution of the Mámlatdár's establishment is maintained. It is true that the establishments are barely sufficient for the duties required of them; but a great saving and economy of labour can be effected by insisting that a particular class of work is done at a particular season of the year. Thus during the months of November, December and January, Mámlatdárs, by a little forethought and arrangement, will be able to depute extra hands on out-door inspection work; while, during the rains, the general duty Kárkúns might profitably be employed on indexing and sorting records and other employment of a sedentary nature. Assistant Collectors ought constantly to keep themselves acquainted with the manner in which the Mámlatdárs are utilizing their subordinates. (G. R. No. 5077, dated 22nd September 1874.)

8. The attention of District officers is called generally to the necessity for checking the apparently increasing tendency on the part of Assistant and Deputy Collectors to make over to Mámlatdárs work which can suitably be done by themselves. Mámlatdárs are so frequently overburdened with work connected with various departments that it is desirable that they should be relieved when possible of portions of their revenue work rather than be directed by their immediate superiors to conduct investigations, take down written statements, &c., when such work can be conveniently done by the Assistant or Deputy Collectors personally. Amongst other cases some of those under Section 86 of the Land Revenue Code, which are frequently very numerous, might with advantage be dealt with by Sub-Divisional Officers; but this is a matter the details of which may be left to the discretion of Collectors. (G. R. No. 6561, dated 16th September 1890.)

9. For the purposes of the Leave Code in so far as the granting of privilege leave is concerned, Collectors should be regarded as the Mámlatdárs' Heads of Departments. (G. R. No. 3513-A., dated 7th July 1880.)

10. An officer while in the service of Government in the position of Mukhtyárkar cannot be licensed to practise as a Pleader. (G. R. No. 8272, dated 24th November 1886.)

11. The salaries of Mámlatdárs are personal. This rule extends to the Mámlatdárs' charges in a Commissioner's Division.

The salaries of Maháلكaris also are personal, within the area of the Collectorate to which they belong.

(G. I., R., A. & C., Nos. 1110, dated 31st December 1874, and 354, dated 5th May 1875; vide G. Rs. Nos. 296, dated 18th January 1875, 2769, dated 14th May 1875, and 2017, dated 27th March 1882.)

12. Maháلكaris are entitled to acting allowance when acting for Mámlatdárs. (G. R., F. D., No. 4942, dated 15th November 1877.)

13. Under Article 109 of the Civil Service Regulations, the lien of all Mámlatdárs and Mukhtyáarkars who have been, or may hereafter be, appointed on probation, on their substantive appointments is suspended. (G. R. No. 2181, dated 26th May 1892).

14. Care should be taken to appoint Mámlatdárs invested with first class powers to remote tálukas, and, if necessary, to give them the more serious cases in one or more adjoining tálukas, the object being to relieve the parties from having to undertake long journeys to the Assistant Collectors' camps. (G. R. No. 7203, dated 7th December 1876.)

15. Commissioners of Divisions should require Collectors to keep them informed annually of the character and qualifications of Mámlatdárs serving in their respective districts, and should record the information so furnished in a confidential register in which the Commissioner shall also note their own opinion of the character and efficiency of the Mámlatdárs after personal communication with them, and observation of the general condition of their Mám-lats. All circumstances officially brought to notice which are calculated to affect a Mámlatdár's efficiency should be entered in this record, and promotions from grade to grade should, as a rule, be determined by seniority, provided there are no unfavourable remarks on record which should, in the Commissioner's opinion, debar a Mámlatdár's claim to promotion. Collectors should make their reports regarding Mámlatdár's character and efficiency from personal observation only. A copy of the report made regarding a Mámlatdár by a Collector should only be given to the Mámlatdár when the report is unfavourable, and calculated to affect his prospects of future promotion. (G. Rs. Nos. 826, dated 9th February 1881, and 4596, dated 2nd July 1890.)

16. Vacancies in the list of Mámlatdárs should be filled up by the promotion thereto of qualified men available in the Division in which the vacancies occur. But if a Commissioner has no graduate or other qualified candidate in his own Division to fill up a vacant Mámlat, he should obtain one from one of the other Divisions. He should, however, exercise discretion and not select in ordinary circumstances a graduate or other qualified candidate for appointment to a Mámlat in a district with the vernacular of which he is unacquainted. (G. Rs. Nos. 8314, dated 12th November 1883, 9096, dated 12th December 1883, and 1639, dated 28th February 1890.)

PART III.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

17. Mámlatdárs transferred from British to foreign service shall ordinarily be considered entitled to receive substantive grade promotion during their absence for a period of five years from the date of their transfer. On the expiration of that period they shall not receive any further promotion unless they are accorded special permission by Government to remain in foreign service without such disability. (G. R. No. 6154, dated 1st September 1899.)

REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART IV.

PART IV.—KA'RKU'NS AND PEONS.

1. The appointment of Huzúr treasurers is vested in the Commissioners. (G. R., F. D., No. 311, dated 10th March 1869.)

2. Huzúr treasurers should receive an increase of Rs. 50 per mensem after 10 years' approved service. Shroffs in the Presidency proper should attain their maximum pay by two quinquennial increments of Rs. 5 each. The maximum salary to which surveyors on the establishments of Collectors are to rise after ten years' service is Rs. 100 in the case of those who commence with Rs. 75, and Rs. 75 in the case of those who commence with Rs. 50. The selection of the surveyors should be confined to men actually on the establishment of a Superintendent of Survey. Any deviation from this rule that may, for special reasons, be thought desirable should be reported for the previous sanction of Government. The date from which the services of the surveyors are to be reckoned for increase of pay after ten years' service is to commence from the time they are employed as surveyors under the Collectors.

It is not necessary that specific cases in which the decennial increase of pay falls due should be submitted to Government for sanction.

(G. Rs. Nos. 426, dated 31st January 1868, 3233, dated 26th August 1868, 4177, dated 7th November 1868, 6027 dated 25th July 1892, and 8972, dated 6th December 1893; and G. Rs., F. D., Nos. 4026, dated 10th November 1883, and 4539, dated 18th December 1883.)

3. To draw up lists of Head Accountants in the form of separate divisional lists instead of one consolidated list, would lead to a partial or complete ignoring of the claims of senior men at a distance as compared with junior men on the spot. In making the appointments of Head Accountants either a Commissioner will simply give promotion in his own Division, which is not expedient, or he will have regard to the claims of Head Accountants outside it, which is the present system. If all the Commissioners are always informed of the merits of all the Head Accounts in the Presidency, it would only be necessary for a Commissioner in filling a place to consult the general list and select the man he thinks most eligible, and under such an arrangement no trouble of entering into correspondence with the other Commissioners need arise. For these reasons it is considered that the Head Accountants should be graded on the list as at present, the Commissioners exchanging information when necessary as to their merits, and regulating promotions with a general regard to seniority and efficiency. A Commissioner would, however, still exercise some discretion in filling up vacancies, and would not be bound to weigh nearly equal claims too scrupulously. (G. R. No. 12, dated 3rd January 1884.)

PART IV.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

4. The pay of Head Accountants should be local, and promotion among this class of officers should be strictly by merit. (G. Rs. Nos. 426, dated 31st January 1868, and 6998, dated 9th October 1891.)

5. The Head Accountants in Sind should be required to pass the same examination as other Head Accountants. (G. R. No. 3853, dated 2nd July 1881.)

6. Head Accountants transferred on promotion to a district with the language of which they are not acquainted should pass an examination in that language within one year of their transfer. Failing to do this, they should be liable to a deduction of 10 per cent. from their pay till they do pass, or are transferred to a district the language of which they know. (G. R. No. 6998, dated 9th October 1891.)

7. The pay of the office of Collector's Chitnis should be raised to Rs. 150 and the appointment should be graded with those of Mámlatdárs. Collectors are allowed with the sanction of the Commissioners to make selection among the whole body of Mámlatdárs in the Division concerned, and pick out the men best qualified for the work of Chitnis. The tenure of the appointment of Chitnis should be limited to five years.

No person now being a Chitnis, who has not passed the Higher Standard Departmental Examination, should be deemed eligible for transfer from the post of Chitnis to a Mámlat until he has passed such examination. (Some of the men serving as Chitnises to whom the Higher Standard Examination is not open may be quite fit for the post of Mámlatdárs. Each such case should therefore be dealt with separately on its merits.)

No person, not being already a Mámlatdár, shall hereafter be appointed to be a Chitnis, unless he has passed the Higher Standard Departmental Examination.

(G. R. No. 8881, dated 23rd December 1891; and 4213, dated 16th May 1892.)

8. The Collectors should not appoint as their Chitnises any but men who are already Mámlatdárs. (G. R. No. 4213, dated 16th May 1892.)

9. Privilege leave vacancies of Chitnises should be filled up by the Collector as in the case of similar vacancies among Mámlatdárs. (G. R. No. 517, dated 19th January 1893.)

10. To the general duty Kárkúns is allotted the supervision in all matters of revenue administration of a certain number of villages. They have to see that the accounts are properly kept; that the rayats have their receipt-books punctually written up; that the cultivation returns are carefully made out; that the boundary marks are kept in proper repair; and, in short, that the multifarious duties, inseparable from a system by which each individual rayat pays his rent direct to the State, are duly performed. The services of these men will also be available (in rotation) to conduct the Mámílatdár's revenue correspondence, and for any special enquiry on which the Mámílatdár may have to depute them. It will probably be found necessary that they should be absent some five or six months from the kacheri during the year. A strict adherence to the system of division of labour is the only means by which individual responsibility, and, consequently, individual efficiency, can be secured. The nature of the supervision of European and highly paid officers in revenue matters is necessarily confined to a percentage examination of the work of their subordinates. Under the system here described, an Assistant, or Deputy Collector, in examining the accounts of a kacheri, or the boundary marks of a village, will, at once, be able to call to account the individual responsible for any negligence. Collectors and their Assistants should pay particular attention to these instructions and see that they are duly attended to. Each officer in charge of a táluka should keep a list of the Kárkúns employed in it, and the particular duties and villages assigned to them. (G. Rs. Nos. 3338, dated 21st September 1866, and 3875, dated 8th September 1869.)

Note.—In all districts (except Kolába and Ratnágiri) to which the scheme for the appointment of Circle Inspectors has been extended, bhág kárkúns have been relieved by Government Resolution No. 6828, dated 5th October 1891, of all duties with respect to the examination of rayats' receipt-books and of village daftars.

11. When Supernumerary Assistant Collectors happen to be in charge of districts, they will obtain Kárkúns from the number sanctioned for each district, and if they are employed at the Huzu'r, they will obtain Kárkúns from the number sanctioned for the Huzu'r Establishments. (G. R. No. 937, dated 6th March 1869.)

12. Supernumerary Assistants should always be attached to a permanent establishment, and the officer who avails himself of their services should provide the requisite clerical agency. (G. R. No. 1078, dated 13th March 1869.)

13. Privilege leave may be granted to Kárkúns on the order of the Assistant or Deputy Collector in charge of the táluka. (G. R., F. D., No. 595, dated 20th May 1867.)

14. It is not desirable that persons holding the position of Head Kárkúns should seek election as representative members of Local Boards. Such action may lead to abuses and unfavourable comments. (G. R. No. 1458, dated 18th February 1885.)

15. In the case of subordinate ungraded appointments on Collectors' establishments, the rule should be that on the return from foreign service of the permanent holder of an appointment the temporary holder should revert to his own substantive appointment on which his lien may have been reserved. (G. R. No. 7460, dated 9th November 1888.)

16. The clerical establishments of the District Superintendents of Police should, with the exception of the Account Branch, be recruited from the Police force instead of from the Revenue establishment. (G. R. No. 1957, dated 22nd March 1892.)*

PART IV.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

17. Supernumerary Assistant Collectors not in charge of talukas are to be allowed one peon each, and a second peon may be allowed when such officer is placed in regular charge of one or more talukas. The Superintendent of Police should furnish orderly sepoys for attendance during the trial of magisterial cases. (G. I., A., R. & C., Nos. 126, dated 27th July 1871, and 5629, dated 9th November 1871; vide G. Rs. Nos. 3877, dated 12th August 1871, 4127, dated 25th August 1871, 4475, dated 12th September 1871, 5629 dated 9th November 1871, and No. 670, dated 6th February 1874.)

18. Commissioners are authorized to sanction the entertainment of extra peons for Supernumerary Assistants according to the rule without reference to Government. The Commissioners' countersignature on the bills for pay of these temporary peons is not necessary. If a copy of the sanction accorded by the Commissioner is appended to the first bill on account of the peons, it will suffice. (G. Rs., F. D., Nos. 918, dated 6th April 1872, and 2033, dated 17th July 1885.)

19. Two peons ought to suffice for the Huzúr Deputy Collector who does not travel. (G. I., F. D., No. 1878, dated 12th July 1871; vide G. R. No. 3877, dated 12th August 1871.)

20. The allowances sanctioned for farashes in Sind may be paid to such peons as may be actually employed to do the work of farashes in addition to their own duties whenever separate servants are not available for the work. (G. R. No. 6770, dated 10th October 1888.)

PARTV.—PHOTOZINCOGRAPHIC DEPARTMENT.

1. The Government Photozincographic Office, Poona, should be under the supervision of the Commissioner, C. D. (G. R. No. 1319, dated 16th February 1893.)

2. The appointment of Superintendent, Government Photozincographic Office, Poona, should be regarded as being open to a Military Officer. (G. R. No. 7190, dated 19th October 1891.)

3. The establishment of the Photozincographic Office, with the exception of that which has been from time to time expressly sanctioned as temporary, should be treated as permanent.

The Survey Commissioner may entertain temporary and non-pensionable establishment for the Photozincographic Office within the limit of Rs. 114. This limit is not to be exceeded in any month save where the Commissioner sanctions an increase against savings in the permanent establishment, in which case he should record a specific order showing how the savings on the permanent establishment are calculated.

(G. R. No. 3991, dated 1st June 1889.)

4. The Superintendent of the Government Photozincographic Office, Poona, is authorized to purchase in the local market English coal in small quantities as required from time to time for the use of his office. (G. I., F. & C., No. 2016, dated 18th April 1888; vide G. R. No. 2766, dated 2nd May 1888.)

5. In regard to stores required for the use of the Photozincographic Office it is not considered desirable to restrict the supply entirely to such firms as may be named in the indents, in cases where no speciality exists and where the articles can be better and more economically obtained from actual manufacturers. Due consideration, however, will always be paid to any recommendations which may be made as to any firms, who will, as a rule, be given an opportunity of tendering with others.

It will be convenient, if there be any doubt whether the description given in the indent is of itself sufficient, that samples of the articles required be sent. (S. of S., No. 7-Finl., dated 17th April 1890; vide G. R. No. 3558; dated 22nd May 1890.)

PART VI.—REPORTS.

(i) Land Revenue Administration Report.

1. The Annual Land Revenue Administration Reports are required by the Government of India on the 1st of May. The Commissioner in Sind and the Commissioners of Divisions should submit in future their respective reports by 15th February and 1st March. (G. R. No. 3656, dated 28th May 1891.)

2. Government must insist on being supplied in the jamābandi reports with full details about the causes of large balances of revenue remaining outstanding.

All the jamābandi statements relating to areas cropped or cultivated must be given by talukas, as well as by districts and divisions, as the Secretary of State desires to have those details.

In sending the jamābandi statements to the Commissioners, the Collectors should, apart from the information given in their Annual Administration Reports, explain briefly, from a fiscal point of view, all the principal fluctuations in the revenue and cultivation, and the Commissioners must embody all important explanations in their own reports.

(G. R. No. 6092, dated 27th October 1875.)

3. Both the area of land under well cultivation, the number of wells supplied directly from the canals and the number not so supplied, as well as the revenue derived therefrom, should be precisely shown in the Annual Reports on the Revenue Administration of Sind. (G. Rs. Nos. 6097, dated 28th October 1875, and 2398, dated 20th April 1876.)

4. The Annual Revenue Reports of the Divisional Commissioners should contain full information* on the subject of the processes found necessary for the realization of the revenue, with reference to the quantity of land which may be attached or sold for arrears. (S. of S. No. 37, dated 16th September 1880; vide G. R. No. 5638, dated 23rd October 1880.)

5. The Commissioners should review in detail the facts relating to coercive process which, while supplying important evidence of the general moderation of the assessment and the soundness of the revenue system indicate the cases in which particular remedy or general reform may be required. (G. R., R. D., No. 7303, dated 13th October 1899.)

6. The Commissioner in Sind and the Divisional Commissioners should insert in their annual jamābandi reports a paragraph describing in full and sufficient detail the action, if any, taken by the Collectors under Rule 85 of the Rules under the Land Revenue Code, which empowers Collectors to fix other dates for payment of instalments where those prescribed by the rules may be found to be unsuitable. (G. R. No. 5473, dated 14th August 1882.)

7. It would tend to elucidate many of the facts stated in the jamábandi reports if the character of the season in each district were briefly indicated, and the Commissioners should give this information in their reports. (G. R. No. 5391, dated 20th July 1883.)

8. Though the ordinary season reports are no longer submitted by the Commissioners, yet a subject so closely connected with the collection of the revenue as the general character of the crops should not be altogether omitted from a report purporting to deal comprehensively with revenue administration. (G. R. No. 5745, dated 24th August 1888.)

9. Failure to collect any appreciable amount of recoverable revenue in the year following that in which it falls due should always be specially explained in the jamábandi reports. (G. R. No. 5140, dated 22nd July 1890.)

10. The collections of land revenue shown in the revenue accounts should be compared in the annual jamábandi reports with those recorded by the Accountant General as is done in the case of income tax. Information should also be given, if possible, regarding the extent to which collections are made before and after the 1st April in each revenue year. (G. R. No. 5420, dated 2nd August 1890.)

11. The following instructions should be carefully attended to in the compilation of Jamábandi Return No. 8 in Collectors' offices, and of Appendix IV A (5) to the General Administration Report in the Commissioners' offices:—

Column 2—Classes of villages.—In some districts, as in Khándesh, details are not shown under different tenures comprised within classes 2 and 3. Under the Manual* these must be shown, and separate details under each kind of tenure should invariably be given.

Column 3—Total Area.—Care should be taken to preserve a tally between areas returned under Agricultural Return No. 1 and under Jamábandi Return No. 8. This tally can easily be secured if Mámlatdárs are directed to compare and check the area figures entered in T. F. No. 27 with those returned under T. F. No. 36.

Columns 4—7—Exempted or privileged areas.—The whole of the areas returned under classes 4 and 5 being shown in columns 4—7, no further detail regarding these classes of villages should be entered under columns 8—10 and 14—22 which treat of fully assessed area. The same procedure should be followed in respect to class 3 (other Government villages for which statistics are not available).

Columns 12, 21, 23 and 24.—In these columns both the population and number of towns should invariably be returned according to the current Imperial* Census and not according to T. F. No. 34 (Annual Census). In cases where population details vary from those returned by the Imperial Census owing to territorial changes; a foot-note explaining the variation should be added to the return.

(G. R. No. 5173, dated 23rd June 1892.†)

(ii.) Collectors' Administration Reports.

1. The Consolidated Administration Reports which were substituted by Government Resolution No. 5091 of October 12th, 1871, for the numerous reports and returns on various subjects previously required from Assistant and Deputy Collectors having been found very fully and satisfactorily to satisfy the purposes for which they were designed, His Excellency the Governor in Council is pleased to extend the system to the Collectors themselves.

(2). All Collectors are to submit to the Commissioner on 1st August in each year, at latest, a general report in the form given below. The Assistant or Deputy Collectors' reports each bearing such separate remarks upon it as the Collector may think necessary, are to be appended to it. A slavish adherence to the forms of statements, if any columns are obviously not required either on account of general instructions or of circumstances peculiar to the district, is not required.

(3). The rules relating to Assistant and Deputy Collectors' reports, which are laid down in paragraph 6, clauses a, d, e, f, g, and h, of the Government Resolution quoted above, are to be considered applicable to the reports of Collectors also. It would not serve any good purpose to direct that the notes left by officers delivering over charge should be sent to the Commissioners confidentially or otherwise. If the notes are not full and useful, the fact will be apparent from the report. There can be no objection to the Commissioners calling for the notes, if they see special reason for doing so. The officers who write the reports should state whether their predecessors left notes or not, and whether the notes are full or otherwise.

† The columns of Jamābandi Return No. 8 referred to here are those as given in the Form of the Return printed at page 322 of the Manual of Revenue Accounts, 3rd Edition. By Government Resolution No. 9773, dated 10th December 1895, the Form of this Return has been revised.

PART VI.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

(4). The scope of these reports will be best understood from a study of the form. They are not intended to be a mere condensation or compilation of the reports of the Assistants or Deputies, but rather to avoid, as far as may be, traversing the same ground as the latter, and to depict the Collectorate as a whole, from the Collector's point of view, including his personal action in it, and his matured opinion on its condition. No information indicated in the form should be on any account omitted; but it is hoped that Collectors will not consider themselves limited to the bare record of facts which it prescribes. Government will be glad to receive their general views and opinions on the principal topics referred to, such as the pressure and incidence of the land assessment, the condition of the people in respect to indebtedness, the working of the Local Fund system, &c., provided they are based on personal observation, and expressed without prolixity.

(5). The period embraced by the report will, whenever possible, be the twelve months which expired on the 30th of June previous; but to this there are several exceptions, in which the information must be for the financial calendar or other special year.

(6). It is the earnest desire of Government to relieve Collectors, as far as possible, of the labour of miscellaneous periodical reports on various topics, and it is believed that the present arrangement will conduce materially to this end.

(7). Commissioners should send on the Collectors' reports as they are received, with their own comments, and they will not be required to forward any administration report of their own. Of course this does not do away with their own annual jamābandi reports.

(8). It must be readily admitted that the information now called for is no more than a Government, and even Collectors themselves, ought to be in possession of, and that it is procurable without the preparation of new and vexatious reports and returns. Government trust with confidence to the zeal and efficiency of Collectors and their establishments to furnish it with punctuality and precision.

(G. Rs. Nos. 2346, dated 11th May 1874, 3024, dated 15th June 1874, 5317, dated 13th September 1881, 8276, dated 27th November 1882, and 2113, dated 13th March 1883.)

2. The object of the Collectors' reports is to give a brief account for the year of the Collector-Magistrate's administration in all important matters, reflecting his relations with the people under his charge, his impressions of their condition, progress or retrogression; showing the state of agriculture and other principal interests and of law and order, his control of his subordinate officers, and his observations on such administrative agencies as Local Boards and Municipalities. (G. R. No. 724, dated 31st January 1887.)

REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART VI.

3. A great deal of the information supplied in Collectors' Administration Reports is of a merely statistical and formal nature, instead of being a concise summary of the personal impressions and opinions of the Collector who writes the report, or, if he has but recently joined, of his predecessor. Such "statistics" as Government require regarding the various branches of administration are obtained separately and in a more convenient form, and the object of a Collector in writing his administration report should be rather to illustrate his remarks by statistics than to collect statistics and find explanations of them. Attention is invited to the concluding sentence of paragraph 5 of Government Resolution No. 724, dated 31st January 1887:—"If a Collector feels that he has nothing to say on these points, there is no occasion for him to write anything." This principle should be kept in view throughout an administration report. (G. R. No. 775, dated 29th January 1891.)

4. The reviews by the Divisional Commissioners of Collectors' Administration Reports should, following the Sind practice, be submitted in print and in such a form as to enable Government to dispense with a further detailed review for each district.

The Superintendent, Government Central Press, should print these reviews which will be sent to him for the purpose direct by the Commissioners of Divisions. The Commissioners need not distribute copies of the reviews, as copies will be distributed from the Secretariat.

(G. M., G. D., No. 2632, dated 4th July 1890, and G. M., R. D., No. 5485, dated 7th August 1890.)

charge, has been addressed to Government in the Political Department. The whole has been under me since January 6th, 1870.

(Note.—Collectors should see that the information given in their Annual Administration Reports relates only to British territory. Separate reports are submitted regarding Native States: G. R. No. 2885, dated 4th April 1884.)

2. The officers who have been at my disposal during the year under report are as per margin.* The manner in which their services have been utilized is shown in Appendix A.

3. The Administration Reports of the three officers in charge of divisions are forwarded herewith, accompanied by my remarks upon each.

II.—GENERAL CONDITION AND RESOURCES.

4. Season and rainfall.—The season has on the whole been an unfavourable one. The rainfall as per margin was below the average, and moreover came too late and ceased too early to suit any class of crops. A heavy flood in September injured the low-lying fields on the banks of the principal rivers.

|                                  |               |

(1. Note.—It is a matter of considerable importance that the measurement of the rainfall should be in all cases as accurate as possible, and the Collector should endeavour to have this result ensured. What is required for the Administration Reports is a statement of the rainfall which affects the cultivation of the year of report. The figures should not, therefore, be given for the calendar year. It is believed that the calculation is usually made correctly from the beginning of one rainy season to the beginning of another, but to prevent the possibility of a mistake, it is directed that the figures should always show the quantity of rain which fell from 1st May to 30th April. The 1st May is fixed as the beginning of the year for the calculation, because occasionally showers in May facilitate the preparation of the land for sowing: G. Rs. Nos. 7085, dated 9th October 1882, and 1350, dated 17th February 1883).

(2. Note.—Collectors should describe the general state of the crops of their districts clearly and very concisely in words. Anna estimates may be omitted if they cannot be relied on, and such estimates are obviously useless and misleading when they are at variance with the general description of the crops furnished by the Collector: G. R. No. 775, dated 29th January 1891.)

5. The rural population, according to the village returns, appear to have increased about one per cent. The rates of births and deaths are, respectively, 18 and 30 per 1,000, showing much room for improvement in the registration. Allowance must, however, be made for immigration.

(2. Note.—A careful analysis of the results of the annual census as they affect the Kunbis should be made each year by the Assistant in charge of the Jambusar Taluka of the Broach District, opportunity being taken during the season to test the correctness of the birth and death registers by personal enquiries. The Collector of Broach should make note of the results of analysis of vital statistics among the Kunbis in his annual reports: G. R. No. 5943, dated 3rd September 1887.)

6. The public health has been good and the amount of relief afforded by the dispensaries* much the same as in the preceding year. No special

(1. Note.—The Collector should give a brief account of the public health and also should state the remedial measures adopted in the case of an outbreak of epidemic disease: G. R. No. 724, dated 31st January 1888.)

(2. Note.—Information regarding village sanitation should be embodied in this paragraph: G. R. No. 7236, dated 21st October 1891.)

7. Agricultural stock advanced slightly, as will be seen from the marginal summary.

A disease resembling rinderpest broke out in some villages of taluka but was checked by the prescribed remedies after a loss of about 200 head of cattle.

(1. Note.—Collectors will not be in a position to make any trustworthy and useful comments on the variation in agricultural stock until the month of September, and such comments should be submitted to Government in a supplementary report in the month of September, and copies thereof furnished to the Director of Land Records and Agriculture with the Annual Return of Agricultural Stock: G. R. No. 2258, dated 31st March 1891.)

(2. Note.—In commenting on unusually large fluctuations in agricultural stock, Collectors might with advantage state the results of any observations that may have been made regarding migration of flocks and herds to and from neighbouring districts and States: G. R. No. 8435, dated 5th November 1889.)

8. The price of labour has continued to fall

‡ Camels, donkeys, pack-bullocks, boats, or whatever may be most in use in each particular district, should be shown here.

9. The prices of produce exhibit similar depression, which cannot be traced to any exceptional circumstances. A few of the articles of consumption in this Collectorate are quoted in the margin:

The whole will be found in Appendix B.

portion has unfortunately been for objects denoting poverty in the agricultural classes, rather than enterprise for the purpose of improvement.

(1. Note.—The Collector should have always under observation the system of advances whether under the Act XIX of 1883 or Act XII of 1884, the extent to which they are utilized, the views entertained of them by the agriculturists, the efforts made to explain the rules under the Acts and the obstacles to their free use. If a Collector feels that he has nothing to say on these points there is no occasion for him to write anything: G. R. No. 724, dated 31st January 1887.)

(2. Note.—For the sake of uniformity the details regarding takávi advances given in the reports should be for the year ending 30th June: G. R. No. 1425, dated 26th February 1892.)

3. Note.—Information as to the instalments of takávi loans due for recovery during the year should be given in the following form: the totals in columns 2, 5, 6 and 7 should include both capital and interest, separate figures being shown in a footnote:—

| Tálukas. | Balance outstanding on April 1st. | Advances during the year. | Total for recovery. | Amount recoverable during the year. | Amount recovered or adjusted. | Balance outstanding on March 31st. |

(G. Rs. Nos. 752, dated 24th January 1896, and 2541, dated 20th March 1896.)

11. Manufactures and Trade.—The chief manufactures of this district are of cotton printed goods and silk. The demand for these is said to have been fair this year, but principally for exportation. Local trade generally has not flourished owing to the indifferent season and diminution of earnings

(Note.—What is wanted is not an annual enumeration of local manufactures, but that the Collector should give the result of any observation he may have made on the recent progress or retrogression of local trades or manufactures, the causes thereof, the tendencies of trade, its markets and so on. If there is nothing new to relate, the Collector may record a blank. (G. R. No. 724, dated 31st January 1887.)

12.* Fairs.—The great annual fair at was not as well attended as usual, and the value of sales amounted to only Rs.                      against Rs.                      in the previous year. The attendance was estimated at                      Minor markets and fairs are held at places including                      additional ones sanctioned this year under Bombay Act IV of 1862.

13. The general condition of the people is at present far from satisfactory. Low prices prevail, with no present prospect of a recovery; the rayats are unable to pay off the loans they contracted in more prosperous times, and the money-lenders are making unsparing use of the Civil Courts against them.

(Note.—This paragraph is important, as in it should be mentioned emigration, immigration, facts as to land passing out of cultivation or being taken up, the effect of the rise or fall in prices on agriculture and trade, absorption of small holdings into large debt and the money-lenders' relations with the people: G. R. No. 724, dated 31st January 1887.)

The jamābandi of two talukas (or as the case may be) was done by me in person during the periods stated in the margin.

Add brief explanation, as in old paragraph 29 (without the table) why the talukas named were selected.

(Note.—As regards the Jamābandi Settlement, paragraph 14 and the Results, paragraph 15, what seems to be wanted is a statement of the money fixed for collection under the principal heads: G. R. No. 724, dated 31st January 1887.)

15. The results of the settlement of the talukas mentioned in the last paragraph were noted down in my office at the time and are as follows:—

Items arising subsequent to the preparation of the village tharāvbands have not been included. The chief causes of decrease and increase are as follows:—(brief explanation).

(1. Note.—Receipts on account of tolls on Provincial roads are not Local Fund revenue and should not therefore be included in the amount showing the Local Fund Revenue for collection: G. R. No. 758, dated 2nd February 1882.)

(2. Note.—The statement purports to show the results of the Jamābandi Settlement, and should therefore include only such items of revenue as are settled at the jamābandi. The column for Local Funds should not include road and ferry tolls, &c., but only the one-anna cess and such minor items as are settled at the jamābandi. It should be briefly stated in the body of the report what are the principal items of which the amounts entered in the statement are composed: G. R. No. 759, dated 2nd February 1882.)

(3. Note.—Interest recovered from defaulting Abkāri farmers should not be shown amongst the results of the Jamābandi Settlement: G. Rs. Nos. 9794, dated 11th December 1884, and 1679, dated 3rd March 1886.)

(4. Note.—The Collector's report should contain only the statistics for the district as a whole; and information regarding the talukas specially settled by him in person should be supplied by him to the Sub-Divisional Officers concerned for incorporation in their reports: G. R. No. 8243, dated 10th December 1888.)

16. The remissions granted have been trifling and principally on account of destruction by the flood mentioned above.

19. The amount of pressure which it has been necessary to exercise up to the 30th April, in order to recover the above, may be inferred from the particulars given in the margin. It is believed that few additional cases will arise in the last quarter of the year.

(1. Note.—In Ratnāgiri the Collector should contrast the number of notices and distraints required against khoti tenants with those issued against dhārekari or Government tenants: G. R. No. 4674, dated 2nd September 1879.)

(2. Note.—For the purposes of more accurate comparison the pressure exercised up to the end of June or the year previous to that to which the Collector's Administration Report relates and that for the month of July should be shown separately. The figures in column 2 should show the total number of occupancies in the district and not the number of occupancies in villages in which pressure was exercised: G. R. No. 6827, dated 2nd October 1882.)

(3. Note.—The number of all revenue payers and not only of those who pay without coercion should be shown in column 13. Revenue payers include recognized sub-sharers, and the number in column 13 will not therefore necessarily be the same as the number of occupancies shown in column 2: G. R. No. 606, dated 24th January 1883.)

(4. Note.—The transfers of occupancies required to be shown in the table are such transfers as have been brought about by the employment of coercive processes. The previous column shows the amount realized by the sale of occupancy, and the object of the column regarding the transfer of occupancies is to show the number of occupancies from the sale of which the amount was realized. Transfers of occupancies from the name of one person to another in the same family which are not connected with coercive processes should not be included in the number of transfers shown in the table: G. Rs. Nos. 1121, dated 5th February 1884, and 1251, dated 9th idem.)

(5. Note.—Only superior and inferior holders who pay the Government assessment should be classed as revenue payers, and tenants should not be included in the number: G. R. No. 8669, dated 26th November 1883.)

(6. Note.—The number of occupancies transferred by private sale should not be shown in the statement of measures taken for the realization of revenue: G. R. No. 1088, dated 16th December 1885.)

(7. Note.—In the figures in column 2 of the statement only such occupancies as come within the meaning of clauses 17 and 18, Section 3 of the Land Revenue Code, should be included: G. R. No. 3956, dated 3rd June 1886.)

(8. Note.—The Collector of Ratnāgiri should in his Administration Reports give information regarding the pressure found necessary in the case of occupancy tenants of khoti land in Ratnāgiri: G. R. No. 29, dated 5th January 1892.)

(1. Note.—The Collector of Ratnágiri and his Assistants should always report under the head of supervision the numbers of the abhavni patrahs or annual crop appraisement registers kept by the Khots, examined and tested by enquiring of the tenants : G. R. No. 4674, dated 2nd September 1879.)

(2. Note.—Examination of village accounts at the time of the jamábandi should not be shown by Collectors and Assistant Collectors in their Administration Reports : G. Rs. Nos. 5670, dated 24th October 1874, and 4549, dated 31st August 1880.)

(3. Note.—As there was a want of uniformity regarding the entry of statistics of boundary-mark examination in the Administration reports of Collectors—some Collectors showing their own work alone, some showing only the work of their office and some showing both—the Commissioners were directed by Government Resolution No. 9116, dated 20th December 1890, to issue orders on the subject in consultation. The following instructions (No. R-4666, dated 23rd October 1891) were issued by the Commissioner, C. D., to the Collectors in his Division with the concurrence of the Commissioners, N. D. and S. D.:—

“In pursuance of the orders of Government conveyed in the last sentence of paragraph 12 of Government Resolution No. 9116, dated 20th December 1890, Revenue Department, I have the honour to issue the following instructions.

“No change is desirable in the existing orders regarding the examination of boundary marks. Under these it is unnecessary for a Collector to examine boundary marks personally, but he may do it vicariously if he is in immediate charge of a talúka ; but, in order to secure that uniformity the want of which is alluded to in paragraph 12 of the Resolution of Government referred to above, only a lump figure representing the total number of boundary marks, examined by his office establishment and by himself if he has taken the trouble to examine any, should be entered in each Collector's Administration Report, and the system of showing his own work and that of his own office establishment separately should be discontinued : G. R. No. 3272, dated 7th April 1892.)

(2. Note.—Agriculture, which is reported upon independently by the Director of Agriculture, and Horse-breeding, which is the subject of an independent report by the Superintendent, Civil Veterinary Department, should be noticed by the Collector in his Administration Report, so that, if he has anything to say on these subjects, Government may have the benefit of a non-departmental opinion on the working of the Department, and the Collector may have his interest aroused in matters which may materially concern his district. If he has nothing to say on these matters there is no need for him to write about them: G. R. No. 724, dated 31st January 1887.)

(2. Note.—The Collectors should in their Annual Administration Reports in dealing with the work done by Mámlatdárs under Act III of 1876 give some account of the average duration of the enquiries. The information that Government require is as to the time that elapses from the reception of the plaint until final decision is given and not as to the actual number of days on which the case was heard: G. 34. The general state of crime and the action on it of the Magisterial authorities, is shown in the margin.

(1. Note.—A suggestion having been made by a Commissioner that the paragraph on crime as also that on Municipalities should be omitted, it was observed by Government that they did not require any detailed reference to offences or a description of the administration of all the municipal cities and towns, but that it appeared desirable that an opportunity should be given to Collectors of alluding, in connection with these as with other subjects of like importance, to any salient features in the history of the year in a report which is the only concise and compendious annual record of administration which Government receive from each district. If a District Magistrate confines his remarks to such salient features he can with advantage deal with the period to which most of the revenue sections of the report relate, but there appears to be no necessity for specially collecting statistics for that period. No action can be taken on such statistics. Statistics given in an Administration Report are generally of use only so far as they illustrate remarks which are the result of personal observation: G. R. No. 9317, dated 10th December 1889.)

(2. Note.—The Governor in Council is of opinion that more detailed information should be given in the administration reports of Collectors as to the quantity and character of the magisterial work done by officers of the Revenue establishment exercising magisterial powers. It seems that some Mámlatdárs and Aval Karkúns have more magisterial work thrown on their hands than they can well cope with in addition to their revenue work, and that, subject to the proper convenience of the parties interested and of the witnesses, some Assistant and Deputy Collectors should try more cases than they do at present. The Commissioners should be reminded that it is their duty to supervise the distribution by the District Magistrate of magisterial work among the different Magistrates on his establishment, and both Commissioners and District Magistrates should be requested to review in greater detail the distribution and performance of magisterial work in each district. The required

quent on Government Resolution, Judicial Department, No. 3706 of July 9th, 1873.

(Note.—The information concerning the Arms Act should be given for the calendar and not for the revenue year: G. R. No. 1867, dated 20th March 1888.)

VI.—PUBLIC WORKS.

40. (It appears to His Excellency the Governor in Council that "Public Works" are far too important a branch of administration to be withdrawn from the cognizance of the Collector of a District, and if he is directed to omit all mention of them from his administration report the subject is apt to be neglected, whereas the Collector ought to be recognized as having a very decided voice in the matter.

The Collectors should make general observations on the general condition and working of the Local Boards within their respective charges, the state of communications in their districts and the improvement of the water-supply, omitting all details as to "meetings," receipts and expenditure and abstract of works: G. Rs. Nos. 724, dated 31st January 1887, 6063, dated 26th August 1890, 3864, dated 4th May 1892, and 10103, dated 24th December 1892.)

41. There are no works of public improvement in progress at the charge of Imperial or Provincial Funds. The Committee consider that a grant is urgently required for . . . The Collector also has long pointed out the want of a new Mám-latdar's kacheri at

(Note (1).—Expenditure on account of petty construction and repairs should be shown under this paragraph: G. R. No. 3133, dated 28th July 1876.)

(Note (2).—As the Collector's annual report is supposed to be an epitomé of the administration of the whole district, the information regarding expenditure on police buildings should be included in it: G. R., F. D., No. 3933, dated 22nd September 1876.)

VII.—MUNICIPALITIES.

42. (The Collector should report his observations of the meetings held, the success or failure of the corporations, what members are active and who are inert in their work: G. R. No. 724, dated 31st January 1887). (Vide also note 1 below paragraph 34.)

VIII.—EDUCATION.

43. (In their Resolution No. 724, dated 31st January 1887, Government have remarked that as regards education, remarks similar to those made above regarding Municipalities apply.)

5. The Land Revenue Administration Report of the Collector of Bombay should deal closely with revenue administration. In such a report an account of the system of assessment and collection of revenue, the areas in respect of which assessment is levied, the tenures of land, the uses to which it is put, the prices realized at sales of land and the control exercised by the Collector and the Executive Engineer, respectively should, among other matters, find a place. A very lengthy report is not necessary, but at all events an attempt should be made to place on record annually such facts as are calculated to enable Government to form an opinion regarding the principal features in the administration of the Department which is impossible if merely a summary of revenue collections of little interest in themselves is submitted for review. (G. R. No. 1856, dated 11th March 1890.)

6. A complete account of the system of assessment and tenures of land is not needed each year. It will suffice to give in future reports such further information on these points as may be available. The report should be prepared on the assumption that the revenue of the year reported on is to be held to consist of the revenue recoverable in that year. (G. R. No. 4558, dated 30th June 1890.)

7. The Collector should in his future reports on the land revenue administration of the Collectorate of Bombay give information regarding the different items which are classed under the head Miscellaneous Land Revenue. (G. R. No. 4706, dated 10th July 1891.)

Note.—This Resolution approved of the form in which the report should be submitted by the Collector.

(iii) Assistant and Deputy Collectors' Reports.

1. All Assistant Collectors in charge of talukas are to submit to the Collector on the 5th of July in each year a general report, in the form given in Appendix I, for the twelve months which expired on the 30th of June previous. These reports are to be forwarded in original by the Collector to the Commissioner not later than July 20th, with such remarks as he may think proper.

In drawing up the reports the following principles are to be strictly carried out:—

(a) The whole report must be prepared by the Assistant himself, and not drafted for him by clerks or others.

(b) The report should be entirely prepared (as it can be) from materials in or passing through the Assistant's own office, and not by calling for statements from Mámlatdárs. Every Assistant is, at the time of doing jamábandi or examining records, &c., to keep in his own hand notes of the result and the statistics necessary for his report. All such notes are to be handed over on a transfer, and the fact that all materials necessary for the report up to date have been so transferred is to be mentioned in the usual report of giving over and receiving charge.

(c) It may in some cases happen that the statistics given will not tally exactly with those framed at the Huzúr at the end of the year, owing to the different date at which they have been obtained by the Assistant. Accuracy is to be obtained as far as possible, but is not essential in all cases, as the scope of these reports is to show how the Assistant deals with the work which passes before him, not to form materials from which any general and precise report is to be compiled.

(d) The portions of the accompanying form which are in ordinary type, as also the numbering of sections and paragraphs, and the marginal tables are intended to be invariable. The portions in italics are intended as examples of the sort of information required, and are to be modified according to the circumstances of each case.

(e) If under any head more latitude for any special facts, opinions or suggestions be required, the insertion of not more than one paragraph of moderate length, to be numbered A (as 11-A, 23-A, &c.) is permitted.

(f) As these reports are intended to stand by themselves as records of administration, nothing is to be stated in them in a form requiring a reply. Opinions and suggestions, or results, are to be simply stated, all correspondence for action on them being conducted independently.

(g) No personalities, recriminations, personal statements, or defences can be permitted.

(h) No opinions of the character or qualifications of Government officers, or private individuals in the Municipal or Local Fund Committees, &c., are to be offered on hearsay, or except on personal acquaintance with the individual and his work.

(i) Finally, as Government will be guided to a considerable extent by these reports in their estimate of the qualifications and capacity of the officers submitting them, the latter should spare no pains to make them neat in form, terse in style, and intelligently comprehensive and useful in matter.

(G. Rs. Nos. 5091, dated 12th October 1871, 3024, dated 15th June 1878, 5317, dated 13th September 1881, 724, dated 31st January 1887, and 2224, dated 26th March 1891.)

PART VI.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

2. Collectors should record briefly their general opinion of the manner in which their Assistants have performed their duties when submitting the latter's reports to Government. (G. R. No. 4308, dated 30th August 1872.)

3. One of the principal objects of the Assistant and Deputy Collectors' administration reports is to ensure a more exact and thorough supervision being maintained by Assistants and Deputies over the administration of their charges; and to this end to oblige them to record from time to time the results of their observations and scrutinies, and not to defer till the end of the year obtaining the requisite information from their Māmlatdārs. Government are satisfied that this information can be readily obtained by these officers themselves, if only they and their subordinates will during the course of their tours take the trouble of recording the necessary facts.

Special care must be taken that the orders obliging Assistants on their transfer to certify that they have made over to their successors the requisite notes and materials for the preparation of these reports are not lost sight of.

(G. R. No. 3023, dated 15th June 1874.)

4. A suggestion being made that June 15th should be substituted for July 1st in paragraph 9 of the form of Assistant Collectors' Report, and that for the purposes of paragraphs 11—13 the year ending 31st May should be made the year of report, Government observed that it did not appear that any specific orders were necessary on the point. In the Resolution which first directed the submission of the reports it was stated, with regard to the statistical information to be furnished in them, that "accuracy is to be obtained as far as possible, but is not essential in all cases, as the scope of these reports is to show how the Assistant deals with the work which passes before him, not to form materials from which any general and precise report is to be compiled." Accordingly it would be sufficient if the information was given up to as late a date as possible. (G. R. No. 5571, dated 26th September 1881.)

5. Assistant Collectors should be trained to understand and take an interest in the departments which do not come directly under their control, but which enter into the duties of a Collector, so that when they have to take charge of a district they may be familiar with all branches. Government therefore direct the introduction of a system of brief departmental reports on Opium, A'bkāri, Stamps and Registration. The reports should be addressed to the Collector; they should be short and simple, giving brief statistics with remarks explanatory of the features shown by the figures, notice of any important departmental orders and how they worked, and any remarks that may occur to the writer on the management of the departments in the tālukas under his charge. Should the Collector consider these reports to have special value in any case, he should forward them to the head of the department.

Each Assistant Collector should ascertain from the táluka offices in his charge the nature of the revenue under the four heads (Opium, A'bkári, Stamps and Registration), with the various sub-heads, which passes on to the táluka books, and should then ask the Mámlatdárs to furnish him with the amounts credited up to June 30th. Figures which can only be obtained from the Huzúr Account Office should not be required from Assistant Collectors. Opium and A'bkári may be included in one report and Stamps and Registration in another.

(G. Rs. Nos. 724, dated 31st January 1887, and 2970, dated 12th May 1887.)

6. The duty of reviewing the annual administration reports of Collectors and Assistant and Deputy Collectors has been practically transferred to the Commissioners, and they should bring to the notice of Government any points in respect of which they consider revision of the standard drafts of the reports desirable. The remarks of the Commissioner, S. D., given in the margin,* should be specially noted by all Assistant and Deputy Collectors. Frequently the reports are unnecessarily long and contain suggestions which should form the subjects of separate references. It

*"One of the chief objects of a standard form, especially for long reports which have to be submitted in manuscript, is that reviewing authorities may know exactly where to find particular matter—especially for objects of comparison or combination. And it is most confusing and troublesome, when for instance 'Education' is treated as paragraph 9 of one report and paragraph 18 of another, and in a third is given among 'General Remarks' quite at the end; or when one set of remarks on 'Tagai' or on 'General Condition and Prospects' is given at the prescribed place, and another set of remarks on the same subject in some other position further on. There is also too much of a tendency on the part of some Assistants,—usually the more junior ones,—to ignore the specially stated facts that the reports are to stand simply as records of administration, showing what the officers submitting them have done, and how they have done it; to introduce into them opinions and suggestions with the intention that they shall be accepted and acted on from the reports themselves, instead of from separate proceedings; and to write themselves into notoriety by introducing inordinately long 'Special Paragraphs.'" should be remembered that these reports are to stand merely as records of administration and that nothing should be stated in them in a form requiring a reply. Assistants and Deputy Collectors should bear in mind that they should only record the results of their own inspection and observation, and that it is contrary to orders to append to their reports reports of Mámlatdárs on the condition of the people.

Assistants' reports should, of course, be returned by Collectors when necessary for the correction of mistakes, but the fact should not be lost sight of that one of the chief objects of these reports is to enable the Commissioners and Government to judge how each officer performs his duties. The

PART VI.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

Collector has already ample opportunity of gauging the merits of his Assistants, and it is not necessary for him to review their work in detail; nor should he discuss their reports in his own, which is intended to stand as a record of his own work and his own observations. The present orders should be adhered to, and Collectors should add to each Assistant's report such separate remarks as may be required in each case; there does not seem to be any reason for printing or circulating these.

(G. R. No. 1237, dated 13th February 1893.)

7. It is desirable that a map, with his tour marked thereon, should be submitted by a sub-divisional officer with his administration report. No new maps need be prepared for this purpose. The maps which now accompany Collectors' administration reports are in the case of most districts sufficiently suitable. In any case in which they are considered to be too small to properly illustrate an Assistant Collector's tour, rough sketch maps can be substituted; all that is wanted is that Government may have a fair general idea of an Assistant or Deputy Collector's tour. The Commissioners have a ready means of checking these tours in the monthly diaries submitted to them. (G. Rs. Nos. 8435, dated 5th November 1889, 1032, dated 8th February 1890, and 8641, dated 25th November 1893.)

8. The practice of appending large taluka maps to the annual administration reports should be discontinued, and the tour of each officer should be shown and marked on a district or sub-divisional map of convenient size. (G. R. No. 9246, dated 18th December 1893.)

report on the administration of my charge, which is composed of the talukas specified marginally, and has been under me since March 11th 18 (or since November 1st 18, previous to which date they were under Mr.———, who has supplied to me the necessary information relating to his own time.

REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART VI.

2. A return of places at which I have resided during the year, and the number of days spent at each, is forwarded herewith (Appendix No. 1).

II.—REVENUE. (a) JAMÁBANDI.

3. The jamábandi settlement was effected during the periods stated in the margin; that of Táluka C was delayed beyond the prescribed period because I was called away to—for a few days to meet the Revenue Commissioner (or as the case may be).

(Note.—The information in paragraph 3 should refer to the whole charge, i.e. all the tálukas of which charge is held by the Assistant or Deputy Collector. If any táluka has been settled by the Collector, the fact should be noted.)

4. The results of the settlement of the tálukas mentioned in the last paragraph were noted down in my office at the time, and are as follows. Items arising subsequent to the preparation of the village tharāvbands have not been included :—

| Years.       | Land Revenue. |             |                         | Local Funds. |                         | Interest. | Total Revenue for collection. |

| Increase ... |               |             |                         |              |                         |           |                               |
| Decrease ... |               |             |                         |              |                         |           |                               |

The chief causes of decrease and increase are as follows: (give brief explanations).

5. Takávi advances have been made to a few rayats: (give brief remarks on number of applications received and granted.)

6 The progress of the realization up to June 30th of the land revenue of the tálukas in my charge, not including revenue assigned to Local Funds or credited to the Public Works Department, is shown in the following table :—

| Demand. | Collections upto 31st March. | Balance on 1st April. | Collections from 1st April to 30th June. | Balance. |
|         |                              |                       |                                          |          |

As far as it is now possible to judge, nearly all the balance on July 31st will eventually be realized.

PART VI.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

(The table will be compiled from the four monthly vasulbaki statements and the monthly returns of collections.)

7. The general condition and prospects of my charge, in a material point of view, are decidedly favourable. In Táluka A nearly all waste land has been taken up, the value of occupancies is considerable, and, the accumulation of capital progresses. In Táluka B, the waste is larger, but is being gradually taken up, and is now only one-third of what it was ten years ago. Táluka C is a more backward district with a considerable amount of forest, and a large aboriginal population of Bhils and Chodras. Still cultivation there has increased by 20 per cent. within the last five years.

II.—REVENUE. (b) SUPERVISION.

8. The comparisons of the táluka tálebands of the past year (18 ) required by Government Resolution No. 1454, of November 6th, 1869, were duly completed on the dates given marginally and in the manner prescribed at page ... of the Manual of Revenue Accounts. The accounts of Tálukas A and C were in good order, but in those of Táluka B, some errors were detected which have been rectified.

9. The examinations of the táluka accounts were effected in general accordance with the direction at pages ... of the Manual, at the periods stated in the margin. I regret that I was unable to make the second examination of the accounts of Táluka C owing to a severe accident which occurred when I was at the other end of my charge and incapacitated me from travelling for five weeks. The comparison of the daily sheets with the day books and other expansions (Manual, pages ...) was made at the same time as the inspection of the rest of the accounts, and errors which were detected were reported at once to the Collector.

10. The amount of village inspection which I have performed personally is shown below.

| Tálukas.  | Villages.     |                 |                                    |                                   | Rayats' receipt-books examined. |                  | Boundary marks examined. |                |

REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART VI.

The performance of their duties by the village accountants is on the whole good, as shown by the general application of the prescribed tests (Manual, pages ... ), but out of a total number of 150, it has been necessary to reprimand twenty, to fine ten, and to dismiss two, one of whom was prosecuted criminally and convicted. In examining receipt-books the procedure prescribed at page 84 of the Manual of Revenue Accounts was observed.

(1. Note.—Vide note 1 below paragraph 25. of the form of Collectors' Administration Report.)

(2. Note.—In column 3 of the statement entered in this paragraph all the villages which the officers visited for the performance of official duties should be entered, and not only villages at which they encamped: G. R. No. 6619, dated 25th September 1882.)

(3. Note.—All punishments inflicted on village accountants should be shown in this paragraph: G. R. No. 8782, dated 15th December 1882.)

the work is fairly done, except by Ráo Sáheb ——— Mámlatdár of A.

(1. Note.—Only those cases in which mistakes are noticed should be entered as referred to the Collector: G. L. No. 9013, dated 6th November 1885, and 534, dated 21st January 1886)

(2. Note.—Assistant Collectors should include in their reports with brief remarks, a statement showing the numbers of Sub-Registry Offices and, in the districts where Act XVII of 1879 as amended by Acts XXIII of 1881, XXII of 1882 and XXIII of 1886, applies, of Village Registry Offices examined by them: G. ## REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART VII.]

PART VII.—MISCELLANEOUS.

1. Assistant Collectors are not to try any magisterial cases in their own houses. This must be considered a standing rule in the whole Presidency. (G. R. No. 1221, dated 3rd March 1873.)

2. It is clearly to be understood that no Magistrate is to try cases in his own house. (G. R. No. 2893, dated 21st May 1873.)

3. The officer in whose charge the office library is personally responsible for the safe keeping of the books composing it. (G. R. No. 5855, dated 11th November 1880.)

4. Medicines required for dispensaries should be received very soon after they are indented for, and Collectors should at once report to Government if there is delay in complying with their indents. (G. R. No. 6827, dated 2nd October 1882.)

5. The receipts and payments of the Collector of Bombay, who is a Land Revenue Officer and has a treasury, should be accounted for in the manner laid down in Chapter 18 of the Civil Account Code, 6th edition (see also Manual of Land Revenue Accounts). (G. R. No. 3660, dated 27th May 1890.)

6. There can be no question of the expediency, so far as efficiency of administration is concerned, of the assembling at the head-quarters of the district of all district officers during the season at which they are not ordinarily required to tour. This principle has always been recognised and acted on, the only exceptions being in cases where owing to the large size of certain districts, and for the convenience of the public, certain Assistants have been required to reside during the rains at outlying places within the districts to which they were attached. To say nothing of the inconvenience that would be caused to private persons having business to transact with district officers if they reside outside their district, it is obviously to the interest of discipline, instruction and despatch of business that the Collector's Assistants in all branches of the administration should be gathered round him in the rains. The claims of society also must be considered, especially in small stations and among officers who spend the greater part of each year on tour. (G. R. No. 3772, dated 3rd June 1891.)

7. Cases sometimes occur in which British officers, notwithstanding the stringent orders of Government to the contrary, have been tempted to take at times the law into their own hands, and to maltreat natives sometimes, where there may be reasonable grounds of complaint; at other times it has been for trifling causes; occasionally for no reason at all. The consequences of such illegal and violent acts are not only that injustice and hardship are inflicted on individuals, but that the character of the Government itself suffers from the tyrannical and oppressive behaviour of its own officers. Conduct of a kind so objectionable will not fail to subject those who deliberately violate the orders of Government to adequate penalties. But, though provocation can in nowise excuse the neglect or contempt of the reiterated orders of Government on this important subject, yet the Governor General in Council is desirous to prevent, as far as possible, the occurrence of any just cause of irritation to British officers marching detachments through British territories or those of Native States. To insure this object there should always be some one present to whom the Commanding Officer can apply for redress; to whom he can look for prompt attention when robberies have occurred or injuries have been inflicted, and from whom he may expect that every effort will be timely made to recover stolen property; to capture, and without delay to bring to justice, offenders, and to bring to notice any neglect or misconduct on the part of subordinate local officers. With this view, whenever troops are to march in British territories they should be accompanied by a Police officer deputed by the Magistrate of the district. The regular relief of the Police officers, as troops in march cross the boundaries of districts, is a point of detail which should in future be as carefully provided for as the preparation of supplies in the several districts. In Native States the Political officers of the British Government must understand it to be one of their duties to provide that, whenever British troops are to traverse the territories of Native Princes, their Darbárs are to depute intelligent and experienced officials of their own to accompany the British detachments, and to remain in attendance until the troops cross the boundary and enter other territory. This is frequently practised when any considerable body of troops is to traverse a Native State, but it is not sufficient thus to restrict the system to large bodies of troops, for the occurrence of robberies and of causes of misunderstanding are more likely to occur with small than with larger masses of troops, who ordinarily have with them an experienced staff, and are usually accompanied by Darbár vākils of rank and authority. The system must be worked out as carefully with small as with large bodies, and with especial care whenever the small detachment is composed of European troops. When such a system shall be adequately established, the occasions should be rare when misunderstandings could arise, and it should prevent the occurrences which often are a source of much irritation to Commanding Officers. Native States would be relieved from many difficult references and claims, whilst Commanding Officers having at hand a responsible person to whom at once to apply would be better able to pay attention to the precise instructions laid down for their guidance in paragraph 2, Section 47, of the Military Regulations of the Army, according to which all officers marching are "enjoined to bear in mind the serious responsibility that will attach to them for any abuse of authority, or exertion of illegal power; they will, therefore, invariably report to the Civil authorities any instance of neglect or inattention on the part of the Native Police or other subordinates of the Civil power, but by no means interfere with them in the exercise of their duty, or use any authority whatever over them; and in the event of any detriment or delay arising to the public service, or of any well-founded cause of complaint existing, they are to represent the same to the Commander-in-Chief through the regular channel. (G. I., For. D., No. 153, dated 16th May 1864; vide G. R. No. 457, dated 3rd February 1865.)

REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART VII.]

8. The selection of grounds outside military limits for encamping troops in case of any epidemic disease breaking out should be made by the Military authorities in consultation with the Collectors. As a general rule the land so selected will be dry murum soil unfit for cultivation. Where culturable land is unavoidably chosen, the preferable course will be for the Collector to enter into an agreement with the proprietor, by virtue of which the land can at once be taken temporary possession of on payment by the Collector of whatever sum he may consider just on account of damage to crops and rent of land (G. R. No. 2749, dated 28th June 1865.)

9. In every case in which there exists a reasonable claim for compensation to owners of fields for the destruction of crops caused by the encampment on their grounds of troops marching through a district, the Collector should cause the Commanding Officer to be informed immediately of the extent of damage committed. (G. C. No. 2235, dated 12th May 1871.)

10. Government cannot recognize that when a regiment or a body of troops is on the line of march and accompanied by a Commissariat contractor or his agents, the Taluka authorities are in duty bound in all cases to lay in a supply of provisions for the benefit of such contractor. Were such an obligation on the part of the Civil authorities allowed, the presence of a contractor with the troops would be useless, as the district officers could generally provide all necessary supplies if sufficient intimation were given beforehand.

It is the duty of the contractor for supplies on the march, either by himself or by his agents, to have the supplies for which he contracts ready at the several halting places. This he should do by timely arrangements, preceding the troops, and purchasing the supplies, and arranging for their conveyance to the ground; the only assistance he should receive from the Civil authorities being directions to the district native officials to afford him every facility for the collection of the supplies, a rough estimate of the quantity of which should be furnished to them some considerable time beforehand.

The native officials on the spot and over them again the Collectors would, of course, take proper notice of any case in which the villagers obstructed the march of troops by declining to sell to the contractors articles required for the troops.

The foregoing is the principle which should govern the relations between the contractors and the native officials of the districts or villages through which the troops pass while on the march, and His Excellency in Council is of opinion that to allow native contractors the power to obtain supplies by requisitions on taluka officials, would be to swell the contractors' profits at the expense of the Government Exchequer, and of the time and labour of district officers without any corresponding benefit. It would, moreover, open the door to all manner of abuse and oppression.

(G. R., M. D., No. 3703, dated 5th October 1874; vide G. M. No. 5495, dated 16th idem.)

11. District officers should enjoin such Assistant Collectors and Mámlatdárs as are from time to time deputed to accompany troops on the line of march to be most particular in seeing that all claims for cartage, compensation, &c., are promptly enquired into and settled. (G. R. No. 4052, dated 16th July 1873.)

12. The investigation as to the amount of damage done to crops by troops and the amount of compensation to be awarded should be completed as promptly as possible. (G. R. No. 3026, dated 22nd May 1876.)

13. With a view to enable Civil officers who may be engaged in purchasing animals and stores for the Military Department to render their accounts so as to admit of their being accepted by the Military Accounts Department without further enquiry, the following procedure should be adhered to:—

Every payment made by a Civil officer on account of animals or stores purchased for the Military Department should be supported by—

- (1) the payee's receipt, and
- (2) the receipt of the Commissariat or Transport officer, to whom the animals or stores are handed over, in which receipt should be specified, in the case of animals, the depôt roll on which they will be accounted for, and in the case of stores, the Commissariat returns in which they will be brought to account;

- (3) When there is no representative of the Military Department to whom the animals or stores can be handed over, the Civil officer should furnish proof that he has made them over to the Railway authorities at the point of transmission for despatch to their destination, the proof being a certified copy of the acknowledgment of their receipt by the Station Master or other responsible officer of the railway.

(G. R., M. D., No. 2620, dated 14th July 1887; vide G. R. No. 5040, dated 1st August 1887.)

14. Commanding Officers should specify some time beforehand the supplies they want for troops on the march, so that the Civil authorities can inform them what supplies will be delivered and at what rates. The district officers should furnish all information required by Commanding Officers of regiments that have to march through their districts regarding the supplies of provisions and forage procurable in their respective charges, and to comply with any requisition made by those officers on the distinct understanding that they will take and pay for the whole of the supplies demanded by them. (G. R. No. 8654, dated 8th December 1886.)

15. All communications on the subject of supplies required for troops on the line of march should be invariably addressed to the Collector of the district and not to subordinate officers. (G. R. No. 3812, dated 4th June 1891.)

16. As in the case of the moves of troops, due notice of the march of military followers and transport animals through a district should be given by the Military authorities to the Collector of the district, whether supplies are required or not. (G. R., M. D., No. 997, dated 23rd May 1893; vide G. R. No. 4234, dated 13th June 1893.)

17. The Government of India have sanctioned for adoption the following form of requisition for supplies of troops on the line of march :—

NOTES.

- I.—This requisition should reach the District Civil Officer at least a fortnight before the date on which the supplies are required.
- II.—This requisition is to be framed by the Commissariat Department and Commanding Officer to the extent each will be responsible for the supplies to be paid for by the State and by troops.
- III.—Only the articles shown on reverse can be requisitioned. Further articles, or an excess over the requisitioned amount of authorised articles, cannot be demanded, and the Commanding Officer and Commissariat Agent must make the best arrangements practicable to obtain them.
- V.—Requisitions for supplies in excess of actual requirements should on no account be made. If from any cause the quantity provided on indent is subsequently found to much exceed requirements, the official on whose requisition the excess supply was furnished should, in concert with the Civil Officer, make such arrangement for its disposal as may appear best for all concerned.
- V.—For transport mules and ponies grain of the cheapest kind locally obtainable to be requisitioned for.

18. The following is a list of encamping grounds

15. The established encamping grounds when not occupied are kept clean and free from jungle growth, and generally in order by the local subordinate Civil officer, under the orders of the Civil officer of the district. The latter should be addressed without delay when there is a subject of complaint.

for troops on the main lines of communications in the Bombay Presidency. The attention of Collectors is drawn to paragraph 15, Section 1,* of the Transport Regulations, Part II, Inland, and they should take steps to ensure that the encamping grounds are kept in good order. It is not intended, however, that there should be any change in the existing procedure and that the encamping grounds hitherto cleaned by the Public Works Department should be cleaned by the Civil Department. The Collector will requisition the Executive Engineer, when clearance other than that which can be effected by the ordinary village establishment is necessary, and in that case, the outlay will be met, as heretofore, from the Military Repair assignment.

19. The rules* noted in the margin detail the procedure under which carriage is to be obtained by regimental authorities from the Commissariat and permit, under the conditions therein laid down (paragraph 96), of the Commissariat applying to the Civil authorities for assistance.

* Army Regulations, India, Vol. X, Passages, Part II, Inland, Section I, III Carriage, paragraphs 87 to 151, and Appendix V.

The position of the Commissariat Department is that on occasions of this sort it utilizes all Government carriage that may be available, procures contracts for carts, &c., whenever practicable, and does its best to obtain hired carriage when required, without the intervention of the Civil authorities at the sanctioned rates of hire. Beyond this, the powers of the Department do not extend, and hence it is absolutely necessary that the Department should be able to appeal to the Civil authorities when occasion demands it. The Commissariat Department is, however, bound to make its own arrangements for carriage when this is possible, the aid of the Civil authorities being called in only when difficulty is experienced in its provision.

Provision has been made in the Army Regulations noted† for the care of troops leaving one district for another, but compliance with requisitions for carts from the Civil authorities to be sent all the way beyond the limits of the Province can hardly be expected, and arrangements should be made by the Civil authorities to pass on the requisition beyond the province to those in the adjoining district.

Early notice should be given in regard to the march of troops, as when this is not done the difficulties of the Commissariat Department are greatly increased. Every endeavour should be made to fix the date of movements as early as practicable.

In order that effect may be given to the directions contained in paragraph 96, Vol. X, Part II, of the Army Regulations it is necessary that the prevailing rules of hire for different kinds of carriage in the several districts should be periodically ascertained and notified.

(G. I., M. D., No. 3246, dated 3rd August 1889, and 4093-D, dated 24th September 1889; vide G. Rs., M. D., Nos. 2653, dated 22nd August 1889, and 3081, dated 4th October 1889, and G. M. No. 8221, dated 29th October 1889.)

PART VII.] [REVENUE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.]

20. Every District (Civil) officer should be in possession of the latest rules in regard to the supply of carriage by the Civil authorities to the troops on the march. (G. I., M. D., No. 4181-D, dated 2nd October 1889; vide G. R. No. 8421, dated 5th November 1889.)

21. When extensive transport is needed, Regulation XXII of 1827 or some similar law will always have to be used. Except on emergency there is no legal authority for interfering with the agricultural and rural owners of carts and animals, nor is it at all desirable so to interfere, or even possible. Returns will show approximately the means of transport existing in a village, taluka or district, but it depends on the season of the year how far these means are all available on any spot at any moment, and it would be useless to require native district officers to produce the full paper quota, if the actual substance were not in fact there to produce. Government could not interfere with the uses to which owners put their cattle and carts in ordinary times, and without such an extreme measure it is not possible to state certainly what will be available whenever it is required. (G. R. No. 10219, dated 19th December 1885.)

22. The rolls referred to in paragraph* 11 of the Appendix to the India Army Circular No. 170 should be retained on the records of the Civil officers of the districts in which the men live, who will furnish any information required regarding them, and render such assistance as they may be able to afford in the event of the men being called out for service. (G. Rs. Nos. 2428; dated 22nd April 1887, 6428, dated 23rd September 1887, and 3267, dated 21st May 1888.)

* "All records and documents relating to reserve men will be kept in the battalion to which they belong; an office allowance of Rs. 30 per mensem will be granted for this purpose. Rolls of reserve men are to be kept in the form on the first page of the sheet roll (Bengal Form A—R 12), and copies of these rolls must be furnished to the Civil officers of the districts in which the men live." ## SERVICE RULES.*

I.—APPOINTMENTS.

1. All applications with reference to appointments should be made to the Private Secretary to His Excellency the Governor, who takes the earliest opportunity of placing them before His Excellency. (G. Rs. Nos. 495, dated 26th January 1870, and 3085, dated 18th June 1878.)

2. As a general rule, all questions involving promotion or patronage should be first submitted through the Private Secretary to His Excellency the Governor.

The practice has always been for applicants to write direct to the Private Secretary, who if it is deemed necessary can call for reports as to the qualifications of the gentlemen applying for appointments or promotions, and this practice it seems unnecessary to depart from.

(G. Rs. Nos. 1754, dated 17th March 1877, 103, dated 8th January, and 3370, dated 4th July 1878.)

3. It is no part of the duty of the head of a department to comment with freedom on the principles which actuate His Excellency the Governor in Council in making appointments. (G. R. No. 3865, dated 4th July 1881.)

4. The Commissioner in Sind should in all cases in which he has to recommend for an appointment submit his recommendation unofficially to His Excellency the Governor. (G. R. No. 7511, dated 23rd September 1892.)

5. Applications for appointments in the gift of the several Governments and Administrations in India should be preferred, not to the Secretary of State, but to the Government or Administration concerned. (G. R. No. 8139, dated 6th December 1888.)

6. The Accountant General should furnish to Government on the morning of every Friday a list of vacancies, permanent or temporary, in the appointments of Covenanted and Uncovenanted Civil Servants in the Revenue Department. (G. Ms. Nos. 958, 1062 and 16-P., dated, respectively, 6th and 14th March 1865, and 15th July 1867.)

7. The Accountant General should submit monthly a gradation list of officers holding Revenue appointments in Sind for the approval of Government, but it is not necessary to have the list printed and distributed. (G. R. No. 1331, dated 10th February 1893.)

8. When exceptional appointments of Europeans are proposed or reported under the terms of

9. Under paragraph † 4 of the Secretary of State's Despatch No. 85, Public, dated 31st August 1892, the sanction of the Government of India, instead of that of the Secretary of State, will in future be sufficient for the appointment of Europeans who are not statutory natives of India to offices carrying a salary of Rs. 200 a month and upwards. * I forward herewith, for your information and guidance, a copy of a Circular (Home Department, No. 21-746-53, dated 18th April 1879), which has been issued by the Government of India to the Governments and Administrations of the Bengal Presidency, containing instructions on the subject of appointing natives of India to an increasing majority of higher offices in the Uncovenanted Service, and of reserving the offices to which it is not desirable to appoint natives of India, as far as is practicable, for Covenanted Civil Servants, Officers of the Staff Corps, or persons appointed by the Home Government.

"2. I request that the principles laid down in this circular may be applied also in the Bombay Presidency, and that with the exceptions therein contained, no person, other than a native of India, may in future be appointed to an office drawing a salary of Rs. 200 a month or upwards unless the sanction of the Secretary of State in Council to such appointment shall have been previously obtained."

(S. of S.'s Despatch to the Government of Bombay, No. 7, Public, dated 10th July 1879.)

† "I observe that in your letters to the various Local Governments your Excellency in Council has repeated the provisions of the orders of 1879, in the form that Europeans who are not natives of India may be recruited into the Provincial Civil Service on complying with certain conditions, with the sanction of the Secretary of State as regards Madras and Bombay, and of the Government of India as regards the other provinces. I am of opinion that it will be sufficient in future and more convenient that the sanction of the Government of India only should be obtained in all Presidencies and Provinces alike." (Para. 4 of Secretary of State's Despatch No. 85, Public, dated 31st August 1892.)

TA'LUKDA'RS AND TA'LUKDA'RI ESTATES.

PART I.—TA'LUKDA'RI SETTLEMENT OFFICER AND ESTABLISHMENT.

1. The Tálukdári Settlement Officer will correspond with Government through the Commissioner, N. D., but will communicate all letters of importance to the Collector of Ahmedabad. (G. L. No. 4449, dated 10th December 1862.)

2. The charges on account of supervision or management that will fall on the estates put under the management of the Tálukdári Settlement Officer should be levied according to a percentage on all receipts from estates under direct management. (G. Rs. Nos. 4164, dated 28th August 1871, and 8550, dated 2nd November 1895.)

3. It is the wish of Government that the Tálukdári Settlement Officer should have the benefit of the advice of the Legal Remembrancer in cases where the former is a party to a suit in his capacity as manager. But if he is accorded the advantages of a Government officer sued or suing in his official capacity he is also bound to attend carefully to the rules laid down for general guidance in such cases and to consider carefully whether resort need be had to litigation. (G. Rs. Nos. 3082, dated 18th June 1874, and 7778, dated 25th September 1885.)

4. Kárkúns in Government service who are employed as managers of Tálukdári estates in the Panch Maháls District under the designation of japtidárs are allowed to count their service as japtidárs for pension, provided that pensionary contributions have been paid by them since 8th February 1886 under the rules in Chapter XXXV, Part VII, of the Civil Service Regulations, Third Edition. (G. I., F. & C., No. 3775, dated 11th July 1888; vide G. R., F. D., No. 2553, dated 13th August 1888.)

5. The Tálukdári Settlement Officer and his establishment should be considered to be in foreign service of the third kind. Pension contributions are to be borne by the estates.

Six-elevenths of the pay of the Tálukdári Settlement Officer should be charged to Government, and the remainder to the estates. The establishment under him should be paid from general revenues instead of by estates under management, the cost being subsequently recovered from these estates.

(G. Rs. Nos. 5736, dated 7th August 1889, 8126, dated 24th October 1889, 2988, dated 1st May 1890, 611, dated 24th January 1891, 310, dated 24th January 1894, and 1993, dated 18th March 1898.)

6. The Tálukdári Settlement Officer should explain in the column of remarks or in a separate column showing interest accruing on advances, the apparent discrepancies in and between columns 6, 7 and 8 of Appendices 1, 2, 3 to his annual adminis-

7. The collection of the contribution from Talukdars towards the Boundary Marks Repair Fund as well as the collection of funds to meet a moiety of the cost of the inspecting establishment should be discontinued, and the entire cost of the inspecting establishment should be borne by Government. (G. R. No. 6921, dated 26th September 1888.)

TA'LUKDA'RS AND TA'LUKDA'RI ESTATES.] [PART II.

PART II.—SURVEY AND SETTLEMENT.

1. The following orders were passed on the question of revision of revenue settlements of the estates of the Tálukdárs in the Ahmedabad District, not including those of the Mevásis of the Parántij District who, however, are to be regarded as Tálukdárs under the provisions of Act VI of 1888 :—

“4. (1) The jama not to be enhanced more than 50 per cent. above that now levied, subject to the condition that the jama so enhanced shall not exceed 70 per cent. of the total assessment.

(2) When an increase of more than 25 per cent. is sanctioned, it shall be levied by periodic increments usually in the 1st, 3rd and 5th years of the settlement.

(3) Ordinarily the jama of a Tálukdár shall be made up as follows :—

(a) 60 per cent. of the assessment of the cultivated area and of lands kept as grass birs.

(b) 35 per cent. of the assessment of waste land, subject to the following :—

When the jama of the waste land exceeds the proportion of 15 per cent. of the entire jama, it shall be added to the jama of the cultivated area by three equal instalments payable in the 8th, 15th and 22nd years of settlement.

Any Tálukdár who may hand over his waste land or any portion of it, provided the area made over is more than 100 acres, to be managed according to the provisions of Section 28 of Act VI of 1888 for a term of not less than 20 years, shall be exempt from demand for jama on account of land so made over during the period of management. It must be understood that occupants of land of the same village or estate shall only be allowed to take up such land under management as they can cultivate in addition to their previous holding.

The Tálukdár making over waste land on the above terms will be entitled to any ‘surplus receipts’ as described in Section 29 (3), and will resume the land ‘subject to leases and occupancy rights, if any, granted during management.’—Section 33 (e) of Act VI of 1888.

Local Fund.

“5. The Local Fund demand of a Tálukdár's holding shall be calculated upon the full survey assessment of all cultivated lands and grass birs, or upon 70 per cent. of the entire assessment of the holding, whichever may be the larger amount. Any reduction on the above rating will require special circumstances to justify it.

In the case of any estate which has not been subjected to survey such as that of the Thákor Sáheb of Limbdi, the Collector may offer a settlement of Local Fund at the kamál rate or on an estimate of the assessment of the entire estate, including alienations, in lieu of a survey assessment, and, if this is accepted by the Tálukdár within the time given him for acceptance, it may be recorded in the accounts as the Local Fund demand upon his estate for the term of settlement. If it is not accepted, the survey of the estates according to the provisions of Section 7 (clause 3) of Bombay Act III of 1869 should at once be made, and the cess fixed on the results of the survey assessment.

If a Tálukdár shall make over waste land for management on the terms above stated (paragraph 4), the Local Fund Cess, if calculated on 70 per cent. of the entire assessment of his estate, shall be reduced by the proportion of the assessment falling upon the waste land made over, but shall not be less than the cess payable on the full assessment of the cultivated area, as above laid down.

The clause in the Tálukdár's jama agreement relating to Local Cess must be omitted in agreements issued under revised settlement. It was framed prior to the passing of Act III of 1869 and is inconsistent with the law as it now stands.

"*7. The foregoing rules will, it may be hoped, be a sufficient guide in determining the demand to be placed upon Tálukdári estates in revision survey. It may further be regarded as the desire of Government that a distinction should be made between the estates held under a rule of primogeniture, of which there are very few in Ahmedabad, and those in which partition obtains. The holders of the former are in a better position to contribute their full share to the public burdens than are many of the shareholders in the latter class, who are now reduced to the position of cultivators. A considerable degree of moderation in the Government demand may conduce to the transformation of the small shareholder class into a body of industrious yeomen; experience has shown that it is not justified by any corresponding public advantage in the case of the Tálukdárs who own large undivided estates.

"10. It may be convenient to note briefly, under each main head of survey operations, the conclusions which may be adopted for guidance, subject always to special conditions which must be dealt with by the Commissioner as they may arise.

Measurement.

"11. Revision should be generally confined to test of boundaries—

- (1) of villages,
- (2) of separate shares or estates,
- (3) of alienations.

As regards (1), should any question be raised as to alteration of boundary by encroachment since the last survey, if the villages interested belong to the same Tálukdár the complaint may be made occasion for a more detailed test than the ordinary one, which should be very simple, at the expense of Government; but if the villages belong to different owners the complainant should be made to deposit the cost of the extra work entailed, and this should be finally credited to Government if the complaint is found to be vexatious: the amount of deviation from the boundary of the original field book which would establish the complaint as genuine should be determined by the Survey and Settlement Commissioner. Some risk of this kind will be needed to deter Tálukdárs from endeavouring to raise boundary disputes.

The same procedure should be followed in (2) test of internal boundaries of shares or separate estates, where complaint is made of encroachment.

As regards (3) alienations, some more detailed operations will be required in carrying out the provisions of Part II of the new Act.

For immediate revision purposes what is required is—

- (a) test of the boundaries of alienations already recorded in the original survey or by any subsequent demarcation,
- (b) demarcation of areas alienated under decree of the Civil Court, or by transfers duly registered.

Such cases will be known to the Tálukdári Settlement Officer from whom information can be obtained. The demarcation of these areas is needed in order to carry out the settlement of jama on lands which have passed out of the possession of the Talukdár class at a higher percentage of demand, as already laid down.

"12. A feature of the survey of 1864—1866 was that it took no cognizance of irrigation. The assessment at that time applied to lands watered from wells, &c., was not introduced in Talukdári villages, and consequently no charge has been laid upon water advantages in the soil. There is but little irrigation for the raising of superior or garden crops in the Talukdári area, and the assessment of water advantages was originally abandoned by Government for the reasons shown in paragraph 8 of the letter of the Revenue Commissioner, No. 2200A of 12th October 1863. It was proposed by the Commissioner that, in consideration of this exemption, the Talukdárs should be required to guarantee to their tenants by lease the extra profits made by them through new well irrigation. The form however in which the exemption is recorded in the jama agreements is as follows (clause 7):—'The Sarkár has not fixed during the currency of this lease any higher jama on account of hágayat cultivation; you should therefore increase this cultivation by every means in your power.' It may be feared that the hopes which were entertained of a more intelligent and progressive management of their estates by the Talukdárs on their emancipation from debt have not been largely realized, but the causes which led in the original survey settlement of these estates to a policy of moderation in the assessment of the jama must continue to rule the action of Government, and whilst Government refrain from pushing the State demand to a high percentage upon the dry-crop assessment, it would be hardly worth while at present to bring to account the item of water advantage merely to swell the untaxed margin left to the Talukdár in the record. The existence of any large proportion of well irrigated lands should not however be excluded from consideration in assessing the jama; the percentage of dry-crop assessment to be taken may well be influenced by the fact that the estate embraces areas paying the higher and more constant rental of watered lands; in order, however, to secure due consideration of this factor all that is necessary is a note by the revising officer of the estimated capacity of existing sources of irrigation in cases where they are used to raise superior crops, sugarcane, garden produce, &c., which are few in numbers and mostly, Government believe, confined to the Ránpur Division of Dhandhuka and Gogha. Wells in the rice villages of Dholka and Sánand are also in some cases important aids requiring to be taken into account in the settlement of jama as a proof of the water advantages in the soil; as, however, the dry-crop rates are already high in the Talukdári villages of these talukás, this factor will in the present revision be of little moment.

An important item in classification revision which cannot be overlooked is the growth of 'khar,' this is not always permanent, but the benefit of the doubt cannot be safely taken by Survey officers without enquiry, and it may sometimes be found that by alteration of drainage conditions or other reasons the extent of infertility through 'khar' has materially increased.

In villages exposed to the action of water there will also probably be variations due to denudation, deposit of sand or gravel, &c., calling for recognition in revision. All these cases, where material enough to call for notice, will assuredly be made the subject of representations by the Talukdár or rayats on the visit of the classer or Survey officer. It will be necessary to record variations in rice area, and new rice land should be treated as highest class dry-crop; rice land that has reverted to dry-crop must be dealt with on the merits—it may have permanently lost its water advantage through natural causes or through neglect. The Survey and Settlement Commissioner can deal with this class of revision claims, if they arise, on some simple principles.

PART II.] [TA'LUKDA'RS AND TA'LUKDA'RI ESTATES.

Settlement.

"13. The entry of the names of holders in the registers of the revised survey must be made in consultation with the Tálukdári Settlement Officer who should furnish the Survey with all the necessary information to correct the existing record as a basis for revision of jama.

Of the particulars to be recorded under Section 5 of Act VI of 1888 the following should be at once registered:—

(a), (b), (c—ii), (d—i) on the existing data as regards sharers and their interests, and (e) with the sub-heads necessary to show the alienations recorded at the original survey and those since demarcated as described above (paragraph 11).

The further particulars to be registered under that section must await provision of establishment for their completion.

The Tálukdári Settlement Officer should be a 'Survey Officer' for the purposes of the new Act and for revision settlement. He should be gazetted as 'a Survey Settlement Officer in the Ahmedabad District' (under Sections 18 and 19, Land Revenue Code), so that his instructions as to the register may be of proper validity.

Of the two operations required for the revision, 1st, the assessment of the land, and 2nd, the fixing of the jama, the former will be conducted by the Survey and Settlement Department with the aid where needed of the Tálukdári Settlement Officer; the latter will be entrusted to the Tálukdári Settlement Officer acting as a Survey Settlement Officer and reporting through the Collector and the usual channels. The assessment of the land should not present any difficulties, as the tálukas to be dealt with have been, or are being, subjected to revision in respect of their rayatwári areas. The Survey and Settlement Commissioner will no doubt be able to turn this work to full account for revision of assessment in the Tálukdári portion:

Where, however, the existing maximum rates of the Tálukdári area are as high as, or higher than, those sanctioned on revision of rayatwári villages, a prima facie claim arises for a favourable percentage in the settlement of jama. It will in such cases be necessary for the Survey and Settlement Department to examine the average incidence of the rates in Tálukdári as compared with those in rayatwári villages and to ascertain with reference to classification, grouping, &c., whether the apparent case for favourable jama percentage is made out and to furnish the Tálukdári Settlement Officer with the results of this examination.

There is no need to detail the other data which will be required by the Tálukdári Settlement Officer for the preparation of his scheme of jama settlement; they are either comprised in the register framed under his authority or have been already mentioned in the course of the remarks on revision operations above, such as the extent of cultivated and waste land, appreciable water advantages, &c., &c. Any further particulars not dealt with in the foregoing should be referred through the Survey and Settlement Commissioner for orders.

"14. In the Ahmedabad District there are, beside the Tálukdárs whose estates were settled between 1863 and 1866 on the Tálukdári tenure, the two other classes, 'Kasbátis' and 'Mevásís' who are mentioned in the Act VI of 1888. The Kasbátis are not proprietors of their holdings but lease-holders; their villages have been surveyed in the ordinary way and the principles upon which their leases are given are fully understood. Revision operation should be of the simplest character. The Mevásís of the Parántij Táluka do not practically differ from the ordinary Tálukdárs of the western tálukas in their status or tenure, and the same principles should be followed in their revenue settlement."

TA'LUKDA'RS AND TA'LUKDA'RI ESTATES.] [PART II.

2. Every Tálukdár's estate is held subject to the payment of jama to Government. Government have the right to fix the amount of the jama at their pleasure, and whatever may have been the methods from time to time adopted in arriving at the amount, the jama always has been, and must be regarded as a payment made on account of the estate as a whole. By the Tálukdárs' Act VI of 1888 this jama is defined to be the land revenue payable by a Tálukdár to Government, and the position of the Tálukdár in regard to his estate is defined (vide Section 33, Clause 2 (m)) as that of an occupant of an unalienated holding, though with one or two of the privileges as particularly specified of a holder of alienated land. Hence it follows that no part of Tálukdár's estate can be regarded for the purposes of Section 22 of the Tálukdárs' Act as "wholly or partially exempt from land revenue," and that in the absence of any special conditions or restrictions, every Tálukdár is liable to pay by way of jama on his estate the full assessment on all lands comprised in it, subject only to such deduction as Government may, with regard to the circumstances of each case, see fit to direct. Government cannot admit any right on the part of the Tálukdárs to claim an enquiry or to object to the amount fixed as jama on any ground arising out of the details of its calculation, so long as it does not exceed the total survey assessment. But while Government cannot permit their right to be disputed, it is obviously necessary to give equitable consideration to the position of the Tálukdár and fix his jama with reference to what he may reasonably be expected to pay. (G. R. No. 8455, dated 15th October 1894.)

3. The survey assessment must be held to indicate the productiveness of the estates if properly managed, and the proportion of 60 per cent. of the assessment of cultivated land should be maintained as the main part of the demand. A right to a share of the assessment of waste land should not be foregone, but when the application of the rules laid down in Government Resolution No. 4580, dated 27th June 1889, appears from the circumstances of the estate to result in a higher jama than can be afforded, the abatement should in the first place be so far as is necessary in the proportion of the assessment on waste land. If any reduction of the jama calculated in accordance with the orders of 1889 further than the total exclusion of demand on account of waste land is found necessary, it should be based on a consideration of the general condition of the estate and the resources of the Tálukdár. It cannot be acknowledged that Tálukdárs ever had the power of curtailing the Government dues by mortgaging, selling or otherwise alienating land. (G. R. No. 4656, dated 20th June 1895.)

4. The following concessions should be allowed in recovering from the Tálukdári estates in the Dholka Táluka of the Ahmedabad District the revised Local Fund contributions calculated in accordance with the instructions contained in paragraph 5 of Government Resolution No: 4580, dated 27th June 1889 :—

(1) Where the increase is over 50 per cent. and less than 100 per cent., it should be taken in three equal biennial instalments.

(2) Where it is more than 100 per cent. and less than 200 per cent., it should be taken in five equal biennial instalments.

(3) Where it is more than 200 per cent. and less than 400 per cent., it should be taken in seven equal biennial instalments.

(4) Where it is more than 400 per cent., it should be taken in ten equal biennial instalments. (G. R. No. 2090, dated 20th March 1893.)

TA'LUKDA'RS AND TA'LUKDA'RI ESTATES.] [PART III.

PART III.—TA'LUKDA'RS' JAMA.

1. A táluka or a portion of a táluka is not to be sold for arrears of jama, except as a last resource to collect the Government dues, and no such sale should be finally carried out except with the previous sanction of the Commissioner. There is also the danger of fraudulent sales through the Civil Courts. To guard against such frauds by the greatest possible publicity, all sales of Tálukdári estates or portions thereof shall be conducted by the Collector on the requisition of the Court under Section *248 of the Civil Procedure Code (1859), and the Collector will then consider whether the provisions of Section* 244 of the same Code may not be applied to stay the sale and satisfy the decrees by other means. (G. R. No. 3975, dated 21st September 1865.)

*Cf. Sections 236 and 326 of Act XIV of 1892.

2. No deductions on account of service lands held by Desáis or other hereditary officers in Mewási villages should be made in fixing the rentals of such villages. Act VII of 1863 should not be applied to alienated lands in Mewási villages, nor to similar lands in the Udhád Jamábandi villages in Kaira. (G. R. No. 4195, dated 3rd December 1867.)

3. Tálukdári lands are charged with land revenue due to Government, and may, therefore, be declared forfeited if the land revenue remains unpaid. (G. R. No. 116, dated 6th January 1881.)

4. As regards the nature of the Tálukdárs' jamá, it is as much the full land revenue of those estates as the survey assessment is of ordinary occupied numbers. To obtain a gauge or standard for the purpose of fixing the Tálukdárs' jama, their estates were surveyed and assessed, but it was never intended to establish the full assessment as the Government demand and treat any difference between that and the sum actually fixed as jama in the light of an alienation. The Tálukdárs pay for their villages or estates in the lump, and their jama † is a sum of land revenue fixed from time to time at the pleasure of Government. It is less than the full assessment the lands would bear if they were held in detail as ordinary occupied numbers, because the Tálukdárs bear some of the charges of local administration. (G. R. No. 9354, dated 26th November 1884.)

5. Tálukdárs are clearly liable for the payment of the full jama due from them, whether they have alienated lands or not. Each case must be treated separately on its own merits in the matter of concessions regarding the amount of jama to be exacted. (G. R. No. 4738, dated 13th July 1891.)

6. In the determination of jamas regard should be had to the income of the estate, when it can be accurately ascertained, as well as to the survey assessment, and the Tálukdári Settlement Officer has the liberty for good and sufficient reasons to recommend a jama amounting to 50 per cent. of the income of the estate, notwithstanding that the jama so determined may amount to more than would have been leviable under the orders of 1889. (G. Rs. Nos. 8484, dated 28th October 1896, and 2262, dated 23rd March 1897.)

7. On the introduction of revised assessments in Tálukdári estates, nothing in the shape of a jama karár should be issued, but all recovery of Government dues should be made strictly in accordance with law.

The Tálukdárs should be leniently treated as regards calculation of jama on alienated lands.

In introducing a revised settlement such formalities may be followed as may save the dignity of Tálukdárs, but nothing should be done which may directly or indirectly raise friction as to the legal liability of payment of Government dues.

(G. R. No. 4387, dated 21st May 1892.)

8. In announcing jama settlements, no particulars should be given, but only the area and assessment as compared with the jama decided on. These orders do not override Section 213 of the Land Revenue Code under which survey records are open to the inspection of the public, and copies are to be given to persons applying for them on payment of prescribed fees. (G. Rs. Nos. 4656, dated 20th June 1895, and 6366, dated 21st August (1895).)

9. Tálukdárs owning "Bhatha" lands will be allowed in any year to make an application to the Collector for revision of the "Bhatha" area, if they consider it has decreased to an appreciable extent. Such applications must be submitted before 31st December each year. If after due inquiry the Collector is of opinion that the jama should be revised in consequence of a falling off in the area of the "Bhatha" land, the sanction of Government should be obtained to the alteration in the amount. (G. R. No. 8836, dated 10th November 1892.)

TA'LUKDA'RS AND TA'LUKDA'RI ESTATES.] [PART IV.

PART IV.—MANAGEMENT OF TA'LUKDA'RS' ESTATES BY GOVERNMENT OFFICERS.

1. In the case of a Tálukdári estate placed under attachment under Section 144 of the Land Revenue Code, the Collector has power to utilize the balance in his hands in paying off valid charges on the land. Section 144 provides that the surplus profits shall be kept in deposit for the eventual benefit of the person or persons entitled to the same or paid to the said person or persons from time to time. The words italicized distinctly authorize payment of the balance to mortgage creditors who must be included, along with the owner, in the category of persons entitled to the surplus profits. The Collector incurs no risk in paying off mortgage debts, provided he exercises due care and caution, and only discharges such as are valid charges on the estate. (L. R. No. 1199, dated 9th September 1887; vide G. R. No. 6607, dated 30th idem).

2. The surplus receipts in the hands of the Tálukdári Settlement Officer, which under Section 29 (3) of the Gujarát Tálukdárs' Act, 1888, he is bound to pay over to the Tálukdár or Tálukdárs whose estate is under his management, constitutes a 'debt' which, under Section 268 (a) of the Civil Procedure Code, judgment-creditors of the Tálukdár or Tálukdárs could cause to be attached in execution of their decrees. (L. R. No. 1112, dated 3rd July 1891; vide G. R. No. 4797, dated 15th idem.)

3. Care should be taken to give to Tálukdári villages under the management of the Tálukdári Settlement Officer their fair share of the Local Fund collections derived from them in the form of works of local utility. (G. R. No. 8641, dated 14th November 1889).

4. The Tálukdári Settlement Officer, when asking sanction for advances from the Government Treasury in connection with the settlement of the debts of estates brought under his management, should report whether the advance proposed in each case can be met out of the budget allotment made during the year for advances to Tálukdári estates. (G. R. No. 7145, dated 8th October 1890.)

5. Management of an estate under Section 26 of the Gujarát Tálukdárs' Act, 1888, is directed simply in the interests of the inferior holders or for the peace of the country. Hence all surplus receipts have to be paid from time to time to the Tálukdár under Section 29 (3) of the Act, and he alone is responsible for payment of his own debts. The only liabilities which the Collector or his agent may legally defray are those named in Section 29 (3), viz.: (1) the costs of his own management of the estate, (2) current land revenue and all arrears thereof, and (3) cost of a revenue survey, if any be extended to the estate. The Collector or his agent should have no concern in any suit for any liabilities which do not relate to his management. If made a co-defendant in any such suit, his reply should simply be that he has been unnecessarily made a party to the suit and has no interest in its subject-matter. Even if a portion of the estate should be attached or sold for the Tálukdár's debts, the Collector or his agent should not resist or object, but leave to the Tálukdár to defend his own interests, informing him perhaps, if it is thought desirable, that he had better do so. (L. R. No. 830, dated 12th May 1891; vide G. R. No. 3592, dated 26th idem.)

6. Section 28 of the Gujarát Talukdárs' Act, 1888, does not appear to contemplate the management by the Tálukdári Settlement Officer of part of an estate. The phrase 'portion of an estate' is frequently repeated throughout the Act, whenever its provisions are intended to apply to less than the whole of an estate. The omission of that phrase in Section 28 would seem, on the maxim expressio unius est exclusio alterius, to indicate the intention of the Legislature that charge should not be taken by a Government officer of anything less than 'the aggregate of a Tálukdár's interests in the lands which he holds.'

An undivided share is expressly excluded from such management by Section 28. An undivided share no doubt means one held in joint tenancy. But this express exclusion is because technically an undivided share is an estate, and the express reference to an undivided share does not therefore necessarily imply that any portion of an estate which is not held in undivided coparcenary can be taken in management.

The intention seems to be that a Tálukdár should either place all his estate, or none, in charge of the Tálukdári Settlement Officer or other officer appointed.

7. The estate of a Tálukdár can be taken charge of and managed under Section 28 of the Gujarát Tálukdárs' Act, 1888, but the nature of the estate cannot be altered by the Tálukdár or the officer managing the same. A Tálukdár's estate in property, which is in the possession of a mortgagee, is limited to a bare equity of redemption, and Section 28 would not empower the Tálukdár to convert that into a legal estate with possession so as to deprive the mortgagee of his possession. But the Tálukdári Settlement Officer or other officer appointed for the purpose may no doubt represent the Tálukdár so far as his equity of redemption is concerned, and could therefore receive, examine and contest any accounts which the mortgagor may be entitled to receive of the mortgagor's usufruct. But no power is given to disturb any one in lawful possession without his consent, whether he be mortgagee or not. (L. R. No. 253, dated 6th March 1893; vide G. R. No. 2052, dated 18th idem).

PART V.—LEGAL OPINIONS.

1. To the questions whether the sanction of Government is necessary to sales of Talukdars' estates taking place subsequent to the coming into force of Bombay Act VI of 1888, in pursuance of contracts made prior to the Act, and whether such sanction is necessary to a sale intended to satisfy a debt contracted before the passing of the Act, Section 31 (2) appears to furnish a complete answer. Nothing, after the coming into force of the Act, can effect a transfer of ownership (Section 2 (1) (d),) unless the sanction of the Governor in Council has been obtained previously. All transactions which, prior to the coming into force of the Act, have already effected such a transfer, are of course unaffected by the requirements of the section. But no transaction falling short of such a transfer will validate an unsanctioned alienation after the Act comes into force.

Government would not sanction any alienations unless they were absolutely necessary for preserving an estate from complete ruin or for the protection of Government revenue; and the Talukdari Settlement Officer should apply for the sanction of Government only in cases which, in his opinion, fall under this category. Such applications would, of course, be submitted through the Collector. In all other cases the plaintiff who asks for sanction should be referred to Government.

The sanction should precede the issue of the certificate of sale. In a sale of immoveable property the title vests in the purchaser under Section 316, Civil Procedure Code, "from the date of the certificate and not before."

An auction held before the sanction was obtained would give only an inchoate right, and the alienation could not be completed by issue of certificate until sanction had been obtained. A Court-sale will not be invalid merely by reason that the property had been put up to auction before the sanction could be obtained, and it is possible that before according sanction, Government might desire to know the amount of the bid.

The procedure, where sanction to the sale is refused, would be the same as in any other case in which a darkhast had been disallowed, as asking for the sale of property not liable to be sold. The darkhast would be rejected, and the decree would be treated as still unsatisfied, and if incapable of satisfaction out of other immoveable property of the judgment-debtor, would apparently be returnable to the Court from which it had been transferred.

No agreement would be necessary to bind the purchaser at a Court-sale to pay the Government jama. The obligation to do so would be not only a condition in the notification and certificate, but an essential to the validity of the sanction itself. (L. R. No. 1549, dated 12th December 1889, and G. R. No. 42, dated 3rd January 1890.)*

2. That ruling is to the effect that Section 31 (1) of the Gujarát Tálukdárs' Act, 1888, leaves to mortgagees whose liens were created before the passing of the Act, the full remedy which, at the time when those liens were created, the Courts would have given them, i. e., the right, notwithstanding Section 31 (2) of that Act, to convert, without obtaining the sanction of Government, the incumbrance "as defined in Section 2 (1) (e) into an alienation."

3. In that case there was no appearance for the respondent (the Tálukdár), and arguments may, on opportunity offering hereafter, be adduced in support of the Tálukdári Settlement Officer's view.

4. It is unquestionable that ordinarily it is not to be presumed that retroactive effect was intended to be given to legislation affecting vested rights. But as shown in the case of Phillips vs. Eyre (L. R. 6 Q. B., 1), this rule is not of universal application. Exceptions have been recognized by the Bombay High Court on grounds which, it might be urged, were applicable in the present instance.

5. Thus at I. L. R., 8 B., 340, Mr. Justice (now Sir R.) West said: "There is another principle enunciated by Savigny which, like the dictum of Willes, J., already referred to, has an important bearing on the case. It is this, that a law passed to promote some important public interest may be given on that account a retroactive operation if necessary, as the rule against such operation rests itself on such a general public interest, which may, under the circumstances, be deemed of less importance than the one embodied in the Statute. The purpose of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act was undoubtedly to shield the property of agriculturists against their creditors, and this purpose we cannot but see was considered by the Legislature one of great public importance: thus only are the anomalous provisions of the Act to be accounted for. Such a purpose so manifested we cannot suppose to have extended only to the cases of attachments made after the Act had come into force." (Cf. I. L. R., 10 B., 367, and I. L. R., 14 B., 516).

6. It might be urged that the provisions of Section 31, though they do not affect an incumbrance created prior to the Act, do operate to prevent any incumbrance (which is an interest other than that of an alienor or person to whom ownership is transferred) becoming after the Act an alienation or transfer of ownership (vide Section 2 (1) (d) and (e).) and that otherwise the protection aimed at would be inoperative for sixty years (Article 147, Schedule ii, Indian Limitation Act, 1877) and the intention of the Legislature would be defeated.

7. The validity of the pre-existing mortgage as such with the right to possession for satisfaction by appereception of profits is recognized in Section 31 (1).

In the case marginally noted, the High Court (the Chief Justice and Telang, J.) have decided that Section 31 (2) of Bombay VI of 1888 has no retrospective effect as against vested rights acquired under a decree passed before the Act on a mortgage-bond.

Pathubhāi Faljibhāi.

The cases in the margin are given as authority for this decision, and appear fully to support it. Other decisions to similar effect are I. L. R., 15 B. 81, 3 B. H. C. R., 45, O. C. J., 5 M. I. A., 109, and Page vs. Bennett, 29 L. J. Ch. 398. The case of Thompson vs. Waithman, 26 L. J. Ch., 134, might have been quoted as an authority on the other side, but its weight is impaired by the reversal of a case which followed it, viz., Jackson vs. Woolley, 27 L. J., Q. B., 181 and 448.

It seems that the decision must be accepted as authoritative in cases where a decree for the sale of specific property had been obtained before the passing of the Act, as then the decree-holder is to be regarded as having a vested interest in which Section 31 (2) would not, in the absence of express words, retroact.

But Section 31 (2) clearly expresses the intention of the Legislature that no transfer of ownership shall without the sanction of the Governor in Council take place after the Act comes into force, and this, it may be urged, indicates the intention of the Legislature that the provisions of the section should operate retrospectively so far at least as concerns the form of remedy when no right thereto has already vested under a precedent decree.

As, however, the case in I. L. R., 119 Bom., 80, was referred to by the appellant's counsel in the course of his arguments, the Court thought it right to remark that it doubted the correctness of that ruling, and that if the question again came up for decision, the Court might feel inclined to refer it to a Full Bench. The Court accordingly gave to the plaintiff a decree nisi with liberty (if the mortgage debt be not paid within six months) to apply for a decree absolute and sale.

PART V.] [TA'LUKDA'RS AND TA'LUKDA'RI ESTATES.

The questions raised in the preamble to Government Resolution No. 42 of 3rd January 1890 appear to refer to cases in which the creditor had obtained a decree and order after the passing of the Act, and in such cases it may still be open to question whether the sanction of Government would not be necessary to give validity to the alienation of the Tálukdár's estate or any portion thereof or share or interest therein.

The case of Williams vs. Smith, 2 H. & N. 443, S. C., 28 L. J. Ex. 286, relied on in the judgment of the High Court decided that an Amendment Act, would not operate on a writ of execution delivered before the passing of the Act, and it was observed "the fiery facias had begun to operate before the Statute passed and was in full vigour at that time. We cannot give the Statute a retrospective effect so as to deprive the debtor of any right he possessed under his writ."

The question of the retroactivity of legislation on execution proceedings was discussed at great length and with great differences of opinion in the case at I. L. R., 2 B., 148, and Sir Charles Sargent held that the amending legislation operated on all matters of procedure in execution subsequent to the Act coming into force. But Sir M. Westropp held the new Act to apply only to execution proceedings initiated after it came into force, and the majority of the Court adopted this view.

Apparently in case of execution sought against a Tálukdár's estate on a money decree passed prior to the passing of Bombay Act VI of 1888, in which no specific property was by the decree declared liable, it might be urged that no vested right in any specific property of the Tálukdár had been acquired, and that Section 31 (2) would, therefore, operate to bar a sale without sanction.

The word "alienation" as defined in Section 2 (d) of the Act means a transfer of ownership, and therefore except in cases where, prior to the Act, the right to obtain a transfer of ownership has been judicially declared, the Legislature may be presumed to have intended that no such right should be acquired without the sanction required by Section 31 (2).

The right which the holder of a mortgage-decree ordinarily puts up to sale is the right, title and interest of his judgment-debtor as it stood at the time of the mortgage (7 B. H. C. R., 146), but under an ordinary money decree, all that the decree-holder puts up to sale is the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor at the date of the auction and no vested right in specific property having been obtained before the passing of the Act, Section 31 (2) would, it might in such cases be reasonably contended, affect the alienability of the judgment-debtor's estate.

TA'LUKDA'RS AND TA'LUKDA'RI ESTATES.] [PART V.

2. If a mortgage decree was passed prior to the passing of the Gujarāt Tālukdārs' Act, 1888, the mortgagee has a vested interest which that Act cannot by retroaction affect, and Section 31 (2) of that Act would not therefore render sanction indispensable to the validity of the sale. If the property mortgaged is an undivided share, the purchaser of the undivided share would have to obtain partition if he desired possession of a specific portion of the undivided property, but that fact would not prevent the vested interest of the mortgage decree-holder in obtaining the sale of the judgment-debtor's right, title and interest from remaining unaffected by the legislation which came into force subsequent to the acquisition of his rights. (L. R. No. 254, dated 6th March 1893; vide G. R. No. 2132, dated 23rd idem.)

3. The following opinion (No. 52, dated 12th January 1892) was recorded by the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs on the question whether the Tālukdāri Settlement Officer may consider himself authorized, when his permission is applied for by a Tālukdār under Section 31 of Act VI of 1888 for borrowing money on the security of his estate, to have entered in the document executed at the time of the loan when such is the desire of the lender and borrower, a clause to the effect that on failure of payment of one of the fixed instalments of the debt or some other similar contingency, the management of the mortgaged lands shall be taken over by the Tālukdāri Settlement Officer, the surplus profits being devoted by him to the liquidation of the debt incurred by their owner:—

“On the principle expressio unius est exclusio alterius the effect of Section 28 of the Gujarāt Tālukdārs' Act (Bombay Act VI of 1888) is, I think, to restrict the power of the Tālukdāri Settlement Officer to take over the management of a Tālukdār's estate at the Tālukdār's request to cases in which the conditions of that section are fulfilled. That is to say, it is not lawful for the Tālukdāri Settlement Officer to take over the management of such an estate, by desire merely of the Tālukdār, unless the Tālukdār makes a written application in this behalf and Government sanctions his doing so. And I agree with the Tālukdāri Settlement Officer that the sanction of Government should be specific for each case and may not be given generally.

“2. Taking this view of the law, the proposal of the Tālukdāri Settlement Officer appears to me to be one which he cannot legally adopt. An agreement executed some months, perhaps some years ago, and executed possibly not by the present Tālukdār, but by his deceased predecessor in title, would not be a sufficient authority to the Tālukdāri Settlement Officer to take over the management; he must be furnished with a written application from the Tālukdār, and that application must be a plain document such as the name ‘application’ implies and not an agreement, with a penalty attached to it, such as it would be if it were made to have effect only in the contingency of the Tālukdār failing to pay money to his sowkār.

“3. Assuming that a Tālukdār passed an agreement to his sowkār of the description which the Tālukdāri Settlement Officer contemplates, it would not be legally competent to the latter officer, even if Section 28 of the Tālukdārs' Act did not exist, to take over the management of the Tālukdār's estate at once on the happening of the specified contingency, without the consent of the Tálukdár. He could not even obtain possession by a suit against the Tálukdár on the strength of the bond, for as he ex hypothesi would not be a party to the bond he could make no claim under it. And an agreement made by the Tálukdár with the Tálukdári Settlement Officer would be nudum pactum for want of consideration. The bond between the Tálukdár and his sowkár could only bind the former, on the happening of a certain contingency, to apply to the Tálukdári Settlement Officer to take over the management of the estate; and if when the time came he or his successor in interest declined to do this, the most that could happen would be that a suit would lie on the part of the sowkár against him either for specific performance or for damages.

"4. With reference to paragraph 5 of the Tálukdári Settlement Officer's No. 1116 of 24th November 1891, I would suggest that the form of mortgage with possession called in the civil law 'antichresis,' and which is not unknown in some parts of this Presidency, is not open to the objections which the Tálukdári Settlement Officer mentions. It is a mortgage by which immoveable property is made over to the possession of the lender of money on the understanding that the profits which he may derive from it are to be enjoyed by him in lieu of interest on his money; so that the mortgage comes to an end whenever the borrower repays the principal merely. If it should be found possible to encourage this form of mortgage between Tálukdárs and their sowkars, much subsequent bitterness of feeling and fraud and litigation might, I think, be avoided."

(G. R. No. 625, dated 27th January 1892.)

4. With reference to Section 2 (1) (f) of the Gujarát Tálukdárs' Act, 1888, the word "estate" must be held to have in that Act the same meaning which is ascribed to it in Section 3 (5) of the Bombay Land Revenue Code, 1879. Its meaning is, therefore, the aggregate of the interests in lands vested in any person.

But in the former Act the word is qualified by having prefixed to it either the word "Tálukdári" or the words "a Tálukdár's." A perusal of the Act proves, I think, that the terms "a Tálukdári estate" and "a Tálukdár's estate" are used in it interchangeably; the meaning of each of the two expressions is the same.

What constitutes "a Tálukdári estate" or "a Tálukdár's estate" must be gathered from the general purposes and provisions of the Act. It seems that it is intended to comprise only the aggregate of a Tálukdár's interests in lands which he holds, as such, i.e., in lands which he holds on the Tálukdári tenure. The purposes of the Act, as set forth in its preamble, and the detailed provisions which it contains, all seem to me to point unmistakably to the conclusion that the Legislature, in making this law, had only this class of interests in contemplation. This is especially clear with regard to alienations of a Tálukdár's estate or of any portion thereof, which by Sub-section (2) of Section 31 are declared to be invalid, unless made with the previous sanction of the Governor in Council; because the condition on which alone such sanction may be given, which is prescribed in the latter part of the Sub-section (2), can only apply to a jama-paying estate, i.e., to one held on the Tálukdári tenure.

TA'LUKDA'RS AND TA'LUKDA'RI ESTATES.][PART V:

For these reasons, Sub-section (2) of Section 31 of the Tálukdárs' Act does not apply to immoveable property held by a Tálukdár on any tenure other than the Tálukdári tenure.

PART VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

1. Encumbered Tálukdári Estates.—In the settlement of encumbered Tálukdári estates brought under Bombay Act VI of 1862, in cases where debts have accumulated and creditors are being compounded with, those who are able to support themselves should be required to do so, instead of being continued in the enjoyment of incomes to which, until the debts are paid off, they have no just claim. It seems so desirable to incite the Girassias to exert themselves to labour and develop their estates that His Excellency in Council would regret any arrangement which would be calculated to perpetuate their habits of idleness and indolence. The members of the Girassia families should be encouraged to take portions of the land of the estates with which they are connected, and cultivate them on their own account, at a reasonable rental to be paid to the representative of the estates to assist him in paying the Government jama. (G. R. No. 1445, dated 16th April 1864.)

2. Kasbátis.—In Kasbáti villages, in every case where the family of the original grantee may become extinct, the village should be declared Khálsa.

The right to succeed to the enjoyment of a Kasbáti lease is to be strictly limited to the issue, male or female, of the last lessee. It is not to extend to collateral heirs as well.

3. Government are satisfied of their right to resume all alienations made by Kasbátis during their tenure. (G. R. No. 2901, dated 4th June 1880.)

4. The following form for Kasbáti leases has been approved by Government :—

This Assurance is made the                      day of 18      between the Secretary of State for India in Council of the one part and                      (hereafter called the Lessee) of the other part.

The Secretary of State for India in Council doth hereby lease unto the Lessee the village of situate in the Registration Sub-District of and in the taluka                      of the Ahmedabad Collectorate. To hold the same from the                      day of                      18      for the term of                      years at the yearly rental of rupees                      to be paid in such instalments on such dates and to such person as may be from time to time prescribed and designated by the Collector of Ahmedabad.

And the Lessee hereby covenants and agrees with the Secretary of State in Council :

1st.—That he will not sell, mortgage or in any other way whatsoever alienate, charge or encumber the said village or any portion thereof ;

PART VI.] [TA'LUKDA'RS AND TA'LUKDA'RI ESTATES.

2nd.—That in the event of the said village or any portion thereof being at any time attached by or under the orders of a Civil Court, this Lease shall forthwith determine;

3rd.—That he will himself manage the said village, and not make it, or any portion of it, over to any other person to be managed in his behalf;

4th.—That he will make and maintain proper police arrangements, to the satisfaction of the District Magistrate of Ahmedabad, for the prevention and detection of robberies and thefts and the preservation of peace and order in the said village;

5th.—That he will regulate his demands upon the rayats of the said village in accordance with the system of Bhágbatái hitherto prevailing therein and will levy from them such rents and other dues as may be customary according to the village "dháro" and no more;

6th.—That he will pay the rental hereinbefore reserved at the times and in the manner hereinbefore provided for, and that if any instalment or any portion of any instalment of the same shall be in arrear it shall be recoverable from him under the provisions of the law for the time being in force for the recovery of arrears of land revenue;

7th.—That he will also pay Local Fund Cess and all other rates and taxes (if any) which shall at any time during the continuance of this Lease be payable in respect of the said village or any part thereof;

8th.—That on the expiration or sooner determination of this Lease he will yield up the said village without obstruction or objection, unless the Secretary of State in Council shall then be pleased to renew the said Lease for a further term:

Provided always, and it is hereby agreed that if and whenever there shall be a breach by the Lessee of any covenant, condition, or provision herein contained, and that if and whenever this Lease shall lawfully determine the Secretary of State in Council may re-enter upon the said village and resume the management thereof, and thereupon this Lease shall be null and void.

And it is hereby further agreed between the parties that in this Lease the words "Secretary of State in Council" shall include the Secretary of State in Council, his successors and assigns, and that the word "Lessee" shall include the Lessee and the heirs of his body male and female and their administrators, but shall not include any other heir of the said Lessee or any assign, and that in the event of the death of the Lessee and of the heirs, if any, of his body male and female during the continuance of this Lease the same shall forthwith determine.

TÁLUKDA'RS AND TÁLUKDA'RI ESTATES.] [PART VI.

In witness whereof the Tálukdári Settlement Officer has by order of the Governor of Bombay in Council attached his signature on behalf of the Secretary of State for India in Council to one part hereof remaining with the Lessee, and to the other part thereof remaining with Government the said                      has attached his signature the day and the year first hereinbefore written.

(G. R. No. 5118, dated 7th October 1878.)

5. Panch Maháls Tálukdárs.—In the Tálukdári estates in the Panch Maháls the local fund cess should, as a general rule, be levied on the kamál; but each case should be separately considered, as where much of an estate is waste, the levy of the cess on the kamál will fall with great severity on a Thákor. (G. R. No. 6900, dated 17th November 1877.)

6. The Tálukdárs of the Panch Maháls must be regarded as private landholders subject to the provisions of such laws as are in force relating to succession to landed estates, and all claims to succession should be heard by the ordinary civil tribunals. Government have not reserved any political power to decline to recognize adoptions or in any other respect to modify in regard to the Tálukdárs the law in force for private persons. (G. R. No. 6842, dated 15th September 1883.)

7. The antecedents of the Thákors of the Panch Maháls are similar to those of the Tálukdárs of Ahmedabad; the leading principle of the dealings of Government with the former as with the latter should be non-interference with internal administration as long as it can be maintained, and the principles of law appropriate when intervention is necessary are contained in Bombay Act VII of 1863, Section 3, and Bombay Act V of 1879, Sections 159—160.

It may be practicable to raise some revenue from alienees in these estates, but this can be done only at the cost of a departure from the principle of non-interference in the internal management. The Government revenue from the Thákors' estates has been settled so as to increase considerably in the course of a twenty years' settlement, and this may be held to suffice.

But it is necessary to take some steps to arrest the process of alienation of lands on which Government have a claim for revenue without protection of the Government rights. The first measure for this object is the preparation of a complete classified register of existing alienations. The second measure is to make it distinctly known by notification to the Thákors and similar land-holders and to all the persons to whom they in future grant or sell or mortgage land out of their estates, that Government will not recognize the alienation of any land in future free of liability to be assessed to land revenue.

Government will not recognize among existing alienations lands held by the Thákors themselves as gharkhed or khángi, or lands held by their families for maintenance or lands held for service. All such lands will be regarded at the renewal of the jama settlements as lands the assessment of which may be taken into account in fixing the jama. But present jama settlements need not be altered with reference to such lands exempted from the calculation on which they are based.

His Excellency in Council does not propose to attempt the levy of any judi on lands such as devasthan and inám holdings which are admitted as recognized alienations. It is desirable that all that is possible should be done to identify them, in order that if the estates are surveyed hereafter they may be demarcated. (G. R. No. 6155, dated 30th July 1885.)

8. Relations between the Girassias and their tenants.—It is only by holding out inducements, such as the letting out of their waste lands on easy terms and for a fixed period of years, that the Girassias can expect immigrants to flow into their villages, and that they can hope to become prosperous. The ignorance of the Girassias may prevent their seeing or understanding this for a time at least, but the efforts of the Settlement Officer should be directed to this point, with the view of placing the relations between the Girassias and their tenants on a satisfactory footing.

No measure would be productive of greater benefit to the Tálukdárs themselves than to follow the course which Government have, with such successful results, adopted with their own tenants-at-will under the survey settlement, by inducing the Tálukdárs to give their cultivators leases corresponding in length to the term for which their own settlements will run. Measures should, however, be taken to secure to the cultivators, wherever the dháro exceeds the survey rates, some share at least in the benefit of the remission which the settlement of the jama on the basis of those rates, instead of on a calculation according to the dháro, may yield.

(G. R. No. 1845, dated 11th May 1864.)

9. Rights of Tálukdárs over minerals existing in lands in their possession.—A Tálukdár possesses no rights to mines and minerals in the lands which he holds from Government on payment of jama. Government have no objection to the disposal by the Tálukdárs of minor products, such as stone and kankar, occurring in their lands. When such products are required for a public purpose they should not be removed from a tálukdári holding without either the consent of the Tálukdár or proper payment

if such be demanded by the Tálukdár. The right of a Tálukdár to cultivate the land in a river-bed included in his estate may be continued without question, according to the existing usage, and where the stream or river is the boundary of a tálukdári holding, the Tálukdár's rights over the part of the river-bed in his estate (i. e., up to to the middle of the stream) may be regarded as being the same as his rights over the other lands of his estate. (G. R. No. 5096, dated 6th August 1898.)

10. Wánta and Talpad.—Though originally 'wánta' and 'talpad' denoted shares in the same village at the time of the Mussalmán conquest, when one-fourth of the village was allotted to the former holders of the village as wánta and the remaining three-fourths was kept by the conquerors as talpad, they are now so distinct that they cannot be treated as definite shares of one and the same village. Wánta in Gujarát, in Wilson's Glossary, is said to denote land either exempt from assessment or held at a quit-rent, chiefly by Rájputs; the tenure is prescriptive of remote antiquity without any deeds

VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.*

PART I.—DUTIES, EXAMINATIONS, DISMISSALS, &C.

1. In the cases of dismissals of village officers holding more than one office, dismissal from one office implies, unless specially stated to the contrary, dismissal from the others also. (G. R. No. 418, dated 3rd February 1862.)

2. It is unquestionably the duty of Patels to render every assistance to travellers, whether official or otherwise, provided payment is duly tendered. (G. R. No. 1286, dated 12th April 1866.)

3. As a rule, it is necessary that Kulkarnis should reside in the villages to which they stand appointed. Exceptions may be made in the case of small outlying villages where there is no house accommodation and where the emoluments are trifling. It is in the discretion of the Collector to make these exceptions. (G. R. No. 3005, dated 23rd June 1870.)

The Collector must insist on village officers residing within their charges, diaries being instituted to ensure their doing so. (G. Rs. Nos. 5571, dated 26th September 1881, and 5698, dated 30th idem.)

4. Talátis must be obliged to reside within their charges. (G. R. No. 569, dated 21st January 1884.)

5. When there is no chora and no available house or when the saja is fatally malarious (during the season when the malaria is prevalent), the order that Talátis should live in their saja should be formally cancelled. But they should be required to visit it frequently and whenever business demands. To ensure this, they should submit a monthly diary to the Mámlátdar, who should closely scrutinize it and report every case of neglect of duty.

When there is a chora in the saja or an available house on possible terms, the Taláti is to live in it. All District officers to see that he does. Any villager, if asked in casual talk, will say where the Taláti lives if he is not led to suspect he is being asked for a purpose.

As a rule, absence without leave should not be punished with fine. It is an inappropriate punishment (if any other is possible) for a man who has to support often a large family of relations on Rs. 10 to 20 per month, and only drives him to illicit practices. A note should be made against him in the Assistant Collector's note-book and he should be formally told of it. He will dread this more than an eight-anna fine, especially if, as should be the case, two or more such notes are followed by his removal to a distant taluka. For flagrant abandonment of duty still more severe punishment is due.

* Vide also "Watans."

PART I.] [VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

The Assistant Collector and Collector should keep a sharp look-out that the Mámlatdár does not employ Talátis on ordinary work in his kacheri, and should take strong measures to stop the practice if it exists.

All the Commissioners should consider the advisability of making all village accountants keep diaries showing from day to day where they had been residing and what work they had been doing.

(G. R. No. 5958, dated 18th July 1899.)

6. The Commissioners should look in the course of their tours into the manner in which village accountants and Revenue Patels are fined for neglect of duty, &c., by Assistant Collectors, and Mámlatdárs, and take such notice as they think proper of cases in which such punishments may appear to have been indiscriminate, or in which it would, in their opinion, have been better to dismiss than fine. As these valuable public servants may be almost considered the main spring of the revenue administration, it is of great importance that their efficiency should not be impaired by injudicious treatment. Among other methods of punishment the system of inflicting daily recurring or cumulative fines (e.g., a fine for every day's delay in sending in certain reports or information) is apt to run into greater extremes than the occasion may warrant, and it should be a standing order that it should not be resorted to by an Assistant without the Collector's special permission. It will rest with the Collector to determine to which of his Assistants authority to inflict penalties of this description should be deputed. (G. Rs. Nos. 2519, dated 3rd May 1873, 5139, dated 13th September 1873, and 5752, dated 17th October 1873.)

7. Usually it is better to make one or two severe examples of village accountants by dismissal or transfer to a village with smaller emoluments than to punish by frequent fines. But the power of punishment will be exercised with care and moderation. (G. R. No. 5206, dated 9th September 1881.)

8. Nothing is more calculated to excite a feeling of discontent than indiscriminate punishments of village officers for trivial mistakes, and Collectors should carefully supervise the proceedings of their Assistants in this matter. (G. R. No. 1237, dated 13th February 1893.)

9. If a warrant of attachment is issued by the Civil Court against a rayat's property which is already under attachment by the Revenue authorities, the Patel of the village, in order to satisfy the Kárkún executing the warrant and the Court that there is a bonâ-fide attachment by the Revenue authorities, should give a certificate to that effect, which certificate should contain a sufficient description of the property, and should state the amount of the Government demand. When an attachment has been issued in such cases by the Civil Court, the sale of the property by the Revenue authorities on their prior attachment should be completed as quickly as the law allows. (G. R. No. 6711, dated 13th December 1873.)

10. It is the duty of Patels and Talátis, who are remunerated according to scale calculated on the revenue of each village, to protect trees as being the property of Government which yields that revenue. (G. Rs. Nos. 2731, dated 5th May 1876, and 3102, dated 25th idem.)

11. It is the duty of Patels, Talátis, Kulkarnis, and Shánbhogs to preserve, with the utmost care, all trees growing in Government waste land, or trees the property of Government, wherever they may grow.

The responsibility of these village officers will be strictly enforced in future.

(G. R. No. 1583, dated 28th March 1878.)

12. It is of vital importance that the timber and other vegetation on the slopes of the Purandhar Hill should be carefully preserved. The Rámoshis have not and never have had any claim or right to cut the trees or to injure the jungle by cultivation, or in any other way. They were its custodians, not its proprietors, and it was for its protection that they were originally granted service lands. They should be made to understand that they hold their lands on service tenure, and that they are liable to be called on to do service at any time that the state of the country may require it. In order to keep alive the right of Government to demand it, the Rámoshis of each hamlet should be called on, in turn, to provide a watchman for service with the Police on the Purandhar Fort. (G. Rs. Nos. 3014, dated 14th June 1878, 6285, dated 12th September 1882, and 8918, dated 19th December 1882.)

13. Village officers should be made to understand that they are indirectly responsible for the preservation of forests as being the property of Government. The fact that there is a forest establishment, whose prime duty is solely to look after forests, does not relieve the village officers from their share of responsibility in the matter. Accordingly, the village officers in forest villages should submit a half-yearly report on the state and condition of the trees belonging to Government in forests and málki numbers in their respective charges to the Assistant Collector in charge of the táluka, who should forward it to the Divisional Forest Officer. (G. R. No. 5062, dated 19th July 1890.)

14. Each Taláti should, in preparing his birth and death returns, account for the differences he exhibits, explaining increases and decreases by an abstract in the following form:—

| Village.     | Táluka. |       |
|---------------------|----------------|-------|

(G. R. No. 1258, dated 21st August 1878.)

15. It is in every way better to register births in the place where they occur, and village officers should be instructed accordingly. (G. R. No. 4174, dated 9th August 1879.)

16. Officers should be careful to ascertain that a Kulkarni is competent to the performance of his duties before appointing him to the post. (G. R. No. 4282, dated 16th August 1880.)

17. Though opposed to a general system of rewards to village officers for the efficient performance of their duties, Government sees no objection to the grant of suitable rewards in exceptional cases, as, for instance, when a Patel, Kulkarni or Talāti shows extraordinary energy on any particular emergency, such as an outbreak of cholera, attack on the village by dacoits, the realization of the Government revenue under great difficulties, and other occasions which will at once occur to Revenue officers of experience. In such cases, the Collectors may mark the efficient service rendered by conferring on the officers, who render it, the distinction of honorary pagries to be presented by the Collector or Assistant Collector at the time of the jamābandi in the presence of the Revenue and other officers and the village people gathered on such occasions, the charge on account of such rewards being met from the Provincial Revenues. (G. R. No. 6672, dated 16th December 1880.)

18. The instructions issued by the Commissioner, C. D., in his letter to the Collector of Ahmednagar, No. 1944, dated 21st April 1883, regarding the collection of revenue by village officers, the necessary extracts from which are subjoined, have been approved by Government:—

“No hard and fast rule should be laid down, and, while holding the village officers jointly responsible for the due collection and accounting of Government money, we should allow them a small latitude in the matter which they are of course expected to use with due discretion and in view to the peculiar circumstances of each case.

“Thus if the Patel is absent on some emergent business for a day or so, the Kulkarni may be allowed to collect money and duly remit it to the taluka or keep it in his custody till the Patel comes back. The Patel is of course expected to satisfy himself of the Kulkarni's proceedings during his (Patel's) absence. In fact, the Kulkarni is always supposed, so far as urgent matters are concerned and provided there is no legal disability, to act on behalf of the Patel during the latter's temporary absence on duty.

"To sum up, it appears preferable that the revenue should be paid to the Patel in the presence of the Kulkarni, but if the former is absent, there is no hindrance whatever to its receipt by the Kulkarni. Any other ruling would not only cause great delay and irregularity in the collections, but it would be exceedingly inconvenient to the people.

"As regards the Potdárs, you are right in ordering that they should not be allowed to have anything to do with the collections."

(G. R. No. 3845, dated 19th May 1883.)

19. There is no objection to the promotions of Talátis to posts of Kárkúns. A judicious use of such promotions as rewards for good work would probably have a beneficial effect. (G. Rs. Nos. 185, dated 22nd January 1884, and 10079, dated 16th December 1885.)

20. Stipendiary Patels and Talátis are clearly salaried servants of Government for the purposes of the Local Boards Act, but Patels and Kulkarnis, who receive their remuneration in the shape of service lands, cannot be held to be in receipt of salaries. (G. R. No. 10182, dated 26th December 1884.)

21. All Patels should be warned that severe notice will be taken of any cases in which persons in the influential position of officiating village officers are found to have collected subscriptions in their villages for their own private benefit. (G. R. No. 1189, dated 9th February 1885.)

22. A person who when serving as Kulkarni commits the serious offences described in Sections 213 and 214 of the Indian Penal Code, is unfit to be again entrusted with the duties of Kulkarni. (G. R. No. 9889, dated 9th December 1885.)

23. Membership of Patels in an association formed to make public protest against Forest administration should not be visited by the suspension of the Patels from office. As landholders they are within their right of appeal against orders which affect them. (G. R. No. 2538, dated 1st April 1886.)

24. Village officers should be allowed a refund of the amount of road toll paid by them when travelling on duty, on the production by them of a certificate signed by the Mámlatdár of the táluka in which they are employed. (G. R. No. 4849, dated 8th July 1886.)

25. It appears that it is the common practice in every district in the Northern Division to employ Talátis to assist the Kárkúns in the Mámlatdár's kacheris, both on special occasions and whenever there is pressure of work. Instructions, however, should be issued to Mámlatdárs not to employ Talátis in their kacheris without previously obtaining the permission of the Assistant or Deputy Collector in charge of the táluka. (G. R. No. 8880, dated 23rd November 1889.)

26. The efficiency of the village service can be improved by requiring proof, before any Watandár is appointed to be Kulkarni, that such Watandár is competent to discharge satisfactorily the duties of the office. To the adoption of such a course no reasonable objection can be raised. It would not be too much to demand that every Watandár should, before he is nominated to the post of Kulkarni, satisfy the appointing officer that he is able to read and write well, is a fair arithmetician and possesses some knowledge of the system of village accounts.

Section 45 of the Watan Act empowers a Collector to refuse to accept the service of any representative Watandár, or of any deputy nominated by him, if he has reason to believe that such Watandár or deputy is unfit owing to mental inability to perform efficiently the duties of his office; a Watandár, therefore, who has not been educated sufficiently to do the work of a Kulkarni, is mentally unfit to officiate as such, and may be rejected.

(G. R. No. 8805, dated 15th December 1882.)

27. The test to be exacted from Watandár Kulkarnis before they are held eligible for appointment should be different from any of those prescribed by the Educational Department. It should consist of an examination in the following subjects:—

- (a) Reading and writing the vernacular of their district.
- (b) Mathematics up to simple interest.
- (c) A knowledge of Hope's Forms.
- (d) A knowledge of the Village Police Act.
- (e) Capability to draft a short simple report regarding something that has taken place in the village.
- (f) A knowledge of the rules for the inspection of field boundary-marks. (Appendix B, pages 121 to 124 of the Survey and Settlement Manual, 1882.)
- (g) A knowledge of the Cattle Trespass Act rules.
- (h) A paper on the part of the Land Revenue Code and subsidiary rules which concern the duties of village officers may also be added as a voluntary subject at the discretion of Collectors.

The rules should be applied to Watandárs appointed for life as well as those appointed for a shorter term. (G. Rs. Nos. 6031, dated 15th August 1883, 8420, dated 15th November 1883, and 3686, dated 8th May 1884.)

28. Every person about to be appointed officiating Kulkarni or deputy must first pass the prescribed examination.

The examination should be as nearly as possible just before the time when a Watandár is about to enter an office so as to test his fitness at that time. If the order is applied thus, it is not necessary to allow candidates to come up badly prepared when their term of office is remote and make repeated attempts to pass. (G. Rs. Nos. 3686, dated 8th May 1884, and 4545, dated 25th June 1886.)

VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART I.

29. Questions on the subjects prescribed by Government for the examination of Watandár Kulkarnis will be set from Mr. Dhondo Gopal's "Village Officers' Manual," Part I, which should be considered as a text-book. (G. N. No. 6254, dated 4th August 1884.)

30. Watandár Kulkarnis who pass the prescribed examination in all the subjects except one should be allowed to appear again after a reasonable time to pass in that particular subject, the appointment of deputies being made temporarily by Government. (G. R. No. 1249, dated 14th February 1889.)

31. As regards the educational test to be prescribed for Patel officiators in accordance with amended Section 45 (b) of the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act III of 1874 as amended by Section 9 of Act V of 1886, as also under Section 30 (c) of the Gujarát Matadárs' Act VI of 1887, Government approve of the views expressed by the Commissioners of Divisions that ability to read the Village Police Act, to write a short report on an ordinary matter, and to read simple manuscript should be considered sufficient qualification. This test should be enforced except in cases where the Collectors consider it unadvisable to do so. No regular examination need be held. A Patel's qualifications can always be ascertained prior to his nomination. (G. R. No. 2718, dated 2nd May 1888.)

32. Government are not prepared to authorize the use of service stamps by Patels and Kulkarnis, as it would in many cases involve delay in the transmission of reports, the risk of fraud and some additional expense without adequate grounds for relieving the lower village servants of a duty which they have performed from time immemorial. (G. R. No. 5328, dated 16th July 1897.)

33. No practical objection exists against the village officers being instructed to give every assistance to bailiffs when serving processes. Collectors should therefore issue the necessary instructions. (G. R. No. 8241, dated 20th December 1898.)

PART II.—EMOLUMENTS.

1. Cash allowances in lieu of potgi should not be continued when in excess of the amount required by scale. As Wingate's Rules do not provide for the case of an addition to the arable land of the village, the provision for extra remuneration in cases regarding the increase to hereditary village officers' emoluments when jungles are sub-divided and new land becomes available for cultivation must fall wholly on Government if the watans of the hereditary officers be already taxed to the full extent; but when this is not the case, the watan land must be made liable to a further contribution to remunerate the officiator. A revision would, therefore, be requisite whenever lands have been added either owing to this cause or to lapses of ináms. (G. R. No. 397, dated 30th January 1860.)

2. As survey rates include all direct levies, the village officers cannot be permitted to levy haks in excess of the authorized assessment.

The proper payment of village officers is part of the survey system which must be maintained in its entirety. In a wholly alienated village the Inámdár must, therefore, provide for the remuneration of the village officers according to scale, as he receives the whole of the revenue derived from the village. (G. R. No. 686, dated 20th February 1860.)

3. To allow remission to village officers for the judi of their lands, when waste or uncultivated, will be a retrograde step. It would be a return—though a partial one as affecting only a particular class—to the old system of annual remissions, and the character of the transaction would not be altered by limiting it to the Patels' and Kulkarnis' lands excluding all record of it from the Taluka and Huzúr accounts. (G. R. No. 2461, dated 9th July 1860.)

4. Patels and Kulkarnis wishing to resign their inám lands and to receive instead a full money payment according to scale should be permitted to do so. (G. R. No. 3839, dated 24th October 1860.)

5. The Collectors in districts where Wingate's scheme of settlement regulating the scale of remuneration of village officers has been introduced, are not authorized to deviate from the rules laid down and sanctioned for their guidance. They must submit explanation of the grounds for any proposed deviation, and obtain the authority of Government to the measure. (G. R. No. 732, dated 11th February 1861.)

6. The percentage remuneration of village officers on the summary-settlement collections should not be calculated separately, but as part of the general land revenue of the village. To avoid, however, the labour which this practice entails on the Huzūr and Tāluka establishments of preparing annually statement of remuneration to be paid to the village officers, the emoluments of these officers should be fixed on the average of five back years' revenue collected by them, and they should be paid at this rate for ten years to come. The Kulkarni is to defray whatever charge may be necessary on account of stationery, &c. In villages in which a Patel has a service inām and allowance amounting together to Rs. 120, or a Kulkarni to Rs. 240 per annum, nothing should be paid to them. They must collect the Government dues from alienated villages in consideration of the enjoyment of their old ināms and allowances only. (G. Rs. Appeal from the decision of Venkatrao R. Ināmdār, Esquire, Assistant Judge, F.P., of Bijāpur, in Suit No. 1 of 1891.

Mr. Shamrao Vithal for the appellant.

The Government Pleader for respondent No. 1.

Judgment.—In this case the appellant (original plaintiff) is the Ināmdār of Ankalgī in Bijāpur Tāluka. Respondent, defendant No. 3, is the Watanār Kulkarni of the village, the watan being described as kadim watan. The watan property held for the performance of the duties consists of a cash payment of Rs. 5, and inám lands assessed at Rs. 60. Defendant 3 failed to perform the service himself, or to appoint a deputy. Defendant No. 1, represented by the Collector of Bijápur, thereupon appointed defendant No. 2 as deputy, and defendant No. 2 officiated from 20th November 1884 to 4th December 1886. Defendant No. 2 applied for suitable remuneration, and defendant No. 3 agreed to pay him Rs. 80 a year, which sum was accordingly paid in part by, and levied in part from, defendant No. 3. Subsequently defendant No. 2 applied to the Collector for an increased remuneration according to the scale fixed for Government villages, and the Collector on 2nd December 1887 ordered the plaintiff to pay the increased remuneration so as to make up the full amount due under the Wingate scale, and on 26th September 1890 a sum of Rs. 171 was recovered from the Inámdár plaintiff. Plaintiff claims that this sum was illegally levied from him, and he seeks in this suit to recover the same with interest.

1874). It seems immaterial whether the cultivators do or do not pay rent to the Inámdár. It is sufficient that no assessment is paid to Government. (G. R. No. 7884, dated 26th December 1881.)

Defendant No. 1 pleaded that, on the application of defendant No. 2, the Collector, acting under Section 17 of Bombay Act III of 1874, determined the amount payable by plaintiff as remuneration to defendant No. 2, and under Section 81 levied the amount. The amount awarded was Rs. 158-15-8, and the sum levied was Rs. 171. Defendant No. 1 gave notice to the plaintiff to take back the excess (Rs. 21-6-4), but he refused to do so at the time, though the sum was, since the institution of the suit, received by the plaintiff. Defendant No. 1 contended that he was not liable to the plaintiff, who had no cause of action as against him. At a late stage it was also urged that the suit could not be maintained under para. 3, Section 4, of Act X of 1876.

Defendant No. 2 urged that plaintiff had no cause of action against him, as he was entitled to receive the remuneration fixed according to the scale.

Defendant No. 3 did not appear to defend the suit.

The Assistant Judge held (1) that the suit was not barred under Section 4 of Act X of 1876; (2) that plaintiff, and not defendant No. 3, was liable to make good the remuneration as fixed by the Collector; and (3) that plaintiff's claim could not be awarded.

Plaintiff appealed from this decree on several grounds which it is not necessary here to state in full, as his pleader chiefly relied upon the contentions raised in the 3rd and 5th objections in the memorandum of appeal—namely, that the Collector had no power to raise the scale of payment, and that the Assistant Judge erred in not finding expressly whether the Collector could, under Section 17 of the Watandárs' Act, order plaintiff to pay the enhanced amount. Mr. Shamrao, the appellant's pleader, urged that the plaintiff, as Inámdár, could not be saddled with any payment not included in the sanad, and that the Collector's procedure was defective in that he held no inquiry under Section 73 before he passed his order, and further that the Collector was bound to obtain the sanction of Government under Section 21 of the Watandárs' Act. He also urged that Section 17 of the Act applied only to old customary payments in kind or money, and at the most under Section 23 the Collector could only grant increased remuneration from the watan property, and he had no power to levy the same from the revenues of the village.

The Collector professedly passed his order under Section 17 of the Watandárs' Act, and the chief question we have to consider is, whether that section, or any other section gave authority to the Collector to require plaintiff to make up the deficient amount of defendant No. 2's remuneration according to the scale in Government villages.

On a careful consideration of the several provisions of Bombay Act III of 1874, we feel satisfied that appellant's contention is well-sustained, and that neither Section 17 nor any of the other provisions of the Act authorized the procedure followed and the order issued by the Collector. Section 17 must be read along

PART II.] [VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

9. The haks which a Kulkarni is entitled to recover from the cultivators of an inám village are not "charges on the revenue or rent of villages, or other defined portions of territory." They are pay-with the other sections which together form Part 3—headed the Commutation of Watans as opposed to Part 4 which relates to the creation or lapse of a watan. This heading of commutation is itself suggestive of a strict restriction on the exercise of the powers conferred on the Collector. Section 15 empowers the Collector to relieve a Watandár of his liability to perform service, but this relief is under Section 16 not to affect the rights of individuals or village communities to exact customary services from village servants, the relief extending only to the service due to the State. Next comes Section 17 with its complementary Sections 18 and 19, the former applying to payments in kind or money made to Watandárs by Jágírdárs, Inámdárs, Mewási Chiefs, or others, owning or occupying immoveable property wholly or partially free from assessment, while the latter sections relate to the inferior watans, where the payments in money or kind are due to the Watandár from individuals generally, without any particular specification. In the case of the holders of alienated lands, the Collector is himself to determine the amount of the payments due to the Watandárs. In the case of cultivators generally, the inquiry is to be entrusted to a Pancháyit, and if the Pancháyit fixes profits which are of a fluctuating nature, the Collector is empowered to determine the amount payable. The words used both in Sections 17 and 19 are exactly the same, and they must be construed alike. These amounts so determined under Sections 17—19 are, moreover, to hold good for such period as the Governor in Council may from time to time direct.

It is thus plain that Section 17 clearly relates to the power of the Collector to determine payments of a fluctuating character. The word "watan" property, as defined in Section 4, expressly includes not only property assigned or held for service, but also a right to levy customary fees or perquisites in money or kind, whether at fixed times or otherwise. It is the commutation of these customary and fluctuating demands which is provided for in Sections 17—21. Unless the payments claimed already formed part of the watan property by force of custom, there is no foundation for the exercise of the authority to determine their amount conferred by these sections. The payments and the right must exist beforehand, and then, if the payments or the right is of a fluctuating or indeterminate character, the Collector in the one case, and the Pancháyit in the other, can determine the amounts of such payments (Section 17), and such rights and duties (Section 18). In the present case it is admitted that the Inámdár has only been paying Rs. 5 in cash to the Watandár. The Collector had, therefore, no occasion to determine the amount as it was not of an uncertain nature. It does not follow from the fact of this payment of Rs. 5 in cash, that the Collector had authority, under Section 17, while professing to determine the amount, to raise the cash payment from Rs. 5 to Rs. 80. The Collector can only determine the amounts of such payments as were already payable, and it is not open to him under this section to increase the amounts as he has done in this case.

This view of the scope of the section is strengthened by the fact that in the first draft of the Bill, the words used were that "it shall be lawful for the Collector to assess the amount of such payments recoverable upon an average of the 10 years next preceding." This limit of 10 years' average was subsequently given up, and in its place the proviso was added that the amount to be determined was to be equivalent to the amount payable under the scale in force for the time being in the case of Government villages. These words were not intended to refer to the scale of remuneration fixed by Government, known as the Wingate scale, for this latter scale has no reference to uncertain customary payments of the kind contemplated in Sections 17—21. Under Section 216 of the Land Revenue Code, the holder of an alienated village is not bound by the provisions of Chapter VIII relating to survey settlement, not introduced with his consent, which was the case in plaintiff's village.

A number of opinions of the Legal Remembrancer to Government have been filed in this case on defendant No. 1's behalf.

VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART II.

ments for which the cultivators are liable to the Kulkarni in addition to the rent, if any, which they pay to the Inámdár and are not recoverable from that rent. Moreover, it cannot reasonably be con-

Such opinions cannot well be admitted in evidence, as they are opinions given in a one-sided inquiry. Such as they are, they do not go far enough to support defendant's contention. In one, Exhibit 22, however, it is stated that there can be no objection to the Collector proceeding under Section 17, and if the Inámdár objects, he is required to report for further orders. In another, Exhibit 20, it is stated that there can be no injustice in prima facie holding that Section 17 applies, and the Inámdár may be left to show cause to the contrary. In a third it is directed that the defect in the law should be noted when the Act is next amended. No value can attach to opinions so obviously one-sided and halting.

We feel satisfied accordingly that Section 17 cannot be regarded as authorizing the interference of the Collector in this case. We have next to see if any other section can be held to support it. The Collector had no doubt power under Section 36 to appoint a deputy, and such a deputy would be an officiator under Section 3. Under Section 23 the Collector had power to fix the annual emoluments of the deputy and to direct the payment thereof to the officiator. These words are large enough to cover the order issued by the Collector in this case, but the second paragraph of this same section provides a limitation on this power, in that it directs the Collector to assign watan property as the profits thereof towards the emoluments of officiators. The emolument is to come from the profits of the watan. This was in fact the procedure followed by the Collector in this case in the first instance, when he directed defendant No. 3 to increase the amount of the remuneration payable to defendant No. 2. Section 23 does not authorize the subsequent procedure of the Collector when he ordered plaintiff to make good the deficiency. The scale in British territory was not obligatory on the plaintiff. It was, moreover, only a maximum limit. Defendant No. 3's inám land was assessed at Rs. 60. Plaintiff, however, was not bound by this limit, as he did not accept the survey settlement. Plaintiff in fact asserted that the land yielded a profit of Rs. 105, and his assertion was not challenged by defendant No. 3. This resource was open to the Collector to make good the deficiency. Anyhow Section 23 no more than Section 17 authorized the Collector's procedure so far as plaintiff was concerned. Section 16 of the Land Revenue Code also does not provide for the present case, because it does not extend to alienated villages. We accordingly hold that the levy of Rs. 171 made by the Collector was one not authorized by law, and that, under the circumstances, plaintiff has a right to recover the amount minus the sum of Rs. 21-6-8 already received by plaintiff. Defendants Nos. 2 and 3 need not have been made parties to the suit.

At a late stage of the suit, as also in the argument before us, it was urged that the present suit was not maintainable under paragraph 3, Section 4, of Act X of 1876. If the Collector had prima facie jurisdiction to pass the order he did, plaintiff would certainly have no right to sue to set aside or avoid the order. As it is, the Collector had no power to levy the money from plaintiff as ordered by him. The order was not passed by Government, and the Collector cannot be regarded as having been duly authorized to act illegally and without jurisdiction.

We accordingly reverse the decree and direct defendant No. 1 to pay Rs. 149-9-4 with costs to plaintiff. We disallow interest. Defendant No. 1 should bear his own costs, and plaintiff should pay the costs of other defendants Nos. 2-3.

M. G. RANADE.

12th July 1894.

This appears to be the first case in which the construction of Section 17 of Bombay Act III of 1874 has come before this Court. I concur with Mr. Justice Ranade in holding that the order made by the Collector is not one that can be made under Bombay Act III of 1874, and that it is ultra vires of Section 17.

PART II.] [VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

tended that the words "villages or other defined portions of territory" include cultivators' holdings. For these reasons it cannot be held that such haks as those in question are covered by the definition of which is pleaded for the Collector as giving warrant of law. I am of opinion that the payments to which Section 17 refers are those mentioned in Section 4, where it is said the term watan property "includes a right to levy customary fees or perquisites, in money or in kind, whether at fixed times or otherwise." What the Collector did is analogous to what may be done under Section 22; but while that section places the cost of creating new watan on the Government, the Collector has placed that of the additional watan property his order seeks to create upon the Inámdár. The words of the two Sections 17 and 22 differ much; and we may therefore infer a different meaning in each, especially as Section 23 limits the Collector to the existing watan and its profits in assigning emoluments to the officiator. Under Section 17 "the Collector may from time to time determine the amount of such payments recoverable" from the Inámdár. As the scope of the section appears to be misunderstood, perhaps because the old order of things is changed, I may refer to the earlier printed records of Government where the nature of these payments is described. In Mountstuart Elphinstone's Report on the Deccan, the following statements are made:—that the Patels are entitled to lands and fees, and have various little privileges and distinctions of which they are as tenacious as of their land; that the Kulkarni has lands but oftener fees; that the Deshmukh besides percentages on the revenues collected has various claims in kind, as a pair of shoes every year from each shoe-maker, a portion of ghee from those who make that preparation, &c., &c., that the watchman was paid by a small share of the grain and similar property belonging to each house, which kept him always on the watch to ascertain his fees, whereby he knew all that took place. In the appendix to Mr. Elphinstone's Report is one from Captain Grant, Political Agent at Sátára, which refers to payments in grain or money to Patels and Kulkarnis, called Mushaira and Sirpao. The knowledge of these customary payments was present in 1874 to the framers of the Watan Act; and in such a matter I can hardly refer to a higher authority than the Honourable A. Rogers, then Revenue Member of Council, who gave his reason for proposing the inclusion of customary fees in Section 4 by making an historical statement as follows on the 24th August 1874, when Section 17 was finally settled by the Bombay Legislative Council. "In different parts of the country it was the custom to levy fees and perquisites for service in various ways, sometimes in money and sometimes in kind." I notice too that on the 15th October 1874 when the Bill was passed, the Honourable F. S. Chapman, then Chief Secretary to Government, spoke of it as intended to build up from their foundations the ancient village forms of Government: and one means of doing this was by making the Collector's kacheri a tribunal where the village servants of inferior status, like the Mhárs, could enforce their rights to their customary fees from the rayats.

This look into the past revenue history enables us to find appropriate meaning for Section 17; and fortifies the conclusion we arrive at through the rules for interpreting statutes. The function of the Collector does not extend to the whole watan property but only to what is meant by the words "such payments." It is merely one of commutation of payments of uncertain amount by ascertaining a fixed equivalent therefor, which apparently he may express either in money or kind. There is no warrant whatever in the language of Section 17 for supposing that he could thereby impose new burdens on the landowner in a case like this, where the payment being constant already there was nothing to determine. He resembles the Land Commissioners in England under the Tithe Commutation Act or the Copyhold Acts where provision is made for ascertaining the value of such rights as heriots. But though it is not necessary for our decision to interpret the word minutely, I think the addition of the word "recoverable" in Section 17 has reference to Section 81 (though possibly it may be argued that it bars a civil suit, a matter on which I express no opinion); and that the word 'land' in Section 3 (4) of the Land Revenue Code, and that the Kulkarni, who is entitled to receive such haks, is in respect thereof a superior holder.

Section 17, Bombay Act III of 1874, is the law which applies to haks such as those in question. The Collector is encountered by the difficulty that in unsurveyed inám villages he cannot tell whether the aggregate of the haks would or would not be more than "equivalent to the amount that would be payable under the scale in force for the time being in the case of Government villages," and therefore cannot tell whether in determining under that section the amount of payments recoverable by a Kulkarni, he transgresses the proviso to the section. It is considered, however, that an approximate estimate of the amount that would be payable if the village were a Government village will sufficiently satisfy the proviso, and that such estimate may be based upon general considerations without requiring the detailed particulars obtainable in a surveyed village.

10. Section 187 of the Land Revenue Code provides that "all sums declared by * * * any * * * Act * * * at the time being in force to be leviable as * * * an arrear of land-revenue shall be levied under the foregoing provisions. Payments by Inámdárs to Watandárs, of which the amount is determinable by the Collector under Section 17 of the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act, 1874, are so leviable, though the point is not free from doubt. The provision which applies is Section 81 of the last-named Act. It says:—

"All recoveries of profits from land, assessments, emoluments or penalties under this Act may be made as provided by any law for the time being in force relating to the recovery of land-revenue."

It is not very clear what the intended force of the words "under this Act" is. If recoveries under the Act are meant, then there is no provision in the Act concerning the recovery of the payments in question. But it seems that the more probable meaning of the section is that "profits" from land assessments, emoluments, or penalties, determined or what the Collector fixes is the amount which may be recovered by revenue process; he is not to recover more from the Inámdár than is payable in Government villages for the same thing or on the same occasion. Thus the coercive action of the Collector is limited by the customary scale of the country as in some other revenue matters. The Collector's award of commutation appears not to be so final a judgment, as a decision under Section 18. But for the addition of the word "recoverable" I would interpret the word "determine" as was done in The Queen v. The Land Commissioners of England, where that word in the Copyhold

(1) L. R., 23 Q. B. D., p. 59. Act, 50 and 61 Vict., c. 73, was held to give finality.

We agree that the plaintiff has no cause of action against the defendants 2 and 3, and in the decree to be made by this Court.

fixed under this Act" should be recoverable as therein laid down.

11. The claim of village officers in inám villages to receive their remuneration direct from the village revenues instead of from the Inámdárs is inadmissible under Section 187 of the Land Revenue Code read with Sections 17 and 81 of the Watan Act. If the Inámdárs decline to pay the remuneration according to scale, steps can be taken according to law to enforce payment. (G. Rs. Nos. 3378, dated 2nd May 1883, 1166, dated 13th February 1886, and 3320, dated 5th May 1886.)

12. The proceedings reported by the Revenue Commissioner, N. D., in his following letter No. 3432-B, dated 29th October 1864, were approved and sanctioned by Government:—

"I have the honour to report, for the information of Government, the settlement I have made of the emoluments of Patels in the Daskroi Táluka of the Ahmedabad Collectorate.

"2. Major Wingate's scale has been taken as the basis of the settlement, with some modifications and additions which are described below.

"3. Major Wingate's system allows an increase of Rs. 10 over the percentage amount fixed according to his scale. As this increase appeared too large in small villages, I have in the Daskroi settlement reduced it to Rs. 5 in all villages the revenues of which are under Rs. 600 per annum.

"4. But while making this decrease in small villages I have allowed, under certain special circumstances, a somewhat higher remuneration than prescribed by the old scale. These circumstances arise from a Patel having heavier work to perform, either in consequence of the villages being situated on much frequented high roads or at a distance from the Mámlatdár's office, or in consequence of their bordering on foreign territory. The fact of a village having a more than ordinarily large population is also a special circumstance to be dealt with in the same manner. This plan is fair, as it secures additional payment for additional responsibilities, instead of remunerating at an equal rate those who have unequal duties to perform.

"5. The Patel's remuneration is in cash or in land, or in both, and to equalize the value of these receipts the profits of occupancy of land have been taken into account, the amount so calculated being in no case reckoned at more than a sum equal to the assessment fixed by the survey. Thus, if a Patel be in possession of service land assessed at Rs. 25, he is considered as well off as a Patel who receives Rs. 50 from the Treasury.

"6. Of the amounts thus fixed according to principles above mentioned, portions varying from one-fourth to one-half, according to the circumstances of each case, are to be allowed to the Matádárs or Patels and to co-sharers who assist the Patels. But in no case are the Matádár's present receipts to be exceeded at the expense of the Patel's.

"7. If in any case the present emoluments of the Patel exceed the amount fixed as above described, so much of the cash receipts as equals the excess is reduced, or, if there be no cash, a portion of the land of the same amount is assessed. This reduction is made from the 'Mukhi' portion of a Patel's holdings, which, as having been granted by the British Government for the performance of Police duties, can without objection from any one be increased or decreased as may be deemed proper. In cases where the existing emoluments are less than the scale, the deficiency is made up in cash.

"8. I have also, with reference to my communication No. 1525A, dated the 23rd May 1864, noted in the margin, to report the settlement of the contingent allowance (to be called the chora kharch)* to be given to Patels in lieu of, and out of the savings from, the malviro payments abolished. This contingent allowance has, as a rule, been fixed at double the amount given to Taláti for stationery under Wingate's scale, but in villages of the kind referred to in paragraph 4, it has been fixed at three times the Taláti's allowance. This payment will be defrayed, as already stated, in the repair, lighting and clearing of the village chorás, and in whatever further expenses connected with the village the body of Patels may desire. Patels will not be liable to account for the expenditure."

(G. R. No. 4646, dated the 23rd November 1864.)

13. The rules regarding the remuneration of Patels and Kulkarnis given at pages 347—357 of the Survey and Settlement Manual are inapplicable to Gujarát, where the rules sanctioned in Resolution No. 4646, dated 23rd November 1864, are still in force. The Governor in Council would, however, impress on the Collectors the desirability of fixing the remuneration of the Watandár officers as soon as a revision settlement is introduced. (G. R. No. 1822, dated 11th March 1893.)

14. The Collector's signature should be held sufficient by the Accountant General's Department for admitting statements of fixed payments to district and village hereditary officers, but the Collectors should distinctly understand that they are really responsible. (G. R. No. 6085, dated 4th December 1871.)

15. Notice fees and fines for unpunctual payment of instalments should not be taken into calculation in fixing village officers' emoluments. (G. R. No. 5304, dated 15th September 1876.)

16. The following are the rules for dealing with the village officers' service lands:—

Definitions.

(1). "Watan land emoluments" consist of the difference between the original judi or Government charge on the whole lands of the watan and the full survey valuation or assessment thereof for the time being.

(2). The appropriated amount of the watan land emoluments consists of the sum imposed in the form of an addition to the original judi to meet, so far as it can, the remuneration of the officiator as fixed according to the orders of Government from time to time.

* The contingent allowances called chora kharch sanctioned by Government Resolutions No. 4646, dated 23rd November 1864, and No. 3040, dated 30th August 1867, were assigned to each village separately. Patels were exempted from liability to account for the expenditure of them, but the rule referred to in paragraph 13 of the letter of the Committee appointed to report on the audit of cash allowances, sanctioned by Government Resolution No. 3517, dated 9th August 1861, to the effect that if village petty charges are not disbursed within the year in which they are due they are forfeited, is obviously applicable to the chora kharch allowances. (G. R., F. D., No. 4042, dated 12th November 1883.)

(3). The unappropriated watan land emoluments consist of that portion of the difference, if any, between the total watan land emoluments at any time and the amount appropriated at any time for the remuneration of the officiator according to the last paragraph.

Rules.

(1). The māmūl or ancient recorded judi, or the highest recorded ancient payment, whichever may be the higher of these two sums, shall be considered to be the ultimate limit of judi or Government charge upon the service inām watan lands of village officers exclusive of any charge which it may seem fit to Government to impose for the remuneration of the member or members of the watan appointed by Government to officiate, so long as such charge on account of remuneration of service together with the original judi does not exceed the survey assessment for the time being of the whole lands of the watan.

(2). The watan emoluments are liable for the payment of the officiator up to their whole survey valuation as at any time fixed; and any portion of this valuation in excess of the requirements at any time for the payment of the officiator may be appropriated at any future time if it is in the opinion of Government necessary to increase the sum payable to the officiator.

(3). In Government letter No. 331* of 26th January 1860 it was decided that in commutation of enquiry by the Inām Commission into the title on which unappropriated watan land emoluments were held, additional judi of one-half the survey assessment for the time being should be levied on the unappropriated amount. It is now clearly ruled that upon its being necessary to add to the remuneration of the officiator or officiators, all such excess watan land emoluments are liable up to the full survey assessment for the time being. It is, however, laid down that the above half judi is not liable to increase on account of the unappropriated watan land emoluments for the time being attaining an increased valuation under a revision of assessment; but it is also to be understood that such judi may be lowered owing to a decrease in the value of the unappropriated watan land emoluments rendering the judi formerly fixed thereupon more than half their value for the time being, or as above provided owing to a portion of the excess watan

“In the rules framed by Major G. Wingate for the settlement of the emoluments of Hereditary Patels and Kulkarnis, it was provided that the proceeds of a watan in excess of the amount required by scale to remunerate the officiating mem-land emoluments being at any future time appropriated for the payment of the officiator.

(4). The scale of percentage remuneration adopted hitherto for Patels shall continue in future. But the increased chavdi and potgi or extra allowance proposed for Patels by Colonel Francis in his letter No. 1513 of the 24th September 1874 and sanctioned by Government Resolu-

bers should lapse to the State on the change of present incumbents if the excess were in cash, and should be liable to scrutiny and subject to the final decision of the Inám Commission, if in land bearing a greater assessment than Rs. 20.

2. But as it is proposed to supersede the detailed enquiries of the Inám Commission by a summary settlement of alienated revenue, this last provision is no longer applicable.

3. At the same time the principle already applied must be adhered to as closely as possible for the remainder of the thirty years for which the village officers may have presumed that their emoluments are fixed in connection with the guarantee of rate of assessment for the same period.

4. The only point, therefore, in which His Lordship in Council conceives that any change should be made in regard to settlements already concluded and sanctioned, is the enquiry of the Inám Commission, to which the watan is to be subjected according to the rules.

5. His Lordship in Council has been pleased to decide that, in substitution of this enquiry, the excess of land remaining after providing for the officiator's remuneration shall be taxed by a judi to the extent of one-half of such excess, the whole excess, however, being confirmed to the holders as part of the watan.

6. In other respects, the settlements already made will remain unaltered during the thirty years for which the assessment of the district is guaranteed.

7. The portion of the watan held in excess of the officiating member's emoluments will be liable to no further contribution within this period, except in the event of the amount of arable land in the village being added to, and the kamal or limit of assessment being thus increased either by the lapse of ináms or by bringing under cultivation new tracts of jungle land.

8. The emoluments of the officiator being revised decennially the rest of the watan will, if necessary, come under revision at the same time, but if the increase from the causes noted in preceding paragraph do not amount to 10 per cent., no alteration should be made in respect to the amount of judi imposed on the watan lands.

9. All excess below Rs. 20 was exempted from enquiry by the Inám Commission, and, in districts already settled, the tax imposed by paragraph 5 of this letter should not be imposed in cases in which the excess does not amount to Rs. 20.

10. But as the cause of this reservation no longer exists, His Lordship in Council is of opinion that in all settlements, now being made, or which will in future be made, the restriction should no longer hold good; and watans, in which the excess is below Rs. 20, will be treated in the same way as others.

11. Another modification which it appears to His Lordship in Council should be made in future settlements, is to change the order in which the different items composing a watan are taken into calculation in providing for the remuneration of the officiating members. Now that the excess is not to be enquired into by the Inám Commission, the order of calculation should be altered.

12. Thus the whole of the land will be first assessed for the remuneration of the officiator—if this do not suffice the Purbharrá Haks (estimated as before) and then the cash from the Treasury will go to make up the deficiency—the balance, if required, being as hitherto made up by payments from the Treasury.

tion No. 6141. dated 1st November 1875, should be adopted.*

13. By these means the State will receive the benefit of the lapse of cash allowances on the change of present incumbents, so as to make up, to some extent, for the extra amount which has to be contributed from the Treasury.

14. These principles of settlement should be applied to the remaining mahals in Collectorates in which the former rules have already been partially acted on. In other Collectorates in has already been determined to proceed on a basis different from that on which settlements were effected at a time when it was proposed to try the claims of village hereditary officers by the tribunal of the Inám Commission.

The words "cash allowances" in paragraph 13 of the foregoing letter should be understood to include both cash allowances payable from the Treasury and cash compensation for abolished Purbharra Haks. (G. L. No. 832, dated 2nd March 1860.)

The settlement referred to in paragraph 1 of Government letter No. 331 of 26th January 1860 has been generally adopted in the settlement of village officers' cash haks in the Deccan and Southern Marátha Country.

2. But it appears that a deviation from the general rule was recommended by Major Wingate so far as regarded the Marátha districts (as distinguished from the Kánarese districts) of Sholápur. The recommendation appears to have received the sanction of Government in their Resolution No. 7421 of the 23rd December 1853, the modification of Major Wingate's proposals ordered in the concluding paragraph thereof being limited to the Kánarese districts.

3. On the principle laid down in the 3rd paragraph of the Government letter of the 26th January 1860 above quoted, the Governor in Council would leave this portion of the settlement untouched until the haks of village officers are revised on the next revision of assessment. It was determined that the Marátha districts of Sholápur should be treated differently from other districts; in respect to the cash portion of village officers' emoluments, and without enquiring into the principles on which the distinction was drawn, the Governor in Council thinks that it must be upheld for the term of the survey settlement, and that their districts must continue to be treated exceptionally.

(5). As regards the Kulkarnis, the percentage scale on which they are already paid being found sufficient should be retained both for salary and stationery allowance, as sanctioned in Government Resolution No. 6141, dated 1st November 1875, paragraph 4, with the modification as regards increased potgi or extra allowance sanctioned in Government Resolution No. 991, dated 15th February 1876.*

(6). In towns and very large and troublesome places an additional payment may be awarded to officiating Patels. Note.—In Government Resolution No. 5304, dated 15th September 1876, it was ruled that in cases in which a Patel's emoluments would be lessened in consequence of potgi being calculated on population instead of on revenue, a special allowance to the then officers might be made so as to bring the new up to the old allowance, and that the oversight by which Patels' emoluments had continued to be calculated on the māmūl rates beyond the time of existing officers, for which period only its continuance had been sanctioned by Government, should not be allowed to operate to the prejudice of the interests of the State.

PART II.] [VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

(7). The whole emoluments of village officers, whether consisting of salary, potgi or extra allowance, special allowance, or stationery allowance, are payable from the watan emoluments so far as they are capable of meeting these charges.

(8). On revision of assessment, all service inam lands of every head, whether those of village officers or servants, and whether held by officers or others, shall be liable to pay local one anna cess on their survey valuation in common with all other lands.

(G. R. No. 7651, dated 28th December 1877.)

Note.—In a Resolution dated 21st June 1881, the revision survey rates in certain villages were approved by Government, but the introduction of those rates was deferred till 1883-84, and Government directed that a temporary settlement should be in force, under which the old rates of assessment plus an addition of 3 annas in each rupee of the assessment were to be levied. It was held in Government Resolution No. 3377, dated 2nd May 1883, that this temporary settlement could not be regarded as the revision of assessment contemplated in Rule 8 of the foregoing rules.

• 17. The orders in Government letter No. 331, dated 26th January 1860, are far from clear in expression, but they distinguish settlements already made from those to be made in future. In the former the principle previously applied was to be adhered to,—that is, excess above Rs. 20 was to be (not scrutinized but) taxed with half judi. As to excess of Rs. 20 and under, no change was to be made for a definite time. “In other respects the settlements made will remain unaltered during the 30 years for which the assessment of the district is guaranteed.” Clearly the exemption of excess of Rs. 20 and under ended with the 30 years’ guarantee. This being decided, the following proposals made by Colonel Anderson, Survey and Settlement Commissioner, are to be adopted; viz., (1) at the end of the 30 years’ settlement to charge excess of Rs. 20 and under half judi at the old and not the revised rate of assessment, which is according to the orders of 1875, and (2) in the few cases where the excess at the time of original settlement is not known, to put on as judi at one quarter of the present excess, because it is sure to be more than the old excess. (G. R. No. 5994, dated 11th October 1881.)

18. The principle laid down in Government Resolution* No. 813, dated 25th February 1869, should be followed in disposing of the half judi leviable on the surplus profits of the watans of the village officers in alienated villages after provision has been made for the remuneration of the village officers according to scale. (G. R. No. 3953, dated 16th May 1885.)

* Memorandum from the Revenue Commissioner, S. D., No. 454, dated 9th February 1869—Submitting for orders a letter from the Collector of Kaladgi relative to the remuneration of Patels and Kulkarnis as fixed by the Survey Department in the lately surveyed alienated villages noted in the margin: and Chondi, Nagore, Beelbhani.

VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART II.

19. A question was raised by the Commissioner, S. D., whether the rules issued by Government from time to time on the subject of imposing half judi on the unappropriated emoluments of watan lands held by Patels and Kulkarnis, were applicable to the pátilki watan which had been granted by the British Government to a certain person in March 1832 for repopulating a village and which was now held by the Patel of the village. The Commissioner observed that the imposition of half judi on unappropriated watan land emoluments, after providing remuneration for the officiator for the time being, according to the sanctioned scale, was, as explained in Government letter No. 331, dated 26th January 1860, in substitution for detailed enquiries and final settlement by the Inám Commission as to the rights of holders of watans to hold such unappropriated watan land emoluments free of any tax, and that as the pátilki watan in question had been granted in 1832 by the British Government it could not properly be argued that there was any defect in the title of the holder to all the unappropriated watan land emoluments free of any tax. Accordingly, he was of opinion that the rules and standing orders on the subject of imposing half judi were not applicable to the case in question. This opinion has been concurred in by Government. (G. R. No. 9481, dated 3rd December 1892).

20. A copy of the following memorandum from the Revenue Commissioner, N. D. (No. 1906, dated 20th June 1865) was forwarded to the Revenue Commissioner, S. D., with a request that when any revision of Patels' emoluments in the Deccan took place, the plan adopted in Khándesh might be extended to the Collectorates in the Southern Division.

"In reply to the Chief Secretary's Memo. No. 2465, dated 12th instant, the Revenue Commissioner, N. D., begs to state that the Patels in the surveyed districts of Ahmedabad, where alone the revision of the village expenses in respect to Gujarát has been undertaken, the principle is to grant the Patels a contingent allowance at twice the amount given to Talátis for stationery under the Wingate's scale. In villages under peculiar circumstances the allowance is fixed at thrice the amount.

Vide G. R. No. 4646, dated 23rd November 1864, para. 8.

"2. In Khándesh the Patels get the same allowance as the Kulkarnis according to the Wingate Scale."

Vide para. 4 of the Resolution quoted above.

(G. L. No. 2777, dated 29th June 1865.)

recommending, with reference to the question therein asked regarding the disposal of the one-half judi proposed to be levied by the Survey Department on the difference between the original value of the land and the judi the Patels and Kulkarnis now pay in those villages, that in alienated villages Government be pleased, for the reasons explained by him, to forego the profit they might in these cases claim, and that the judi be remitted to the Patel and Kulkarni, or rather to the watan in each case.

RESOLUTION.—No judi should be levied in such cases.

(G. R. No. 813, dated 25th February 1869.)

B 1955—498 REV.

PART II.] [VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.]

21. As regards the fluctuating allowances to Patels and Kulkarnis, on no account must any attempt be made to alter or evade the obligation to fix every ten years the scale of emoluments according to the average of the preceding five years. The scale may be modified after a revision of the general assessment of a district, but not during the currency of a settlement made for thirty years. The official emoluments should be revised every ten years on the average of the five preceding years, but no alteration of scale will be made except at a general revision of the assessment of the district. The appropriateness of the scale will then come under review; for all intermediate revisions no alteration of scale will be necessary. Alienated shares of revenue should follow the same rules as Patels' and Kulkarnis' fluctuating allowances. (G. R. No. 1603, dated 21st April 1868, and No. 3814, dated 13th October 1868.)

22. Rules for fluctuating payments do not apply to amals held under summary settlement. (G. Rs. Nos. 2740, dated 17th July 1868; and G. R. No. 3977, dated 20th June 1882.)

23. Government Resolution No. 2740, dated 17th July 1868, cannot legally be applied to a title formally adjudicated on and rendered transferable and heritable by recognition under Section 4 of Act II of 1863. There is nothing in the Act to indicate that it was the intention of the Legislature to change the subject-matter of the property settled. (L. R. No. 699, dated 12th June 1893; vide G. R. No. 4341, dated 16th idem.)

24. It is clear that Government Resolution No. 1603 of 21st April 1868 does not modify the rule laid down in Government Resolution* No. 199, dated 18th January 1858, regarding the commutation every ten years of the emoluments of Patels and Kulkarnis and of alienated shares of revenue. The intention of the orders conveyed in paragraph 3 of the former Resolution, which was clearly explained in a subsequent Resolution No. 3814, dated 13th October 1868, was that the remuneration of Patels and Kulkarnis should be fixed every ten years in accordance with the rule laid down in the Resolution of 1858, but that if any alteration in the scale fixed at the survey for the calculation of the remuneration of these village officers was deemed to be necessary, it should be effected only at the time of a general revision of the assessment of a district or taluka.

* "His Lordship in Council is fully convinced of the general expediency of the course recommended by you for adoption, which would effect the commutation of the fluctuating annual payment at present made on account of village and district officers' village expenses and alienated shares of revenue for fixed amounts calculated on the average receipts of the last five years, but subject to modification when the claims of the recipients are finally adjudicated by the Alienation Department, or after ten years. Government direct that the proposed commutation be at once carried into effect."

(G. R. No. 199, dated 18th January 1858 (para. 2).)

VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART II.

All payments of alienated shares of revenue which include saranjám amals should be regulated by the rule laid down in the Resolution of 1858. (G. R. No. 9688, dated 1st December 1885.)

25. A contingent allowance (equal in amount to that allowed to Kulkarnis by Wingate's scale for stationery should be given to Patels for lighting and repairing chávdis and for other miscellaneous expenditure. It is to be given to Patels in Karnátik as well as in the Deccan.

The allowance is to be given when the scale of remuneration comes, under revision, either on or after the introduction of the survey assessments.

Patels in lapsed villages are to receive the allowance when their emoluments are being settled for the first time.

(G. R. No. 3904, dated 14th August 1871.)

26. In Kánara each hamlet should have a separate Patel in all cases in which the Collector is satisfied that the revenue and police administration of a hamlet cannot be properly carried on by the Patel of the parent village.

In villages the revenues of which are under Rs. 100, a fixed allowance of Rs. 5 is to be granted, in addition to the percentage on revenue. In other villages the scale should be as follows:—

|                             |                 |        |
|-----------------------------|-----------------|--------|
| When the revenue is between | Rs. 100 and 200 | Rs. 4. |
| Ditto                       | „ 200 „ 300     | „ 3.   |
| Ditto                       | „ 300 „ 400     | „ 2.   |
| Ditto                       | „ 400 „ 500     | „ 1.   |

When the revenue is below Rs. 100, nothing is to be granted beyond the fixed allowance of Rs. 5. In villages of which the revenue is between Rs. 100 and Rs. 500, there is to be allowed a percentage of 3 per cent. in addition to the fixed allowance, and in those with revenue exceeding the latter amount, that percentage alone without any fixed allowance. His Excellency in Council will, however, not object to increase the fixed allowance to Rs. 10 on special report from the Collector in cases in which it may be shown that the work of the Patel, in consequence of the position of his village or other circumstances, will be so hard as to occupy so much of his time as to preclude him from attending to his fields or otherwise earning a livelihood.

(G. Rs. Nos. 5611, dated 8th November 1871, and 402, dated 27th January 1872.)

27. The remuneration of the Shánbhogs or Kulkarnis in Kánara should be fixed at a maximum of Rs. 150 and a minimum of Rs. 120 per annum. (G. R. No. 3994, dated 12th July 1873.)

28. In calculating the sums due to Patels and Shánbhogs in Kánara, fractions of rupees should be omitted. (G. R. No. 4904, dated 30th August 1873.)

29. The office of Shanbhogs in Kánara is not to be considered hereditary, but the Collector should

PART II.] [VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

select the best man available and appoint him to hold office during good behaviour. The Collector will no doubt show as much consideration as possible to the members of those families who have formerly held office. (G. Rs. Nos. 5611, dated 8th November 1871, and 3994, dated 12th July 1873.)

30. It is extremely inadvisable to remunerate Patels and other village servants partly by the remission of assessment to tree-tax on liquor-producing trees enjoyed by them, both on account of the naturally fluctuating value of the remission and the probability of the exemption affording opportunities for the practice of fraud. (G. R. No. 4102, dated 19th August 1872.)

31. The following principles should be regarded in dealing with the question of the remuneration of village officers in districts in which revised settlements have been carried out :—

- (1) That the officiators, those who do the work, should receive the full amount to which they would be entitled under the established scales.
- (2) That the whole of the watan lands are liable by law (Section 23 of Bombay Act III of 1874) for the remuneration of the officiators.
- (3) That it is bad policy to avoid present liability by the promises of permanent settlement, especially when half the benefit of that settlement will go to the non-officiators.

(G. I., R., A. & C., No. 415, dated 31st May 1877; vide G. R. No. 6412, dated 26th October 1877.)

32. The following is the scale of allowance to be paid to Village Accountants and Patels for collecting the one-anna Local Fund Cess :—

|                                                            | Kulkarni. |    |    | Patels. |    |    |

and so on.

When a Talāti has more than one village, the payment is to be calculated on the total collections made in all the villages comprised in his saja; but this rule is not to be enforced in the case of khots. A khot who has more than one village should be allowed remuneration according to the scale sanctioned for each village separately. (G. Rs. Nos. 6183, dated 15th December 1870, 1650, dated 22nd March 1873, 2719, dated 12th May 1875, and 3497, dated 21st June 1875.)

VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART II.

The payment of percentage to village officers on collections of Local Funds sand and quarry fees is sanctioned.

The remuneration to be allowed to village officers for collecting the Local Funds Cess should be calculated not on the number of days each Patel or Taláti performs work in the village from which the cess is collected, but on the gross amount each collects. (G. R., F. D., No. 3143, dated 15th September 1879.)

33. The emoluments of Patels, Kulkarnis or hereditary village accountants and Talátis or stipendiary village accountants for the collection of the Local Fund Cess should be fixed for ten years on the average of previous five years' collections of the cess. These orders do not apply to Sind and the Kánara District.

G. Rs. Nos. 2847, dated 4th June 1878, 3931, dated 5th August 1878, 4964, dated 20th September 1880, and 163, dated 10th January 1881.)

34. Remuneration is not to be granted to village officers in alienated villages for the collection by them of the Local Fund Cess. It is for the alienees and not Government to remunerate them for collecting the cess. (G. Rs. Nos. 2057, dated 20th April 1880, 5177, dated 20th September 1880, and 349, dated 18th January 1881.)

35. The rules for the assessment of the Local Fund Cess in alienated villages are given in Section 7 of (Bombay) Act III of 1869, and the following section provides that the cess shall be levied 'in the same manner and under the same provisions of law as the ordinary land revenue,' that is to say, the cess is leviable from the superior holders of alienated villages (fixed in accordance with the said rules) as the ordinary land revenue is. The same section, (Section 8) further provides that the superior holder is entitled to the same assistance in recovering the cess from the inferior holders to which he is lawfully entitled in recovering his dues on account of rent or land revenue.

The superior holder may receive payment of the cess direct from his tenants or inferior holders without the intervention of the village officers, for there is no provision of law which requires such payments to be made through the village officers. Section 85 of the Land Revenue Code refers to payment of dues on account of rent or land revenue and does not apply to payment of Local Fund Cess.

The superior holders are not bound to employ the village officers as their agents for collecting the cess ; neither are the latter bound to collect the same, as such collection is no part of the duties attaching to their hereditary office.

As regards unalienated villages, the cess must necessarily be levied from the occupants of survey numbers and by such agency as Government may appoint for the purpose of collection. It appears that village officers are employed for this purpose and are paid a percentage on their collections; but it is, of course, open to Government to appoint or employ whatever agency may appear most suitable.

Inámdárs are bound by the terms of their sanads to pay the amount due on account of Local Fund Cess from their villages, and they are free to employ whatever agency they may see fit in collecting the same from the rayats; but the expense of collection constitutes no lien either on the Local Funds or on Government. All that the Inámdárs are entitled to is the assistance in collecting the cess to which they are entitled under Section 86 of the Land Revenue Code in collecting their dues. If they wish to employ the village officers as agents to collect the cess, the latter will be quite justified in refusing to act unless they are paid reasonable remuneration.

The Inámdárs have no cause of complaint, because whatever amount of Local Fund Cess they pay in to Government they recover, or can recover, from their tenants. So far they pay nothing themselves towards the undertakings effected by the Local Fund Committee for the benefit of the whole district. There is, therefore, no hardship whatever if the Inámdárs have to employ an agency in expecting them to pay for it themselves. (L. R. No. 568, dated 18th May 1882; vide G. R. No. 3761, dated 10th June 1882.)

36. By Section 8 of the Bombay Local Funds Act, 1869, Local Fund Cess is directed to be levied in the same manner and under the same provisions of law as the ordinary land revenue. In the case, therefore, of an alienated village the cess is to be levied like the ordinary land revenue from the superior holder of that village, i.e., from the Inámdár. The agency to be employed in the collection of the cess from Inámdárs, as well as from all other persons directly liable to Government for its payment, is left by the section to the discretion of the Collector, and he exercises this discretion by employing for the purpose the same Revenue officers who collect the ordinary land revenue. In unalienated villages the village officers are so employed.

By Section 44, clause (b), of the Bombay Local Boards Act, 1884, "the net proceeds (after deducting the expenses of assessment and collection) of the cess levied under the Bombay Local Funds Act, 1869," have to be credited to the Local Fund. This enactment authorizes the deduction from the gross proceeds of the cess of the cost of its collection.

VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART II.]

The latter part of Section 8 of the Bombay Local Funds Act, 1869, authorizes Inámdárs to recover the cess, which they pay to Government, from their tenants, and for this purpose entitles them to the same assistance which the law (i.e., Sections 86 and 87 of the Land Revenue Code) allows them in respect of the "recovery of their dues from their tenants and occupants under them."

It appears that this recovery of the cess from the tenants is made in alienated villages by the village officers on behalf of the Inámdárs.

There is no authority in the law for charging the cost of recovering the cess for an Inámdár from his tenants to the Local Fund, and the Local Boards would have a just cause of complaint if any such deduction were made by the Collectors from the gross proceeds of the cess.

As pointed out by the late Mr. Cordeaux in his No. 568 of 18th May 1882, the law really imposes no burden on Inámdárs on account of the Local Fund Cess, because whatever they pay in the way of cess they are entitled to recover again from their tenants. They escape, therefore, very lightly when nothing more than the cost of this recovery from their tenants falls upon them.

37. Remissions granted on the introduction of the revised settlements under Government orders relating to the gradual introduction of revised settlement rates should be taken into calculation, i.e., not deducted, when revising the remuneration payable to village officers for the collection of Local Fund Cess. (G. R. No. 1822, dated 11th March 1893.)

38. Remuneration to village officers for collecting Public Works Irrigation Revenue is to be calculated and paid precisely as if the revenue so collected were the ordinary revenue of the village, that is to say, it will merely form one of the items on the aggregate of which the remuneration is calculated from time to time according to Wingate's scale.

Whenever irrigation revenue raises the revenue of a village 15 per cent. over what it was before, the Commissioner should revise the rates of remuneration to the village officers, although the term of ten years for which they have been fixed under Wingate's scale has not expired. (G. R. No. 3635, dated 28th June 1875.)

39. The following are the rules for the remuneration of village officers for collecting irrigation revenue:—

Rule 1.—If, at the expiration of five years from the time water for purposes of irrigation is made use of, the five years' average amount of irrigation receipts raises the revenue of a village 15 per cent., then the revision of the scale remuneration fixed for ten years should take place before the expiry of the term.

Rule 2.—In unsurveyed villages, where the remuneration of village officers has not been fixed for ten years on an average of five years' receipts, the remuneration on irrigation revenue should be paid in the same way as the remuneration on land revenue is paid. In calculating this remuneration irrigation revenue and land revenue should be added together, and the remuneration calculated on the single sum thus obtained.

Rule 3.—In alienated villages where Government do not derive any land revenue, the remuneration on irrigation revenue should be calculated on that revenue alone.

Rule 4.— * * *. After the expiration of the term for which village officers' remuneration has been fixed, when a new settlement is being made for the next ten years, the Public Works revenue will form one of the items on which the remuneration is to be calculated.

(G. R. No. 769, dated 4th February 1876.)

40. Remuneration should be given to village officers for collecting irrigation revenue although the five years' average of irrigation receipts may not have raised the revenue of the village 15 per cent. (G. R. No. 2457, dated 8th May 1879.)

41. Irrigation revenue should be added to land revenue and the remuneration of village officers calculated upon the total. The grant of contingent allowance seems unnecessary in respect of the collection of irrigation revenue. (G. Rs. Nos. 177, dated 8th January 1887, and 6777, dated 11th October 1888).

42. In Government Resolution No. 1861, dated 5th June 1863, it was decided that the Patel should receive a quarter of an anna and the Kulkarni half an anna on each rupee of chauthai and nazarāna levied from Kādim Ināmdārs, and these rates were in Government Resolution No. 1654, dated 16th March 1876, extended to all items of land revenue derived by Government from alienated villages. Remuneration should be paid at the same rates for the collection of irrigation revenue in alienated villages. (G. R. No. 2675, dated 28th March 1884.)

43. The remuneration for the village officers of Sātāra should be calculated according to Rose's scale, which is the one in force in that district, on the whole revenue, that is, land and irrigational revenues put together. (G. R. No. 2532, dated 18th April 1882.)

44. The allowances of Patels and Kulkarnis who are hereditary officers are not to be treated in the light of "salaries or service emoluments other than wātans"* and written off if not claimed for two years. They should be retained in the books for six years. (G. R. No. 5453, dated 15th October 1880.)

45. Remuneration should be granted to village officers entrusted with the duty of collecting the tax leviable under the Bombay Highway Act, 1883, at the rate at which such officers are paid for collecting Local Fund revenue within their charges. (G. R. No. 2266, dated 15th March 1884.)

46. Taláti in the Thána District who may be entrusted in addition to their own work with the duty of collecting the revenues of izáfát villages under Government attachment situated in the neighbourhood of their sajas should be remunerated at the rate of Rs. 2 per cent. (G. R. No. 1624, dated 24th February 1885.)

47. The payment of chávdi or contingent allowance to village officers should be regulated according to the rules in force as regards the disbursement of remuneration to them, i.e.; the allowance may be retained in the accounts for a period of six years and the arrears subjected to the usual deduction rules. (G. R. No. 527, dated 21st January 1887.)

48. Assistant and Deputy Collectors are authorized to sanction the payment of arrears of chávdi and contingent charges for village officers. (G. R. No. 1037, dated 7th February 1891.)

49. The following rules for the collection of forest revenue by village officers in the Presidency proper and for the payment of remuneration to them came into force from 1st April 1887. The rules are applicable to all forest revenue, including grazing fees:—

I.—When the agency of village officers is in future employed in the collection of forest revenue they shall be remunerated by a deduction from the gross revenue collected at the time it is made over by them to Forest officers and at no other time.

Sums paid for grass reserves, &c., and not passing necessarily through the village books should not carry remuneration to village officers.

II.—The rate of remuneration payable shall be 6 pies in the rupee to the Patel and 9 pies in the rupee to the Kulkarni. In calculating the amount of remuneration due to any village officer, fractions of a rupee above eight annas shall be regarded as one rupee; all others shall be neglected.

III.—Village officers shall issue passes or grant receipts for revenue received from pass-books (in counterfoil, each leaf of which shall be numbered consecutively,) supplied to them by the Forest Department after entering the particulars in the counterfoils. When the passes are issued, the village officers shall take the signature of the persons to whom passes are issued on the counterfoils.

PART II.] [VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

IV.—The collections made by the village officer shall be accounted for to the Forest officer when on his rounds, or when the village officer calls on the Forest officer for the necessary chalans. The village officer may accumulate his collections for a month, but not for a longer time. The Forest officer shall receive the money due from the village officer or give to the village officer a chalan for the full amount entered in the counterfoils, less the remuneration due to the village officer.

V.—The Forest officer, on receiving the amount or giving the chalan, shall obtain a receipt from the village officer for the remuneration deducted in the following form :—

Receipt for remuneration due for the collection of Forest Revenue by the officers of Village
Taluka , District , from

VI.—If in any village any difficulty be felt in obtaining the countersignature of the officers of the Forest Department, the Conservator may, after satisfying himself of the difficulty, authorize the Treasury or Sub-Treasury Officer concerned to receive forest revenue collected by village officers without the countersignature on the chalan by officers of the Forest Department. The officer receiving the money should see that the calculation of the remuneration is correct, and should send the chalan and the receipt for remuneration to the Range Forest Officer in whose accounts the receipts of such village are accounted for.

VII.—In the accounts kept by the Forest Department the gross amount of revenue collected shall be credited and the remuneration paid be debited to the appropriate heads of account.

VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART II.

VIII.—At the end of each month the Divisional Forest Officer shall, as prescribed in Section 143 of the Forest Code, draw a cheque for the amount of remuneration paid by himself and his subordinates during the month to be credited at the Treasury by transfer to Forest Remittances.

IX.—When revenue collected by village officers is refunded, the remuneration paid to the village officers for its collection need not be recovered unless the village officers are to blame in collecting it.

X.—The counterfoils of all exhausted pass-books shall be made over by the village officers to the Forest Department for record in that department.

XI.—Forest officers shall, occasionally, on their rounds, collect, if possible, passes granted by village officers and compare them with the corresponding counterfoils.

(G. Rs. Nos. 1511, dated 11th March 1887, and 4565, dated 19th July 1887.)

PART III.—GADKARIS.

1. Shortly after Mr. Rose became Collector of Sátára, that officer issued a circular, dated 3rd May 1855, ordering all Gadkaris* holdings to be continued during the lifetime of existing incumbents and directing that afterwards they were to be made khálsát. Up to 1st May 1862 the holdings of 373 Gadkaris had consequent on that circular lapsed. There remained 1,191 Gadkaris. The majority of these were of ancient origin. On 8th September 1862 the Collector, Mr. Chapman, recommended that the fairest way of disposing of their case was to at once dispense with all service, to stop all cash payments, and to continue their holdings at half their assessment,—that is to say, on the terms laid down in Government Resolution No. 2606, dated 1st June 1861, for the disposal of Watandárs whose services though perhaps formerly of use are now not required either by Government or the community. Government considered the principle of the settlement proposed very fair as regards the rank and file, but directed that any special case which was not clearly one of service should be specially reported by the Collector, and that the half assessment was to be allowed only to the present incumbents and the heirs of present or late incumbents being their lineal descendants. It was not intended to exclude the heirs of Gadkaris whose holdings had already lapsed since the date of Mr. Rose's promulgation from the benefits of the settlement, but to prevent claims being put forward hereafter on the part of collateral relations and those who might have voluntarily thrown up their land or had been dispossessed. The hereditary title is to be applied only to the heirs of holders at the time when Mr. Rose in 1855 declared the holdings to be restricted as life-grants, and the sole effect of the orders passed by Government is to make the holdings continuable to the lineal descendants of those holders. (G. Rs. Nos. 541, dated 21st February 1863, 1111, dated 10th April 1863, 2109, dated 27th June 1863, 3088 dated 14th September 1863, and 2575, dated 9th July 1864.)

2. As regards "Tynats" continued hereditarily to the Gadkaris of the Parghad and Kullanidhi in the Belgaum District by Government letter No. 4118, dated 27th June 1849, in cases of proved poverty and destitution, a moiety or other portion of the "Tynat" may be continued to the widow of the last incumbent, who was the last surviving male descendant of the grantee during her lifetime, no service being exacted on account of the * "Gadkari" is described by Molesworth as a soldier or peon serving in a hill fort. Their holdings were of very ancient origin, some having been conferred in the days of Shivaji. But it would seem that like the Amaráñit tenure in other parts of India they were regarded under Native rule as resumable at pleasure. (L. R. No. 1375, dated 17th October 1880: vide G. R. same. (G. R. No. 3087, dated 14th September 1863.)

3. Gadkari lands can be continued to brothers (including half brothers by the father's side) as well as adopted sons of the grantees in possession in 1855, but the concession is not to extend further. This indulgence should be allowed to have retrospective effect, but should not extend to any repayments in cash. (G. Rs. Nos. 5932, dated 10th November 1874, 5170, dated 10th September 1875, 6014, dated 25th October 1875, and 4154, dated 19th July 1876.)

4. Gadkaris should not be permitted to lease their lands. If allowed to do so they would practically be authorized to alienate them altogether. Any sávkár would at once perceive the loop-hole left open for him in the sanad,* and would force his Gadkari debtor to lease to him his service holding at a nominal rate on what would practically be a perpetual lease.

The privilege of adoption should be strictly limited to persons who were holders in 1855. If it were conceded to their brothers and descendants, Government would by so doing virtually alienate these lands for ever.

The order contained in Government Resolution No. 541, dated 21st February 1863, was that the lands were to be continued, but the holders were to pay as judi one-half of the assessment, and by "one-half of the assessment" must be held to be signified one-half of the survey assessment on the land according to the rates for the time being in force. In other words, the judi is liable to increase or decrease on a revision settlement.

(G. R. No. 8690, dated 28th December 1888.)

5. It is not intended by the orders in Government Resolution No. 8690, dated 28th December 1888, that all alienated Gadkari lands should be resumed. Unless the owners of Gadkari lands are informed of the terms on which they hold them it will not be fair to enforce such terms. The alienations previous to the issue of those orders should not therefore be disturbed. The lands can only be resumed in those cases if the family of the holder in 1855 has become extinct. (G. R. No. 4459, dated 21st June 1889.)

---

* A form of the sanads to be granted to Gadkaris was sanctioned by Government Resolutions Nos. 1634, dated 27th February 1889, and 7801, dated 16th October 1889.

PART IV.—POLICE PATELS.

1. The wording of Section 5 of Bombay Act VIII of 1867 is not very clear, but the question whether the words 'so far as the same may be applicable' in clause 2 of Section 5 of that Act would warrant a Magistrate in refusing service from a Watandár or deputy who might satisfy the qualifications required by the watan law, but would be obviously of immature age for Police Patel's duty, may be answered in the affirmative, subject to the proviso that what might be immature age in one case need not necessarily be 20 in another, and that no rule on the subject can be laid down.

Section 5 while requiring appointments to be made according to the principles of the Watan Act so far as the same may be applicable cannot have intended to necessitate the appointment of a Watandár obviously unfit for the duties prescribed by the remaining sections of the Act. What may constitute such unfitness is a matter of some nicety which can only be decided in each case as it arises, but when the result of following in their entirety the provisions of the watan law would be to compel the Magistrate to appoint a person clearly unfit for the duties it might fairly be held that the provisions in question were inapplicable. In so far, however, as they did not lead to such a result they should be followed. (L. R. No. 1610, dated 22nd December 1887: vide G. R. No. 861, dated 8th February 1888.)

2. When the office of Police Patel has been customarily given to the Revenue Patel, the representative Watandár if fit for revenue office will presumably be also fit for police duty, and no question of nomination of a deputy will arise. If the representative Watandár is not qualified for the revenue duty and is allowed to appoint a deputy, the Magistrate can either select a Police Patel from the other representative Watandárs, if any, or if there are none, or none fit, can invest the deputy with the office of Police Patel.

When the office of Police Patel is held as a separate watan from that of Revenue Patel, if there be only one representative registered by the Collector and he is unfit to serve, but not unfit to nominate a deputy, the Magistrate should call upon him to nominate under Chapter VIII of the Watan Act. If there be more than one representative registered by the Collector, and the Watandár whose turn it is to serve is not fit, the Magistrate may appoint any other registered representative, and if none are fit, may call upon the Watandár whose turn it is to serve to nominate a deputy under Chapter VIII of the Watan Act. (G. R. No. 3057, dated 25th April 1889.)

3. In 1887 on a reference made from the Deccan in a case arising under Bombay Act III of 1874, the then Acting Remembrancer of Legal Affairs,

PART IV.] [VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.]

Mr. Fulton, traced, but not quite from the beginning, the history of "the Patel." This together with his opinion (No. 1058, dated 12th August 1887*) is given at length in the preamble to Government Resolution No. 5902, dated 2nd September

*Memorandum from the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, No. 1058, dated 12th August 1887:—

"The provisions of Section 6 of Regulation XII of 1827, which remained in force till the passing of Bombay Act VIII of 1867, were as follows:—

The police of each village shall be under charge of the Patel or chief manager of the revenue thereof and shall be conducted as prescribed in Chapter VI. The officer shall be furnished with a written commission in the form of Appendix C, but in the event of his occasional absence, the duties, with the exception of adjudging punishments, shall be carried on by the person next to him in responsibility and influence at the village. When the village revenue management is divided among different persons, the Magistrate shall select one of them to make charge of the police, and if the revenue arrangements are of such a nature as not to devolve particularly on any person resident at the village, the Magistrate shall select some one residing therein to perform the duty."

"2. The next law on the subject was Section 5, Clause 2, of Bombay Act VIII of 1867, which provides that—

'In making the appointment (of Police Patel) the Magistrate shall have due regard to the provisions of Act XI of 1843 or other Acts in force for regulating the services of hereditary officers so far as the same may be applicable; but when the Revenue Patel is not appointed Police Patel and more persons than one claim by reason of hereditary right to perform the duties in rotation or otherwise, it shall be lawful for the Magistrate of the district to appoint the most fit from among their members.'

"3. The second sentence of this clause is not quite so free from ambiguity as might be desired, but I think it is clear that in cases in which the Revenue Patel is not appointed Police Patel the Magistrate's choice is restricted to those who claim by reason of hereditary right to perform the duties by rotation or otherwise, when there are such claimants. This of course implies that the claimants must have hereditary right to perform the duties, for a mere allegation of such right will not satisfy the requirements of the section. It cannot properly be said that a person claims by reason of hereditary right if he merely alleges such right without possessing it. A difficulty arises as to the meaning of the expression 'the duties.' Looking to Regulation XII of 1827 one might be inclined to hold that the words related to the revenue duties and that it was only from among persons who rightfully claimed by reason of hereditary right to perform the duties of Revenue Patel that the selection could be made. It might be said considering Section 6 of Regulation XII of 1827, which was only repealed when Bombay Act VIII of 1867 came into force, that no one could possibly claim of hereditary right to perform the duties of Police Patel unless he was also entitled to perform the duties of Revenue Patel. But I think the expression must refer to 'the duties of Police Patel,' and the answer to the above objection must be that Section 6 of the Regulation must not be construed too literally, that the expression 'village revenue management' meant no more than the Patelki or administrative headship of the village which was originally one office, and that the section simply intended that one of the Patels was always to be given a sanad empowering him to take charge of the village police and the Magistrate was not to appoint an outsider so long as a Patel resident in the village was available. I do not think it meant to prohibit the appointment of any Patel to whom custom did not assign a share in the duty of collection of the revenue, though such would have been its effect if it had been understood in its narrowest sense.

"4. In practice, however, I think it must have been liberally interpreted, for instances are, I believe, numerous both in the Dekkan and in North Gujarát where so far back as the records go the offices of Revenue and Police Patel have always been held.

1837. He shows that when the Deccan first came under English dominion there was but one such officer recognized, viz., the Revenue Patel; that construing the expression of Regulation XII of 1827 literally "no one could possibly claim of hereditary right to perform the duties of Police Patel unless he was also entitled to perform the duties of Revenue Patel;" that the office of Patel, the administrative headship of the village, was originally one office: that, construing the Regulation not too literally, in settling the register of Watan-dárs the Collector of the District was to decide what was the custom of the watan, and that if he found that "one branch has by custom acquired the sole right to serve as Police Patel, he can register such right, and the Magistrate who makes by separate families or separate branches of the same family. Probably in this respect the customs of various villages and various parts of the country differ considerably. In the famous report of 1819 on the territories conquered from the Peshwa we find the Honourable Mountstewart Elphinstone writing as follows:—

'The Patels are the most important functionaries in the villages and perhaps the most important class in the country. They hold their office by a grant from the Government (generally from that of the Mogals), are entitled in virtue of it to lands and fees, and have various little privileges and distinctions of which they are as tenacious as of their land. Their office and emoluments are hereditary and saleable with the consent of Government, but are seldom sold except in cases of extreme necessity, though a partner is sometimes admitted with a careful reservation of the superiority of the old possessor. The Patel is head of the police and of the administration of justice.'

"5. The statement of the Collector of Dhárwar quoted in Government Resolution No. 4157 of 10th June 1886, that the office of Police Patel was created by the English Government appears inconsistent with the above extract which is supported by several other reports written about the same time, and the conclusion arrived at in the resolution is one which I most respectfully submit, though it may have been correct in the particular instance, cannot be accepted as of general application. Probably in most cases the patelki watan with its various revenue and police functions was originally the property of a single family, but as pointed out by Mr. Elphinstone, sometimes partners were admitted and this may account for the existence of separate taksims in some villages belonging to families of different castes. When such partition took place the duties may have been divided, and even where no alienation of any watan occurred and no family of outsiders was admitted into partnership it is easy to imagine that by custom the police duties may have been assigned to one branch of the family and the revenue functions to another.

"6. It was probably to provide for contingencies of this sort that the wording of Section 5 of Act VIII of 1867 was made to point directly to the hereditary principle recognised in Act XI of 1843, rather than to attempt to associate the office of Police Patel invariably with that of Revenue Patel.

"7. According to my view, then, Section 5 binds the Magistrate to appoint as Police Patel the person having sole hereditary right to that office if there is one, but in case there is no such person and there are two or three claimants having an hereditary interest in the office, the Magistrate is not bound to follow a particular order of rotation, but can select from among them. I do not think, however, he would be justified in selecting from a branch which in consequence of some ancient alienation or family custom had long lost its right to perform police duties.

"8. The question appears to me then to be entirely one of custom, and that can be decided by the Collector when prepared the appointment of Police Patel, will be bound to recognise it" under the Police Act. Government, however, in their Resolution quoted above guarded themselves from accepting the conclusion "that the office of Police Patel as now constituted was always associated with that of Revenue head of a village in all parts of the Presidency," but they accepted and allowed to be acted upon in all parts of the Presidency proper the view that the Collector preparing the register could decide what was the custom of the watan so far as the Police Patel was concerned, and if he found that the custom had invariably been for a particular family to do that duty, he could enter it in the register, and the register would thenceforward be binding on all parties.

In 1890 a reference was made to Government regarding a matádári watan from Gujarát, and the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, Mr. Naylor, in his ing the watan register. Section 25 imposes on him the duty of determining the custom of the watan as to service, and in the register he can note down any rules or limitations which are authorized by custom.

"9. In cases in which there are distinct taksims belonging to radically different families and attached to distinct offices, I think as recommended in my report No. 1047, dated 9th instant, there is no objection to treating the several taksims with their respective offices as distinct watans. But, where as apparently in the present case, the different branches of family spring from one original Watandár it does not appear necessary to do so. The heads of the families can be registered as representative Watandárs of one watan. If the Collector thinks that one branch has by custom acquired the sole right to serve as Police Patel he can register such right, and the Magistrate who makes the appointment of Police Patel will, I think, be bound to recognise it under the first sentence of the clause from the Police Act above quoted.

"10. It will be observed that the mere fact of registration as a representative Watandár does not necessarily include the right to discharge at some time or other every function of Patel, for in each case it is the duty of the Collector to determine the custom of the watan after consideration of the practice heretofore observed from the earliest period for which there are records or other evidence available. The patelki was probably one, but in many villages it is now broken up into several parts though at the same time the whole taken collectively may still be treated as one office and the descendants of the original Watandár may still collectively be deemed to discharge the duties for which the watan was conferred upon their ancestor and may therefore properly be registered as representative Watandárs of one watan notwithstanding that each is entitled to perform only one particular portion of the duties.

"11. In regard to taksims held by separate families the case is somewhat different. There must at some period have been a creation of a distinct office probably with the sanction of or in consequence of the interference of the sovereign power; and all connection between the several fragments of the old watan appear severed. The various families have no reversionary or other interest in each other's taksims; and each constitutes for all practical purposes a separate watan which probably it would be found convenient to recognise as such in the registers.

"12. For the above reasons, I think the question whether the petitioner can be granted the exclusive right of performing police duties may be answered in the affirmative provided it is found that by invariable custom her family has always discharged the functions of police Patel and a decision to that effect is passed either by the Collector under Section 25 of the Watan Act or by Government under Section 79."

* Report by the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, No. 1019, dated 15th July 1890:—

“The opinion printed in the preamble to Government Resolution No. 5902 of 2nd September 1887 is attributed by the Commissioner to me, but it was really submitted to Government by my locum tenens Mr. Fulton, and I have myself seen it now for the first time. It is not necessary for the purposes of the present reference that I should consider how far my views coincide with those which Mr. Fulton expressed with regard to a question affecting the operation of the Hereditary Offices Act in the Deccan only; but as regards the districts in which the Matadars Act is in force, I am unable to discover any authority for the separate recognition by Government of a Police Patelship and a Revenue Patelship.

“2. The earliest Regulation on the subject is No. IV of 1818, Section 3 of which directed that ‘Heads of villages should be heads of the Police of their respective villages,’ and provided, that ‘in villages where there may be more than one headman coming under the denomination of Patels, Pátidárs or other designation, the person who collects the revenue and under whose authority the village servants act, shall be considered as the head of the village.’ The object of this Regulation being, to quote from its preamble, to establish a system of Police ‘founded chiefly upon the ancient usages of the country,’ this early definition of the term ‘headman of the village’ leaves, I think, little doubt that the Ughrátdár, ‘the person who collects the revenue,’ was at that time deemed to be the person in whom the custom of the country vested the right to exercise Police-powers also. Under the Native rule the collection of the revenue was the headman’s principal duty, his raison d’être, so far as the ruling authorities were concerned; he, no doubt, exercised some Police-powers also, but they were little thought of. It is only under the British Government that the Police duties and powers have gradually assumed a greater importance than the revenue office, till now the Commissioner is able to speak of ‘the subordinate office of Revenue Patel.’

“3. Regulation XII of 1827 followed the Regulation of 1818 in placing ‘the Police of each village under charge of the Patel or chief manager of the revenue thereof,’ and provided that ‘when the village revenue management is divided among different persons, the Magistrate shall select one of them to take charge of the Police.’ This Regulation continued to be the law of this presidency for forty years, until, in 1867, the late Sir Barrow Ellis brought in the Village Police Bill. But it does not appear from the proceedings in Council at the passing of that Bill (Proceedings of Bombay Legislative Council VI, 73–74), that there was any intention of altering the law as regards the charge of the Village Police which had hitherto prevailed. The Village Police Act was, in fact, introduced as a supplement to the District Police Act, and in moving its second reading Sir Barrow Ellis said: ‘There was very little that was new in the Bill, it being merely a re-enactment of portions of Regulation XII of 1827, which related to the Police, with such modifications as were necessary to fit the provisions of that Regulation into the system which had been approved and settled by the Council in the Bill (the District Police Bill) which had just been read a third time and passed.’ The present Section 5 of the Village Police Act was substituted by the Council, on Sir Barrow Ellis’ motion, for the section which originally appeared in the Bill, but there is no indication in the few words with which Sir Barrow Ellis introduced his motion that any radical change of system was contemplated. His reason was, he said, ‘that as the clauses of the section originally stood, the meaning was not very clear, and there appeared to be some fear that there might be a collision between the provisions of one clause and those of another, and besides he had not felt at all satisfied that the whole because of British rules and regulations the Police Patel as now constituted was evolved from him. Mr. Naylor construed strictly the Regulation which Mr. Fulton considered need not be too narrowly construed, but both arrived at the very conclusion which Government had guarded themselves from.

would fit into the requirements of the Hereditary Offices Act.' He went on to say it was difficult to frame any section which might not be difficult to work in connection with the Hereditary Offices Act, but he trusted that that Act would ere long be amended and in the meantime 'under the amendments as he had now framed them, there would, he believed, so far as could be foreseen, be no difficulty in making the appointment of efficient Patels.'

"4. Clause 2 of Section 5 of the District Police Act requires that in making the appointment of Police Patel, the Magistrate shall have due regard to the provisions in force for regulating the service of hereditary officers, and by making a special provision for the case in which the Revenue Patel is not appointed, Police Patel, it clearly contemplates, in my opinion, the continuance of the system in vogue since 1818, under which, as a general rule, the Revenue Patel had charge of the Police.

"5. Under this system it appears to me that a patelship may be fairly and properly defined as an hereditary office for the discharge of certain revenue duties in a village, with the right thereto attached of the officiator's being appointed to have charge of the Village Police, except in the case of its being found necessary to have more officiators than one, when, if the latter part of Section 5, Clause 2, of the Village Police Act applies, the Magistrate has a right of selection from amongst other Watandárs.

"6. This is the system, with reference to which the definition of 'hereditary office' in Section 4 of the Hereditary Offices Act and of 'matádár family' in Clause (1), Section 2 of the Matádárs Act must be deemed to have been framed, and they are, I think, entirely consistent with it.

"7. The term 'Patel' is nowhere defined, for the reason presumably that such a definition was not deemed necessary. But the Matádárs Act does not empower the Government to define what constitutes the office of Patel in any given case; and in exercising the power conferred upon it by the proviso to Section 6, it is not, I think, competent to it to do anything beyond what the proviso contemplates, viz., to declare that 'the right to the Patel's office appertains exclusively to one matádár family.'

"8. Supposing that in the case in question Government should think fit to declare that the right to the Patel's office appertains exclusively to the No. 1 family—a point as to which I do not understand that my opinion is desired—that right will thereupon vest, under Section 14 of the Matádárs Act, in the representative Matádár of that family alone, i.e., he will succeed by hereditary right to the revenue duties, and the Magistrate recognising his hereditary claim will appoint him under Section 5 of the Village Police Act to be Police Patel. But if, at any time, the Collector decides under Section 13 of the Matádárs Act that two or more officiators are requisite, the representative Matádár must, if his services are not dispensed with by the Collector under Section 19 and he is not disqualified under Section 30, officiate himself and appoint, under Section 20, one or more deputies, who, under Section 21, must be members of a matádár family of the village. In this case other members of matádár family besides the individual in whom the exclusive title vests would get into office, which appears to be to some extent what the Commissioner wishes to secure, but there would be no right in any particular matádár or matádár family to act as deputy or to be appointed to either police or revenue duties. The selection of the Police Patel would also not rest with the Magistrate under the latter part of Clause 2 of Section 5 of the Village Police Act, because the circumstances there described would not arise, but the appointment might fall to the Collector under Section 22 of the Matádárs Act in default of the representative Matádár."

endorsing when issuing Resolution No. 5902, dated 2nd September 1887, and so far from overruling Mr. Fulton's view as to the origin of the Police Patel, as suggested in paragraph 2 of the Commissioner's No. 1003-A., dated 7th March 1891, Mr. Naylor confirmed it. He, however, differed in construing the law strictly, and so far as Gujarát, where the Matádárs Acts in conjunction with Bombay Act III of 1874 constitute the law, is concerned, Government endorsed his opinion, and the consequence was that there the Collector could not, under Section 25 of Bombay Act III of 1874, since repealed, settle and enter in the register that the custom of the watan is for one family to have the Police Pátelship and its duties registered in his name solely, and that the office must go by rotation amongst the matádárs.

The "Mukhi" was the "Chief" revenue collector; the other 'matádárs,' 'pátidárs, or bhágdárs, it is true, collected the shares of their respective 'matás,' 'pátis' or 'bhágs' and brought them to him as "Mukhi" or Chief. But he was himself the head of his own 'mata' and collected the revenues thereof. He was primarily responsible for the whole revenue of the village, and under him the village servants acted, and in paragraph 2 of Mr. Naylor's report it is shown that he as headman, i.e., "Mukhi," was at the time of Regulation IV of 1818 the "head of the police" of his village, the person in whom the custom of the country vested the right of head or chief, "Mukhi," collector of revenue, with police powers. It is only since the introduction of British rule and the stricter codes of police regulations thereunder that the Police Patel has grown in importance, and the appointment is therefore coveted by all the matádárs. He combined the two functions, was therefore "Mukhi," and as owing to regular revenue settlements the work of collecting revenue became less responsible and more matter of routine, so did the office of Revenue Patel fall and that of Police Patel rise in popular estimation, and the word "Mukhi" losing its early significance as chief revenue collector—combined with head of the village police—by an easy transition came to be regarded as applicable to the Police Patel only. It appears evident that the present difficulties are due in great measure to the origin of the "Mukhi" having been lost sight of.

But when all allowance is made for that, the practical difficulty remains that the "Mukhi," whether he is Revenue Patel or not, is recognised all over Gujarát as the Police Patel, that in very many cases the duty has been performed hereditarily in one family since the introduction of British rule, and that a prescription ranging over from 60 to 80 years, which the Matádárs Acts do not however recognise, has thus been established.

4. A Patel who does not exercise the powers vested in him under Section 15 of the Village Police

Act for a period of two years may well be deprived of them. This course should accordingly be taken, and at the close of each calendar year, District Magistrates should submit to the Commissioners a list of those Patels who have not tried any cases under the Act referred to during the two previous years. (G. Rs. Nos. 8360, dated 1st November 1889, and 1888, dated 12th March 1890.)

5. The general instructions embodied in paragraph 14 of Government Resolution No. 8360, dated 1st November 1889, were not intended to be, and have not apparently been, observed as a hard and fast rule. Government are perfectly willing that the Commissioners should except from the effect of the orders in question individual Patels whom it would be advisable in the Commissioners' opinion to retain in possession of their powers under Section 15 of the Village Police Act. (G. R. No. 9213, dated 20th November 1896.)

PART V.—SHETIAS.

1. The Shetias should be relieved from formal Government service when no remuneration is available, but their position should neither be altogether ignored nor their right to honorary consideration denied. They are often useful as a medium of communication with the general body of traders and may be called upon to furnish occasional information, or to use their influence with their fellow-townsmen in return for the recognition by Government of their honorary position. Although it seems out of place to dismiss with the formality of law unpaid officers like these Shetias, the Collector might appropriately refuse to communicate with one who had misbehaved and might demand the election of another member of the family. (G. R. No. 1336, dated 11th April 1860.)

2. The office of Shetti is of old standing and honourable in the eyes of the native community, and it seems inexpedient to interfere with its continuance. The Commissioner and Collectors should endeavour to put the services of the Shettis to some good use. (G. R. No. 6768, dated 10th September 1889.)

3. It is within the competence of Government to abolish Shetti watans generally, and though by the foregoing Resolution Government declined to exercise their undoubted power generally, that is no reason why, for given reasons in a particular case, their power should not be exercised. (G. R. No. 4920, dated 20th July 1891.)

PART VI.—SHETSANDIS.

1. Whether the reversion of Shetsandi holdings rests with Government, or the Inámdár, it must be always first considered whether the proceeds of the assessment are not required for the purposes for which the land was originally alienated, and when the number of Shetsandis is reduced, the assessment on the land held by the person so reduced should always be made available for those whose services are retained, unless their emoluments are already ample. (G. R. No. 3851, dated 9th November 1867.)

2. Any Shetsandi or Talwar in common with any Judi Inámdár may resign an entire survey number and obtain a reduction of his judi equal to the assessment of the land resigned.

A Shetsandi or Talwar holding only one survey number and having to pay judi thereon, may resign the entire number and receive a cash payment equal to the assessment hitherto alienated.

In the settlement of lands held by Talwars, whose services it is necessary to retain, some margin should be allowed; if the land emoluments which such a Talwar is actually holding are not according to the revised assessment more than 25 per cent. in excess of what he is entitled to according to the scale, the surplus should not be resumed, and only the excess over 25 per cent. should be added to the judi leviable. (G. R., J. D., No. 5789, dated 5th October 1879; vide G. M. No. 5220, dated 11th idem.)

3. When no one can be found willing to do service in return for an occupancy thrown up by a Shetsandi, the Collector and District Magistrate may sanction a cash payment for the service up to the amount of the revenue hitherto alienated for service, and if this is insufficient, a larger amount up to Rs. 48 per annum might be proposed by the Commissioner for sanction. (G. R., J. D., No. 4825, dated 11th July 1885; vide G. M. No. 6064, dated 25th idem.)

4. An allowance of Re. 1 per mensem may be given to each Shetsandi in the Dhárwár District while deputed to assist Circle Inspectors in their duties. (G. R. No. 8522, dated 15th December 1887.)

5. It is not justifiable to resume the land held by a Shetsandi for the performance of duties as a village servant in one village on the ground that the number of Shetsandis is in excess of that required for the village. The superfluous Shetsandis or Shetsandis who refuse to serve in villages other than those in which their holdings are, should be made to pay full assessment on the lands held by them for service. (G. R. No. 2101, dated 23rd March 1891, and G. R. No. 6093, dated 19th July 1894.)

6. The Shetsandis of Singhar and its neighbourhood in the Haveli Taluka of the Poona District are not Watandárs, their sanads contain no mention of hereditary right, and they are removeable.

at the pleasure of Government. It also appears that there are only now left 78 of the original Shetsandis and that 66 squatters have been allowed to enjoy their holding so long without hindrance. If it could be ascertained exactly who are the descendants of the original Shetsandis and who the descendants of the mere squatters, the latter might be evicted at once, but it is impossible after such a lapse of time to discover who are the legitimate successors of the original Shetsandis and who are the squatters. In fact an attempt to ascertain this was previously made but proved ineffectual.

The Commissioner, C. D., proposed that the Shetsandis who were doing duty should be relieved of it and that they and the squatters and aliens (it being impossible to discriminate between them) should be allowed to retain their holdings on payment of full assessment, and that they should also be allowed such privileges in regard to trees as are enjoyed by other tenants. The Commissioner considered that the same terms should be offered to all the Shetsandis whether their holdings were inside or outside the forest demarcation line.

Government approved of the proposals made by the Commissioner, subject to the following modification as regards rights to trees. According to the terms of the sanads on which the Shetsandis occupy their present holdings, all the forests within their holdings are the property of Government and one of the duties of the Shetsandis is to protect these forests. It is therefore entirely at the pleasure of Government to grant or refuse rights to trees to the Shetsandis. It would in the opinion of Government be dangerous to allow the owners of holdings inside the Forest Reserve rights to trees, and the Shetsandis should therefore be given clearly to understand that those of them who own holdings outside the forest demarcation line will be granted the same rights to trees as are enjoyed by other tenants, but that similar rights cannot be conceded to those who own holdings inside the demarcation line. If, however, these latter will agree to take in exchange for the land held by them inside the Forest Reserve an equal or even slightly larger area of land outside the forest demarcation, where such land is available, the rights to trees other than royalty trees on such lands, outside the forest demarcation, will be granted to them. The exchange of lands on these lines should be carried out at once, wherever practicable, the rest of the land being gradually acquired as opportunity offers. The rights of Government to teak, which are undoubted, should be rigidly enforced.

(G. R. No. 7957, dated 8th November 1890.)

7. Though no judicial decision appears ever to have been obtained to the effect that Shetsandis are not hereditary officers within the meaning of Bombay Act III of 1874, there is every reason, on the grounds given in paragraph 2* of Mr. Naylor's No. 280 of 25th March 1887, for inferring that, as the High Court has in the case marginally noted held their lands to be resumable, the right of Government in respect thereof is exercisable under Rule 5 of the Rules in Government Resolution No. 1364 of 1878, and that Bombay Act III of 1874 has no application.

Secretary of State for India in Council vs. Rámchandra Ganesh.

The arguments in paragraph 10 † of Mr. Naylor's No. 452 of 26th March 1884, quoted in the preamble to Government Resolution No. 1793, Revenue Department, of 15th March 1888, furnish strong grounds for maintaining that Government may not merely assess to the full, land held for service otherwise than under Bombay Act III of 1874, but may actually recover possession of the actual land itself.

Ordinarily resumption means only the enforcement of the Government claim to the full assessments. But this is the case because of occupancy rights, or other estate in the lands, giving title to continued possession independently of the conditions on which the privilege of exemption had been held.

If in the case of service lands, however, the tenure itself, and not the mere exemption, was dependent solely on the performance of service when required; then the right to recover possession and not merely to resume the privilege of exemption could be exercised by Government as the grantor.

But for this purpose a suit would in each case be necessary to eject the alienee if he declined to vacate.

8. Copies of the following opinion of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, No. 741, dated 17th June 1893, were forwarded to the Commissioners and Collectors for information with the remark that the Governor in Council considers that in cases of unauthorized occupation of Shetsandi lands, the best

* "The question whether Bombay Act III of 1874 applies or not to Shetsandis' holdings must, therefore, still be regarded as a point which has not been judicially determined. The result of the suit, however, establishes the right of Government to resume such holdings, and as such a right is not exercisable under Bombay Act III of 1874 and is exercisable under No. 5 of the Rules issued with Government Resolution No. 1364 of 1878 (vide paragraphs 6 and 8 of my report on this suit No. 452 of 26th March 1884) it is a fair inference that the High Court considered the latter rule and not Bombay Act III of 1874 to apply to Shetsandis' holdings. But the absence of any explanation of the ground of the Court's decision leaves room for doubt as to what view it took."

† "With regard to the effect of resumption the defendant, no doubt, relies upon the fact that resumption by Government of a lapsed holding does not usually mean ousting the person actually in possession of the land, but simply the enforcement of the claim of Government to full assessment. In the case of lands not held for service this is the meaning of resumption and it has been so held by Government and by the High Court. But the reason for this is clear. So long as Government receives the full land plan will be for the Collector to proceed by summary eviction, and that such eviction followed by failure on the part of the person evicted to regain possession in a test case, would place Government in a better position than success in a suit for possession so far as the prospect of other alienees vacating possession without resistance is concerned :—

"Section 61, Bombay Land Revenue Code, 1879, provides for the eviction of persons unauthorizedly occupying any land

- (a) set apart for any special purpose, or which is
- (b) unoccupied and unalienated.

"2. 'As the same expression is presumed to be used in the same sense throughout an Act,' the phrase 'set apart' in Section 61, Bombay Land Revenue Code, is presumably used in the same sense in which it is used in the only other part of the same Act in which it occurs, i. e., in Section 38, where it applies to lands set apart for the specified purposes of free village pasturage, forest reserves, or other public or municipal purposes.

"3. The phrase 'set apart for special purposes' would not, it is submitted, be applicable to lands assigned to particular persons, held on an exceptional tenure or subject to restrictions affecting their alienability.

"4. The unauthorized occupation referred to in the Government memorandum under report No. 4249, dated 13th June 1893, could not apparently be dealt with as coming under the category of unoccupied and unalienated lands, for apparently possession was derived from the Shetsandis in occupation.

"5. The Honourable Mr. Naylor in paragraph 7 of his Government Resolution No. 1986 of 7th December 1891 and No. 8813 of 21st December 1891. Mr. (now the Honourable Mr. Justice) Fulton in paragraph 4 of his No. 138 of 31st January 1888, appear to have entertained no doubt that Section 61 and Section 202 would be inapplicable in such a case.

"6. Apparently it was the intention of the Legislature to limit the power of summary eviction to cases in which the unauthorized occupation is manifestly in conflict with, or in evasion of, the notorious rights of the State, as either incompatible with the purposes of a public appropriation, or as unaccompanied by any colour of right on the part of the trespasser.

"7. It may have been considered that land already occupied and alienated is not so manifestly at the disposal of the State as to justify summary eviction and a penalty on its occupation under colour of a title from a holder.

"8. Should Government direct, for the purposes of a test case, a summary eviction without recourse to the Courts, it is revenue due to the State in respect of such lands, it is a matter of indifference to Government who the occupants are, and it would be only inflicting an unnecessary hardship upon the former holders to oust them from the lands. But in the case of service lands these same considerations do not apply. The law expressly makes their continuance determinable according to such rules as Government see fit to make. The lands may probably be required for the remuneration of some other servant appointed instead of the person who formerly held them; and it is no hardship to a servant, whose service is at an end, to have to give up what constituted his remuneration as long as he performed service. In the case of the defendant, who is a mortgagee merely, the case is still stronger, for Government have never recognized him or his mortgage-transaction either, and he has no claim whatever to the consideration of Government."

VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART VI.]

probable that a suit by the transferee could be successfully resisted as to the claim for recovery of possession, and if the Courts held the summary eviction was not warranted by the law, the damages might perhaps be only nominal. But it is submitted that a single decision establishing the right of Government to recover possession by suit, might, as the Commissioners observe, afford an equally effectual protection to the interests of Government."

(G. R. No. 4926, dated 7th July 1893).

9. The general effect of existing orders with respect to land alienated to persons not belonging to the Shetsandi families is that it will usually be preferable for the Collector to proceed by summary eviction of the alienee, resorting to civil suit for ejectment in case of resistance to the eviction. But the principles laid down in Government Resolution No. 6093 of 19th July 1894, show that non-officiating members of Shetsandi families, who are in the same category as the "superfluous Shetsandis" referred to in that Resolution, should not be called upon to vacate the land held by them, but only to pay the full assessment. The same principle also underlies paragraph 7* of Government Resolution, Judicial Department, No. 3036 of 9th May 1877. The non-officiating members of the family should be made to pay the full assessment of the land which they hold, and the amount so received should be utilized for the remuneration of the officiating Shetsandi. (G. R. No. 8313, dated 22nd October 1896.)

10. Any rent up to the full profit should in future be levied from non-serving members of Shetsandi family in possession of service inám land with due regard to the provisions of Nos. 4 to 6 of the amended rules† under Bombay Act XI of 1852 and Bombay Act VII of 1863. (G. R. No. 2825, dated 28th April 1898.)

* 7. Where land in the occupation of a Shetsandi has to be resumed in consequence of his services being dispensed with, the possession of the land should not be disturbed, and the holder should be recorded as the survey occupant liable to the payment of the ordinary assessment. Similarly, where excess of land beyond what is required under the authorized scale has to be resumed, the possession of the land should be left with the holder, and a quit-rent equal to the difference should be imposed. Where waste land is available, and a Shetsandi is willing to serve, for rent-free land bearing an assessment of Rs. 24 in place of cash pay of Rs. 48, he should be permitted to do so: otherwise the payment should be in cash. (G. R., J. D., No. 3036, dated 9th May 1877.)

VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART VII.

PART VII.—SIND VILLAGE OFFICERS.

1. It is to be regretted that any previous engagements of Government should diminish the receipts of the village officers' cess, but it would be still more to be regretted if there were any departure from scrupulous good faith in fulfilling those engagements.

When therefore the cess cannot be levied if the terms of a sanad are to be strictly fulfilled, the power to levy the cess should not be exercised. His Excellency in Council will leave it to the discretion of the Commissioner in Sind to decide in what cases Government is bound to forego the cess.

With regard, however, to villages entirely alienated on which the cess is leviable only if a village officer be appointed, it is observed that the holders of such villages are probably bound by custom or otherwise to make provision for satisfactory police management, and while village officers need not otherwise be imposed upon them without their consent, the Act gives Government the power to appoint a village police officer and levy the cess, if any such obligation is not satisfactorily fulfilled by the holders of the village.

(G. R. No. 7352, dated 15th September 1884.)

2. The term "introduction of settlement" used in Section 6 of the Sind Village Officers Act, 1881, can only be understood by reference to the Land Revenue Code, the law under which revenue settlements are made. Section 103 of that Code explains when a survey settlement shall be deemed to have been introduced. The extension of the term of an existing settlement is not accompanied by the formalities prescribed in that section and, therefore, cannot be held to be the introduction of a settlement. So long as the old settlement is merely extended it would be a misuse of language to say that there has been a "revision of a settlement." The continuation, therefore, of survey rates after the term of guarantee has expired cannot be held to be either the introduction or revision of a settlement within the meaning of Section 6 of the Sind Village Officers Act, 1881. (L. R. No. 1376, dated 13th October 1884; vide G. R. No. 8543, dated 29th idem.)

3. No pension or portion of pension granted under the provisions of Bombay Act II of 1888 should ever be paid from any source other than a cess levied under Section 6 of Act IV of 1881. This order does not overrule that part of the provisions of Article 860 of the Civil Service Regulations which provides in case of service paid partly from general revenues and partly from Incorporated Local Funds that if less than one-fourth of the pension would according to the rule of proportions be chargeable from either source, no distribution is made, the other source bearing the whole charge. (S. of S. No. 1, Legislative, dated 12th April 1888; vide G. M., F. D., No. 1892, dated 19th June 1888, and

PART VII.] [VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

G. R., F. D., Nos. 2150, dated 11th July 1888, and 3585, dated 27th November 1888.)

4. The entire cost of the village revenue establishments in Sind should be paid from the Village Cess Fund, without the aid of any contribution from Provincial Revenues.

The Secretary of State has laid down absolutely that pensions granted to the persons employed under the Sind Village Officers Act shall be paid only from the cess levied under Section 6 of the Act and from no other source.

(G. R. No. 112, dated 7th January 1889.)

5. Having regard to the provisions of Section 6 of the Sind Village Officers Act No. IV of 1881 as amended by Section 3 of the Bombay Act No. II of 1888, the cost of the construction of Tapedárs' deras or chávdis cannot be legally charged to the Village Cess Fund. Expenditure incurred on these works should therefore be debited to Provincial Revenues, from which it was met before Act No. IV of 1881 came into force. (G. Rs. Nos. 4561, dated 27th June 1889, and 7258, dated 13th October 1890.)

6. In the Sind districts the village cess should defray the charges for binding Tapedárs' books G. R., F. D., No. 1398, dated 20th April 1894.)

7. The Collectors and the Deputy Commissioners in Sind may appoint Tapedárs appointed under the Sind Village Officers Act as village accountants under Section 16 of the Land Revenue Code to make them amenable to certain penal provisions of that code. (G. R. No. 3727, dated 4th June 1898.)

VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART VIII.

PART VIII—VILLAGE SERVANTS USEFUL TO THE COMMUNITY.

1. No nazrána is to be levied in cases of adoptions by village servants useful to the community. (G. R. No. 3141, dated 21st June 1878.)

2. Looking to the definition of "hereditary office" given in Bombay Act III of 1874 it is impossible to hold that the provisions of that Act are applicable to village servants useful to the community, such as sutárs, lohárs, &c., whose duties are in no way connected with the administration or collection of revenue as laid down in the definition in Section 4 of the Act. (L. R. No. 416, dated 1st April 1881; vide G. R. No. 2188, dated 14th idem.)

3. Act III of 1874 does not apply to the watans of village servants useful to the community such as Kázis, Joshis, &c., in as much as their offices are not included in the definition of hereditary office given in Section 4 of the Act not being held "for the performance of duties connected with the administration or collection of the public revenue or with the village police or with the settlement of boundaries or other matters of civil administration."

The question then simply remains whether Section 4 of the Pensions Act applies to such watans. The answer depends on the nature of the property which constitutes the watan. If that property consists in an annual cash allowance payable from the treasury, Section 4 is applicable, but not under ordinary circumstances if it consists in service land. The provisions of the Pensions Act have been held inapplicable to suits for the partition of service lands (vide the remarks on page 27 of Indian Law Reports, VIII, Bombay) and they do not apply to suits for the possession of watan lands held by Kázis, Joshis, &c. The position is not altered by the fact of a non-service settlement having been accepted.

4. Under Section 18 of Act III of 1874 the term "Watan" applies only to hereditary offices, watan property, and rights and privileges attached thereto. The term "Hereditary office" is limited to offices held for the performance of duties connected with the civil administration, whether those duties are now demanded or not.

The term "Watan property" is limited to property provided for the remuneration of such duties only. Section 18 therefore does not apply to any services unconnected with the civil administration, nor does it apply to any remuneration for such services, or to any rights and privileges attaching to such services or to such remuneration.

Whether the duties connected with civil administration are now required to be performed or not, the section would not apply to any other kind of services demanded either by the village community or by individuals, the remuneration for which must be a matter concerning only those who perform such services and those who demand them.

5. The opinion of the Legal Remembrancer circulated with Government Resolution No. 4273 of the 28th June 1888 goes no further than to affirm that Section 18 of Bombay Act III of 1874 applies only to duties connected with Civil Administration. He does not affirm either that "baluta" or perquisites due by the villagers to Mahárs and Jaglyas are not leviable in respect of such duties or that Section 18 does not apply to "baluta" so leviable. The contrary is the fact. Under Section 18, the Collector is empowered to determine

(a) the nature and extent of the "duties" to be performed;

(b) the persons, &c., liable to perform the duties;

(c) the nature and extent of the right to "baluta;"

(d) the persons liable to make payment of such "baluta," either in money or kind as are leviable in respect of the duties.

There is no ground for the assumption that "baluta" are due to Mahárs and Jaglyas for private service only. This assumption was certainly not entertained by the framers of the Watan Act—a fact evidenced by the use in Section 18 of the word "duties," which must be taken to refer to the word "duty" employed in the second clause, and the word "duties" employed in the fourth clause of Section 4 of the Act.

Government are of opinion that "Section 18 as interpreted by Government Resolution No. 4273 of the 28th June 1888 is inapplicable only in cases of remuneration for services which are wholly unconnected with the Civil Administration, and which are of the nature of purely private services such as those of kumbhár, nhávi and the like. Mahárs also do private services of the same nature. But the Collector can differentiate and collect all 'baluta' which he deems due on account of duties connected with Civil Administration."

To sum up, Government consider the proper remedy for the insufficient remuneration for their public services of useful village servants who are ascertained to be underpaid is to recover from the landholders that contribution towards the remuneration for which they are legally liable. This recovery should be effected in the manner contemplated at the time of passing the Watan Act, namely, by action under Section 18 in the last resort, when all attempts at amicable settlement of the dispute between rayats and servants have failed. In such cases the Collector should hold an inquiry and pass a decision regarding the points specified in paragraph

VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART VIII.

1 of this Resolution. A very few examples will be sufficient to bring home to occupants their responsibility for payment of the "baluta" due for public duties. Individual cases in which the remuneration by cash and land for duties performed for Government are found to be insufficient, may be reported as at present. But before reporting them, the District Officers and Commissioners should carefully consider whether the alleged insufficiency of remuneration is due to the refusal by the rayats of "baluta," and whether sufficient cause exists for refraining from applying Section 18. (G. R. No. 3074 dated 3rd May 1899.)

6. Care must be taken that the customary services, due from Mahárs under Section 69 of the Watan Act, in connection with village sanitation, are not treated as private service to individuals. (G. R. No. 4273, dated 28th June 1888.)

7. The sanads issued to the village servants useful to the community prohibit alienations of property to which they relate. There is therefore no necessity for amending Bombay Act III of 1874 so as to bring such watans under its operation. Under the terms of the settlement, land which ceases to be held as remuneration for service to the village community may be resumed. (G. R. No. 512, dated 24th January 1882.)

8. The terms of the settlement made in the case of village servants useful to the community should be held applicable to all cases in which their service lands have ceased to constitute the remuneration of such servants, and the lands should be resumed at once irrespective of the date of alienation.

It should be borne in mind that by resumption in such instances is only meant the levy of full assessment from the person in occupation other than the original grantee or his descendants. The present holders should therefore be allowed to remain in possession on payment of the full assessment to which the lands are liable.

If the original holders or their descendants have thought proper to alienate their lands in which they had only a life-interest, and have thus deprived themselves of the remuneration provided for the performance of their duties, they themselves are alone to blame for their own action, and the Governor in Council does not consider them to be entitled to any consideration. The full assessment to be levied in the case of these alienations should accordingly be credited to Government.

(G. R. No. 6310, dated 25th August 1883.)

9. The following opinion of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, No. 758, dated 4th June 1884, was concurred in by Government:—

"In this case the settlement was made, not with the Kázi's family, but with the family which so long ago as A.D. 1805 had purchased the Kázi's land. The sanad granted to this latter family recognizes them as the holders of the land 'claimed as emolument appertaining to the office of Kázi,' and declares that that land shall be continued as the emolument of the office so long as the village community may require the services, on the conditions that the holders shall perform the usual services to the community and shall continue faithful subjects of the British Government.

"2. If these two conditions are fulfilled and the village community still requires the services, the land cannot, I think, be resumed. The mere fact that the land is held by strangers is not a sufficient ground for resumption, when the settlement was made with those strangers and the conditions of the sanad are fulfilled by them. They of course cannot in this instance perform the duties in person, because they are Hindus; but if they perform the services vicariously, that is, I think, a sufficient compliance with the sanad, and the land may be said to be 'in the enjoyment of the persons who perform the services' within the meaning of paragraph 2 of my memorandum No. 966 of 21st July 1883, quoted in the preamble of Government Resolution No. 6310 of 25th August 1883."

(G. R. No. 4996, dated 21st June 1884.)

10. The following case is on all fours with that decided in the foregoing Resolution No. 4996, dated 21st June 1884, except that the sanad was not issued to the holder but to the Inámdár, while during the enquiries held into the ináms it was clearly known to Government that they were in the enjoyment of strangers. In this case, so long as the two conditions, viz., that the holders are faithful subjects of Her Majesty and services are required for the village community and have been and are being performed whether in person or vicariously, are fulfilled, there is no sufficient ground for resumption:—

A and B purchased land held as inám for services useful to the community many years ago. A happened to get a settlement sanad while B did not get it, but the position of A and B does not differ beyond the fact that A obtained the sanad endorsed on his own name, while in the case of B the sanad was issued to the Inámdár. B did not attempt at the time to get the sanad in his own name because there was a foot-note to the sanad stating that the issue of the sanad to a certain individual does not invalidate the rights of others if there are any.

(G. R. No. 656, dated 23rd January 1885.)

11. The following report of the Legal Remembrancer was communicated to all Commissioners and Collectors for information and guidance, with the instruction that the orders contained in Government Resolutions Nos. 512, dated 24th January 1882, and 6310, dated 25th August 1883, should be regarded as applicable to cash allowances as well as to service lands:—

VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.] [PART VIII.]

“The Commissioner, C. D., questions whether Government Resolutions No. 512 of 24th January 1882 and No. 6310 of 25th August 1883, authorize the resumption of cash allowances originally granted as remuneration to village servants useful to the community on attempted alienations thereof by the holders.

“2. The Resolutions in question do not expressly authorize such resumptions, as they mention only the resumption of land by levy of full assessment. But the intention of Government by implication appears to have been that the same rule should apply to cash allowances. The original reference on which these Resolutions were passed dealt with such cash allowances as well as with land, and after considerable correspondence, on which it was decided that the Bombay District Hereditary Offices Act should not be extended so as to apply to such offices, Government arrived at the conclusion that all the sanads which have been issued prohibited alienations of the property to which they relate.

The Commissioner, C. D., in reply to Government Resolution No. 5705, Revenue Department, of 30th September 1881 reported that this condition was included in all sanads issued to village servants useful to village communities in all the districts of his Division.

In his No. R.-4875 of 9th December 1881, vide preamble to Government Resolution No. 512, Revenue Department, 24th January 1882.

“3. The Bombay Hereditary Offices Act undoubtedly has no application to such cases (vide Government Resolution No. 5705, Revenue Department, dated 30th September 1881) and if a cash allowance is conditioned on performance of service by a particular family, it is I think perfectly competent to Government to withhold it from any claimant outside the family of the original grantees. Under the Pensions Act (XXIII of 1871) no suit could lie, should Government determine to withhold the allowance from the original grantee or from the person claiming as his transferee (Indian Law Reports, 1 Bombay 80).

Government may perhaps in order to avoid doubt in future consider it desirable to give express directions for the same rule to apply to resumption of such cash allowance as under Government Resolutions Nos. 512 and 6310 has been laid down with regard to lands held for similar services.

“4. In the instance referred to by the Commissioner, C. D., in paragraph 3 of his letter now under reference a condition against alienation was expressly included. In that particular case the allowance was necessarily inalienable out of the family as it was attached to a religious office. Government could not, of course, be liable to suit in case they determined to resume such cash allowance, but such grants are not in their nature resumable (West and Bülicher, page 398), ‘the holder of the office can be constrained, if necessary, to perform the duties when properly called on.’ Government could withhold payment from any alienee outside the family, but it would be contrary to the general principles of the Hindu law to withhold the emoluments of a religious office from the family of the original grantee.”

12. On the hypothesis that the lands have been rightly resumed, of the following questions, (a) is answered in the negative, which involves the negation of (b), and (c) to the effect that the lands should be entered as khālsa:—

(a) Can inām land resumed by reason of its alienation by the original grantee or his descendants and entered in the accounts as khálsa by reason of such resumption be restored to the original holder on payment of the summary settlement judi, if at any time after resumption by Government the land again becomes the property of that holder?

(b). Can such land in that case be entered as inám without the sanction of Government and restored to the Inámdár?

(c) In cases where resumption has taken place in the form laid down in Resolution No. 6310, dated 25th August 1883, should the inám lands be entered as khálsa in the Government accounts or should they still be retained under the heading of inám, the full assessment merely being levied in view of the possible acquisition again by the original holder?

(G. R. No. 6898, dated 13th September 1890.)

PART IX.—SETTLEMENT.

1. The following instructions were issued by Government to the Revenue Commissioner for Alienations and were also communicated to the Revenue Commissioners, N. D. and S. D., for information :—

“ His Excellency the Governor in Council being of opinion that the summary settlement of alienations now being carried out by your Assistant in Sātāra, and the settlement of village officers' emoluments now in progress under the Collector, should include all lands, either wholly or partially alienated, I am directed to communicate the following observations for your guidance.

“ 2. Instructions have already been issued regarding personal and temple holdings.

This will include

Dharmadows, Dehengis,
Bakshish,

Nanpurvesh, Balpurvesh,

and other denominations under which personal holdings are entered in the accounts.

“ 3. There are some entries, such as ‘kitta,’ ‘doubtful grants,’ ‘miscellaneous,’ ‘grants for services rendered,’ regarding which preliminary enquiry will be necessary to ascertain whether or not the holdings are for service, and as such resumable at the pleasure of Government, or subject to rules other than those laid down for summary settlement.

“ 4. But besides these there is a large class of holdings appertaining to the district and village hereditary officers and to the village servants.

“ 5. The holdings of the following must for the present be merely recorded, pending a decision on the treatment of hereditary district officers' holdings :—

Deshmukh, Deshpānde,

Kulasa Potdār,
Desh Chaugula,

Naikvādi.

Whether or not the Nargaundi's and Sir Deshmukh's holdings are to be included in this class as watans, or liable to summary settlement as ordinary inams, is a point on which enquiry must be instituted; and I am directed to request that you will report on this question as soon as your Assistant has collected the necessary information.†

“ 6. The Collector will settle the future emoluments of the village officers and servants who are supposed to render service to Government, or who may be made to render useful service. These instructions have already been issued as to the scale of remuneration for Patels and Kulkarnis. The Collector will

† Mr. S. St. J. Gordon, Special Commissioner, in his letter No. 15, dated 27th June 1863, solicited the permission of Government—

1st—to deal with the Naikowdis according to local usage, that is to say, to treat as district hereditary officers those of them only who had hitherto been made use of as such, and to hand over the rest to be dealt with by the Collector under the rules applicable to village servants.

2nd—to settle the claims of Sir-deshmukhs, Sir-patels, Nargowndis, and others whose liability to serve was open to question, on the same principles on which the claims of other district hereditary officers were settled, where no special privilege was claimed; but where they objected to this, then to hand their cases over to the Collector to be dealt with under the Summary Settlement Rules as private inams.

Mr. Gordon's suggestions were approved by Government in Resolution No. 2555, dated 1st August 1863, subject to the modification proposed by Mr. Hart, Revenue Commissioner, S. D., namely, that any cash allowances which might be enjoyed by the claimants of the description mentioned in the second clause would, in the event of a refusal on their part to accept the zamindāri settlement, have to be adjudicated under the amended rules of 1842, unless some general scheme for the settlement of claims to cash allowances was meanwhile sanctioned.

further have to consider whether, from the amount realizable by assessing the lands of those whose services are not required, the emoluments of the inferior servants who still perform duty may not be improved.

"7. It will be sufficient for your Assistant to record these holdings in statements, which should be submitted for subsequent disposal to the Collector. Mr. Inverarity will then dispose of the lands of Patels and Kulkarnis according to the orders already issued, and, while assessing the lands of inferior village servants whose employment is no longer useful to the community, will hold the amount of savings available for the better remuneration of those, who, like Mahárs and Rámosis, perform service to the State, but are often insufficiently remunerated.

"8. The holdings which, for the reasons assigned in the last two paragraphs, your Assistant will refrain from disposing under the summary settlement are as follows :—

whose services may be considered as requiring special encouragement whenever, from the small size, or remote position, of the village, or other similar cause, the attraction of a small piece of rent-free land may not unreasonably be considered requisite to enable the villagers to retain the services of all artizan, who, without such inducement, might with difficulty be persuaded to remain.

"13. The first of the above classes should be brought under summary settlement, and allowed to retain possession of their holdings on payment of one-fourth of the annual survey assessment for the time being. But, looking to the nature of these holdings, His Excellency in Council considers that nazarána on succession should not be exacted.

"14. Those in the second class no longer perform the services for which the grants were originally made; they should, therefore, be subjected to full assessment except grants under sanad by competent authority, which (if there be any such) should be continued with the holdings of the first class.

"15. The value of the assessment realizable under the second class should be reported to the Collector, who may be authorized to dispose of it for the better remuneration of the ill-paid useful village servants of the same táluka.

"16. The question whether the holdings referred to in paragraph 12 are to be placed in the first or second class, should be decided by your Assistant, in communication with the Assistant Collector in charge of the district, a decision being passed by the Collector in the event of a difference of opinion."

(G. L. No. 1915, dated 20th May 1860.)

2. The orders issued in Government letter No. 1915, dated 28th May 1860, regarding kalvantins' village holdings should be applied to the holdings of kalvantins generally. (G. R. No. 288, dated 17th January 1866.)

3. The correspondence which terminated in Government Resolution No. 283 of 1858 laid down the principle which should regulate the tenure of the land of kalvantins (professional prostitutes) at temples, and this should be taken as a guide in dealing summarily with their allowances.

No option should be given in the matter, and in all cases in which decisions have not been passed upon the wages of prostitution derived from the State, a compulsory payment of ten years' value should be made, and 20 years in instances in which, through an erroneous conception of the nature of the "duty" which was being perpetuated at the time of decision, allowances were declared either hereditary or permanent.

(G. R. No. 4226, dated 17th November 1866.)

4. The orders in Government letter No. 1915, dated 28th May 1860, which seem to solely refer to lands, are equally applicable throughout the Presidency to the cash allowances held by Balutas and Watandárs enumerated in paragraphs 8, 10, 11 and 12. (G. R. No. 3454, dated 5th August 1861.)

5. In order to prevent apparent hardship to the individuals who are holders of the class of village service lands described in paragraph 11 of Government letter No. 1915, dated 28th May 1860, which have been continued for services now not required either by Government or by the community, they may, instead of being subjected to full assessment, as prescribed by paragraph 14 of that letter, be subjected to half assessment for the purposes authorized in its 15th paragraph.

PART IX.] [VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

This rule should be made an uniform one, without respect to sanad or length of enjoyment, except in cases where the sanad may guarantee continuance without service which are cases not at all likely to be met with in this class of lands.

The class of ináms referred to in paragraph 12 of the letter quoted should be absolutely treated in the same manner, the remission of half the Government assessment appearing to be as much assistance as the villagers could reasonably expect from Government for the purposes of special encouragement adverted to in the same paragraph; the ináms of this class are so small that if the villagers find it necessary that the servant they wish to retain should not be obliged to pay any assessment, they could have no difficulty even in the smallest villages in making up by private arrangement what is required to meet the half assessment which is to be absolutely levied.

(G. R. No. 2606, dated 1st June 1861.)*

6. The lands of the four classes of servants noted in the margin when in agricultural villages without large bazárs, as well as of the eight classes mentioned in the 12th paragraph of Government letter No. 1915 of 1860, were left to be entered by the Collector in the first or second class respectively according to the circumstances of the village. If placed in the first class, one-fourth assessment was taken, and if in the second class full assessment was taken, but by subsequent orders only half assessment is to be levied on holdings of the second class. It should be left to the discretion of the Collectors, under the general control of the Commissioners, to decide whether the holdings should be placed in the first or in the second class. (G. R. No. 3225, dated 16th July 1861.)

7. In the Khándesh District, Halkaris (village servants who fill the water-troughs for the village cattle) should be allowed to retain their lands, without payment of one-fourth assessment, when the exemption hitherto enjoyed is not more than Rs. 30 annual value; and the orders of Government contained in their Resolution No. 3225, dated 16th July 1861, should be made applicable to all above that amount, which should pay the one-fourth assessment, provided that the exemption be not reduced below Rs. 30. When the circumstances of the village have so altered that a Halkari is no longer necessary, the land may be fully assessed. (G. R. No. 23 03, dated 13th July 1863.)

8. Government letter No. 1915 of 1860 divided village officials into useful (as regards the community) and the reverse, the former to pay one-fourth and the latter to pay full assessment. On Mr. Hart's recommendation (letter No. 866 dated 4th May 1861) these instructions were so far modified that the second class were to be subjected to half assessment only on their rent-free holdings, on the grounds that the hereditary district officers were to be allowed to retain fifty per cent. of their emoluments. Subsequently the district officers' settlement was reduced, and fixed at rates varying from four to six annas in the rupee. Mr. Hart then remarked that it remained with Government to consider whether a similar course should not be pursued with respect to the poorer classes of village Watandárs, and added that, as the previous settlement had been enforced, it would now be preferable to convert the eight-anna holdings into transferable tenures, and that the lands of those who paid four annas in the rupee should be regarded as service watans liable (in whosoever hands they might be) for the service to village community for which they were held. Mr. Hart's letter No. 866, dated 4th May 1861, above referred to, distinctly pointed to the conversion of the watans paying eight annas in the rupee into private property, and Government entirely approved of his proposals. The right of transfer, therefore, should be looked upon as having been already conceded to these watans, and the view to be taken of the watans paying four annas in the rupee should be approved. (G. R. No. 2785, dated 23rd July 1864.)

*This Resolution was addressed to all Collectors, but the Revenue Commissioner, N. D., in reply to a reference from that officer was informed by Government memorandum No. 4490, dated 15th October 1861, that the Resolution had been sent to the Collectors of Gujarát and the Konkan for their information only and was not intended for their guidance.

9. The holdings of Shetias and Chaudharis in the Sátára Collectorate whose services are not required either by Government or by the village community should be subjected to the payment of judi equal to half the assessment. (G. R. No. 2953, dated 4th August 1864.)

The foregoing order (Government Resolution No. 2953) should be extended to any other Collectorate in which such extension may be urged in respect to similar holdings. The holdings after the application of the eight-anna assessment become transferable private property equally with those referred to in paragraph 4 of Government Resolution No. 2785, dated 23rd July 1864. (G. R. No. 3513, dated 17th August 1865.)

The order in Government Resolution No. 2953, dated 4th August 1864, should be extended, on the understanding that cases already decided are not re-opened, to any holdings in any Collectorate in which it is the case that the services of the Watandárs are alike useless to Government and the village community. (G. R. No. 4115, dated 2nd October 1865.)

10. Useless village servants in alienated villages, who render no service to the State, to the Inámdár, or to the villagers, and who do not hold from the alienee, should be required to pay, as their fellow classmen in Government villages do, eightannas in the rupee, with permission to have their holdings converted into private property with respect to transfer and succession.

Those who come under the class to which a four-annas' settlement has been given in Government villages cannot have a settlement offered to them, because the Inámdár is entitled to such services as may be rendered to Government in unalienated villages. If the Inámdár does not require the service, he may, on application to the Collector, have it commuted on the same terms as in a Government village, and receive the commutation in lieu of service.

(G. R. No. 2189, dated 23rd May 1865.)

11. Under Government Resolution No. 2189, dated 23rd May 1865, the kadim holdings of village servants useful to the community in alienated villages have not been subjected to the settlement applied to similar holdings in Government villages, on the ground that the inámdár is entitled to receive from the said servants such services as may be rendered by them to Government in unalienated villages. No kind of service is rendered by this class of servants either to Government or to village inámdárs as distinct from the service rendered by them to the public, and there is therefore no valid reason for excluding their holdings in alienated villages from settlement.

The bar placed by Government Resolution No. 2189, dated 23rd May 1865, is removed. These alienations should be subjected to settlement, like alienations of the same class in Government villages, under Government Letter No. 1915, dated 28th May 1860, and subsequent Government Resolutions on the subject.

(G. R. No. 5696, dated 22nd July 1896.)

12. In the case of "Kadim" or ancient holdings of village servants in alienated villages useful to the community, but whose services are not required by the alienees, the latter have no claim to any payments made in commutation, which must be considered to be payable to Government, from which in reality these village servants hold. (G. R. No. 5770, dated 30th October 1880.)

13. The Collector of Belgaum having suggested that a certain assessment should be imposed on village Watandárs' holdings which were adjudicated under Act XI of 1852, in consequence of no service being required from them either by Government or the village, Government held that it was inexpedient to impose any assessment in cases where the parties had passed through the ordeal of an investigation by the Inám Commission, especially when it was borne in mind that all the land found in their possession in excess of the original grant had already been subjected to full assessment. If, however, the parties themselves wished to have their lands converted into private and transferable property, then the option of doing so by a payment of of three annas in the rupee might be granted and sanads similar to those previously issued in the case of useless servants would then be issued. (G. R. No. 1194, dated 7th April 1866.)

14. In case of useless village servants in the enjoyment of (I) cash only, (II) land and cash, who refuse to extinguish their money claim upon the State, commutation money payments should be continued at a fixed rate as life grants, and stopped on the death of the holders. (G. Rs. Nos. 1269, dated 31st March 1868, and 3977, dated 20th June 1882.)

15. When there are sharers in the watan each enjoying the emoluments by rotation, and all refusing to accept money compensation, the allowances should be divided among the sharers rateably according to their claims, and the share of each resumed on his decease. (G. R. No. 4540, dated 14th September 1871.)

16. In the case of service watans below the rank of Pátels and Kulkarnis, legitimate male issues should, in the first instance, be considered as nearest heirs, and in failure of such heirs the male issues of prostitute daughters of the family may be selected, but in no case should any woman who has become a prostitute be recognised as heir. (G. R. No. 2266, dated 5th May 1874.)

17. The rules laid down in the Revenue Commissioner's No. 1550-A, dated 1st June 1864, for the settlement of the lands of village servants in the Kaira Collectorate, were adopted by the Extra First Assistant Collector in the Panch Maháls. In these rules Bhavaías being classed as useless village servants, their lands were fully assessed. But their lands and those of other village servants, such as carpenters, potters, barbers, &c., were enquired into and recognised by Colonel Wallace in some villages before the cession of the Panch Maháls to the British Government. These lands may, therefore, be said to have been authorizedly in existence at the date of the cession, and cannot, under the terms of the Treaty, be resumed on the ground that service is not required; though, no doubt, they can be subjected to quit-rent in consideration of the service being dispensed with. The lands of Bhavaías and others who are altogether useless, should, therefore, in the villages settled by Colonel Wallace, as above stated, be subjected to a quit-rent of eight annas in the rupee and continued; and those of carpenters and other servants, who are still made to render service, be continued without the imposition of the four-anna quit-rent, which is usually placed upon the lands of these descriptions of village servants. (G. R. No. 972, dated 17th February 1875).

18. It should not be left undetermined whether or not any village servants are Watandárs; Sections

PART IX.] [VILLAGE OFFICERS AND SERVANTS.

65 and 67 of Act III of 1874 require that registers shall be kept of the former. There appears to be no reason why No. 1 of the rules sanctioned in Government Resolution No. 7651, dated 28th December 1877, should not be applied to all Watandár village servants. The distinction between ancient and recent assignments is as regards them unnecessary and based on no substantial ground. In the case of inferior village servants who are not Watandárs the principle hitherto followed is to exempt them from a specified amount of assessment, and there is no reason why this principle should not be continued. The Commissioner may have power to reduce judi payable by Watandárs if the remuneration is insufficient, but the judi should in no case be increased beyond what is admissible under the rule above referred to. (G. R., No. 6241, dated 16th August 1895.)

WATANS.*

PART I.—PRELIMINARY.

1. A 'Watandár' is defined by the Hereditary Offices Act, Section 4, to mean 'a person having an hereditary interest in a watan.' A person having no present interest or share in a watan cannot be held to be a Watandár. The fact that he may possibly some day become the owner of the watan does not affect his present position with regard to it, which is that of an outsider. (L. R. No. 11, dated 3rd January 1883; vide G. R. No. 507, dated 20th idem.)

2. A Watandár is defined in Section 4 of Act III of 1874 to be 'a person having an hereditary interest in a watan.'

Hereditary interest means an interest that a person has obtained through, or which has descended to him from, an ancestor. According to Hindu law, a son by birth acquires an hereditary interest in ancestral estate. But the class that acquires such interest by birth is confined to the lineal descendants of the acquirer of the property, and does not comprise collateral members of the acquirer's family. Such collateral members have the possibility of succeeding to the property if the acquirer's descendants become extinct; but until such descendants become extinct such collaterals have no interest or estate in the property. There is no such thing as a vested remainder in Hindu law.

(Adv. Gen. No. 50,† dated 21st July 1883; vide G. R. No. 6444, dated 30th August 1883, and G. R. No. 1887, dated 28th February 1896.)

3. In Section 4 of Bombay Act III of 1874 "Watandár" is defined to mean "a person having an hereditary interest in a watan," and as a mortgagee has an hereditary interest in the property he holds as security for payment of the mortgaged amount so long as the debt remains unpaid, he is a Watandár within the meaning of the Act. The mortgagee can be registered as a representative Watandár when he has established a customary right to serve. (L. R. No. 1461, dated 12th December 1881; vide G. R. No. 7803, dated 22nd idem.)

4. The Collector has no jurisdiction to extinguish, or decide on, a claim to be recognised as a Watandár (I. L. R., 2 Bom., 370, ib. 375, cf. 2 Bom. H. C. R., 342). His jurisdiction excludes that of the Courts, only on the question as to who are representative Watandárs. (I. L. R., 8 Bom., 25; Printed Judgments for 1877, p. 98; Printed Judgments for 1888, p. 224). No claim of a right to serve could be entertained in the Civil Courts (Section 4 (a) of Act X of 1876), but the right to a share in the watan might be the subject of a suit against those who claim the exclusive right to the profits. (L. R. No. 1146, dated 1st August 1892; vide G. R. No. 6776, dated 23rd idem.)

† This opinion is printed in extenso at p. 220 of the Compilation of General Rules.

PART II.—WATAN PROPERTY AND PROFITS THEREOF.

1. The following is the form of certificate to be forwarded to a Court under Section 10 of Bombay Act III of 1874:—

I, A. B., Collector of _____, hereby certify to the Court of the _____ at _____ that the land (allowances or profits) herein below described, constitute (or form part of) the property of the watan of the _____ of mauzo _____ in the _____ taluka (and is, or are, assigned as the remuneration of the officiator), and is (or are), therefore, inalienable to any person other than a Watandár of that same watan (or than the officiator for the time being);

And I therefore, under the provisions of Section 10 of Bombay Act III of 1874, forward this certificate to the said Court of the _____ at _____ in order that the attachment placed under its orders (or that the sale, or order of sale, or transfer made by the Court) on the _____ day of _____ last, at the instance of C. D., in darkhást No. _____ of 18 _____, may be removed (or set aside).

(Signed) A. B.,
Collector.

Dated _____ 18 _____

Description of the property referred to in the foregoing certificate.

(Signed) A. B.,
Collector.

(G. R. No. 2903, dated 21st May 1875.)

2. As to the question whether the share of a sub-sharer in the profits of a watan is liable to attachment when it is not separately entered in the Government books, it does not appear, looking to the definitions of watan and watan-property in Act III of 1874, that it makes any difference whether a share of a sub-sharer in a watan is separately entered in the Government records or not. The only point the Collector has to satisfy himself about, and to certify to the Court, is that the property in question is a portion of the watan, or of the profits thereof. Of course, if the property has been in any way lawfully detached from the watan and no longer forms a part of it, there is no case for the issue of a certificate to the Court. (L. R. No. 139, dated 16th February 1878; vide G. R. No. 983, dated 23rd idem.)

3. In applications in the Civil Courts for certificates of heirship in cases in which the alienations of watans are liable to be perpetuated, or in which Government is otherwise interested, the Government Pleader should be instructed to watch the proceedings of each case in the Court, and the Collector should see that the evidence of heirship tendered is trustworthy. (G. R. No. 945, dated 15th February 1881.)

4. No definite instructions as to when and how the Collector should interfere in respect of non-service watans falling within the scope of Sections 9 and 10 of the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act, 1874, are desirable or could very well be laid down. It is better that the Collectors should be left to deal with each case on its own merits, subject to the general power of Government to satisfy itself as to the propriety of the orders which are passed therein. (L. R. No. 153, dated 31st January 1882; vide G. R. No. 998, dated 13th February 1882.)

5. The Collector must decide on its merits each case in which a non-service Watandár applies for a certificate under Section 10 of the Bombay Act III of 1874, and there is no objection to the grant of a certificate to a sub-sharer whose name is not entered in the Government records. (G. R. No. 7903, dated 6th October 1884.)

6. The following opinion of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs (No. 691, dated 21st March 1887) was communicated to the Divisional Commissioners and Collectors:—

"In reference to your memorandum No. 2355, dated the 19th ultimo, I have the honour to state my opinion as follows regarding the attachment of the cash allowance payable to the deshpandes of pargana Ahirvada, taluka Sholapur, under the circumstances explained by the Commissioner, C. D., in his No. R.—1079, dated the 28th March.

"It appears that Gopal Hanmant in 1863 obtained a decree of the Civil Court establishing his right as hereditary deputy to obtain payment of a certain sum annually out of the income of the deshpande watan. In execution of this decree a warrant has been issued to the Mamlatdar of Sholapur directing that Rs. 658, otherwise payable to the deshpande during the present month, be attached and forwarded to the Court for payment to Gopal Hanmant, the decree-holder.

"The question now is whether the Collector should issue a certificate under Section 10 of the Bombay Watan Act to set aside the Civil Court's process.

"In my opinion no such certificate can legally be issued.

"The first part of the section refers to cases where watan property, assigned under Section 23 as remuneration of an officiator, has passed after the Act came into force or may pass without the sanction of Government into the ownership or possession of any person other than the officiator.

"This portion of the section is clearly inapplicable. It is not contended that the cash allowance attached has been assigned as remuneration for the officiator, and as no deshpande service is now required, there can apparently be no official remuneration.

"The second part of the section provides that when it appears that any part of a watan or any of the profits thereof not so assigned has or have passed or may pass by virtue of or in execution of a decree into the ownership or beneficial possession of any person not a watandár of the same watan, the Court shall, on receipt of a certificate of the Collector stating that the property to which the decree or order relates is a watan or part of a watan or that such property constitutes the profits or part of the profits of a watan, * * * * remove any attachment or other process.

"Under the second part of [this section the Collector can only issue his certificate to prevent the watan or any portion of, it passing into the hands of a person who is not a Watandár of the same watan.

"The question then is whether the decree-holder, Gopál Hanmant, is a Watandár of this watan.

"That question must, I think, be answered in the affirmative. It is true he is not registered as a representative Watandár, as when he applied in 1880 to be so registered the Collector held that as the deshpánde service was not required no one could be recognised as representative Watandár. With this decision, of course, the Courts cannot interfere, as it is a matter entirely within the cognizance of the Collector. But none the less Gopál Hanmant appears to be a Watandár of this watan though not registered as a representative Watandár. The distinction is explained in Rámchandra vs. Anant (Indian Law Reports VIII, Bombay, page 25).

"In the Watan Act Section 4, a Watandár is defined as a person having an hereditary interest in a watan. It seems hardly possible to hold that Gopál Hanmant has not such an interest. The decree of 1863 is not before me, but it is fully explained in the judgment of Westropp, C.J., in Miscellaneous Appeal 7 of 1876. It was there held that 'Gopál's status as hereditary deputy Watandár having been ascertained and established in 1863 is a fact which neither a Revenue nor a Civil Court could ignore or re-open. It is a res judicata.' The decree declared that he had an interest in the watan and was entitled to receive therefrom a certain sum annually. He, therefore, fulfils the definition of Watandár given in the Act, and I do not think that any certificate ought to be issued under Section 10.

"It is true that one was given in 1875 which the High Court was unable to set aside, though their Lordships supposed it was passed in ignorance of the terms of the decree of 1863; and now no doubt, if a certificate were issued, the Courts would be obliged to act upon it.

"But although such a certificate, if granted, would be effective, it, of course, cannot be issued otherwise than as prescribed by the Act, and I think in 1875 it must have been given under some misunderstanding.

"It may be argued that the non-service settlement abolished Gopál's office of hereditary deputy. No doubt the occasion for his services has ceased. But his interest in the original watan was a species of property of which he could not be deprived by any arrangement between Government and the deshpánde to which he was not a party. Service lands (or allowance) are a property, not merely a remuneration (vide the remarks of West, J., on page 215 of Indian Law Reports, Bombay, IX.): and this principle seems to apply no less to the emoluments of the hereditary deputy than those of the original deshpánde.

"For the above reasons I consider that no certificate can be issued in this case under Section 10 of the Watan Act and that the order of the Court should be accepted."

(G. R. No. 4188, dated 7th July 1887.)

7. In Cross-appeals Nos. 72 and 79 of 1888 from the Belgaum District, the Honourable Sir Charles Sargent and Mr. Justice Hart passed a decision on the 20th January 1890 (P. J. for 1890, 112, 113), which places the question of the inalienability of the district hereditary officers' watan lands to which Gordon's settlement was applied beyond doubt.

The present position of the matter is this, viz. :—

- (1) As regards alienations since the 28th January 1887 (the date on which Bombay Act V of 1886 became law), sub-section (2) of Section 5 of Bombay Act III of 1874, as amended by Section 1 of Bombay Act V of 1886, applies.
- (2) As regards alienations previous to that date which have already been finally adjudicated, nothing can be done.
- (3) As regards alienations previous to that date which have not already been finally adjudicated, the High Court's ruling quoted above should be relied upon.

Officers who receive notices for the attachment before judgment of amounts alleged to be payable at Government treasuries on account of "haks" are legally responsible for giving immediate effect to them and for holding the money, if any, payable as therein described in deposit until the further order of the Court. But if the "haks" have been subjected to Gordon's settlement and the case does not fall under clause (2) of the preceding paragraph, the Collector should issue a certificate to the Court under Section 10, Bombay Act III of 1874, as amended by Bombay Act V of 1886, Section 3, in order that the attachment may be removed. But until the attachment is removed by the Court, the money should be held in deposit. (L. R. No 1139, dated 4th August 1890; vide G. R. No. 5920, dated 20th idem.)

8. The Collector can grant certificate under Section 10 of Bombay Act III of 1874 in the case of a watan, in respect of which a settlement had been made under Gordon's settlement prior to the passing of the Act. (G. R. No. 3850, dated 22nd May 1895.)

9. The following opinion of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, No. 1599, dated 15th October 1890, was communicated to the Commissioners and Collectors :—

"One Ramchandra Anant Parchure claims the right to have his name entered as purchaser, at a Court's auction sale, of certain Deshmukhi and Sardeshmukhi lands.

"2. The Collector and the Commissioner have refused to grant the request. The lands in question were admittedly service lands, settled, not under the Act (Bombay II of 1863), but by the Gordon Committee.

"3. The Commissioner, N. D., expresses the view that the lands in question were under the ruling* quoted by the Honourable Mr. Naylor, C.S.I., in his No. 1139 of 4th August 1890, inalienable.

* A'paji Bapuji vs. Keshav Shamrao—B. R. C. P. J., 1890, p. 109.

"4. Neither Mr. Naylor's report nor the High Court's judgment seems to go so far as to say that service lands under the Gordon settlement were or are absolutely inalienable.

"5. In the suit referred to, the ground on which plaintiffs relied was, that watan service lands could not be affected by auction sales in execution of decrees against their father beyond his life.

WATANS.]

[PART II.]

"The Court observed: 'At the time when the Gordon settlements were made, service lands were regarded as the remuneration of the Hereditary Officer and made inalienable by Regulation XVI of 1827 (as construed by the Courts) beyond the life of the actual incumbent.' The High Court only considered 'how far this quality of inalienability was affected by the Gordon settlements.' It was not 'contended, much less held, that the Gordon sanads created any new and additional inalienability.

"6. Prior to Bombay III of 1874, watan service lands were regarded as held on a tenure of successive life estates, and the prohibition against alienation, it was held, did not extend to an alienation for any period not exceeding the lifetime of the Watandár, the incumbent.

" " 7 B., 420.
" " 5 B., 439.
" " 14 B., 401.

"7. Bombay Act III of 1874, Section 5, prohibited all alienations of watan outside the watan family, unless sanctioned by Government, and thus restrained alienations even of the life estate.

"8. The Courts, however, recognise the injustice of allowing a man to take advantage of such a provision to repudiate charges created by himself on his own life interest. A Watandár is therefore held estopped from profiting by the invalidity of his own alienations (I. L. R., 14 B., 404).

"9. The Legislature, perhaps with a view to prevent fraud as well as to enable life incumbents to deal with their own interests so long as they do not affect those of their successors, has (Section 1, Bombay V of 1886) limited the restriction to alienations extending beyond the term of the alienor's natural life. Section 7 of Bombay III of 1874, however, would still invalidate unsanctioned alienations of watan assigned as the remuneration of an officiator.

"10. It was only so long as Section 5 of Bombay III of 1874 remained unamended by Bombay V of 1886, Section 1, that an alienation of the life estate of unassigned watan was void without sanction. But, as pointed out, the alienor is estopped from urging the objection.

"11. The Collector no doubt might raise such objection in the interests of Government. But Government would probably never desire that he should do so in the case of a non-service watan, when, as no interests of Government are involved, such interference would operate merely to enable a man to repudiate his own debts.

"12. No doubt, it seems, can exist as to the validity of an alienation by an actual incumbent of his life estate, if effected—

- (a) prior to Bombay III of 1874, or
- (b) subsequent to Bombay V of 1886,

even without the sanction of Government.

"13. No alienation, however, beyond the life estate—

- * I. L. R., 5 B., 437. (a) of* uncommuted service wa-
- I. L. R., 10 B., 34.
- P.J. for 1890, p. 109, tan, or
- and cases quoted supra.
- (b) of watan settled by the Gordon Committee, is or ever was valid without the sanction of Government.

"14. When therefore a person claims recognition as the alienee of a watan of either of these descriptions, the first question to be considered is (if the watan be unassigned) whether the claimant's alienor is still the actual incumbent or not. If the alienor is still the actual incumbent, he cannot repudiate the charge on his life estate, and Government would probably refuse to do so and indeed * 5th February 1875 and 28th January 1887. could do so only if the alienation were between the dates* when Bombay III of 1874 and Bombay V of 1886 came into force.

"15. In the present instance the alienation took place by Court sale in 1872. The claimant or his representative in interest therefore then purchased the life estate of the person whose interest he bought, but no more. The question is whether that person (whose name appears to be Hanmantrāv Apāji Pātankar) is still alive. If he is dead, the life estate which was all the claimant could legally have bought, has ceased to exist, and the claimant has no right whatever to recognition by the Collector. But if that life estate still continues, an entry in the Collector's records recognizing the extent of the claimant's interest would probably be found convenient to protect the Revenue Authorities from error which might prejudice the claimant and give him a cause of action.

"16. The claimant cannot in any case demand the entry of his name in the Collector's book or sue if he is refused. For the books are kept for fiscal purposes and for the guidance and information of Revenue officers and not as evidence of title. But the Revenue Authorities, however, would be liable if, misled by the inaccuracy of those records, they took any course of action prejudicial to the claimant's rights, as for instance by ignoring the interest which he has to prevent a forfeiture. There could, it seems, be no objection to insert under the name of Hanmantrāv Apāji, if he is still the incumbent, some such entry as the following:—

हणमंतराव आपाजी पाटणकर याचा
तादयात हक्क कोर्टमार्फत छिन्नित विक्रत
घेणारा रामचंद्र अनंत परचुरे.

"Ramechandra Anant
Parchure, auction purchaser of the life interest of Hanmantrāv Apāji Pātankar."

(G. R. No. 7675, dated 29th October 1890.)

10. Government concurred in the views expressed by the Legal Remembrancer in the following report and approved of the suggestion made in paragraph 7 thereof:—

"The Collector of Khāndesh has, in consequence of Government Resolution No. 8443, dated 26th November 1890, forwarded to me, for revision and adaptation, a certificate to be issued to a Civil Court for the removal of attachment from certain watan property.

"2. The form of certificate drafted by me and approved by Government Resolution No. 3697 of 29th May 1890 was applicable to cases of attachment of watan assigned under Section 23 of the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act, 1874, as remuneration of an officiator.

"3. The Act gives special protection to the interests of the public service in such cases by declaring property so assigned 'not liable to process of any Civil Court.' It is inapplicable, but may of course be adapted to the case of an attachment of ordinary unassigned watan. In the case of unassigned watan, however, the power of alienation without Government sanction has, as I

No. 8513 of 20th December 1888. pointed out in the reports quoted in the Government Resolutions marginally noted, been recognised by Section 1 of Bombay V of 1886, as extending to the life interest of the alienating incumbent.

"4. The alienating incumbent is himself estopped from denying his right to alienate (I. L. R. XIV B., 404). But as noted in my No. 597 of 31st May 1890, Section 10 of Bombay III of 1874 was not modified in accordance with Bombay V of 1886, so that the Collector has still the power to issue a certificate in respect of an alienation which under the amending Act it is yet competent to the alienor to make without sanction.

"5. In my No. 1262 of 23rd November 1888 I ventured to lay stress on this anomaly, and to submit that Government would probably not approve of the Collector taking action so inconsistent with the spirit of the amending Act, merely to enable a man to repudiate his own liabilities when he would be estopped from disputing them on his own account.

"6. In the present instance the watan property is unassigned watan brought under the Gordon settlement. No doubt, it may, owing to the antinomy between Section 10 of Bombay III of 1874 and Section 1 of Bombay V of 1886, be legally possible for the Collector to issue a certificate under Section 10 of Bombay III of 1874 (see Printed Judgments of 1890, pages 112, 113). But I would submit that on the grounds stated in my No. 1262 of 23rd November 1888, it is improper that such interference should be made in cases of this nature, as it is not necessary to protect the interests of the public service and could only operate to enable debtors to repudiate liability for their own debts.

"7. I would venture to submit that the Collector's interference might be properly limited to cases affecting—

- (a) watan assigned as remuneration of an officiator,
- (b) watan on which it is attempted to enforce a charge or liability created by some person deceased, in which case alone no private sale could take place without the sanction of Government.

"8. If every attachment affecting the life interest of a Watandár debtor is to be set aside by issue of certificate, the result will be that Watandárs will be able through the medium of the Collector to repudiate charges on their own life interests which they would be estopped from repudiating on their own account.

"9. This, I think, is opposed to the spirit of the law and probably also to the wishes of Government. But as no distinct orders have as yet, I believe, issued on the subject, I would venture before revising the certificate sent by the Collector of Khândesh to solicit the instructions of Government as to whether such certificates are to be made applicable to any attachments other than those referred to in my paragraph 7 above."

11. Section 9 of the Hereditary Offices Act, III of 1874, is inapplicable to alienations made before the Act came into force, and which took place either by virtue of, or in execution of, a decree or order of a British Court or with the consent of the Collector and a mutation of names in the revenue records. (L. R. No. 284, dated 5th March 1883; vide G. R. No. 2253, dated 19th idem.)

12. The terms of Section 12 (a) of the Hereditary Offices Act are sufficiently wide to authorize the Collector to evict a person whom, on appeal, he considers his Assistant has wrongly placed in possession of land under Section 9, and to make over the land to the person to whom he decides it should be given. (L. R. No. 293, dated 6th March 1883; vide G. R. No. 2507, dated 28th idem.)

13. In cases in which a portion or the whole of the watan lands of the village officers may be resumed but their services may still continue, the loss is simply that of the occupancy right of certain lands, and its value should be calculated on the principles that would regulate the compensation to be paid for the loss of similar rights to private individuals. This being thus compensated for, the diminution of profit by the loss of rent-free lands from the watan should be made up by a corresponding increase of cash remuneration equal to the assessment of the lands.

In cases in which in consequence of the resumption of the lands of villages the necessity for the service of village officers may cease or their scale allowances be diminished, the loss of occupancy rights in watan land should be similarly compensated for, and that on account of cessation of hereditary service or diminution of watan emoluments according to scale on a smaller realizable amount of land revenue separately considered. For this one-third of the full value of the watan in cases in which service may be entirely dispensed with, and one-third of the scale value of the land resumed or otherwise appropriated in cases in which service is continued but the watan emoluments diminished by the lessening of the village area, shall be deducted from the total value of the watan and that of the portion resumed or otherwise appropriated, respectively, and fifteen times the balance be paid to the hereditary officers concerned as compensation for the total or partial deprivations of their watans.

Where only such small portion of village lands may be left in any case as to render it advisable to incorporate them in an adjacent village, the sanction of Government should be obtained by the Commissioner on a report submitted in consultation with the Survey Department.

(G. Rs. No. 5974, dated 4th December 1872, and 5194, dated 16th September 1873.)

14. The decision in Raoji Raghunath vs. Mád-havrádo Vishwanáth (2 Bombay High Court Reports, page 250) was passed in A. D. 1864, several years before the Hereditary Offices Act became law. It was based upon the ruling that the holder of an hereditary office was simply a tenant for life which the Court said 'had been frequently decided.' These decisions dated, in fact, from the year 1829, being based upon Section 20 of Regulation XVI of 1827. The Sadar Diváni Adálat's 'Interpretations' (Harrison's Code of 1849, Vol. 2, pages 757-8) of this section are the original authority for this course of decisions.

Section 20 of Regulation XVI of 1827 was, however, repealed by the Hereditary Offices Act, and the law substituted for it is that contained in Section 5 of the Hereditary Offices Act, which authorizes alienation to a Watandár of the same watan, but not to an outsider, except with the sanction of Government.

The hereditary office being a part of the watan (vide definition of 'watan' in Section 4 of the Hereditary Offices Act), the terms of Section 5* apply to alienations of it. To a Watandár of the same watan such an office may be alienated in perpetuity, or for life or any other term, at the owner's pleasure; to an outsider it cannot be alienated at all without the sanction of Government. If a representative Watandár alienates in a lawful manner his right of service, the alienee becomes thereby 'the representative Watandár' in his stead. Recognitions of transfers of hereditary offices should, therefore, be regulated by these considerations.

* Amended by Section 1 of
Act V of 1886.

There ought to be no objection to substituting the name of the lawful alienee of a representative Watandár in the register, if there is no question and no doubt as to the alienation and as to its legality. When there is any question between the parties as to the fact of the alienation, or as to its validity as against any of them, they should be desired to produce a decree of a competent Court under Section 36 of the Act before any mutation of names in the register is allowed.

(L. R. No. 281, dated 5th March 1883; vide G. R. No. 2776, dated 7th April 1883.)

15. The conditions in Section 9 of Bombay Act III of 1874 that the Collector's consent should be obtained and there should be a transfer in the records, affect only transfers before the passing of the Act otherwise than by virtue of a decree of a Court.

PART II.]

[WATANS.]

When a watan or a part of a watan has before the date of the Act coming into force passed by virtue of or in execution of a decree or order of a British Court into the ownership or beneficial possession of any person other than the officiator, the watan or part of watan is liable under Section 8 only to a contribution for remuneration in like manner and to the like extent as if no such decree had been passed. (G. R. No. 8051, dated 11th October 1884.)

16. There is nothing to prevent watan property descending to a daughter's son when such person is the legal heir according to Hindu law. (L. R. No. 283, dated 27th March 1878; vide G. R. No. 1737, dated 4th April 1878.)

17. The following opinions of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs on the question of the title of a daughter married out of a watan family to succeed to her father's watan and of her husband to officiate as her deputy were communicated to the Commissioners and Collectors:—

"Government have decided on several occasions that a daughter married out of a watan family is not by reason of such marriage divested of her rights and does not lose her status as Watandár.

"2. In the present instance it appears that the petitioner has already been recognised as representative Watandár, and that under Section 51 of the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act, 1874, she appointed her husband to be her deputy. As Section 53 of that Act provides that none but a Watandár shall be appointed as deputy, the question is whether the petitioner's husband can be deemed to be a Watandár, that is, 'a person having an hereditary interest in a watan' within the meaning of that section.

"3. The answer to this question must depend upon the decision of the other important question whether the watan property which a daughter inherits from her father is 'stridhan,' and, therefore, transmissible to her heirs, or whether it is a limited and restricted estate only, that is to say, which she is entitled to enjoy for her lifetime, and on her death devolves on the line of the last male owner, her father.

"4. If the watan is regarded as 'stridhan' it seems clear from the best authorities that on the death of the daughter her children are entitled to inherit it, and if she has no children, her husband will be her heir and on failure of him his nearest 'sapindás,' which term includes, on the father's side, all blood relations within six degrees together with the wives of the males, and on the mother's side, those within four degrees. Consequently no objection could be taken to the appointment of the Watandár's husband or one of his relations within those degrees as her deputy.

"5. There is, however, a very great difference of opinion on the subject. The Bombay High Court have ruled that according to Hindu law on this side of India property inherited by a married woman from her father descends on her death to her own and not to her father's heirs (see 1 Bombay High Court Reports, 209). Subsequently, the same Court held that the property acquired by a married woman by inheritance, with the exception of property inherited by a widow from her husband, classes as stridhan and descends accordingly (see 6 Bombay High Court Reports, 1). Lastly it was decided in an elaborate judgment by Mr. Justice West (8 Bombay High Court Reports, 244) that the Mitákshara (which is the highest authority in this Presidency) recognises only one class of 'stridhan' and includes in that class all property acquired by a woman by inheritance, and if she has been married according to one of the approved forms, on her death childless, descends to her husband and his 'sapindás;' but over 'stridhan' acquired by inheritance her power of alienation is limited. So, too, in the latest case reported in Indian Law Reports (III Bombay, 171), the Chief Justice (Westropp) held that the daughter had succeeded not to a qualified estate, but to an absolute and several estate in her father's immovable property.

"On the other hand the rulings of the High Courts of Calcutta and Madras are quite opposed to the Bombay rulings, and have been entirely approved of by the Privy Council in Chotay Lall vs. Chinna Lall (6 Law Reports, Indian Appeals, 15). In commenting on Mr. Justice West's judgment, the Chief Justice of the Calcutta High Court in this case pointed out that there was no substantial difference of opinion on the law between the Calcutta and Madras High Courts and that they ought not to unsettle the law which had been received for the last fifty years on account of the opinion of a Judge of the High Court at Bombay, however learned he may be. The Privy Council observed that the question of the daughter's estate cannot be considered as 'res integra;' that the result appears to be that the Courts in Bengal and Madras have determined in a series of decisions that the daughter takes a qualified estate only, whereas in the Courts of Bombay there have been rulings and dicta in favour of the view that she takes the entire property. But 'their Lordships do not think it necessary, especially after their own decisions as to widows' estates, to go into an examination of the Indian cases. They agree in the conclusion of the Calcutta High Court affirming the law as stated by Sir William Macnaughton, that immovable property acquired by a daughter by inheritance, on her death in default of issue male, goes not as 'stridhan' to her husband or other heir, but reverts to her father's heirs.'

"7. It must be observed that this difference of opinion rests on a different interpretation of old and obscure texts. The original text of the Mitākshara, it is stated in the above judgment of the Privy Council, does not afford any foundation for the argument in favour of the right of the daughter to the entire interest in land acquired by inheritance, though the interpretation of the Commentator, Vijnaneshwar, on which Mr. Justice West's reasoning rests, does. It seems, therefore, that there is a preponderance of decisions against the Bombay rulings. What would be the result of an appeal to the Privy Council from this Presidency it is not easy to say. Mr. Justice West observes that it is reasonable to suppose that in such case his arguments would have much weight with their Lordships. In the Calcutta appeal, however, the Privy Council had an opportunity of weighing the Bombay rulings as they are carefully reviewed in the judgment of the Chief Justice Couch which was on appeal before their Lordships. The conclusion come to by their Lordships is that it was unsafe to open the question and unsettle a rule of inheritance affirmed by a long course of decisions.

"8. The question of course now is whether Government should follow the law as stated by the Bombay High Court or as it is stated by the High Courts of Bengal and Madras, and recognise the female Watandār's husband or his relative as having an hereditary interest in the watan.

"9. In deciding this question it must be remembered that the Bombay rulings extend over a period of some twenty years and were laid down by Judges whose reputation for learning is beyond all question—Sir Mathew Sausse, Sir Joseph Arnold, and Mr. R. West, and have been followed and accepted as the law by the people of this Presidency. The Bengal and Madras rulings, though entitled to every respect, are not binding here, while the judgment of the Privy Council cannot be said to decide the question in its direct applicability to the people of this side of India.

"10. On the next occasion of the question arising as it almost certainly will, the Bombay High Court Judges will have to decide it in the light of the Privy Council's decision, and it remains to be seen whether the High Court will adhere to its former view of the law as applicable to this Presidency or will alter it in accordance with the views of the Bengal and Madras Courts.

"11. I can, therefore, see no objection to the Bombay rulings being followed in the present instance, as it is clear the husband is otherwise fully competent to officiate as deputy for his wife. Government can safely leave it to the members of the original Watandár's family on the death of the female representative Watandár to contest with her husband or his relatives the question of the devolution of the watan estate which I have now discussed." (L. R. No. 323, dated 13th March 1882.)

"In continuation of the remarks contained in my report No. 323 of 13th instant on this difficult question of Hindu law, I now beg to draw the attention of Government to a remark made by Mr. Justice Melvill in a case reported in the last number of the Indian Law Reports (see Volume VI, Bombay Series, page 87, Bulakhidás vs. Keshavlál). Mr. Justice Melvill says: 'In this Presidency, and especially in Gujarát from whence this case comes, the Vyavahara Mayukha is a principal authority, and on the strength of Chapter IV, Section 8, paragraph 10 of the Mayukha it has become the established rule in this Presidency that daughters take by inheritance an absolute estate and not a limited interest as they would under the Mitákshara.' It seems quite clear from this remark that the interpretation of the Mitákshara which has been unhesitatingly adopted by the Privy Council must be accepted in this Presidency, but inasmuch as the Mayukha is a principal authority in this Presidency and more especially in Gujarát, we must fall back on the Mayukha which Mr. Justice Melvill declares to be a sufficient authority that daughters take not only absolute but several estates, and consequently, when not having any issue, may dispose of such property during life or may devise it by will." (L. R. No. 342, dated 17th March 1882.)

(G. R. No. 2318, dated 8th April 1882.)

18. A Collector having enquired, with reference to Government Resolution No. 2318 of 8th April 1882, how the names of heirs are to be entered in the watan register of patelki and kulkarni watans in the following cases:—

1. A representative Watandár dies leaving 5 widows of different ages and married at different times, some under 'lagna' ceremonial and others under that of 'pat.' How and whose names should be registered? Is the Collector to find out who is the eldest of them, and if so, is the seniority to be determined by her age or by precedence in marriage?

2. A representative Watandár dies leaving no male issue nor a widow, but three daughters married to different persons in different families: which of the three should be entered? Legally they have equal rights. Are they, then, all three to be registered as representative Watandárs and a rotation established against the custom of the watan?

3. A representative Watandár dies leaving two widows, one of them was married under 'lagna' ritual and the other under that of 'pat.' The eldest widow dies leaving a daughter, who prays she may be recognized as representative Watandár. The widow, her step-mother, claims to be entered as representative Watandár. Should the name of the widow be registered?

4. There is a Hindu watan family of which one member is registered as representative Watandár. He dies leaving a daughter and also four brothers. The family is divided as regards other property, but undivided as regards the watan; are the brothers to be entered as representative Watandárs in preference to the daughter?

the following opinion was recorded by the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs:—

"The term 'nearest heir,' which is used in Section 36 of Bombay Act III of 1874, is not a very accurate one; but looking to the fact that only one person's name can be registered in the room of that of a deceased representative Watandár, whilst there may frequently be several co-heirs of the deceased person all equally near to him in relationship, the meaning of the Act is not, I think, doubtful. Thus in his report No. 325 of 13th March 1882, the late Mr. Cordeaux, when acting for me, submitted an opinion that the Collector should register the elder of two daughters of a deceased female representative Watandár as the representative Watandár in her stead, and Government, in their Resolution No. 2321 of 8th April 1882, approved of this advice. The context shows, I think, that what the section means is that the Collector should recognise as representative Watandár the senior amongst co-heirs of the same degree of relationship and the nearest relation amongst heirs of different degrees of relationship. And by senior I do not mean the eldest in age, because a second or third wife is often older than her predecessor or predecessors, but I mean the one who, whether by birth or marriage, first acquired the status which gave him or her the right of inheritance.

"2. Following this view of the intention of the law, I would answer the Collector's questions thus:—

1st.—The senior of the five widows by precedence in marriage should be the representative Watandár.

2nd.—The eldest daughter should be recognised as representative Watandár.

3rd.—The daughter does not inherit so long as a widow survives; the widow, therefore, has been rightly recognised as the representative Watandár. There is no difference as regards the right to inherit between a 'lagna' wife and a 'pāt' wife.

4th.—The family must be regarded as undivided, in which case the three brothers are the deceased's heirs, and the eldest of them should be recognised as representative Watandár."

19. A daughter takes by inheritance an absolute estate just as a son would, but, if the estate be watan, the interest therein is so far limited by express enactment as provided in Section 5 of the Bombay Act III of 1874.* (L. R. No. 1375, dated * Vide also Section 2 of Bombay Act No. V of 1886.

18th October 1882; vide G. R. No. 7789, dated 7th November 1882.)

20. The word 'through' in Section 2 of Act V of 1886 implies some intermediate link between the claimant and the last holder, and does not apply to the case of a son claiming his mother's property as such. It can hardly be said that a person claiming direct from the last holder in whom the whole estate was vested, claims through such holder.

The Full Bench decision of Bhágirthibái vs. Kálmujiráv, 11, I. R., Bombay, 285, decided that under the Hindu law prevailing in the Presidency of Bombay a daughter inheriting from either mother or father takes an absolute estate which passes on her death to her own heirs and not to those of the preceding owner. This decision overruled the opinion expressed in the case of Dalpat vs. Bhagvan, 9, I. R., Bombay, 301, that daughters would not take such an absolute estate in cases governed by the Mitákshara, and lays down the law on the point for this Presidency. It follows that law over the whole of the Bombay Presidency that the heirs of a daughter on whom a watan had devolved before Act V of 1886 came into force will succeed to it on her death.

(L. R. No. 102, dated 24th January 1888, and Adv. Gen. No. 11, dated 24th February 1888; vide G. R. No. 2793, dated 3rd May 1888.)

21. Section 2 of Bombay Act V of 1886 enacts that, with one exception, every female member of a watan family is to be postponed in the order of succession by inheritance to the watan property to every male member of the family qualified to inherit. This provision is obviously intended to operate whilst there are both male and female members of the family entitled, under the law of inheritance applicable to them, to succeed to the watan property. It deprives it of all meaning to hold that it operates only when no male member of the family qualified to inherit any longer survives. It is not, therefore, right to hold that the one female excepted by the section from its provision, viz., "the widow of the last male owner," can only claim the benefit of the exception, when owing to failure of male heirs, the property would otherwise lapse to Government. The words "last male owner" do not mean, as suggested by Mr. East, only the last surviving male representative of the watan family. The section applies at every succession by inheritance to watan property. If, according to the law of the parties, a female would on any occasion succeed, she, unless she be the widow of the last male member of the family who owned the property, is to be postponed in the order of succession to every male member of the family qualified to inherit. (L. R. No. 1229, dated 24th July 1891, and Adv. Gen. No. 82, dated 29th August 1891; vide G. R. No. 6402, dated 16th September 1891.)

22. In the case, 5, Bombay High Court Reports, 161, it was held that 'where there is a plurality of wives equal in caste, the sons of each wife (not being the first wife) take precedence according to the dates of their respective births and without reference to the dates of the marriages of their respective mothers.' In that case the litigation was between the son of a second wife and the son of the third wife, so that it was unnecessary for the Court to decide, and it did not decide, how the law would be as between the son of a first wife and the son of any subsequent wife.

The Bombay High Court followed in that case the decision of the Madras High Court in Sivana-nanja vs. Mutlu Ramalinga (3, Madras High Court Reports, 75) in which it was held that 'as regards the rights of sons by different wives to inherit' * * * (except perhaps the son of the first wife) the priority in point of time of their mothers' marriages has never been regarded when the wives were equal in caste and rank.' In the case, also, the Court did not decide whether a distinction exists in favour of the younger son of a first wife, but merely said that 'perhaps' the case of such a son is exceptional.

In Ramalakshmi Ammal vs. Sivanantha Perumal Sethurayar (14, Moore's Indian Appeals, 570) the Privy Council also decided to the same effect as the above, still leaving the question as to the legal position of a junior son born of a first wife an open one.

But in Pedda Ramapa vs. Bongari Sheshaunna (Indian Law Reports, 2 Madras, 286) the Privy Council distinctly held that there was no distinction between the son of a first wife and of any subsequent wife. It was held generally that 'among sons born of wives equal in their class, and without any other distinction, there can be no seniority in right of the mothers.' It is true that the dispute in this case was between the son of a third wife, and the son of a fourth wife. But it was claimed for the former that after the death of the first and second wives his mother (the third wife) stood in the position of a first married wife, and it was on this ground that their Lordships inquired into and settled the position of a son of a first married wife.

It is, therefore, now settled law that the junior son of a first married Hindu wife takes no precedence over the senior son of a subsequent wife, if both wives are of equal class.

23. Amongst Sudras the right of succession undoubtedly devolves on illegitimate sons in the absence of legitimate sons, sons' sons or sons' sons' sons. It does not appear that watan property form any exception to the general rule of succession in this respect. (L. R. No. 1695, dated 22nd December 1884; vide G. R. No. 104, dated 7th January 1885.)

24. According to the general Hindu law, as interpreted by recent decisions, it seems clear that a widow's own heirs can never succeed to immoveable property inherited by her from her husband. See Mayne's Hindu Law, paragraphs 519—525, Bhagvandas vs. Mynabai, 11 Moore I. A., 487, 513, and Collector of Masulipatam vs. Cereley, 8 Moore I. A., 529.

But this, like all other rules of Hindu law, is liable to be overruled by proof of a special custom to a different effect, and the passages in Steele, 231, West and Bühler, 540 and 541, and the opinion cited at West and Bühler, 546, point to there being in some parts at least of the Deccan a custom under which a widow's own heirs do in the absence of any heir of her husband succeed on her death to immoveable property inherited by her from him.

(Adv. Gen. No. 12, dated 24th February 1889; vide G. R. No. 6288, dated 27th August 1889.)

25. Section 9 of Act III of 1874 does not apply to cases in which a watan, its profits, or part thereof, have passed into the ownership of, or beneficial possession of, a person who is a Watandár of the same watan.

A Watandár is defined in Section 4 as a person having "an hereditary interest in a watan."

(3) Advocate General's No. 50 of 21st July 1883.

Government Resolution No. 6444, Revenue Department, of 30th August 1883.

The meaning of the phrase "having an hereditary interest in a watan" has been discussed* in the marginally noted papers.

The arguments in those papers seem to show that no one has an hereditary interest in a watan, or can be regarded consequently as a Watandár, until he has actually succeeded thereto, unless he is of the class known to Hindu Law† as unobstructed (apratibandha) heirs, that is, sons, sons' sons and their sons.

† Mayne on Hindu Law, Sections 247, 248.

Sons' sons and their sons have an interest in the ancestral property vested in them from their birth. The interests of all other persons who may succeed are contingent and dependent on default of persons preferentially entitled, and as their titles may be defeated by unforeseen contingencies, they have no hereditary interest till they actually succeed in the absence of other heirs.

Under Regulation XVI of 1827, Section 20, no person could succeed who was not of the family in which the office was vested.

A married daughter is not, strictly speaking, of her father's family,‡ but on marriage enters the gotra of her husband.

‡ West and Bühler, 129.

The object of the Regulation was to keep the watan in the family to which it was originally granted. A daughter takes an absolute estate,* her own heirs inherit† and she becomes a new stock of descent.‡ The Sadar Diváni Adálat seems to have held§ that females were precluded by Section 20 of Regulation XVI of 1827 from succeeding to a watan.

Subsequent, however, to the passing of Act XI of 1843 the High Court has frequently recognised the right of a female, even as a daughter,|| to succeed, as she is "allowed to appoint a deputy"¶ and is bound if required to furnish an efficient substitute.¶

Section 20 of Regulation XVI of 1827 having been repealed by Bombay III of 1874, Section 2 and Schedule (vide Act XII of 1876, Section 1), the words "hereditary interest" must now be taken in their ordinary meaning of an interest acquired under the ordinary law applicable regulating inheritance, except so far as it may be altered by express enactment.

Bombay III of 1874 thus left to ordinary Hindu Law as modified by special custom, the devolution of watan property among Hindus, and daughters and daughters' sons, though of a different family, in the absence of special custom, would succeed to watan as to other property. That the Legislature contemplated this as the result of Bombay III of 1874, appears from the express legislation** by which it deemed it necessary to postpone males claiming through a female (who must necessarily be of another family) to males otherwise entitled.

Under Bombay III of 1874, therefore, a daughter was, until Bombay V of 1886 became law, entitled, in default of unobstructed heirs and on the death of the widow to succeed, to divided watan in the absence of special custom excluding her.

The Courts have decided that there were no preferential heirs, that the property was divided, that there was no special custom excluding Sakubái, and declared her right to succeed.

At the time that the property passed into her ownership and possession therefore she was a Watan-dár, having an interest already actually acquired by descent, and Section 9 has therefore no application to her.

This appears to be in accordance with the view taken by

26. On the question whether one born only one month after the marriage of his mother with one G., could, for the purposes of inheritance, be regarded as the son of the said G., the mother having been formerly the wife of another man, J., the following opinion (No. 893, dated 1st June 1892) was recorded by the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs:—

“Ordinarily under Hindu Law a son born in wedlock is held legitimate though begotten before it<sup>(1)</sup>. Such a son was called Sahodha<sup>(2)</sup>. A presumption of legitimacy would also arise under Section 112 of the Evidence Act I of 1872.

“If R.'s mother and G. were Sudras, R. would succeed to G.'s rights, even as his illegitimate son,† provided that the intercourse was not adulterous and unlawful, in which case he could only claim maintenance and not inheritance. §

“In the present instance it is not stated that the birth of R. took place before the dissolution of the marriage between R.'s mother and her former husband J., or so soon after as to make it impossible that he should have been the son of G. by intercourse other than adulterous.

“The presumption therefore is that R. was the son of G. and entitled to succeed him, and it is for those who dispute that right to sustain the onus of showing that R. was the offspring of bigamous or adulterous intercourse.

“It is impossible to venture an opinion as to the question of fact whether R. were the son of J. or of G. Whether R. was the offspring of intercourse which would disentitle him, under the case above cited, to anything beyond maintenance, would seem to depend on the interval between the dissolution of the first marriage and R.'s birth, and in case of doubt R. is entitled to the benefit of it.”

"Assuming the facts to be as stated, viz., that the deceased P. (a representative Watandár in the pátilki watan of U.) has left no kindred but her sister's daughter T., that the family is governed by Mahomedan law, and that there are no other claimants except one C., who claims as the adopted daughter of deceased, there does not seem to be any reason for doubt that T., the daughter of deceased's sister, should succeed, and would exclude the right of the Crown.

28. When there are two or more distinct tak-sims in connection with one hereditary office, the Watandárs belonging to the different tak-sims should be treated as Watandárs of the same watan for the purposes of Part II of the Watan Act. (G. R. No. 7220, dated 30th September 1897.)

29. A widow cannot sell (and, therefore, a purchaser cannot buy) more than what is owned by the widow. Sales of shares to co-sharers should be encouraged as tending to reduce the number of shares, but for a purchaser to acquire an absolute right in a share purchased from a childless widow, it would be necessary for all the reversioners (co-sharers) to assent to and join in the sale. (L. R. No. 1279, dated 1st October 1885; vide G. R. No. 8617, dated 24th idem; vide also G. R. No. 3418, dated 8th September 1868).

30. As regards the question whether the holder of a service inám land can be ousted from his occupancy and forced to take other land in exchange, because his service holding is required for a public purpose, as for instance reserved forest, it appears that the only way in which an exchange could be enforced would be by Government resuming the existing service holding and afterwards making a fresh grant. But there is no provision in the rules concerning the resumption of service holdings, that Government may resume them whenever the land comprised therein is required for any public purpose. Service lands have always been acquired, when necessary, under the Land Acquisition Act. (L. R. No. 505, dated 19th April 1886; vide G. R. No. 3685, dated 21st May 1886.)

31. Watans consist of (1) lands, (2) cash allowances, and (3) right of service. When watan land is required for a public purpose, it may be acquired, like any other land, either by agreement or, if necessary, under the Land Acquisition Act. Cash allowances may be dealt with by Government at their pleasure, seeing that the Pensions Act protects them from suits in the Civil Courts in respect of such payments. In the case of an allowance enjoyed as remuneration for service, the payment would naturally be ordered to cease when the service is no longer performed or required by Government. For loss of the right of hereditary service, with the emoluments and advantages appertaining to it, a Watandár has a good claim to compensation, and if he is not satisfied with any terms Government may think fit to authorize the Collector to offer him, his claim will be entertainable by the Civil Courts. The Land Acquisition Act is not applicable to the acquisition of such rights. (L. R. No. 1635, dated 20th December 1886; vide G. R. No. 323, dated 14th January 1887.)

32. The will of a Hindu is, so far as it affects property, a deed of gift and takes effect to the same extent only as a gift of the property would be valid. Under Section 5 of the Hereditary Offices Act a gift of a watan is invalid without the sanction of Government.

The will in so far as it alienates the watan without the sanction of Government to a person who is not a Watandár of the same watan is invalid.

33. Section 5 of the Watan Act is to be given effect to when the alienation introduces no innovation in the original custom of the watan service and is not contrary to the provisions of the Act in other respects. (G. R. No. 6272, dated 3rd September 1886.)

34. The following opinion of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, No. 1262, dated 23rd November 1888, was circulated to the Collectors and Commissioners for information and guidance:—

“The question raised in the correspondence which accompanied Government Memorandum No. 5515, Revenue Department, dated 14th August 1888, is whether the Collector can under Section 11 of the Watan Act declare null and void an alienation which a Watandár was competent to make under Section 5 of the Act as amended by Bombay V of 1886.

“2. The facts are—

A Watandár mortgaged part of the watan property in 1878 for Rs. 300.

He offered to redeem.

The mortgagee refused to allow immediate redemption.

The Watandár complained to the Assistant Collector, Mr. Wiltshire, who under Section 11 of the Act ordered restoration of the property to the Watandár.

“3. On appeal the Collector considering the alienation valid under Section 5 of the Act as amended by Bombay V of 1886, as far as the life interest of the mortgagor was concerned, declined to act without the orders of Government.

“4. The Commissioner, S.D., thinks Section 11 empowers the Collector to protect only inalienable watans and that the Collector cannot declare null and void the alienation of an alienable interest.

"5. I doubt however whether the words 'therefore inalienable' in Section 10 of the Act would have the effect. They are not operative but only inserted as words to be used in the certificate, and it may be doubted if they apply to any words in that section but those with which they are coupled, viz., 'assigned as the remuneration of an officiator.'

"6. Until the Act was amended by Bombay V of 1886, all the alienations mentioned in Section 10 were ab initio void, including unsanctioned alienations of unassigned watan to non-Watandárs.

"7. The Amending Act rendered alienations of the kind last mentioned valid for the life interest of the alienor, but it did not by express words take away the power of the Collector to declare such alienations null and void.

"8. This was probably an oversight. The point seems to have been noticed in the Rules* made under the Act which were amended by Government Resolution No. 2793, Revenue Department, of 3rd May 1888, paragraph 2, to suit the change in the law, the words 'an illegal transfer' being substituted for the words 'a transfer.'

"9. The consequence is that under the strict wording of the law the Collector would retain the power in the interests of Government to declare such an alienation null and void, while the Civil Courts could not refuse to enforce it as an alienation valid so far as the life interest of the alienor is concerned.

"10. The words the 'Collector shall' in Section 11 are no doubt imperative. But Government alone could insist on their being enforced.

The mortgagor would be estopped from taking advantage of his own wrong, and now that he has the title which he professed to mortgage, he has no legal or equitable right to demand the restoration of the land to himself without redemption.

"11. If, therefore, the Collector has the power under Section 11 to declare the alienations void, there is no reason why such power should be exercised in contravention of the rules framed by Government.

"12. But I think that Sections 10 and 11 of the Act, so far as they affect alienations of life interests in 'unassigned' watans, were repealed by implication under Bombay Act V of 1886.

For 'if the co-existence of two sets of provisions would be destructive of the objects for which they were passed, the earlier would be repealed by the latter.'

"13. I therefore think that the Collector should refuse to exercise any summary powers in this case. The mortgagor has his remedy in the Civil Courts, and apparently the mortgagee is now willing to allow redemption.

"14. I may note that Section 11 only enables the Collector to declare the alienation of the watan property null and void and does not annul the liability of the alienor to pay the debt."

(G. R. No. 8513, dated 20th December 1888.)

35. There can be no doubt from Sections 4 and 9 of Act III of 1874 that it was not intended that the latter section should ever be enforced to deprive a person of a holding acquired before the introduction of the British Government. Such a person by Section 4 is to be regarded as himself a Watandár, and Section 9 clearly refers only to transfers whose invalidity was due to their not having been effected by virtue of a decree of a British Court or with the consent of a Collector.

Even before Bombay III of 1874, wherever Regulation XVI of 1827 was in force, an alienation of watan property was no doubt inoperative beyond the life time of the alienee.

It was therefore entirely consistent with the presumable intention of the Legislature that retroactive effect should be given to Section 9 in respect of all alienations made where Regulation XVI of 1827 was in force. For that section did not affect the substantive law, but only the procedure, and the presumption against a retrospective construction has no application to enactments which affect only the procedure.

Maxwell on Interpretation of Statutes, 199.

It is quite otherwise, however, when a retrospective construction would affect the validity of past transactions.

It is when the enactment would prejudicially affect vested rights, or the legal character of past Acts, that the presumption against a retrospective operation is strongest. Every statute which takes away or impairs vested rights acquired under existing laws, or creates a new obligation, or imposes a new duty, or attaches a new disability in respect of transactions or considerations already past, must be presumed, out of respect to the Legislature, to be intended not to have a retrospective operation.

Section 4, moreover, clearly indicates that the Legislature intended to regard as a Watandár any person actually holding watan property acquired by him before the introduction of the British Government.

36. The following opinion (No. 997, dated 13th August 1889) was recorded by the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs on the question whether under general Hindu law the assent of heirs is essential to alienations by partition of estate :—

“It is a general principle of law that all co-parceners must be joined in a suit for partition, bound by a suit for

I. L. R., 6 Mad., 284.

A son is not an heir, that term being misleading if applied to the case of a Hindu son's relation to his father. He is a co-parcener with a vested interest in the ancestral estate from his birth. He cannot dispute a partition made before his birth, but he is not necessarily partition brought by his father's brothers against his father to which the son himself has not been made a party.”

(G. R. No. 6728, dated 9th September 1889.)

37. A watan being an estate held from Government is subject to special rules both as to devolution and as to the capacity for proprietorship. Government usually has bestowed it on a particular family with reference to the special fitness of that family on account of caste or social or political status for the performance of certain public services annexed as an obligation, though not as a condition, to the grant. Enjoyment by that family is thus an essential element of the tenure. This being so, the tenure fails on the entail, so to speak, being broken and the property passing into the possession of one not a member of the family of beneficiaries. This is recognized in an important Full Bench judgment of the Bombay High Court, reported at pages 198—232 of the Indian Law Reports, IX, Bombay Series. If then the original family of Watandárs have allowed themselves to be ousted so long or in such wise that they can no longer assert their right against the intruders, the result is not to destroy the latent ultimate right of the donor on terms as reversioner, i.e., Government, but to bring the reversionary right into immediate operation. The ousted Watandárs if they have conspired with the intruders have been guilty of a fraud on the donor tending to the destruction of the residuary estate, which is recognised as a ground of forfeiture of the tenure. If they have been put out by force or fraud or the operation of any particular law, their estate has simply perished and that out of which it was carved (viz., the estate of Government) becomes integral again. The intruders cannot as against Government take advantage either of the fraud or the negligence of the tenant Watandárs so as to destroy the higher estate of the sovereign except when the right of the latter is barred by limitation. Watan lands are also service lands and Government under general rules to that effect may resume them at discretion. (G. R. No. 6890, dated 13th September 1889.)

38. The question whether rent can be demanded from an alienee of watan land under Section 9, clause 2, without a declaration that the alienation is null and void, answers itself when the effect of such a declaration is considered. A declaration that an alienation of watan property is null and void does not invalidate or annul the whole transaction. It does not relieve the alienor from personal liability, but only affects the alienation of the watan property. When the alienation was prior to the act and the watan property consists of land it is lawful * for the Collector under Section 9, clause 2, to leave the alienee in possession of the land and to recover full rent from him. But in such case the rent is regarded as the profits. The Collector's procedure in such case necessarily has the effect, therefore, of annulling the alienation of the profits. The transaction does not require to be annulled. The recovery of the profits, i.e., of the rent which shall be considered as the profits, operates as annulling the alienation of the profits, leaving the rest of the transaction untouched. The Collector has no power to do more than declare the alienation of the profits of the land alienated null and void, and his order for such recovery is an implied declaration that such alienation is null and void. There is in such a case no necessity or legal justification for any declaration beyond that, and if the declaration required to be expressed in words, it could merely declare that the alienation of the profits was null and void. The transaction is otherwise unaffected. The other incidents expressed or implied in the contract stand as they were before. Thus the liability for the debt and in case of a mortgage the equity of redemption or in case of a lease the limit of the term would be unchanged by the declaration. (L. R. No. 61, dated 13th January 1890; vide G. R. No. 947, dated 4th February 1890.)

[PART III.]

PART III.—COMMUTATION OF WATANS.

1. Government are not at present disposed to enforce a non-service settlement against the wishes of the Watandárs, but in cases where they are not willing to accept it, service up to the full value of the watan should be exacted.

There is no legal difficulty in enforcing a settlement in respect to cash emoluments, and this can be done hereafter, if advisable, in cases where the cash allowances are sufficient to cover the amount representing the value of the service dispensed with. (G. R. No. 3045, dated 16th June 1874.*)

2. Ten years should be fixed as the period of settlements of haks to be made by pancháits under Section 18 of the Watan Act. (G. R. No. 34, dated 4th January 1876.)

3. The wording of Section 17† of the Watan Act excludes from its operation a case in which no payment in cash or kind is made and the remuneration consists of land alone. (G. R. No. 8190, dated 9th October 1885.)

---

\* In the Ratnágiri District the Collector was directed to enforce the non-service settlement on the basis of commutation of  $5\frac{1}{2}$  annas in the rupee. (G. R. No. 6260, dated 16th September 1887.)

† As regards the construction of Section 17, vide judgment of the Bombay High Court in Appeal No. 62 of 1895 printed as a foot-note to paragraph 8 of Part II of the Village Officers and Servants Section of the Compilation.

PART IV.—CREATION AND LAPSE OF WATANS.

1. It is inexpedient to create new watans in the Konkan, and the person who is appointed Patel should receive a cash remuneration. (G. R. No. 3270, dated 29th June 1878.)

2. The villages of the Panch Maháls should be grouped in two classes, viz., Class A, comprising the more settled areas and the larger villages, and Class B, comprising villages without organized communities and inhabited chiefly by Bhils or Kolis. In the villages under Class A, new watans should be created under Part IV of the Watan Act III of 1874, but in the smaller Bhil and Koli villages in which no watan rights exist, none should be created at present. (G. R. No. 2139, dated 22nd April 1879.)

3. Government do not think it desirable to acknowledge services of their officers by the grant of watans. (G. R. No. 5747, dated 3rd October 1881.)

4. Government would be prepared to grant service lands to Patels, the former Watanárs of deserted villages, in the Khándesh District on their repopulating them and bringing a certain area of land under cultivation, should the Commissioner see fit to make proposals to that effect. (G. R. No. 3294, dated 26th May 1887.)

5. Copies of the following letter from the Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Revenue and Agriculture, No. 215—348, dated 18th January 1895, were forwarded to the Commissioners and Collectors for information with an intimation that the order* of the Government of India, No. 56, dated 26th April 1841, quoted at page 122 of Nairne's Revenue Handbook, so far as it relates to hereditary village accountants, should be considered as cancelled :—

“I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 9948, dated 5th December 1894, enclosing correspondence on the subject of the recent grant to Ráo Sáheb Shesho Krishna, Mámlatdár, of certain kulkarni watans in the Bijápur District in which the hereditary rights, which had expired, were revived in his favour, and to forward for the information of the Governor in Council a copy of a letter, No. 2007, dated 22nd October 1894, recently addressed to the Government of Madras, which indicates the views of the Government of India regarding the maintenance of hereditary village accountants.

employment of their village accountants on survey and settlement work was the practical impossibility of training the hereditary kulkarnis. The Government of India, as at present advised, do not suggest any interference with existing hereditary rights; but they are strongly of opinion that such rights when once extinct should not ordinarily be revived.

"3. Circumstances have altered greatly since the order of the Government of India was passed upon which the rule* contained in Section 22 of Chapter VI of Mr. Nairne's Handbook for Revenue Officers is based, and I am to request that, if His Excellency in Council sees no objection, the rule so far as it relates to hereditary village accountants may now be formally abolished."

PART V.—REMUNERATION OF OFFICIATORS.*

1. In cases where the proprietor (i.e., the person in possession) of service land is either unwilling to, or incapacitated from, performing village service, the Collector may require him to pay such rent over and above the fixed survey assessment as will suffice for the wages of a substitute. If the proprietor is unwilling to meet this demand, then the land should, as a general rule, be resumed.

The excess beyond the official emolument, levied under the above orders, which, in fact is nothing more than the legitimate rent, should not be credited to Government, but paid to the person who has a right to the occupancy of the service land, but is kept out of it by another who has possession.

(G. Rs. Nos. 2241, dated 20th June 1866, No. 2425, dated 4th July 1866, and No. 5976, dated 4th December 1872.)

2. It may be assumed that all land held by the patelki family in the Panch Maháls was held for service, or in other words, the Patel took it by virtue of his office.

While the Panch Maháls were under the Scindia, the revenue was farmed, a lump sum being paid by each village, and neither the Vahivatdár nor the Gwálíor Darbár cared how much or how little land the Patels had in their own possession, so long as a round sum was paid by the village.

When the district came into the British possession, village accounts were for the first time prepared, and the Talátis entered the land in the possession of the Patels according to their fancy, some entering the whole of the land enjoyed by the Patel bháyád as service, and some only the portion enjoyed by the officiators as service, and that held by the non-officiators as ját inám or jivái. In fact, there was no uniformity, and it would, therefore, be impossible to draw any distinction between the different descriptions of land according to Government books; for, as stated above, it was all enjoyed for what is now termed service.

This, added to the confusion in which the subject appears to have got involved, led Government to think that it would not be inequitable to order de novo that the whole of the land found in the possession of the Patel family is to be treated as service and made available for the remuneration of the Patels.

The above settlement applies to the whole of the Panch Maháls except the Mevási villages.

(G. R. No. 239, dated 16th January 1878.)*

The lands of the Patels in the Panch Maháls are very extensive, and, not being "watans" can be dealt with as Government please. The following proposal made by the Extra First Assistant Collector, Panch Maháls, should be carried out, care being taken in so doing to bear in mind the provisos that (1) due margin should be left to provide for remuneration in the case of increased cultivation, and (2) the change should be made to press less hardly on the Patels and their families. This latter point may require that the balance of land left after the payment to the Patels and police should not be fully assessed.

"Some of the excess may often be made available for the remuneration of village police without taking assessment from the holders who would either themselves take the place of watchmen or arrange with men of the village for the performance of the duty. As the revenue of the district increases, so the remuneration of the revenue Patel according to scale would be greater. It would be well, therefore, to leave a margin on the statement according to the present figures.

"A quantity of land equal to the officiating Patel's free holding might be set apart for the remuneration of the village police and the residue be fully assessed. * * * The establishment of subordinate police servants in the villages should be made at the same time with the settlement of the Patels' holdings, so that the additional charges to be met may be known at the same time with the new recoveries on account of excess service holdings."

(G. R. No. 3241, dated 27th June 1878.)

3. Bháyáds' lands in the Panch Maháls District should be recognised as jāt ináms and excluded from consideration in the allotment of lands as remuneration for service. (G. R. No. 7298, dated 2nd December 1881.)

4. The following opinion (No. 383, dated 29th March 1882) was recorded by the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs on the subject of the application of the Watan Act to a patelki office which was not held in a particular family and the remuneration of which was paid by the Inámdár:—

"The patelki office of the village of Dyamapur in the Dhárwár District cannot, in my opinion, be treated as a stipendiary appointment under the provisions of Section 16 of the Land Revenue Code, the second portion of which section expressly saves the rights of Inámdárs and others in respect of the appointment of Patels. Yet the office has been in existence ever since the introduction of British rule, and the Inámdárs have always paid the remuneration of the office. In cases where the office is held by a particular family such payments are considered watan property attaching to the office. But in cases where the office is not held by any particular family, it does not follow that the office is not what is known as 'watan,' and that the payment of the emoluments is merely a stipend, or that the Inámdár may abolish the office and withhold the remuneration whenever he chooses.

"2. It is true that the word 'watan' is defined in the Act to include watan property, the hereditary office, and the rights and privileges attached thereto, and that the Act only deals with offices which are held by Watandárs, that is, persons who have a hereditary interest in a watan; but there are undoubtedly watans the right to hold which does not exist in any particular family, and Government has power to deal with such under the provisions of Section 22 of the Act by appointing a particular person to perform the duties of the office and enjoy the emoluments in consideration of such performance, or to assign the office and its emoluments as hereditary property to a particular family as Government may see fit. When there is a watan, but no Watandár, Government can appoint an officiator.

"3. When a patelki office has existed from a time anterior to our rule and the officiator for the time being has all along been regularly paid, it may be difficult to ascertain the exact origin of the office; but to convert what is presumably a watan in its inception into a stipendiary appointment continuable only at the Inámdár's pleasure would be a retrograde course.

"4. Section 16 of the Land Revenue Code applies to Government villages and to those alienated villages where there is no such thing as a patelki office or any sort of remuneration for any such office, and where it may be considered desirable by Government that a stipendiary Patel should be appointed.

"5. In the present instance there is an office, presumably watan in its nature and origin with a payment attached to it, and the right of Government to appoint an officiator. All that is required is the power to make the Inámdárs continue the payments, and this power appears to me to be sufficiently afforded by the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act."

(G. R. No. 2552, dated 19th April 1882.)

5. The following opinion of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, No. 629, dated 14th May 1887, dealing with the question whether watan land for which judi has been imposed according to the rules for the payment of remuneration to officiating Watandárs in the case of patelki and kulkarni watans should be transferred to the officiating Watandárs, was communicated to all Collectors and Commissioners :—

"Subject to the provisions of the Watan Act and local custom the right of succession to watan property is governed by the ordinary law of inheritance.

"In the present case, Lala Chaudkhan held the field in dispute from 1858-59 to 1878-79.

After his death his son Guljar took possession and held it till 1882. The Assistant Collector then ejected him in favour of Edu, who had been appointed officiating Patel, on the ground that it should be presumed that the land had been assigned as remuneration for the officiator. The Collector reversed this order and restored Guljar.

"The Collector's order appears to be correct. The Assistant Collector's opinion that it should be presumed that the right to the possession of land had been assigned as official remuneration is, I think, erroneous. The presumption is the other way. The ordinary law of inheritance from the last possessor prevails until the circumstances which require some other order of descent are proved. There is really no proof that this land was assigned as official remuneration. Such assignment could only be the result of a specific order or of general custom. As it is not suggested that the Government records show any trace of an official order about this land, it may safely be assumed that none has ever been passed. And as regards custom, there is no proof that by it the land has been reserved for the officiator. It is true that Lala and Guljar held from 1858 to 1882 and that at the same time they successively officiated as Patels, but these facts are quite insufficient to establish the custom. To do so it would be necessary to show that for a very long series of years the possession of this land always went with the office irrespective of the ordinary law of descent, and that the existence of the custom was generally admitted by the family.

PART V.]

[WATAN.]

"I do not think the imposition of extra judi on the land to make up the scale remuneration to the officiator and the grant to the latter of a stipend in cash from the treasury affect in any way the right to possession of the land. Though the extra judi is indirectly paid to the officiator, the very most that can be said is that its imposition may amount to an assignment of part of the profits as official remuneration; but it cannot, in my opinion, be held to be an assignment of the land itself."

(G. Rs. No. 3774, dated 22nd June 1887, No. 6922, dated 14th September 1889, and No. 1284, dated 16th February 1897.)

6. It is no part of the duty of an officer settling a watan register to fix the emoluments of the officiators in the watan. Where no land is assigned for the remuneration of the officiators and the representative Watandárs serve contemporaneously and perform similar duties, it is equitable to divide the cash allowance assigned to the watan equally between the officiators. (G. R. No. 8141, dated 26th October 1889.)

PART VI.—REPRESENTATIVE WATANDÁRS.

1. In cases of dispute as to the right to serve, the general rule should be that if the actual performance of service is not disputed, it should rest with the opposite party to prove that such service was on the part of others and not of original right, if they allege such to be the case; if they fail to prove this, the claimant should have the benefit of the doubt. (G. R. No. 4797, dated 23rd August 1875.)

2. Section 26 of Bombay Act III of 1874 enacts that in determining what heads of families shall be recognised as representative Watandárs, and what is the custom of the watan as to service, the Collector shall consider the practice heretofore observed from the earliest period for which there are records or other evidence available. A final decree of a competent Court determining the rights of the Watandárs inter se, and the custom of their watan as to service, would appear to be evidence of the nature contemplated by this section, and it ought to be regarded by the Collector, as it would be by any other authority, as conclusive on the points with which it deals.

The rules laid down in Part VI for determining who shall be recognised as representative Watandárs, are however to some extent new, and should any of them operate to limit or vary a right of which the existence has been declared by a Court's decree upon different grounds, the Collector will be bound to enforce the new law, and to treat the Court's judgment as conclusive only with respect to such facts as are material to a correct determination under the Act of the right to be recognised as a "Representative Watandár."

3. Wherever a Court of competent jurisdiction has investigated and adjudicated upon the rights of the members of a Watandár family inter se, or the custom of a watan as to service, the Collector should treat the judgment of the Court as evidence under Section 26 of Bombay Act III of 1874, and not go behind it, unless he be satisfied that all the parties interested were not before the Court, or that there was, from any other cause, a miscarriage of justice. In any case, the Collector should treat the judgment of the Court as prima facie evidence, and abide by it until it is satisfactorily impeached. Of course, if the judgment of the Court is at variance in any respect with the rules laid down in Part VI of the Act as to who are to be recognised as representative Watandárs, the Collector must follow the directions of the Act, and adopt the judgment of the Court only so far as it establishes facts material to enable him to come to a determination.

(Adv. Gen. No. 14, dated 26th February 1876; vide G. R. No. 1711, dated 17th March 1876.)

4. For the purposes of Act III of 1874, in all

Some generations back a man had two sons, on the second of whom, for some reason or other, the service watan devolved. On his death his son succeeded and so on in succession through each generation. The eldest son of the original head of the family and his descendants never had any connection with the watan. such cases as that noted in the margin the existing head of the family of the second son should be registered as the representative Watan-dár under Section 27 and also entered in column 20 of the watan register.

It is not intended, however, that proof of appointment under Act XI of 1843 is necessary to give a Watandár a claim to officiate. What is meant is that when, for some reason or other, the elder branch of a family had never had any connection with the watan, the existing head of the family of the second son who had been connected with the watan should be registered as the representative.

(G. Rs. Nos. 2906, dated 15th May 1876, 3484 dated 14th June 1876, and 3809, dated 30th idem.)

5. In a watan in which there were two taksíms (A and B) it had been the custom for one member of each taksím to officiate contemporaneously. In one taksím (B) there was but one family and a member of it had always officiated for life, but in the other (A) there were three families a member of each of which had officiated in fixed successive periods. As the service of one member of each taksím was contemporaneous, the question was raised whether the Collector was bound under Clause 3, Section 38, of the Watan Act to hold that the rotation of each of the three 'representative Watan-dárs' in the latter taksím must in future be for life or whether he could fix the period of their rotation at his discretion. The point was also raised whether in the case of the latter taksím the heads of the three families had the right to come to an agreement amongst themselves as to the order of service or whether the privilege allowed by Section 31 was strictly confined to cases described in Section 29. On these points the following orders were passed by Government:—

Contemporaneous service means service so performed in the same taksím and the service in watan A has not been contemporaneous but successive, as only one man has officiated at a time. The watan settlement would be—

Watan B—One officiator permanently for life.

Watan A—One officiator in rotation out of three families for terms of not less than ten years in case of Patels or five in case of Kulkarnis, or for life, according to whether the case fell under Section 28 or Section 29 modified by agreement under Section 31.

(G. R. No. 3262, dated 2nd June 1876.)*

* The following opinion was recorded by the Legal Remembrancer in his report No. 438, dated 3rd May 1876, on the points disposed of by this Resolution:—

6. Under Section 26 of the Watan Act the Collector is bound to consider what has hitherto been the custom of a watan as to service, and if he is of opinion that one house has hitherto served oftener or for longer periods than another, it will be his duty to confirm that custom when preparing a new register. Service according to proportionate value of shares of watans should, however, be avoided, as much as possible, as tending to complicate the preparation of registers. (G. R. No. 4987, dated 31st August 1876.)

7. Watandár, as defined in Section 4 of the Watan Act, includes "a person adopted by the owner of a watan or part of a watan" subject to Sections 33—35. Section 33 appears to have been intended to enact that if any Watandár who is or was head of a family or chief representative of a branch of a Watandár family (or his widow) has adopted an heir before the Act came into force, notice of such adoption must be given to the Collector within 12 months of the Act coming into force, and if this is done, the adoption is conditionally recognised, and the right of the heir to be registered is admitted as if he had been a born son of his father.

"5. * * The case put is one of a watan in which the service may be said to be partly contemporaneous and partly in successive periods. Section 28 applies where the service has been either contemporaneous or in successive periods, and Sections 29—31 apply only to cases in which the service has been in successive periods. The case stated in the question appears to be a casus omisus, and Section 38 therefore does not expressly provide for it. But there is no difficulty in seeing how it should be dealt with, and as Section 82 empowers Government 'to frame rules not inconsistent with the Act for the guidance of its officers in cases not expressly provided for,' I would suggest that the following rule be passed (namely):—

'When it has been the custom, for a member of each of two or more taksims to serve contemporaneously, and in one or more of such taksims a member of each of several families has performed the duties in successive periods, the custom as to contemporaneous service shall, subject to the provisions of Section 43, be recognised, and the rights of the representative Watandár, or of the representative Watandárs of each taksim as to service shall be determined under the provisions of the Act as if each such taksim constituted a distinct watan.'

According to this rule, in the case stated in the question, Section 27 would apply to the sole representative Watandár in the former taksim, and according to clause 2, Section 31, the period of his service would be for life; and Sections 28—31 would apply to the three representative Watandárs in the latter taksim and their period of service would either be for life or in successive periods according to the section under which their case fell. The rule would thus be not only 'not inconsistent with the Act' but also, I think, entirely in accordance with its spirit and intention.

"6. * * I am of opinion that Section 31 applies only to the cases described in Section 29 and that the three heads of families have only the right to determine the order of service amongst themselves, if the practice of service in successive periods is not proved to the Collector's satisfaction to have existed at the date of the introduction of Act XI of 1843, or if the practice of selection by the Collector from several families prevails. If the case falls under Section 28 (and apparently also if it falls under Section 30, although it is not expressly so stated) the Collector is 'to decide the order in which the representative Watandárs shall officiate,' but I presume that there would be no objection to his consulting the wishes of the representative Watandárs themselves on this point, and in fact this would no doubt generally be the preferable course."

by adoption. (G. R. No. 5559, dated 24th September 1881.)

8. The old rules published at pages 32 to 35 of the Circular Orders of the Revenue Department regarding the grant of permission to non-representative Watandárs to adopt and the levy of nazarána in case of adoption should not be regarded as having the force of law. The policy of Government in the matter of adoptions by service Watandárs being decidedly more liberal than before under the provisions of the Watan Act, it would seem absurd to restrict in the case of non-representative Watandárs a privilege which has been conceded to representative Watandárs. If the restriction is unnecessary in the case of representative, it is more so in the case of non-representative Watandárs. (G. R. No. 1001, dated 2nd February 1885.)

9. The Watan Act does not recognise either seniority or juniority as conveying or denying a qualification to registration as a representative Watandár and nothing is more common as a custom than for the junior branch of a family to retain all the rights of service to the exclusion of the elder branch. (G. R. No. 4007, dated 21st June 1882.)

10. It does not appear, looking to Section 26 of the Hereditary Offices Act, that the Collector's inquiry into the past custom of a watan as to service should be restricted to the period of British rule. (L. R., No. 552, dated 18th April 1884; vide G. R. No. 3737, dated 9th May 1884.)

11. A sole surviving male representative of a Patel Watandár family gave notice under Section 34 of Bombay Act III, 1874, of adoption of an heir selected by his daughters-in-law. Strictly speaking, the terms of Section 34 of the Hereditary Offices Act are not applicable to the circumstances of the case, because the adoption has not been made by a registered representative Watandár or his widow. But the adoption has been made by the widows of the deceased son of the representative Watandár with his approval, and the adopted son becomes by virtue of the adoption the heir of the present representative Watandár in preference to the widows who have adopted him, and if he survives him, will be entitled, under Section 36, to be registered as representative Watandár in his stead. In these circumstances the Collector should register the name of the adoptive boy as heir, on the ground that the provisions of the Act have been as nearly complied with as was possible. Section 34 of the Act requires that the name of an adopted child should be registered by the Collector as heir merely. If notice of the adoption is made at a time when the adoptee is by virtue of his adoption at once entitled to be registered as representative Watandár, he should be so registered also; but otherwise his registration as representative Watandár will take place, under Section 36, only on the death of the existing representative Watandár. (L. R. No. 901, dated 4th July 1884; vide G. R. No. 5846, dated 19th idem.)

12. The words of Section 35 of the Hereditary Offices Act clearly prohibit the Collector from recognising any adoption of which notice has not been given as provided in Section 33 or 34, unless upon production of a certificate of heirship or of a decree of a competent Court establishing the validity of such adoption. Where there are or are likely to be disputes amongst the Watandárs themselves, either as to the fact or as to the validity of an alleged adoption, this provision should be strictly enforced. But if the question affects nobody but the alleged adoptee and the Government, it is competent to Government, if they think fit, to dispense with the necessity for a strict compliance with the law, and when the adoption was made with the Collector's sanction and notice of it, was not given under Section 33 through oversight merely, there would be good reason for not insisting upon the observance of the letter of the law. On the other hand, if there is no dispute amongst the Watandárs as to the adoptee's claim, he will have no difficulty in obtaining a certificate of heirship in the District Court. Some trouble and some expense are all that it will involve. (L. R., No. 933, dated 12th July 1884; vide G. R. No. 6102, dated 30th idem.)

13. It has been held that in Bengal a Hindu lad who has attained the years of discretion may adopt or give authority to adopt, and that a boy of 15 has attained the age of discretion. (Section 15, W. R. 548, and I. L. R., 1 Cal., 289.)

The question is considered in West and Bühler's Hindu Law, pages 905 (d) and 947-8, with the result of showing that no precise time is fixed by the shástras when a male may adopt and that a minor is not generally incompetent to adopt.

When a widow adopts with the consent of her husband, the material point is not what is her age at the time she adopts, but whether her husband was of sufficient age to be competent to authorize her to adopt. Consequently it is stated that a "widow, who is duly authorized by her husband, may adopt while she is a minor, because the act is her husband's and she is only the instrument." (Mayne's Hindu Law, 4th Edition, paragraph 105.)

But in Western India no consent on the part of the husband is required for the validity of an adoption by a widow; so that the age of the deceased husband is in this Presidency immaterial. Steele in his Law and Customs of Hindu Castes (page 48) says, on the authority of Bhálchandra Shástri, that "a widow cannot adopt while under puberty," but there is no decision to this effect, and the law as to the age at which a Hindu widow may adopt must be regarded as being unsettled.

There is, however, no ground for holding that a widow of the age of 15 or 16 is incompetent to adopt, and for the purposes of Section 34 of the Hereditary Offices Act the Collector should recognise such an adoption, if there is no other objection to his doing so. (L. R. No. 1988, dated 7th December 1891; vide G. R. No. 8851, dated 22nd idem.)

14. The following opinion of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, No. 8, dated 3rd January 1885, was circulated to Collectors and Commissioners with the remark, as regards paragraph 3 of it, that the Governor in Council doubts the necessity for any formal rules, that cases of the nature in question are very rare, and a Collector may be trusted to exercise his own discretion in dealing with them, proceeding in the manner mentioned in paragraph 4, and that if any person whose claim is rejected is dissatisfied, he will naturally appeal to the Commissioner and to Government, and the propriety of the Collector's decision can then be considered :—

“ The provisions of Section 36 of the Hereditary Offices Act prescribe the course which is to be observed by the Collector ordinarily, i.e. when there are heirs of a deceased representative Watandár, and the only question is which of them is entitled to be recognised as representative Watandár in the place of the deceased. For the uncommon case of there being no person in whom the right of inheritance appears to the Collector to vest, the section makes no provision; but in such a case the Collector, as the representative of Government, is clearly entitled to refuse to recognise any claim which he deems to be unfounded and to treat the watan or the share of the deceased representative Watandár as lapsed.

“ 2. Section 22 of the Act shows that it was contemplated by the Legislature that watans or parts of watans will occasionally lapse to Government, and it cannot have been intended that under Section 36 the Collector should be compelled to recognise the claim of a person to succeed as heir merely because he produces a certificate of heirship notwithstanding that the Collector may have good reason for questioning his title. A certificate of heirship is granted under Regulation VIII of 1827 upon a very summary inquiry and frequently ex parte. The Civil Courts themselves do not regard the orders passed in such inquiries as final; the person to whom a certificate is granted is merely held to be prima facie heir.

“ 3. In every case, therefore in which the Collector considers that there is no person entitled to succeed to a watan or share of a watan, he is justified, I think, in declaring such watan or share of a watan lapsed. This declaration may be made by him as soon as his inquiries satisfy him on the point, but whether he should arrive at a conclusion and declare a lapse of his own authority or after reference to the Commissioner or to Government is an administrative detail as to which it is open to Government to prescribe such rules as they think fit.

“ 4. The declaration of a lapse and the appropriation of the watan or portion of a watan to which such declaration applies as the property of Government, will involve Government in liability to a civil suit at the instance of any person who deems himself entitled to succeed to the property as heir of the deceased, and there is no bar to such a suit except the twelve years' limitation rule. If therefore a person comes forward within the above period and lays claim to the property, his claim ought not to be set aside because he did not appear sooner or because the watan or portion of a watan has already been treated as a lapse, but his claim ought to be enquired into as that of a person who may hereafter sue Government in the Civil Courts, and if he has obtained a certificate of heirship that fact should be regarded as indicating that he has some evidence in support of his claim. Whether any such claim should be finally resisted or admitted depends, of course, upon the merits of each case. There is nothing in the Hereditary Officers Act that prevents its being admitted and the claimant's name being registered under Section 36 at any time."

(G. R. No. 531, dated 19th January 1885.)

15. The following opinion of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs (No. 20, dated 5th January 1885) was communicated to the Divisional Commissioners:—

"In this case the parties are related as follows:—

Ramangauda is living, and as he is the eldest son of the deceased Kenchangauda there is no question that, under ordinary circumstances, he should be recognised as the representative Watandár and that he would be succeeded, on his death, by his son Basangauda.

"2. But it seems that Yellapgauda, the second son of Kenchangauda, is a man of superior intelligence, and that Ramangauda, who is rather the reverse, consented twenty years ago to the kháta being entered in his name and has never since taken any personal part or interest in the watan affairs.

"3. In 1870, a watan register was prepared under the departmental orders of Government by the First Assistant Collector and the right of service was entered in Yellapgauda's sole name. In 1875, this same entry was confirmed under the Hereditary Offices Act. Now (June 1884) for the first time Ramangauda's son, Basangauda, has applied that either his father or he may be declared representative Watandár in preference to Yellapgauda.

"4. I do not think that Government should as a rule revise orders under Section 79 of the Hereditary Offices Act which have been so long in force as has the one here in question. Basangauda's age is not stated in the proceedings, but if he has only recently attained his majority, there is a good reason for the delay which has occurred, and on the other hand it would have been unsafe for him to wait till his father's or Yellapgauda's death before making any representation to Government for fear that his silence might be construed into tacit acquiescence.

"5. The entry of the watan in Yellapgauda's name twenty years ago was made with Ramangauda's consent. He and Yellapgauda and a third brother came to this arrangement when they were still living as unseparated brethren, by mutual consent. This was a family arrangement with which Government will probably not think it desirable that there should be any interference, especially as Yellapgauda was evidently the most fit person to hold office; and there is here an additional reason for Government declining to deal with the case under Section 79 of the Act.

"6. Moreover, it is Ramangauda and not his son who is entitled under the Act to be representative Watandár. So long, therefore, as Ramangauda is alive, Basangauda has no claim to have his name entered in the record. For all these reasons I would recommend that Basangauda's application be refused.

"7. But a father cannot by Hindu law will away his son's interest in the ancestral estate. On the death of Ramangauda, therefore, Basangauda will have a legitimate claim to the entry of his name as representative Watandár, inasmuch as Yellapgauda's name stands only through the acquiescence of Ramangauda, and Yellapgauda's title will, therefore, cease on Ramangauda's death. Or if Yellapgauda should prede-cease Ramangauda, and the latter is then still unwilling that the entry should be in his name, Basangauda and not any son or heir of Yellapgauda will be entitled to be representative Watandár.

"8. I have written thus far under the supposition that the watan is still the common property of Ramangauda and Yellapgauda. The Collector states, however, that the two brothers separated in 1877. If this means that there was a partition of the family property and if in such partition the watan fell entirely and exclusively to Yellapgauda, then, of course, neither Ramangauda nor his son Basangauda has any longer any interest in the watan, which must henceforward be regarded by the Collector as vesting in Yellapgauda's branch of the family only. But if the separation was merely a separation in house and food, without any formal partition, what I have above written holds good."

(G. R. No. 692, dated 23rd January 1885).

16. The register cannot be said to be completed until appeals from the decision of the officer who passed it have been heard.

As the decision of the original Court is not final until the period of appeal is over and as the appellate authority can confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Original Court, it is perfectly competent to an Appellate Court to enter the names of representative Watandárs by the mutual agreement of the sharers under Section 31 of the Watan Act.

(G. Rs. Nos. 7744, dated 25th September 1885, and 8107, dated 5th December 1888.)

17. Watandárs of watans already settled should not be called upon to lodge genealogical trees in Government records. (G. R. No. 8690, dated 28th December 1888.)

18. It is an error to suppose that sanction is necessary to an adoption. It is sufficient to refer to Indian Law Reports, 1 Bombay, 607. Section 35 of the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act only requires the Collector to withhold his recognition of an adoption unsupported by decree or certificate if notice thereof has not been promptly given, i. e., within twelve months if it took place before the Act, and within three months if after. If notice be given in time, the Collector is bound to register it. (L. R. No. 354, dated 3rd April 1889; vide G. R. No. 3090, dated 27th idem.)

19. The words "several families" as used in Section 28 do not necessarily mean families descended from different ancestors. (G. R. No. 5399, dated 27th July 1889.)

20. The following opinion of the Honourable the Advocate General, No. 74, dated 17th September 1895, in which Government concurred, was communicated to the Commissioners of Divisions for information :—

"With reference to memorandum No. 6787 of the Revenue Department, dated 4th September 1895, requesting my opinion whether having regard to the provisions, scope and intention of Bombay Act III of 1874, a deity or idol may legally be registered as a representative Watandár, I am of opinion as follows.

"I think that it is clear from the whole of the Act that a representative Watandár must be a person capable (apart from cases of unfitness such as are mentioned in Sections 45 and 46) of performing the duties of the office appertaining to the watan. Special provision is made for the performance of those duties in the case of a representative Watandár who is a minor (Section 37) or who is a female (Section 51). In the absence of any provision for the case of a deity or idol, I think that the legal fiction by which an idol is in a limited sense regarded as a kind of human entity cannot avail to contravene the plain intention of the Act as above stated. In as much therefore as a deity or idol is, even if regarded as a personality, incapable of performing any duties, it is not in my opinion legal to register such a personality as a representative Watandár."

(G. R., No. 7693, dated 5th October 1895.)

21. The last sentence of Section 36 relates only to the proceedings of registering the name of the heir; and if a certificate of heirship or a decree is then produced, the Collector must act on it; but the Collector is not bound to alter the register years after it has been framed, because a certificate of heirship or decree affecting private property is produced, and has not power to alter it at all on that account, although, if a Court distinctly decreed that a person not registered was heir to watan rights, Government would no doubt be moved to direct a new inquiry after calling for the papers.

Whenever a decision under Section 36 of the Act appears, owing to the subsequent production of a certificate of heirship or for any other cause, to be erroneous, Government will be prepared, on due cause shown, to take action under Section 79 of the Act.

(G. R. No. 7063, dated 4th November 1898.)

22. The following opinion of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, No. 1058, dated 31st August 1895, was communicated to the Commissioners of Divisions for information :—

"The family owning the watan in question was formerly a joint family consisting of three brothers, Ganu, Dongar and Rágho. Ganu's name was entered as that of the representative Watandár of the watan. When he died, Dongar's name was entered. When Dongar died, Rágho applied to have his name entered, but died before orders were passed. The Assistant Collector eventually ordered that the name of Bhima, widow of the second brother, Dongar, should be entered. Lakshmibái, widow of the eldest brother, Ganu, appealed to the Collector. The widow of the third brother, Rágho, made no claim. The Collector reversed the Assistant Collector's decision, and ordered that the name of Lakshmibái, widow of the eldest brother, Ganu, should be entered. Bhima now in turn appeals to the Commissioner. The Commissioner on the authority of Government Resolution in the Revenue Department, No. 7192 of 5th September 1885,—which rules that a decision in appeal should proceed only on the points raised in the appeal—refrains from dealing with the appeal, and refers the matter to Government. He is of opinion that the name of the widow of the third brother, Rágho, should be entered. He points out that Rágho's name should have been entered when Dongar died. The fact of Rágho's having died before the enquiry with a view to the entry of a new name was complete, does not take away his right. His widow is his nearest heir. Her name should therefore be entered. Her failure to apply does not affect the question, for the terms of Section 36 of the Act are imperative.

("I think this view is correct. The law governing the rights of the individuals concerned appears to be this. The widow of the last deceased brother takes the estate. The widows of the other brothers are entitled to maintenance only (West and Bühler, pages 345-6 and 400-1). Rágho's widow is, in the language of Section 36, the nearest heir to the family property, the watan included, and her name must be entered as sole representative Watandár. It makes no difference that she has not put forward her claim. The law does not require an heir to do so. By Section 36 of the Act the village officers are to report the death of a representative Watandár, and the Collector is bound then, if satisfied that the report of the death is true, to enter the name of the person appearing to be the deceased's nearest heir. Nor does the fact that Rágho's application was not disposed of before his death, affect the question. His name should have been entered whether he applied or not. But taking matters as they stand, Rágho's widow is nearest heir to Dongar as sole heir to her deceased husband who was heir to Dongar.

"The procedure contemplated by Section 36 appears to be very summary. Enquiry beyond the contents of the village officer's report is not obligatory. But any one aggrieved by an order under the section has his remedy by application to the Civil Court for a certificate, or a suit in the same for declaration of heirship."

(G. R. No. 7371, dated 25th September 1895.)

23. The following opinion (No. 295, dated 26th February 1897) recorded by the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs on the question whether the female relations of a daughter should be postponed to her father's male relations in the order of the succession to the watan entered in her name before Act V of 1886 came into force, was communicated to the Divisional Commissioners and the Collectors in the Presidency proper :—

"The question proposed for opinion in Government memorandum No. 9073, Revenue Department, of 16th November last, arises under Section 2 of Act V of 1886, amending the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act III of 1874.

"One Vithalpant appears to have been the original Watan-dár. He died, leaving two sons Shidrampant and Devjipant, and hitherto the watan has been in the possession of the heirs of Shidrampant.

"Shidrampant's great-grandson died in 1874, leaving a widow named Umábái, who died in 1881 and a daughter named Vithábái.

"The watan was registered in the name of Vithábái under Act III of 1874, and continued to be so till her death in 1893. Vithábái's only son Dhondbhat died in 1892 (a year before his mother), leaving behind him a widow named Lakshmibái.

"The Collector has registered the watan in the name of Lakshmibái, but her claim is contested by one Dattátraya, the great-grandson of Devjipant, the second son of the original Watandár, under Section 2 of Act V of 1886.

"There is no doubt that this Act applies to the case under discussion, as Vithábái died long after it came into operation. The question therefore proposed by the Commissioner is 'should Lakshmibái be postponed to a male member of Vithábái's father's family under the said section.'

"Vithábái obtained an absolute estate in the watan as inheriting the same from her father and under the law laid down in the Full Bench decision in Bhágirthibái vs. Kárunjiráo (I. L. R., 11 Bom., 285), the estate would have passed to her own heirs and not to those of the preceding owner if the general Hindu law was to be applied. The same principle would have applied in the case of a watan devolving on the heirs of Vithábái, if the devolution had taken place before Act V of 1886 came into force. Lakshmibái would then have been the rightful heir to the watan.

“The operation of this Act, however, seems to postpone her claim to the devolution of the watan, and the statute creates a disability which did not formerly exist under the general Hindu law.

“Lakshmibái’s husband having predeceased Vithábái she does not inherit this watan in terms of the first part of the section as ‘the widow of the last male owner,’ but she comes under the second part and ‘claims through a female,’ i.e., Vithábái. The section is imperative, that ‘every person claiming through a female shall be postponed in the order of succession to any watan to every male member of the family qualified to inherit such watan.’

“The words ‘claiming through’ have been interpreted by the Honourable the Advocate General in his No. 11 of 24th February 1888 (quoted in paragraph 1 of Government Resolution No. 2793 of 3rd May 1888) to apply not to immediate succession, such as that of a son to his mother, but only to mediate succession, such as that of a grandson to his maternal grandfather. Lakshmibái’s case falls under the latter clause and she must be held to be claiming through a female, i.e., Vithábái.

“It then remains to ascertain whether the appellant Dattátraya comes within the requirements mentioned in the last paragraph of Section 2, i.e., if he is a male member of the family qualified to inherit such watan.

“The word ‘family’ has been defined by Section 4 of Act III of 1874, and it ‘includes each of the branches of the family descended from an original Watandár.’ Looking to this definition Dattátraya is a male member of the family qualified to inherit such watan.

“Under these circumstances it is submitted that the answer to the Commissioner’s question should be in the affirmative, that Dattátraya has a prior claim, and Lakshmibái’s right will have to be postponed to his right.”

(G. R. No. 2770, dated 8th April 1897.)

[PART VII.

PART VII.—PERIODS OF SERVICE.

1. The words “if contemporaneous” in clause 3, Section 38 * of the Watan Act, 1874, refer to the future not to the past, i.e., when two persons are to serve contemporaneously (there being no others) each is to be appointed for life, and in all cases where service is to be in successive periods or in other words by rotation the periods of service is left entirely to the discretion of the Collector. No other construction is permissible or ever possible. (L. R. No. 1374, dated 4th November 1879; vide G. R. No. 6078, dated 12th idem.)

2. From the terms of Section 41 of the Hereditary Offices Act it does not appear that the provision contained in Section 53 is applicable to cases dealt with under Section 40. (G. R. No. 1827, dated 26th February 1896.)

---

* Section 33 of Act III of 1874 has been since amended by Act V of 1886.

[WATANS.]

[PART VIII.]

PART VIII.—OFFICIATING WATANDARS AND DEPUTIES.

1. It should be the general rule that Inámdárs have no right of nominating hereditary village officers. All Government Resolutions on this point issued prior to the passing of the Watan Act, 1874, must be considered cancelled where they conflict with the Act. (G. R. No. 4165, dated 23rd July 1875.)

2. Bombay Act III of 1874 is now the law of the land, and must be obeyed in inám as well as khálsa villages. Where Inámdárs have had the privilege of appointing, they should, when a nomination has to be made, be allowed to be present, and their wishes should, as far as the law allows, be treated with consideration. (G. R. No. 5522, dated 29th September 1875.)

Whenever an appointment of a village officer is made in an inám village, the Inámdár or his agent should be given notice and his objections, if any, to any person whom it is proposed to appoint should be fully considered before the appointment is made. The person to be appointed should be required to sign an undertaking to use all diligence to collect the dues of the Inámdár. (G. R. No. 5733, dated 17th August 1899.)

3. Local officers should reduce the number of officiators on every possible occasion where their services are not actually required. In most cases they will be able to arrange this, if they use tact, by carrying out the provisions of Section 31 of Act III of 1874, which can be applied, with the consent of the Watanárs, specially to such cases as those coming under Section 29 of the Act. The disposal of these cases is left to the local officers. (G. R. No. 6648, dated 27th November 1875.)

4. The repeal of Act XI of 1843 by Bombay Act III of 1874 has not the effect of cancelling from the date on which the latter Act came into operation all appointments lawfully made under the former Act, the periods of which had not yet expired. (L. R. No. 54, dated 17th January 1876; vide G. R. No. 515, dated 24th idem.)

5. The principle adopted by Mr. Vidal in the settlement of the Wái Kulkarni watan as shown in the following extract from the memorandum of the Revenue Commissioner, S. D., No. 897, dated 17th March 1876, should be applied in the settlement of other watans similarly situated:—

“In the Sátára Collectorate the Collector Mr. Arthur ordered on the authority marginally noted the entry in the register of the names of all sharers whose names appeared in the Government Records of 1853. The consequence of this has been, as shown in the present case, that 50 sharers and sub-sharers have been retained in the register.

G. R. No. 4465, dated 2nd August 1853, published at page 284 of the Revenue Circular Order Book of 1860.

PART VIII.]

[WATANS.]

"The undersigned fully concurs in the proposals of Mr. Vidal that heads of families which have enjoyed the right of service, should alone be entered in the register agreeably to the new Watan Act; and therefore recommends that the sanction of Government to the amendment of the register to this extent should be granted agreeably to Section 73, clause 2, of the Act.

"Sanction is also solicited to revise other registers of a similar nature on the same principle."

(G. R. No. 1957, dated 27th March 1876.)

6. Voluntary settlements under Section 31 of Act III of 1874 should be encouraged. The fact of a family never having done service before does not necessarily prevent its head being recognised under the Act as representative Watandár. (G. Rs. Nos. 2836, dated 11th May 1876; and 5855, dated 13th October 1876.)

A sole representative Watandár who is the only surviving Watandár of his own taksim, and who notwithstanding that there were several Watandárs living belonging to the other taksims of the watan, has always been allowed, before Act III of 1874 was passed, to appoint a stranger as his deputy, is now bound under Section 53 of the Act to appoint one of these latter Watandárs if there be one of them fit and willing to serve.

7. Section 43 of Act III of 1874 gives the Collector power to determine what number of officiators is required for the proper performance of the duties of an office, and to secure that performance to direct that it shall be provided for in one of several alternate ways laid down in that section, one of which is by nominating to serve in successive periods representative Watandárs who now or heretofore have served contemporaneously. This was especially meant to apply to cases in which (as in Khándesh) a number of men were serving at the time but inefficiently, and if the Assistant Collector is of opinion that one man is sufficient to do the duty of both Revenue and Police Patel in a village, it is quite competent for him to nominate one, and to change the practice from contemporaneous to successive service. (G. R. No. 3291, dated 23rd May 1877.) -

8. It does not follow that because a man has never served that therefore he has not the right to serve. If, for instance, the custom of the watan has been for the Collector to select an officiator for service, and the Collector does not happen to have selected from certain taksims, it would be very hard to rule that all who have not been selected should for ever be barred from the right to serve. (G. R. No. 474, dated 23rd January 1882.)

9. Vacancies in watans of which the new registers have not been prepared by the Assistant Collectors should be filled up by appointing the person whose turn appears on the old register provisionally that if the new registers should be prepared before his term expires, and his claim to serve should be rejected, he is to vacate in favour of the Watandár to whom the Assistant Collector accords the right, unless he should appeal. Should the Assistant Collector when preparing the new register continue such Watandár in office, his appointment shall be made under Section 38 to commence from the date when he was provisionally appointed, provided that no such appointments shall be made until the period for making appeal shall have passed; or if appeal be made, till it be decided. If between the date of the Assistant Collector's decision and the decision on appeal the office shall become vacant it shall be filled up in accordance with the Assistant Collector's decision provisionally that it will be vacated if the decision on appeal is adverse to the holder. (G. R. No. 7412, dated 23rd October 1882.)

10. The fact that in cases in which watans are owned by Sardárs of so high a rank that they cannot be reasonably expected to serve in person they may be permitted to appoint deputies, does not exempt them from the liability to be called upon to serve in person, and a claim to appoint deputies without the liability to serve in person is untenable. (G. R. No. 8408, dated 30th November 1882.)

11. Section 50 of the Watan Act does not lay down that when appointing a deputy the Collector is not to consult the representative Watandár, if the latter has been rejected as being of known bad character or removed on account of grave misconduct. (G. R. No. 4784, dated 13th June 1884.)

12. Probationary appointments are not in accordance with Act III of 1874. The whole tenor of the Act is in the direction of making final appointments for fixed terms so as to prevent frequent changes and the trouble and local excitement they involve. (L. R. No. 614, dated 14th May 1885; vide G. R. No. 4433, dated 3rd June 1885.)

13. The record of past services in a watan showed that contemporaneous service by officiators from the two Watandár families had not been uniformly and consistently maintained, and having regard to the figures of population and jamábandi of the village, it appeared that one officiator could manage the village efficiently. Moreover, the representative Watandárs had agreed to serve in successive periods. In the circumstances the Collector requested the sanction of Government to an alteration to the following effect in the order of service fixed by the District Deputy Collector: "Service is to be alternate and not contemporaneous." Government ruled that as under Section 43 of Act III of 1874 the Collector has discretionary power to direct service in successive periods by representative Watandárs who have hitherto served or are serving contemporaneously, the proposed alteration might have been made by the Collector without the sanction of Government, and that in such cases the proceedings need not be submitted to Government for orders as required by Government Resolution No. 7192, dated 5th September 1885. (G. R. No. 1951, dated 12th March 1886.)

14. The provision of Section 54 of Act III of 1874 does not appear to be opposed to permitting a Watandár, who has resigned office owing to inability to serve, to nominate a deputy for the remainder of his term of office, which is less than five years. Section 54 distinctly states that "when a Watandár entitled to officiate appoints a deputy it shall be for a term not less than five years," but this is not intended to mean that the same man must act as deputy for the whole term of five years, and that if he did not do so the right of appointing another deputy would lapse. It merely means that the appointment of a deputy should not be knowingly and intentionally made for less than five years. (G. R. No. 451, dated 20th January 1888.)

15. As Section 43 of Act III of 1874 empowers the Collector "to determine the number of officiators required for the proper performance of the duties of any office from time to time" and to arrange the order of service, the sanction of Government is not required in such cases. (G. R. No. 8104, dated 5th December 1888.)

16. Section 45 of Bombay Act III of 1874, as amended by Bombay Act V of 1886, specifies certain cases in which the Collector shall refuse to accept service from a representative Watandár or his nominee, but it is not clear that it necessarily follows from this that the Collector is bound to accept an officiator in all other cases not falling within the scope of that section. The latter cases seem to be governed by Sections 42 and 43 of the Act, under which the Collector is bound to accept service only when the Watandár or his nominee is a "fit and proper person." Under the provisions of these sections it is apparently within the discretion of a Collector to refuse to accept the service of a Watandár or his nominee who, although not absolutely disqualified under Section 45, is not considered to be fit and proper in other respects. (G. R. No. 3421, dated 12th May 1893.)

17. The following form of register should be adopted throughout the Presidency Proper :—

PART VIII.]

[WATANS.

18. If families descended from a common ancestor are admitted to independent right of registration they should be treated as distinct families for the purpose of Section 53 of Act III of 1874, as amended by Act V of 1886. (G. Rs. No. 802, dated 31st January 1895, and No. 1182, dated 7th February 1896.).

PART IX.—PENALTIES.

1. It is unnecessary, except in special cases, which the Commissioner may take into consideration, to forward English magisterial proceedings along with applications to Government to confirm the dismissal of hereditary officers.

All that appears to be necessary is that when under Act XI of 1843* a Revenue officer proposes to dismiss a hereditary district or village officer for incompetency or misconduct, he should hold some formal proceedings in which he should record in detail what such officer has done to deserve dismissal, and record what the officer has to say in his defence, and submit the same with his opinion, through the Commissioner, to Government. But in cases in which the hereditary officer has been convicted and punished by the Magistrate, or Session Judge, or their Assistants, it will be sufficient to record the facts on which the conviction rested and the result of any appeal, if made, or if none has been made, and to state that such is the case, without holding any formal proceedings.

* Repealed by Bombay Act
III of 1874.

The desire of His Excellency in Council in issuing these instructions is to check the summary and informal manner in which cases of dismissals are sometimes disposed of and in which the defence or counter-statement the hereditary officer may have to oppose against the charges on which his dismissal is recommended, is frequently not placed before Government, unless he appeals.

(G. L. No. 3473, dated 2nd October 1860.)

2. The instructions contained in the following circular of the Commissioner of Police, No. 2668, dated 29th November 1858, must be held to be applicable to cases of nominations by Government—that is, to nominations whenever from disagreement among the shareholders, or from the refusal of the Watandár to appoint, the power of nomination becomes vested by law in the Collector. In cases of selection by the shareholders or mere succession, the law must take its course:—

“I have the honour to inform you the Government direct that an immediate or near relative, such as father, son or brother, should not be appointed as the successor of a village police officer who has been dismissed on conviction by a competent Court of having committed crime in the conduct of the duties of his office.”

(G. L., J. D., No. 692, dated 28th February 1860; vide G. M. Nos. 861 and 862, dated 3rd March 1860, to the Revenue Commissioners, S. D. and N. D.)

3. As a general rule, a Collector possessing the confidence of the rayats of his district can, without troubling Government, induce Watandárs to perform those duties which are attached to their offices. Without instituting any criminal prosecutions the

Collector can deal with the case and fine a Watandár who refuses to comply with the order of a local officer to attend on a certain date for the purpose of signing the list of shareholders. These orders to fine are applicable only to officiating Watandárs. It is left to the Commissioners to institute such rules as are within their authority, and considered by them as appropriate, in order to secure proper attention on the part of the Watandárs. (G. R. Nos. 4193, dated 3rd December 1867, and 536, dated 8th February 1868.)

4. The power of dismissing a hereditary Patel must be regulated under Bombay Act III of 1874. The authority conferred by Section 57 of the Act can be delegated to an Assistant Collector. (G. R. No. 5716, dated 6th October 1876.)

5. The sanction of Government is necessary for the removal from office, under Section 58 of the Hereditary Offices Act, of a deputy who is not a Watandár of the same watan. The word used in Section 58 is "officiator," and that is defined in Section 4 of the Act to include a deputy. The first part of Section 61 enacts that as regards penalties the same rules shall apply to deputies as to representative Watandárs.

But when any such deputy has been removed under Section 58, the Collector is not entitled, under Section 50 of the Act, to refuse to allow the representative Watandár to appoint a successor and to appoint one himself. The latter part of Section 61; it is true, empowers Government to direct the forfeiture of a representative Watandár's life interest in any case in which a deputy appointed by him has been removed from office under Section 58. But unless Government take this extreme step, the representative Watandár's right of nomination remains. Section 50 only applies when a representative Watandár has himself been removed from office under Section 58, and the latter part of Section 59 also shows that it is only in case the officiator so removed "be a representative Watandár" that the appointment of a new deputy may be made by the Collector.

6. The misconduct in Sections 50 and 59 of the Watan Act is misconduct of the Watandár himself. (G. R. No. 2033, dated 17th April 1879.)

7. Section 58 of the Watan Act authorizes the removal from office of an officiator for grave misconduct. If the offending officiator is a deputy, the Watandár whom he represents may be declared ineligible for re-appointment. In a case in which a recommendation was made by a Collector that a non-officiating Patel, who had been convicted of theft, be declared incapable of serving as Patel and his deputy dismissed, it was held by Government that in that case it was not the deputy who had committed any offence and that there was no section in the Act under which the recommendation could be sanctioned, nor was it necessary, for the Collector could always refuse to accept the services of the Watandár under Section 45. (G. R. No. 2370, dated 27th April 1881.)

8. The following opinion expressed by the Commissioner, C. D., which is supported by the wording of Section 59 of the Watan Act, was concurred in by Government:—

“A and B are two representative Watandárs—the custom of service, one officiator to serve by rotation.

“A is appointed to serve for 10 years; before his term is completed he is dismissed under Section 58 of the Watan Act.

“The question is whether A's term of service has been virtually ended by his dismissal from service or whether the term still exists and it is left to Government to appoint a deputy.

“If his term has ended, then the term of service of B will commence, and in place of the Collector appointing a deputy in the place of A, B can either serve personally or appoint a deputy.

“I am of opinion that A by his dismissal has lost his turn of service and that the turn of B must be considered to have commenced.”

(G. R. No. 1692, dated 23rd March 1881.)

9. Section 7, Act XI of 1843, empowered the Collector, with the approval and sanction of Government, to dismiss an officiating hereditary officer from his office, ‘in cases of misconduct or incompetency.’

Section 57 of the Hereditary Offices Act empowers the Collector to inflict minor punishments on an officiator for ordinary misconduct or neglect of duty, and Section 58 enables him, with the sanction of Government, to remove an officiator from office in ‘case of fraud * * * or other grave misconduct.’

Section 7 of Act XI of 1843, and Section 58 of the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act do not, therefore, apply to precisely similar cases; and it would be hard to visit upon a Watandár, who had been removed from office under the former section for ordinary misconduct or incompetency, the consequences which Section 59 of the Hereditary Offices Act reserves for those removed from office for grave misconduct. Moreover, there is nothing in the Hereditary Offices Act which indicates that the Legislature intended that removals from office under Act XI of 1843 should be equivalent to removals under the more restrictive provisions of the former Act.

10. Serious official misconduct on the part of hereditary village officers should always be dealt with by the Sessions Courts, in order to enable Government to confiscate the watans. (G. R.,* J. D., No. 3130, dated 29th May 1879, and G. R. No. 4767, dated 16th September 1879.)

11. The "official duties" mentioned in Section 60 of Act III of 1874 must appertain to the office held by the representative Watandár, or to which he appoints a deputy.

"Misconduct" in Section 57 and "grave misconduct" in Section 58 of the Act ought to be construed as referring to misconduct in the course of the official duties of the representative Watandár or to which he has appointed a deputy.

(Adv. Genl. No. 81, dated 16th August 1880; vide G. R. No. 4576, dated 1st September 1880.)

12. The power of forfeiture conferred upon Government by Section 60 of the Hereditary Offices Act extends only to the particular watan in discharging the duties of which an offence has been committed. (L. R. No. 1534, dated 15th November 1884; vide G. R. No. 9628, dated 5th December 1884.)

Forfeiture of interest in a watan clearly includes forfeiture of right of service.

(G. R. No. 9628, dated 5th December 1884.)

13. The following rule has been framed under Section 82 of the Watan Act:—

Under Section 82 of the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act, 1874, the Governor in Council is pleased to direct that whenever any representative Watandár or any deputy or substitute appointed by him is convicted by a Criminal Court not inferior to a Court of Session of any offence in the discharge of his official duties or of any of the offences specified in the second schedule of the said Act or of any abatement of any such offence the Collector shall after the period of appeal has expired or after the decision of the appeal in case an appeal has been made, report the circumstances with his opinions thereon in order to enable Government to decide what action, if any, shall be taken under Section 60 of the said Act.

(G. R. No. 2793, dated 3rd May 1888.)

14. The forfeiture of any watan property, held purely for future service, cannot be called in question in any Civil Court. The Watan Act, moreover, removes all possibility of doubt as to the liability of forfeiture on the conviction of a holder or his officiator for certain crimes.

Section 60 of the Watan Act aimed at the prevention of crimes by those in office, by, declaring the responsibility, not of the individual nominating the deputy alone, but the joint responsibility of all who might have interests in the watan. Joint responsibility of this nature was familiar in India long before the British rule (vide Mount Stuart Elphinstone's report on the Territories conquered from the Peshwa, 1821, pages 35 et seqq.), and the analogy it affords to the institution of frank pledge in England has been noted by J. Fitz-James Stephen and Sir F. Palgrave.

* All criminal charges against officiating Watandárs or deputies, of offences in the discharge of their official duties should, if the evidence is such as is likely to secure a conviction, be committed to the Court of Session. (G. R., J. D., No. 3444, dated 16th June 1879.)

The object was not to hold the individual responsible for his nomination, but to restrain crime by a species of social pressure coming from all sides, and generating a peaceful and orderly system of self-discipline. The whole body of Watandárs are expected not only to select their deputies with caution, but also to exercise this restraining influence over them when appointed.

The section itself is very distinctly and emphatically worded, so as to show that not only the interest of the nominating Watandár, but the whole or any part of the watan, may be forfeited on the conviction of any deputy of any representative Watandár. Properly speaking, no Watandár can be regarded as having more than a life interest, and it could not therefore have been intended that the responsibility should be limited by the nature of the actual incumbent's estate.

I. L. R., 6 Bom., 211.

As it appears that the object was to make the body of Watandárs vigilant in preventing official misconduct by their united influence, it does not seem that it was intended that any one of them could, by recording a protest against an appointment, save himself or his interests from the consequences of failure in this respect.

The amended Section 60 extends to any conviction in a Court not inferior to a Court of Session of any offence committed in the discharge of the official duties, and would certainly cover a case of torture of a prisoner or suspect, resulting fatally.

[PART X.

PART X.—MAHÁRS.

1. In the Panvel Táluka the Mahárs' allowances should be disbursed only where this class of servants are entertained, being held at the disposal of the Collector in those villages in which there are no Mahárs, for payment in the event of any being found willing to reside in the village and perform the duties. In those villages in which the Mahárs' duties are performed by Mudwis, the allowances should be paid to them. The allowances should be limited to one per cent. in villages the revenue of which exceeds Rs. 2,000. (G. R. No. 5568, dated 28th December 1861.)

The whole of the Panchotra allowance to the Mahárs in the Panvel Táluka should be paid to the Mahárs themselves and to no one else. (G. R. No. 4264, dated 22nd November 1862.)

2. Mahárki watans cannot be treated as separate taksíms as regards service in the same manner as other watans, as the custom of the country has always been to call at any time, if the necessity arose, for the service of all Mahárs either severally or jointly. Yet for the purpose of making the settlement decision required by clause (c), Section 64 of Act III of 1874, the settling officer might, if he consider it expedient, consider into what families or branches the Mahár watan has been by long custom divided. (G. R. No. 1954, dated 12th March 1886).

PART XI.—WATAN REGISTERS.

1. The work of preparing watan registers de novo should as far as possible be carried out on the spot. .

These new registers must usually be made by the Assistant and Deputy Collectors in charge of tálukas in the manner prescribed by the Act. Regard should be paid to the convenience of the parties, and those cases in which vacancies are about to occur should be taken up first.

Care should be taken to avoid, as much as possible, obliging the parties to appear in person; and only in cases where there are doubtful or important points to be decided, their attendance should be insisted upon. (G. Rs. Nos. 5115, dated 8th September 1875, and 5861, dated 18th October 1875.)

2. The register itself shows that the same names as are entered in column 22 as representative Watandárs need not necessarily be entered in column 20 as head of families. When the original family or oldest branch has ceased to have any connection with the watan at all, the name of the head of it will not be entered at all in the watan register. When a connection still exists, the head of that family will appear in column 20, but whether or not also in column 22 must depend on the decision passed under Part VI of the Act. Cases under Section 56 are generally clear; the head of the original watan family is entered in column 20; the hereditary deputy in column 22. (G. R. No. 7127, dated 20th December 1875.)

3. It must be noted that the annas of taksíms do not necessarily add up so as to make exactly one rupee. The column of remarks in the register may always explain this in case of doubt. (G. R. No. 7127, dated 20th September 1875.)

4. Village servants such as sutárs (carpenters), lohárs (blacksmiths), &c., who, though of no such service to Government, are of use to the village communities, and therefore subjected to a quit-rent equal to one-fourth the value of their watans, are to be entered in the non-service registers. (G. R. No. 5238, dated 14th September 1875.)

5. It is impossible to have all the watan registers kept in English, but the entry of each watan in the watan register should be attested by the settling officer's signature. (G. R. No. 5932, dated 21st October 1875.)

6. Watan registers which profess to have been unanimously agreed to by the share-holders before the passing of Act III of 1874, but which have not been prepared and recorded in the hand-writing of a Collector or Assistant Collector, are illegal. (G. R. No. 1557, dated 13th March 1876.)

7. Watan registers must be re-written on a revision of the survey settlement. (G. R. No. 6930, dated 10th December 1875.)

WATANS.]

[PART XII.

PART XII.—MISCELLANEOUS.

1. Section 1 of Bombay Act III of 1874 declares that the Act extends to all villages alienated or otherwise, so far as its provisions shall not conflict with the terms on which any such alienated village may have been secured to the holder thereof.

When a village has become the private property of its holder, the papers and records prepared therein concern the holder alone and do not in any way affect the rights or interests of Government, and cannot be regarded as the property of Government. It would conflict with the terms on which the village is secured to the holder if he could be called on to produce accounts and papers relating to his private property; and it seems, therefore, that Section 70 of the Act does not extend to such villages.

So far as any of such records may affect questions of general administration unconnected with the private rights of the holder, such for instance as the Register of Births and Deaths, their production may be legally enforced under the section in question.

The object of the section appears from page 215 of Volume XII of the Proceedings of the Legislative Council, 1873. It was to prevent the fabrication of documents to support claims to hold land free. When a village has already been declared private property, it is clear that the necessity for this precaution no longer exists. (L. R. No. 841, dated 18th July 1889; vide G. R. No. 5383, dated 27th idem.)

PART XIII.—PROCEDURE AND APPEALS.

1. Government cannot support the action of the Collector in laying down that the sub-sharers in a watan have no right to petition in matters connected with the watan. (G. R. No. 4726, dated 2nd September 1874.)

2. The wording of Section 73, clause 2 of the Watan Act is strict and should be adhered to, so that those cases in which the reasons for the decision have not been written by the Assistant Collector, but the summary of them signed by him, must also be re-opened. (G. R. No. 1553, dated 13th March 1876.)

3. All decisions must be written and signed in the handwriting of the officer making them. This is one of the most important provisions of the Watan Act, and the law should be strictly carried out. (G. R. No. 2963, dated 18th May 1876.)

4. Government wholly disapprove of the issue of any instructions which would bind the Assistant Collectors to certain general conclusions as to the nature of all watans in any particular district, or to the assumption of certain facts. It is the duty of these officers to determine each case on its own merits. (G. R. No. 5855, dated 13th October 1876.)

5. All orders under the Watan Act should be in English. (G. R. No. 3073, dated 11th June 1879.)

6. Appeals should certainly be allowed from decisions passed before Act III of 1874 was introduced, provided no appeal has been made already. Many decisions have been passed without any proper record of proceedings having been made, and if appeals on such cases were not allowed, it is difficult to see how registers could be prepared de novo. (G. R. No. 2963, dated 18th May 1876.)

7. The limitations and restrictions in respect to appeals do not apply to cases which have been dealt with prior to the passing of Act III of 1874. As a matter of fact, however, every case must be enquired into again for the purpose of framing the register under the Act, and any dispute that may have arisen can best be disposed of at the time of such enquiry. (G. R. No. 5915, dated 17th October 1876.)

8. In every case relating to the settlement of watans submitted to Government, the particular section of the Watan Act under which the decision has been arrived at should be quoted. (G. R. No. 6071, dated 25th October 1876.)

9. Decisions in cases in which proceedings under the Watan Act have been held before Assistant Collectors should invariably be communicated at the time to the parties concerned. (G. R. No. 499, dated 30th January 1878.)

10. A decision satisfies the requirements of Section 73, clause 2, of the Hereditary Offices Act:—

(1) If it has been recorded with the reasons therefor in the handwriting of a Collector, or his Assistant, or Deputy.

(2) If it has been passed subsequently to 1866.

(3) If it has been preceded by an investigation recorded in writing (not, it seems, necessarily by the same officer who passed the decision).

(4) If before it was passed a proper opportunity had been afforded for the hearing of claims and the production of evidence.

These are the only conditions imposed by the Act, and it is not imperative that the proceedings should be recorded in English, or even that the decision itself should be in English, so long as it is in the Collector's or Assistant's or Deputy's own handwriting. Where, therefore, there has been a decision which fulfils the above conditions, it is immaterial whether that decision was passed on appeal or as an original decision.

Although all decisions which do fulfil the conditions named above may be used in lieu of fresh investigation, clause 2, Section 73, expressly empowers the Governor in Council to "otherwise direct."

11. In cases in which petitions on watan matters are forwarded to Collectors for report it is the duty of the Collector to report on the different allegations of the petitioners instead of merely transmitting the papers and proceedings in the case, leaving Government to sift out the merits of the case from the papers. (Government Resolution No. 5878, dated 8th October 1881.) Commissioners have power to call for reports on watan cases decided by officers subordinate to them and direct further enquiries to be made or additional evidence to be taken whenever the circumstances of the case may show such a course desirable. (G. Rs. Nos. 5878, dated 8th October 1881, and 7816, dated 22nd October 1883.)

12. It is most necessary that the Commissioners should retain and when necessity arises make use of the powers of supervision which they at present possess. The Commissioners' supervision of the Collectors' proceedings in watan cases is a valuable safe-guard which cannot be dispensed with. (G. R. No. 5399, dated 27th July 1889.)

13. In consequence of the great inconvenience and confusion resulting not unfrequently from the want of uniformity on the part of the Collectors, their Assistants and Deputies in recording their proceedings under the Watan Act for the appointment of representative Watandárs and of the difficulty experienced by Government, when the cases come up for revision, in deciding what is exactly the custom of the watan as to service in each case, the subjoined form of record is sanctioned for general adoption. In recording proceedings under the Watan Act in future the Collectors, Assistants and Deputies should adhere, as much as possible, to this form to do the same.

In view of the possibility of these proceedings coming before Government on revision or appeal, they should be written in a neat and legible manner.

Record of Proceedings held before under part 6 of the Watan Act, III of 1874, for the village of Táluka Zilla
Camp 1881.

The following persons are present :—

A list of the men who have served from the earliest period, with notes showing whether they were selected by the Collector or by the sharers under Act XI of 1843, Section 4, is appended.

Custom of the Watan.

Under this head state distinctly :—

- (1) Whether it is the custom "for a member of one family only to serve," Section 27, and if so whether he served by the selection of the Collector or the votes of the sharers in the watan or under Act XI of 1843, Section 4.
- (2) Whether "a member of each of several families" served "contemporaneously or for successive periods," Section 28, and if for "successive periods" whether this practice existed at the date of the introduction of Act XI of 1843. In both cases enquiry should be made and recorded if the several families served contemporaneously or in successive periods by the selection of the Collector or under Act XI of 1843.
- (3) Whether "the practice of selection by the Collector from several families prevails," Section 29, clause 1, and whether he selected one family to serve or several families to serve contemporaneously or for successive periods.

It is not sufficient to record that the custom is "rotation;" this word is not recognised by the Act and had better be abandoned. The Act only contemplates one or other of the customs above noted or perhaps a combination of two or more of them, but whatever remarks you may make on the subject of the custom, you must record a distinct finding under which section of the Act you consider the custom to exist and fix the period of service prescribed by Section 38.

It must be remembered that the mere appointment of one Patel to succeed another on vacancies by death or dismissal or termination of the period for which previous appointments have been made, does not alone constitute "service for successive periods," as contemplated in the Act. Service for successive periods can only exist as a custom when it can be claimed as a right. When it exists at the discretion of the Collector, it comes more properly under clause 1 of Section 29 "selection by the Collector" or service in successive periods subsequent to 1843. Whether one or more persons served or whether they served for life or in successive periods, they were invariably selected by the Collector, though he often fixed the order of service by selection, and therefore established a quasi service in successive periods. Having decided the custom of the watan, the next step is to decide who are the

Representative Watandárs.

(1) If you decide that the custom is for a member of one family only to serve, Section 27, then you "shall" register the "name of the head of that family only as representative Watandár."

(2) If you consider that the custom is for a member of several families to serve, Section 28, then you must "register the head of each of such families as representative Watandárs and fix the order in which they shall officiate."

(3) If you find, as you will in the great majority of cases, that service in successive periods has been introduced subsequent to 1843, or that "the practice of selection from several families prevails," then you must determine "if they are descended from a common ancestor, and if so, who is the head of the eldest family descended from the original Watandár and enter his name as sole representative Watandár," but if they are not descended from a common ancestor, then you must "register the names of the heads of such families" and the order in which they are to serve, Section 29, clause 2.

(4) If you find that service in successive periods has been introduced under British "rule in consequence of the reduction of the number of sharers or the amalgamation of watans," then it will be your duty to enter the names of the heads of each family that formerly "officiated as representative Watandárs," Section 30, and the order in which they are to serve. Whatever remarks you may find it necessary to make, you should quote the section under which you enter the names of the representative Watandárs.

It will be observed that, when the practice has been selection by the Collector, Section 29, clause 1, if the Watandárs are descended from a common ancestor then the name of the head of the eldest family descended from the common ancestor (original Watandár) can alone be entered, but as this will operate with great harshness in disinheriting every other member of the watan, you will do well to look with great suspicion on the evidence of a common ancestry, and not admit it without the clearest proof.

When a common ancestry is clearly proved, then you should represent to the Watandárs that unless they accept a compromise under Section 31 they will all be disinherited except the one sole representative Watandár selected under Section 29, clause 1. When this is properly put before them, they will seldom fail to accept a compromise, and it should then be distinctly recorded that the Watandárs are appointed under Section 31, and that service is for life under Section 38.

When an appeal is made to the Collector or Commissioner from the decision of the Assistant Collector or Collector, the appellate authority should prepare a record, in substance, as follows:—

Proceedings on appeal from the decision of dated before Collector
Camp 1881.

Recorded petition of appeal under Section 78.

Note should be taken if the period of 60 or 90 days allowed for appeal has expired.

The objections raised by the appellant should then be briefly stated and the decision with the reasons for it recorded.

(G. C. No. 7878, dated 26th December 1881.)

14. The following opinion (No. 279, dated 1st March 1882) was recorded by the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs on the question whether a decision passed by a Collector on an appeal and under the Watan Act admitted after it was time-barred would be legally valid:—

“Chapter XIII of the Land Revenue Code, 1879, relates to appeals from any decision or order passed by a Revenue officer under that Code ‘or any other law for the time being in force,’ and Section 206 provides for the admission of an appeal under that chapter after the period of limitation on sufficient cause being shown for not presenting the appeal within such period; and no appeal lies from an order passed under that section admitting an appeal.”

(G. R. No. 1920, dated 22nd March 1882.)

15. The Commissioners of Divisions when forwarding to Government a case for revision under Section 79 of Act III of 1874 should, when the interests of the person in whose favour the decision of the lower Court operates will be injuriously affected if the Commissioner's recommendation is adopted, give him an opportunity of making any representation upon it which he thinks necessary for a just appreciation of his case. (G. R. No. 5381, dated 3rd July 1885.)

16. In watan appeal cases fresh evidence should certainly not be admitted without limit or reserve, and the admission of fresh evidence in appeal should be regulated by the procedure laid down for Civil Courts in the Civil Procedure Code. (G. R. No. 6981, dated 1st September 1884.)

17. The principles on which Civil Courts act as to the admission of evidence which it is the duty of the parties to produce should be the guide in the hearing of watan cases. (G. R. No. 8, dated 3rd January 1885.)

18. In watan appeals a Collector or Commissioner can only pass his decision on the points raised in appeal, but when a decision appealed against is found not to be in accordance with law in respect of points other than those raised on appeal, the proceedings in the case should be submitted with the Commissioner's opinion to Government for revision under Section 79 of the Watan Act. (G. R. No. 7192, dated 5th September 1885.)

19. A Collector has no authority under the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act to review a decision passed by himself. Government have directed that the admission of fresh evidence on appeals under the Act should be regulated by the same rules which apply to the admission of such evidence under the Civil Procedure Code. There were, no doubt, good reasons for this order, and as it does not confer upon Collectors any new power which they do not possess under the Act, there is no legal objection to it. But it is not competent for Government to direct that Collectors may review their own decisions. The Act provides ample means for correcting any erroneous decision which may be passed. (G. R. No. 988, dated 2nd August 1886; vide G. R. No. 5922, dated 19th idem.)

20. It is undesirable to confer powers under Bombay Act III of 1874 on Inámdárs save in very special and exceptional instances. (G. R. No. 2183, dated 19th March 1886.)

21. The following opinion of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, No. 707, dated 29th June 1889, was communicated to the Collectors and Commissioners :—

“In the matter referred to in the Government No. 2948, dated 17th April 1889, memorandum, marginally noted, the Collector of Sátára reversing an order of his Assistant refused to allow one Náráyan to officiate as a Kulkarni, because six years previously the brother of the said Náráyan had been convicted of breach of trust.

“2. The Commissioner, C.D., dealt with the matter on appeal and reversed the Collector's order.

“3. The Collector has now raised the question whether an appeal lies.

“4. The Commissioner is of opinion that Section 77 does not apply to this case so as to bar a second appeal, as that section only refers to decisions passed after investigation recorded in writing, and Section 73 does not require an order of this nature to be passed after such investigation.

“5. Section 73, however, is not exhaustive in its enumeration of investigations requiring record in writing, and though it does not require an order refusing the service of a representative Watandár to be so recorded, Section 45 (e) as amended by Section 9 of Bombay V of 1886 does.

“6. The order of the Collector was entirely ultra vires, as Section 45 only contemplates such a refusal in the case of a representative Watandár who is personally of bad character, and such refusal must be preceded by a summary enquiry regulated by Section 195, Bombay Land Revenue Code, in which a minute of the proceedings must be recorded in the Collector's own hand and must embrace the material averments of the parties.

"7. I think an appeal in this particular case would lie from the Collector's order to the Commissioner. For that order was a new and substantive order passed in a matter requiring investigation. Although it purported to be passed in appeal, it was really not an order that could legally have been passed by the Collector in his appellate capacity, but one which would fall under a distinct section of the Act, in the exercise of a distinct and special power requiring an investigation for which a special procedure is prescribed, and which, under Section 196 of Bombay V of 1879, became, what his Assistant's proceeding was not, a judicial proceeding.

"8. I therefore think that his refusal to accept the service of the representative Watandár was a substantive and original order in itself, and that an appeal lay to the Commissioner.

"9. I think that the general control given to Commissioners by Section 74 would not warrant their interference in particular instances, but only the giving of general instructions. The power of revising or modifying orders, when no appeal lies, vests in Government alone under Section 79."

(G. R. No. 5265, dated 27th July 1889.)

22. Section 203 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code, 1879, provides for an appeal from all decisions and orders, original or appellate, passed by a Revenue officer under any law in force, unless the right of appeal is expressly withheld by legislation. Not only an appeal but a second appeal will lie from a decision or order under Act III of 1874, as amended by Act V of 1886, passed without recorded investigation.

The conclusion that the Bombay Land Revenue Code expressly provides for appeals in such cases, is borne out by the history of the Bombay Land Revenue Code itself.

Bombay III of 1874 does not expressly provide for an appeal, except in the case of decisions passed after investigation recorded in writing by a Collector, Assistant or Deputy. But, on the other hand, it does not deny the right of appeal from any decision or order, except in the cases specially enumerated in Section 76.

Section 203 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code enacts that an appeal shall lie from any decision or order passed by a Revenue officer under any law for the time being in force in the absence of an express provision of law to the contrary.

There cannot be the slightest room for doubt that Section 203, Bombay Land Revenue Code, had in contemplation decisions and orders which might be passed under Bombay III of 1874.

For the Bombay Land Revenue Code was under most careful consideration for more than five years. It was first taken in hand not long after Bombay III of 1874 became law, and was originally intended to consolidate the entire law governing the duties and procedure of Revenue officers.

The provisions of Bombay III of 1874 were actually embodied in extenso in the second draft of the Code as Chapter III thereof, and in redrafting those sections, the greatest care was taken to specify in each section whether a summary or a formal enquiry should be made before passing a decision or order. In this draft, which was printed with the comments of all the officers consulted, Mr. Naylor remarked (Section 268) that 'the object of these sections has been to secure a proper investigation and regularity and uniformity of procedure in all matters in which Revenue officers are called upon to exercise judicial or quasi-judicial functions, and thus to remove one great objection which now exists to barring the cognizance of any such matters by the Civil Courts, viz., that under the existing law, Revenue officers are bound by no rules of procedure, and may, if they choose, decide upon the most important questions, not only in the absence of those concerned, but also without making any enquiry or hearing any evidence at all. In every instance, therefore, in which an inquiry is directed to be made in this Bill, it has been stated whether such inquiry should be formal or summary, and where neither a formal or summary inquiry is prescribed, the officer is left to resort to such ordinary means of obtaining information as he may be directed to use by his superior officers or as may seem to him most fit.'

Had that draft been accepted in its integrity, a summary enquiry would have been necessary, as a condition precedent to orders now passed under Sections 8, 9, 11, 18 and several other sections of Bombay III of 1874, and a formal enquiry would have been required for orders now passed under Section 25 and other sections of the same Act.

In cases where such enquiries had been held and recorded by the Collector, his Assistant or his Deputy, it seems to have been thought that one appeal would be sufficient to secure accuracy of decision and provided against irregularities.

The chapter of that draft relating to Hereditary Offices, like the parts relating to Summary Settlement, were, however, in consequence of correspondence with the Government of India, omitted from the Bombay Land Revenue Code, and thus no exhaustive provisions exist as to procedure to be followed before passing a decision or order under each section of Bombay III of 1874. The proceedings of Revenue officers may, however, be regulated by superrior official direction and control under Section 188, or by rules under Section 197, Bombay Land Revenue Code.

But where it was intended to specify the procedure necessary under each section, it was still contemplated that an appeal and second appeal should lie from every decision and order passed, unless enquiry duly recorded had been made by certain officers of high official standing. It was only in the case of decisions passed after investigation recorded in writing by a Collector, Assistant or Deputy that only one appeal was held to be necessary.

Apparently it was thought that where the procedure was informal, and the grounds for decision not clearly and fully set forth, there was all the more necessity for appellate control.

Section 203 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code was thus advisedly framed with reference to the provisions of Bombay III of 1874.

When the provisions requiring recorded investigations were abandoned, Section 203 was retained, and appears to have been recognised by the Legislature as necessary to provide for cases of informal procedure.

It has been argued that as only one appeal lies where investigation has been made and recorded, it may be assumed a fortiori that no second appeal would have been deemed necessary where no investigation had been held. But the view taken in the preparation of the Code appears to have been the reverse of this. The draft would have allowed but one appeal, if the decision were accompanied with a record containing its justification. In all other cases a second appeal would lie from all decisions and orders passed in the exercise of powers conferred by the Act.

Decisions and orders may, as Act III of 1874 stands, be passed without any record of investigation in cases for which it was at one time proposed to require such record. Section 203 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code was apparently advisedly retained to cover such cases. If the Collector, his Assistant or Deputy has himself investigated before passing his order, and has recorded the grounds of his decision, then the Legislature appears to have thought there would be no such necessity for a second appeal as would exist in cases where a Revenue officer might in the words of the Honourable Mr. Naylor 'decide upon the most important questions, not only in the absence of those concerned, but also without making any inquiry or hearing any evidence at all.' (G. R. No. 8506, dated 8th November 1889.)

23. Officers holding proceedings under the Watan Act should not merely cause notices to be affixed to the 'chávdi' under Section 80, but take such other measures as are likely to be effectual for securing the presence of parties interested, either by adopting a procedure similar to that prescribed in Section 191, Land Revenue Code, or in such other way as may seem proper under the circumstances. (G. R. No. 6302, dated 3rd October 1898.)

24. There is no objection to applications for permission to alienate any watan being presented to the Collector in the first instance and being by him submitted to Government (through the Commissioner) for orders. (G. R. No. 3261, dated 20th April 1896.)

PART XIV.]

[WATANs.]

2. The following reply given by the Commissioner, N. D., in his letter No. 1824 dated 12th June 1888, to the Collector of Broach, on the subject of the preparation of registers and the appointment of Police Patels under Bombay Act VI of 1887, was approved by Government :—

"2. I think that you have misunderstood the portion of the debate quoted by you. It appears to me that the remarks of the Honourable Mr. Richey and of His Excellency the President have the effect simply of showing that the particular clause of the Bill then under consideration had no bearing on Police Patels, because such officers are appointed under special commission by the District Magistrate, who may therefore insist on such educational test as he considers necessary.

"3. The connection of the Police Patel's office with the patelki watan is of very old date, and I will endeavour to show that such connection has never been legally severed.

"4. Regulation 4 of 1818 establishes 'a system of Police founded chiefly upon the ancient usages of the country' and under Section III 'Heads of villages' are appointed 'heads of the Police of their respective villages.' These 'Heads of villages' are defined as persons coming under the denomination of Patels, Pátidárs, or any other designation, the person who collects the revenue, and under whose authority the village servants act.'

"5. Section VI of Regulation 12 of 1827 prescribes (a) that when there is only one Revenue Patel, he should be also the Police Patel, and (b) that when there are more than one, the Police Patel should be selected by the Magistrate. The Police duties are thus entrusted to the responsible body of revenue managers the Matádárs.

"6. Act XI of 1843 recognises the principle of hereditary officers performing Police duties (see Sections 2 and 15).

"7. Section 5 of the Village Police Act has already been quoted by you. This continues the principle of the Regulation of 1827 already referred to.

"8. The definition of 'Hereditary officer' in Bombay Act III of 1874 has in no way been modified by subsequent legislation, and 'an hereditary officer' consequently continues to include one 'connected with the village Police.' Any other supposition would involve a vital change from the system above established which is referred to by the Honourable Mr. Richey in the concluding words of your first quotation, and any such change would require legal provision.

"9. I think, moreover, that the words 'every Patel's office' in Section 13 of the new Act may have been inserted to prevent any possible misunderstanding.

"10. Under the above explanation your difficulty regarding the emoluments of the Police Officiator will probably be removed. Under Section 23 of the old Act you decide how many officers are required, and subsequent grant to one of these of a Police Commission cannot affect the authority for his appointment. You divide the emoluments in the usual manner, adding an allowance when necessary under the rules at page 348 of the Survey Manual.

"11. In reply to your 4th question I beg to refer you to Government Resolution No. 3014 of the 22nd August 1866,*

* This Resolution laid down the following rules with a view to obviate delay in the investigation into claims under Act XI of 1843 to hold the appointments of Patel and Kulkarni :—

'A complete list of all the shareholders in each watan in districts where such lists are not already kept should be prepared as soon as possible; and a column left for any alterations that may hereafter be necessary consequent on the occurrence of death, or other vacancies. This list should be signed by the shareholders. In cases of dissent the entries should be made on the order of the Assistant Collector pending a decision of a Court of Law. At the expiration of ten years, a fresh Register, embodying all the alterations that may have been made during the interval, should be prepared.'

and to this office vernacular, dated 17th January 1867. Registers made in accordance with these orders, or subsequently under Act XI of 1843 or III of 1874 are the lists referred to (in section 7 of Act VI of 1887)."

(G. R. No. 4530, dated 9th July 1888.)

3. The general object and provisions of the Matádári Act, 1887, as well as the express words of its Section 1 shows that the Legislature intended that all "existing" appointments to Patels' offices in the districts to which the Act extends should cease to hold good, at the latest, on the expiry of two years from the Act coming into force, and that fresh appointments should be made to those offices under the provisions of the Act. (L. R. No. 908, dated 26th May 1891; vide G. R. No. 5590, dated 14th August 1891.)

4. Section 7 of the Matádárs Act prescribes the method by which the Collector is to ascertain the names of Matádárs to be entered in the register prepared under Section 5.

Where a list of Matádárs made under the orders of Government subsequent to the year 1866 exists, and the entries in it were not the subject of dispute when the Act came into force, the names in that list are to be entered in the register.

But in the cases described in proviso (a), which include the case of there being no such list as above-

---

'At the time of the Jamábandi settlement the Mámlatdár should submit a list of all the vacancies that are known to be about to occur during the ensuing year; and the officer making the settlement should then and there in the presence of the parties, make the nomination. All disputed claims relating to the entry of shares in the list above referred to should be disposed of in the same manner and at the same time. The grounds of decision in all cases should be briefly written by the officer making the appointment in his own handwriting.'

In Government Resolution No. 764, dated 23rd February 1869, the following further instructions were given in regard to disputed claims by village hereditary officers to officiate :—

'His Excellency in Council is satisfied that disputes of this nature can only be properly enquired into and disposed of by the Assistant or Deputy Collector personally taking the evidence of the parties, and recording his decision in their presence.

'The old practice which obtained in so many collectorates of disposing of these cases on the written vernacular reports of the district officers was in every respect a most objectionable one.

'In all cases of appeal to Government a copy of the record of decision should be invariably sent up.'

Government Resolution No. 2967, dated 22nd July 1869, directed that Mámlatdárs should not be allowed to interfere in any way in cases of disputed nomination; that the jamábandi was the proper time at which to dispose of this kind of business; that it would be the duty of the Mámlatdár to submit beforehand to the Assistant or Deputy in charge of the táluka a list of the vacancies that would occur during the ensuing year, distinguishing the cases in which the shareholders were unanimous from those in which they were not; that beyond this the Mámlatdár should not take any part in the matter; that in disputed cases the Assistant or Deputy Collector would make an abstract of the evidence, together with the decision, in his own handwriting, and that Government would not fail to notice with marked displeasure any instance in which these orders might be disregarded.

Government Resolution No. 2183, dated 9th May 1870, directed that a day should be fixed for the investigation, and if, after reasonable notice had been given, the parties did not appear, a decision should be passed in their absence, and that appeals should be discouraged as far as possible, but the Collector or Commissioner or Government should not be precluded from taking an appeal on any palpable error which might perpetuate an injustice.

Government Resolution No. 4809, dated 22nd July 1882, directed that in all disputed cases of village watans submitted to Government the register prepared in accordance with Government Resolution No. 3014, dated 22nd August 1866, should be quoted.

By Government Resolution No. 2516, dated 28th March 1883, the Commissioners were informed that it was necessary to prepare lists under Act XI of 1843 as directed in Government Resolution No. 3014, dated 22nd August 1866, where such lists had not already been prepared.

mentioned in existence, the Collector, after holding a summary inquiry, is to enter in the register "the name of each member of a Matádár family who shall appear to him to have been recognised in the records previous to the year 1867 as a Matádár of the family." The Act does not say what shall be deemed to constitute recognition as a Matádár; this is left to the Collector's judgment, and it is understood that any one with local knowledge can have no difficulty in saying from the records whether or not there has been such recognition.

The entry in the register of the name of the representative Matádár is a distinct matter. That is governed by Section 8 of the Act.

(L. R. No. 1790, dated 30th October 1891; vide G. R. No. 8024, dated 24th November 1891.)

5. The Matádárs' Act VI of 1887, while providing in Section 22 for the appointment by the Collector of a Deputy when a sole representative declines to officiate and fails to appoint a deputy, makes no such provision for similar default by representative Matádárs. The section quoted was intended to supply the place of Section 44 of Bombay Act III of 1874 repealed (so far, as that last mentioned Act applies to Matádárs) by Section 3 (1) of Bombay VI of 1887.

Section 22, as originally drafted, ran as follows:—

*'If a sole representative Matádár or when there are two or more representative Matádárs each of them in turn, declines when so required by the Collector to officiate in person or fails to appoint a fit person to be his deputy * * * * ** the Collector shall appoint a Deputy.'

The words in italics in the above quotation were deleted on the second report of the Select Committee appointed to consider the Bill, apparently because the right of election was by Section 17 (then inserted) to be given in all cases, except where Section 14 would apply, i.e., where there was a sole representative.

On an election failing, the representative Matádár of the family whose turn it was, would have the office (Section 17) and on his declining to officiate or appoint, the right would pass to the family next in order of rotation, and an election would again be necessary. It is evident that the contingency of all the elections proving successively abortive did not suggest itself as one requiring provision for a permanent appointment by the Collector.

It was probably considered where there were several Matádár families in whom the office vested, that there would be no permanent incapacity or default to officiate or appoint, and that the provisions of Section 28 would apply till the vacancy could be filled up in accordance with the provisions of the Act.

Therefore, when all elections have successively failed and the representative Matádárs have successively proved unable or unwilling to officiate and appoint, the only course practicable is that provided by Section 28, which gives the Collector power to appoint such person as he thinks fit, whether a member of a Matádár family of the village or not, to officiate temporarily. Such appointment, however, does not operate as one made under Section 21 would. It is made only in view of an interval occurring between the occurrence of a vacancy and its being filled up in accordance with the ordinary provisions, and it does not interpose any permanent and irremovable obstacle to the re-exercise of rights by a representative on his becoming able and willing to officiate or appoint. (L. R. No. 1059, dated 12th July 1892; vide G. R. No. 6124, dated 28th idem).

6. Registers prepared under the provisions of Part VI of Bombay Act III of 1874 do not fall in the category of 'lists of Matádárs' mentioned in Section 7 of Bombay Act VI of 1887, which really refer to certain lists prepared under an executive order issued by Government in 1866. (G. R. No. 5605, dated 3rd August 1893.)

7. The effect of Sections 5 and 7 of the Matádárs Act, 1887, is that no person is to be entered as a member of a Matádár family in the register prepared under Section 5, whose name was not entered in a list of Matádárs made under the orders of Government since 1866 and before the Act came into force, except as specified in the provisos (a) and (b) to Section 7. It would seem that the Legislature intended to make the list, made by orders of Government, conclusive and to exclude from the register those members of Matádár families who had not had their names inserted in them.

The register, having once been made under Section 5, cannot be amended under the power given in the last clause of the section by inserting in it the names of persons who had been excluded from the previous lists: this power is only to be exercised whenever any change is made in any of the particulars specified in the register in accordance with the provisions of the Matádárs Act or the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act.

(The Hon'ble the Advocate General's opinion No. 13, dated 2nd March 1896; G. R. No. 3259, dated 20th April 1896.)

8. The difficulty created by the opinion* of the Legal Remembrancer in regard to cases governed by the Matádárs Act arises out of the absence in that Act, of any recognition of the office of Police Patel as distinct from that of Revenue Patel. But if the Matádárs Act and Bombay Act VIII of 1867 are read together, it seems to follow that the former

* No. 1019, dated 15th July 1890, appended to G. R. No. 5394, dated 2nd August 1890, and printed as a foot-note to paragraph 3 of Part IV, Police Patels, of the "Village Officers and Servants" section of the Compilation.

Act governs only the appointment to the revenue patelship, the appointment to the police patelship being a separate question governed by the latter Act, which requires that, unless the Commissioner sees fit to separate the appointments, the Revenue Patel shall also be appointed Police Patel, and that in making the appointment regard shall be had to the Hereditary Offices Acts so far as they may be applicable. Having regard to these provisions of the law, Government consider that in cases in which there is, as a matter of fact, an admitted or established custom of service as Police Patel, the difficulty arising from the fact that such a custom cannot be separately and authoritatively recognised under the Matádárs Act may be got over by separating the offices under Section 5 of Bombay Act VIII of 1867. The effect of this arrangement would be that appointment to the revenue patelship will be made in accordance with the provisions of the Matádárs Act, while the District Magistrate will be free in the absence of anything applicable to the case in the Matádárs Act to appoint the Police Patel independently and, in so doing, to give effect to the custom of the watan, which, though it cannot be made the separate subject of a declaration under Section 6 of the Matádárs Act as it stands, might be recorded for the purpose by making a note in the mata register in the manner suggested by the Legal Remembrancer in the opinion* embodied in the preamble of Government Resolution No. 5902, dated 2nd September 1887. (G. R. No. 4894, dated 9th June 1894.)

PART XV.—DISTRICT HEREDITARY OFFICERS.

1. Allowances continued to hereditary district officers after commuting the claims of the State to service from them can no longer be looked upon as official emoluments, but are in the nature of hereditary personal property and as such should be debited to the head of "Allowances and Assignments under Treaties and Engagements." (G. R. No. 2524, dated 4th July 1864; vide also G. I., F. D., No. 2409, dated 13th September 1864, and G. M. No. 3865, dated 7th October 1864.)

2. The procedure suggested by Mr. Gordon, President of the Watan Commission, in his report included in the following correspondence should be invariably adopted:—

"I have the honour to inform you that Bayábái, who manages the watan of her husband Govindráo Trimbak, Deshmukh and Deshpánde of Dindori, in consequence of his being insane, has applied for permission to adopt a son. She has no issue, and wishes to adopt the son of her brother, Raghupat Malhár. Govindráo Trimbak has no heir or relation, and when he dies his family will become extinct.

"2. The aggregate proceeds of the watan amount to Rs. 1,387-15-8, minus the amount leviable therefrom according to Mr. Gordon's settlement sanctioned in the Government Resolution No. 1210, dated 1st April 1864, viz., Rs. 390-10-11, at four and a half annas in each rupee. There is no other sharer in the watan, and Bayábái, therefore, begs permission to make the adoption out of the family.

"3. This adoption is admissible in accordance with Mr. Gordon's settlement sanctioned in the Resolution above quoted, paragraph 17, clause 4, but subject to the payment of an annual nazarána of one anna in each rupee, which Bayábái is willing to pay annually in perpetuity.

"4. I have the honour, therefore, to request the sanction of Government to the adoption."

(Letter from the Collector of Ahmednagar, No. 2035, dated 11th October 1864.)

"The President of the Watan Commission, Deccan, has the honour to report that the proposal is in exact conformity with the third promise given in the sanad, and recommends, therefore, that Bayábái be permitted to adopt an heir.

"2. As this is the first case of this sort that has come before Government, it may be as well to take the opportunity of laying down some formal procedure by which the sanction of Government should be recorded.

"3. The best plan which occurs to the President, Watan Commission, to suggest is that an endorsement in English and Maráthi be written on the sanad, and signed and sealed by the Collector, stating that, according to the third promise given in the sanad, and under the sanction of Government No.                      and date                      , A has been permitted to adopt an heir, B, and the annual payment on behalf of the watan accordingly is henceforth fixed at Rs.                      *                      *                      "

(Letter from the President of the Watan Commission, No. 94, dated 14th November 1864).

(G. R. No. 4822, dated 5th December 1864).

3. It is not necessary to forego the levy of nazarána of one anna on alienations or adoptions out of the families by district hereditary officers who have accepted the watan settlement, and in respect of alienation the method least likely to cause difficulty would be to adhere strictly to the terms of the sanads in each case. In the case of watans in which the terms of Mr. Gordon's settlement do not expressly render them alienable without the consent of Government, the Collectors can proceed under Sections X and XI of the Hereditary Offices Act III of 1874 to prevent alienation by attachment or otherwise.

With regard to the continuing of watan emoluments to the widows of deceased holders, if the sanad undertakes to continue to male heirs only, a widow can have no claim, and if there are no male heirs lineal, collateral or adopted, the watan would seem to have lapsed.

(G. Rs. Nos. 3279, dated 2nd June 1876, 6070 dated 8th October 1877 and 2915, dated 23rd May 1881.)

4. Cases of adoptions by district hereditary officers out of the family on payment of nazarána should always be submitted to Government for sanction. (G. Rs. Nos. 6008, dated 5th December 1872, and 3201, dated 18th May 1877).

5. The nazarána taken in the case of district hereditary officers' watans on account of adoptions from without the family is one of the conditions of Mr. Gordon's settlement, and it must, therefore, be continued.

It is undesirable to treat mahál zamindári property converted into private property exactly like ordinary ináms, and it should be registered in the register of non-service watans. In the revenue account it may be treated as inám, being described, however, as settled mahál zamindári lands.

In other cases than the above the Re. 1 nazarána should be levied as hitherto, as it will facilitate the recording of changes of title. But in the case of "Representative Watandár," to whom and to whose widow the Act gives unqualified power to adopt, no nazarána can be levied. (G. R. No. 6282, dated 6th November 1875.)

6. In the case to which Mr. Gordon's settlement of watans has been applied, and which are entered in the Collector's records in the names of the widows of the last recipients who had died without leaving male issue, collaterals who could prove that they were entitled to succeed as next of kin should have their names substituted for those of the widows.

It is evident from the form of sanad issued to district hereditary officers in the Poona District in confirmation of the service commutation settlement made with them by Mr. Gordon, that Government have recognised the right of succession in virtue of lawful adoption by a widow from within the watan family, and, therefore, that the widow's adoptive son has a perpetual claim over collaterals. A boy adopted by a widow has, according to Hindu law, precisely the same status as if he had been adopted during the widow's husband's life-time. (G. Rs. Nos. 6149, dated 19th October 1881, and 10054, dated 22nd December 1881.)

7. Government do not consider that any sufficient cause has been shown to lead them to any modification of the terms of the sanads granted to Watandárs in the Southern Marátha Country and the Deccan with a view to place these Watandárs on the same footing with those of Gujarát in the matter of female inheritance. The exact terms of the sanad must be strictly adhered to in each instance. (G. R. No. 7659, dated 17th December 1881).

8. Where the watan (Gordon's) settlement has been made with the widows, the sanads, in the accepted form, should be granted to them. The terms which restrict the succession to male heirs, and which under the orders of Government are to be strictly adhered to, cannot be enforced against the particular females in whose favour settlements have been already made and completed in every respect saving the formal delivery of the sanads.

The terms of the sanad are to be observed in questions of succession from the present holders whether male or female, and there is nothing in those terms which bars succession by adoption. But it is to be observed that a childless widow who succeeds by inheritance to her husband's estate, by adopting a son to her late husband, divests herself of that estate in favour of the son adopted and is entitled to maintenance only. If the adopted son is a minor, she can obtain a certificate of administration and guardianship, and continue to manage the estate on his behalf until he comes of age.

In respect of non-service watans in the Khándesh District, Government in their Resolution No. 6149 of 19th October 1881, have sanctioned the proposal of the Commissioner, C. D., that the names of the widows should be retained in the Government books until their deaths, after which event the names of their legal male heirs should be substituted in their stead in accordance with the terms of the Gordon sanad. The form of sanad is, substantially, the same for Thána as for Khándesh and the widows with whom Mr. Gordon's settlement was made should be treated alike in both districts. In case, however, of the adoption of a person within the limits of the Watandár family or of an outsider (provided the general privilege of adopting outsiders who can be legally adopted has been granted) the name of the person adopted should be substituted for that of the widow as soon as the adoption has been made known and not on her death; and this course ought to be followed wherever this form of sanad prevails.

The payment of nazarána is not required except where the above-mentioned general privilege has been applied for and granted.

9. The ruling laid down in the foregoing Resolution No. 4326, dated 5th July 1882, is of general application. (G. R. No. 1184, dated 7th February 1884.)

10. Government are not prepared to abandon the decision resolved upon in 1881 which was that, as the district watan lands and cash allowances in the Deccan and Southern Marátha Country were continuable by the sanads hereditarily to the holders and their heirs, as long as any male heir to the watan lineal, collateral or adopted shall be in existence, the watan property secured by the sanad should be entered in the Government records in the name of the male heir from time to time entitled to succeed to it. At the same time it is stated in the sanad that Government will not raise any objection or question in consequence of the watan property being held by any other person with the consent of the owners under the sanad, and this concession appears to make sufficient provision for any rights of other persons than the male heirs. (G. R. No. 1071, dated 4th February 1885).

11. If the widow under Gordon's settlement or the terms of the sanad has no right to succeed to the property, watan or cash payment, she can in no circumstances claim the latter or sue the Collector if he pays it to the lineal male heir who does claim it.

Government have decided to adhere to the view that male heirs only can be recognised under the sanads. The construction of the sanads is, however, proper matter for adjudication by the Civil Courts.

If a widow desires to sue the recognised male heir in order to establish her title to any watan property to which she may consider herself entitled, the Collector should grant her the certificate which would probably be required under the Pensions Act to enable her to institute the necessary proceedings.

12. With regard to district hereditary officers' watans brought under Gordon's settlement it was ruled by Government on 30th June 1886 that "pending any further judicial decision, the practice of entering the name of the male heir of the original grantee should continue, and there should be no active interference with any holder of the property as long as a male heir is in existence," i.e., that although the name of the male heir of the original grantee is to be entered, Government is not to interfere with the possession or enjoyment of the watan property by whomsoever it may be held so long as a male heir is in existence.
